QUARRELS WITH GOVERNOR FULLER OF MASSACHUSETTS

Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Must Retract Charges or Face Dismissal—Has Charged the Governor With "Breaking Faith With State Employes"—Statement Was Made During a Legislative Hearing—Goodwin Tells of Stormy Interview With Gov. Fuller.

BOSTON, Feb. 29—(AP)—Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, must retract charges made by him last night against Governor Alvan T. Fuller or face dismissal, William F. Williams, commissioner of public works and Goodwin's immediate chief, announced tonight. The decision was made public in a brief statement as follows:

"The statements made last night by Registrar Goodwin to the committee on public service were in their reference to the governor false, malicious and deliberately misleading, and unless they are corrected, I shall recommend his removal to the governor and council."

Goodwin made the statements referred to at a legislative hearing on two bills, one to increase the salaries of the governor and other state executives, the other calling for a reclassification of state employes. He charged the governor with "breaking faith with state employes."

"A few weeks ago when the governor was abusing me in his office," Goodwin said, "he made this statement: 'No one ever crossed me and got away with it.' My answer to this is: 'No one ever double crossed me and got away with it if I could prevent it.'"

Governor Fuller declined to discuss the incident, his only comment being:

"I am reluctant to enter into a newspaper controversy with a man who does not tell the truth and whose main purpose is to get for himself newspaper advertising without consideration of fact and fair dealing."

Goodwin, upon being notified of Williams' action, retorted immediately with a public statement in which he reiterated his statements of yesterday concerning his conference with the governor. He said:

"Mr. Williams does not specify what particular statement is false but I am informed that the governor denies saying 'No one ever crossed me and got away with it.' It does not make any difference that Mr. Williams did not hear the statement or that the governor denies it. I heard him say it. At the time, he was making a stump speech to Mr. Williams and me. Beating his chest with his hand after he had gotten through reading his prepared statement, he was so furious I do not think he knows what he said. I told many of my friends of that statement immediately after I came from his office and I never could have thought of such a thing unless he said it. I will stake my reputation for truth against that of the governor any time and leave it to the people of Massachusetts."

Main was brought to the Meriden hospital, where he is suffering from a fractured right leg and abrasions about the face.

Why Main was being chased by the trooper in his roadster could not be learned, the state officer gruffly refusing to divulge any information concerning the accident. Dr. George E. Cook, of Plainville, attended the injured man at the scene of the accident.

BRAINBRIDGE COLBY FAILED IN DIVORCE SUIT IN FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 29—(AP)—Complete defeat has attended the efforts of Brainbridge Colby, who was American secretary of state under President Wilson, to obtain a divorce in France, where so many of his lesser-known compatriots have had their marital bonds easily severed in recent years.

The tribunal at Versailles, before which Mr. Colby applied for a decree last summer, has decided it is without jurisdiction, inasmuch as the former secretary had not apparently relinquished his domicile in the United States, although he has been living in France for 11 months.

Death of the Italian World War Army Chief

Marshal Armando Diaz, 67, Victim of Influenza Complicated With Pneumonia

ROME, Feb. 29—(AP)—Marshal Armando Diaz, who as commander of Italian armies in the World War took place in the hearts of his countrymen comparable only with that held by Marshal Foch in France and General Pershing in America, died today.

His wife and son were at his bedside at the end and he had received the last sacraments from a priest attached to Santa Maria Del Popolo, the "titular church" of Cardinal Mundelein in Rome.

King Victor and Premier Mussolini sent special emissaries to convey their condolences to the family.

The body of the warrior was laid in state, fully uniformed as when he served as chief defender of his country. A number of field officers, who were wounded in the World war, mounted a guard of honor around the casket.

Marshal Diaz was obliged to surrender the portfolio of war in the cabinet of Premier Musolini because of his health. He lately had seemed to be recovering from the liver disorder from which he had long suffered, but influenza which developed into bronchial pneumonia quickly brought the end. Only on last Sunday was it apparent that the marshal was seriously ill.

It was recalled that when Field Marshal Haig of England died recently, Marshal Diaz exclaimed: "Well, he is the first of us to go; who will be the next?"

JUDGE F. E. KENNAMER WILL WELCOME ANY INVESTIGATION

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 29—(AP)—Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, will "welcome any investigation," he said today when informed of the charges filed against him with the speaker of the house of representatives by Henry H. Stroud of Tulsa, Okla.

When the charges were rumored, a month ago, the judge had stated that "whatever move is under way for my impeachment is sponsored by those directly or indirectly interested in criminality and by the bootlegging fraternity in general."

Asked concerning the accusations as he stepped from the bench today, the judge said: "All I have to say is that I will welcome any investigation they care to make of my court."

A sweeping denial of the accusations against him was made in a statement by Judge Kennamer tonight.

Declaring his court was honest and that the charges against him were "manufactured and scurrilous," Judge Kennamer said the "records and acts of my court are an open book to the public."

Five Marines Were Killed in Nicaragua

A Detachment of 36 Men Was Ambushed—Seven Marines Were Wounded.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 29—(AP)—Ambushed in a mountain pass where heavy underbrush concealed the attackers, a marine patrol suffered the severest blow the corps has been dealt during the last six weeks of endeavor to pacify Nicaragua. The marine losses were five killed and seven wounded, but more than 48 hours after Augustino Sandino's band had launched their surprise attack last Monday the names on the casualty list were unknown at marine headquarters.

Lieut. Edward F. O'Day, who led the patrol of 36 marines convoying an unloaded pack train of 80 mules, apparently spent the night in the position from which he drove the attackers in order to treat his wounded and bury the dead.

Today, however, he was making his way slowly to Condega carrying the injured. From that base he was expected to telegraph the first real story of the battle to Ocotal, from where it would be radioed to marine headquarters here.

The sketchy facts now known were obtained by Capt. Robert J. Archibald from his plane circling over panel messages laid on the ground by the marines. Sandino apparently laid his ambush in the hope of capturing food and ammunition, but the train had already deposited its supplies at Yali and was returning to Estell.

As soon as word of the encounter was received, three detachments of marines were sent from points in the vicinity. It is known that Capt. William K. MacNulty, of the 11th regiment, who was on another mission with 85 men, has joined forces with Lieutenant O'Day.

JOHN BARRYMORE WAS INJURED IN FIST FIGHT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 29—(AP)—Myron Selznick, film agent, said tonight that in his opinion John Barrymore, screen and stage actor, would not be seen in public for several days as the result of a fist fight between the actor and himself on the lawn of the Ambassador hotel last Saturday night. Barrymore was declared at his motion picture studio to have gone away Monday on location, and he could not be reached for a statement.

"We had a real fight, which lasted about ten minutes," Selznick related reluctantly. "Owen Moore tried to separate us but was unable to do so and that is probably the reason we fought so long."

The fist fight took place while moviedom's elite attended the annual Wampas ball and frolic in the Ambassador hotel ball room.

Selznick said Moore had called him from his supper party to see Lionel Barrymore at the latter's bungalow on a business matter. He declared that during the talk, John Barrymore made "slurring remarks" about his nationality.

"I felt that I had been insulted," Selznick continued, "and asked him like a gentleman to refrain from making further remarks. He wanted me to fight him and I told him I respected his age. This seemed to anger him very much so when I left his bungalow he followed myself and Moore.

"He struck me before I walked out and on the lawn he struck me again. Then I considered it time to protect myself and we had a real fight which lasted ten minutes."

ROUSCH CONFESSED SLAYER, BROUGHT BACK TO HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Feb. 29—(AP)—Philip Rousch, 24 years old confessed murderer of Albert Hoag, Cheshire reformatory guard, on December 10, 1923, who was captured in Jacksonville, Fla., last Friday, was brought back to Hartford late tonight by Superintendent Frank M. Nichols of the state police and State Policeman Paul Lavin.

Rousch was locked in a cell at police headquarters at 11 o'clock and tomorrow will be taken to Cheshire, where he will be bound over from the town court to the superior court at Waterbury on a charge of murder.

Superintendent Nichols said he and Policeman Lavin had an uneventful trip back from Florida with Rousch. The prisoner gave no trouble and was apparently relieved at getting the burden of his crime off his mind although he is anxious over his possible fate, he said.

In the five years that followed his escape after slaying Hoag by crushing his skull while the two were cutting wood in timberland between Cheshire and Wallingford, Rousch spent most of the time in the merchant marine.

As a result of this life he has changed completely in physical appearance. Thin and sallow at the time of the murder, he appeared tonight, a strong upstanding youth, weighing more than 180 pounds. He has gained more than 20 pounds during the last five years.

Superintendent Nichols was not ready to reveal tonight anything of Rousch's confession, which it is understood, clears up the circumstances surrounding the murder.

DETAILS OF $1,802,712 SUIT BY THE AMERICAN WOOLEN CO.

Allegation Made That the Late William M. Wood, Former President of the Company, Violated His Duty of Fidelity and Trust—A Second Bill in Equity Brought by the Company Against the Wood Estate is Still Impounded.

BOSTON, Feb. 29—(AP)—Through an appeal to the full bench of the state supreme court, details of a suit brought by the American Woolen company, to recover $1,802,712, were made public today for the first time. In previous states of the litigation the papers had been impounded but the full bench refused to make this order.

The plaintiff company alleged that Wood "in violation of his duty of fidelity and trust," to the American Woolen company, of New Jersey, predecessor of the American Woolen company, purchased in 1902 in his own name, mill property at Winooski, Vt., for $71,250, organized two corporations to operate these mills and caused it to be leased to the American Woolen company, of New Jersey, at rentals totalling $418,697. Ultimately, it is alleged the mills were sold to the New Jersey corporation for $1,350,000. The bill declares that these facts were concealed during Wood's lifetime and only recently came to light.

The bill claims that in 1901, the American Woolen company, of New Jersey owned successful mill properties at Enfield and Lebanon, N. H., and desired to add further plants. Wood, directing the affairs of the company, directed George E. Whitney, an employe, to seek such property and in December, 1901, Whitney obtained an application on the Winooski plant.

It is charged that Wood had the property secretly transferred to himself, sold the machinery and equipment for $350,000, and in March, 1902, organized the Burlington Manufacturing company, to which he transferred the mills a few weeks later. A majority of the stock of this corporation was issued to Wood, the bill alleged. The mills were leased to the American Woolen company, of New Jersey. In November, 1902, the Burlington mills, with capital of $750,000, was formed to take over the assets of the Burlington Manufacturing company. Thereafter, until March, 1906, the mills were leased by the American Woolen company, of New Jersey, which then purchased the property.

The plaintiff claims that in justice and equity the Winooski property belonged to the American Woolen company, of New Jersey, after the Whitney option was taken, and that Wood and the various corporations which he organized were in the position of trustees.

A second bill in equity brought by the company against the Wood estate is still impounded.

TESTIMONY GIVEN BY FATHER OF HICKMAN

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Once more the mental condition of William Edward Hickman was placed under the legal microscope by a jury today with the prospect that, in event of conviction of his second murder, his insanity evidence would be reviewed for still a third time.

Cross examination of the elder Hickman centered on his "chasing around with other women."

"I'm just an average man," was his answer. "I'm no angel."

BELIEVE MAN COMMITTED SUICIDE BY DROWNING

HARTFORD, Feb. 29—(AP)—The Connecticut river is believed to hold the secret of the disappearance of Edwin B. Stone, 50, descendant of an old New Milford family, from his home at 1273 Main street, where he lived for many years with his wife.

Mrs. Stone did not report her husband's absence until last Saturday, although he went away, broken in health after a year's illness, on February 2. Tonight the detective bureau announced that the man's overcoat, his scarf and gloves had been found in bushes on the river bank at the foot of State street. Detective Peter Anderson recovered the clothing from a family aboard a houseboat, who had notified the police.

NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS IS MAKING BETTER SHOWING

BOSTON, Feb. 29.—(AP)—A better showing by New England business in January than in December reported in the monthly reviews of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston.

"The New England business activity index," the review says, "in January rose approximately two per cent, from its December level and was slightly higher than in January, 1927. The change for the better in this district, while probably not as large as for the country as a whole, took place in the face of a further recession in textile mill activity, with its resultant wage cuts and losses in the number employed and with less favorable conditions prevailing in retail trade.

PLEADED GUILTY TO THEFT OF A $600 DIAMOND RING

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 29.—(AP)—William J. McKenna, of Chatham, N. Y., accused of having stolen a diamond ring worth $600 from the home of Miss Helen McGrath in this city, where he was a boarder, changed his plea to guilty from not guilty in superior court today and was sentenced to serve not less than two and a half or more than five years in state prison.

McKenna, also known as Haskins, is said to have been wanted by the Bridgeport, Conn., and Fitchburg authorities on a similar charge.

TWO LEAP YEAR BABIES BORN IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 29.—(AP)—A birthday only once in every four years was the unlucky prospect under which two future citizens were born in Springfield today. And both were girls, which makes the blow all the harder. One, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Levine, entered the leap year baby class by only a fraction of a minute, having been born just after the midnight hour had struck. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Patsulm, formerly of Somers, Conn., shortly afterward.

ALIEN PROPERTY BILL READY FOR SIGNATURE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Nine years and more than three month after the signing of the armistice, congress today took final action on a bill to provide for the settlement of claims growing out of the World war involving the nations of the United States, Germany and Austria-Hungary.

The bill reached the end of its legislative course with approval by the house of a conference report recently agreed to by the senate and goes to President Coolidge. Among other provisions, it would authorize an appropriation of $100,000,000 to pay for the ships seized by the United States from German companies and for the payment in full of all claims of $100,000 or less.

Claims in excess of that amount will be allowed an 80 per cent. down payment, the remainder to be paid over a period of years as funds become available from money received by the U. S. under the Dawes reparations settlement.

The German payment amounts to about $11,500,000 annually and is for the cost of the American army of occupation in Germany after the war.

Regarding the American-Austria-Hungarian claims, the bill provides that as soon as the Austrian and Hungarian governments deposit sufficient funds to meet the amount of American claims that all property belonging to those two governments shall be returned.

SEARCHING FOR SLAYERS OF MINERS' OFFICIALS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 29—(AP)—Late this afternoon police authorities of northeastern Pennsylvania were reported centering their efforts in Scranton, Dunmore and Old Forge sections of Lackawanna county in an effort to apprehend the assassins responsible for the double murder of Alex Campbell, check weighman at number six colliery of Pennsylvania Coal company, and Peter Reilly, recording secretary of local union number 1703, United Mine Workers of America, on Railroad street, Pittston, Tuesday afternoon.

Police denied that arrests of suspects had been made during the day but announced that "good progress" had been made. It is the belief that the assassins were hired gunmen brought into anthracite coal fields to dispose of Campbell and Reilly, who had been leading the fight against contract mining systems, said to be prevalent in Pennsylvania Coal company mines.

Early tonight William H. Gillespie, mayor of Pittston, had not received a reply from John L. Lewis, international president of United Mine Workers of America, who is in Washington. During the day Mayor Gillespie forwarded a telegram asking Mr. Lewis to exert his influence to bring an end to the reign of terror in Pittston district.

MOTHER OF MRS. COOLIDGE HAS SUFFERED A RELAPSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(AP)—A critical relapse in her mother's illness prompted Mrs. Coolidge to hurry tonight to the bedside of Mrs. Lemira Goodhue at Northampton, Mass.

Although hardly recovered herself from an indisposition which has been troubling her for amout a month and which as late as last night prevented her from attending a dinner to President Coolidge by Secretary Hoover, Mrs. Coolidge began the overnight trip to New England accompanied by Mrs. R. B. Hills, of Northampton, a friend of school days, and by Lieut. Commander Joel T. Boone, white house physician.

Mrs. Goodhue has been ill with influenza since last December when she was taken to the Carpenter hospital in Northampton. Once before last January her condition aroused so much apprehension that Mrs. Coolidge rushed to her bedside despite the fact that upon returning to Washington she was immediately faced with a week's voyage to Havana and back.

Reports from Northampton that Mrs. Goodhue was failing rapidly apparently led Mrs. Coolidge not to postpone further departure from Washington. The date of her return is understood to depend upon Mrs. Goodhue's condition.

WOODCHOPPER KILLED WHEN TREE FELL ON HIM

THOMASTON, Conn., Frank Spiewock, 40, of North Main street, who obtained his first employment, a wood cutting job, at 2 o'clock this afternoon after five weeks enforced idleness, was killed at 6 o'clock when a tree he and a fellow worker cut down fell on him and fractured his skull. He died an hour after the accident just as he was being placed in the Waterbury hospital ambulance to be rushed to the hospital.

LIABILITY OF OWNERS OF STEAMER CITY OF ROME

NEW YORK, Feb. 29—(AP)—Federal Judge Goddard ruled today that liability of the owners of the steamer City of Rome for damages resulting from the collision in 1925 with the submarine S-51 should be limited to the worth of the steamer and its cargo, approximately $307,000.

He also ruled that the United States government should pay half of damages sustained by the City of Rome.

The S-51 sank off the New England coast in 1925 with loss of 33 lives and damage claims amount to $1,800,000.

Silas Axtell, counsel for relatives of the men who died in the submarine, interpreted the ruling to mean that the government must pay one-half of whatever the relatives may be adjudged entitled to.

"A referee will probably be appointed to compute the amount due each claimant," he said. "If he should decide that $1,000,000 is due the relatives $500,000 would have to be paid by the United States. The $307,000 from the steamship company being added."

In making his ruling, Judge Goddard stated that the City of Rome, which is owned by the Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah, had been fully manned and equipped with lights, but had continued on its course after sighting the masthead light of the S-51 and had failed to sound its whistle or to try to stop until too late to avoid a collision.

The navy, he said, was culpable for not observing the international rules of 1897 in a proper display of masthead and side lights.

"I cannot accept the view," he said, "that submarines running on the surface through traffic lanes are immune to the usual requirements regarding lights. The strict observance by mariners of similar regulations has long been demanded by sea-faring people."

BANKING FIRM SUED FOR $1,100,000 IN COMMISSIONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 29—(AP)—A suit for $1,100,000 in commissions and interest by Emmett Queen, a broker, against partners in the banking firm of Dillon, Read & company, was disclosed today. B. G. Dawes, brother of the vice-president, is named by the plaintiff as a representative of the banking house in the transaction upon which the suit is based.

The complaint states that Queen acted as agent for the bankers in the sale of the majority stock of the Pure Oil company, of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York, to the Ohio Cities Gas company, and was to have received a commission of $1 a share on the sale of 940,000 shares. The deal failed on the first attempt, Queen charges, but later was completed with the payment of $23,500,000 for the stock.

Dawes, the plaintiff said, was one of the men who represented Dillon, Read & company, as a dummy in the transaction, ostensibly representing the Ohio Cities Gas company, but in fact acting as the "secret agent" of Dillon, Read & company. Under an agreement reached in negotiations with Dawes, the complaint states, the stock was sold at $1.50 a share below the actual market price.

ANOTHER MEDAL AWARDED TO COLONEL LINDBERGH

NEW YORK, Feb. 29—(AP)—Another medal was awarded to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today.

Trustees of the Woodrow Wilson foundation voted unanimously to give to the flier the Woodrow Wilson award, which will consist of the Woodrow Wilson medal and $25,000, in recognition of his trans-Atlantic and Central American flights. The date for the presentation of the award is to be fixed later.

The last award of the foundation was made in 1926 to Elihu Root for his work in helping to establish the World court.

5,206 MOTOR VEHICLE MISHAPS IN HARTFORD IN 1927

HARTFORD, Feb. 29—(AP)—Commercial and passenger motor vehicles were involved in 5,206 accidents in Hartford in 1927, according to information given today by the state motor vehicle department. Of these, 4,020 were passenger, or pleasure, cars, and 1,189 were commercial vehicles.

In comparing the analysis of the 1926 accidents with that of 1927, a 15 per cent reduction in accidents in the commercial class was shown, although the number of registrations increased 4.5 per cent, indicating, according to department officials, that commercial operators are becoming more and more careful in their driving.

LINDBERGH GUEST OF N. Y. STATE LEGISLATURE

LBANY, N. Y., Feb. 29—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, visiting this city today as the guest of the New York state legislature, saw the partial realization of a dream of individual state control of aviation matters with the signing by Governor Smith of the first of a series of bills comprising New York's proposed aviation program.

Inspired with the enthusiasm aroused by the young flier's visit, the legislature will pass tomorrow the remainder of the bills embraced in the program, and thus place New York state foremost among those seeking to cooperate with the federal government by enacting statues calling for rigid regulations and extensive promotion of aircraft.

Speaking at the first joint session called in at least ten years to honor an individual other than the governor of the state, Lindbergh told the legislature that New York's attitude toward proposed air legislation was being closely watched by the other states of the union.

GOV. TRUMBULL REFUSED TO HONOR REQUISITION

HARTFORD, Feb. 29—(AP)—Governor Trumbull this afternoon declined to honor the requisition issued by the governor of Pennsylvania for the return to that state of Benjamin J. Friedman, of Stamford, wanted in Pittsburgh for passing a worthless check for $1,000.

Friedman, through his lawyer, Senator Matthew H. Kenealy, of Stamford, claimed that the check had been given in settlement of an account with a rubber company there, the officials of which had agreed to give certain credits in return. The company failed to give him the credits, it was claimed.

It was further claimed that the check had been issued in October, whereas the complaint had not been made until February.

Governor Trumbull, in declining to honor the requisition, said that the extradition was being used as a means to collect civil debts.

John F. Forward, of Hartford, appeared for Pennsylvania.

FRENCH OFFICIALS PUZZLED BY SEC'Y KELLOGG'S NOTE

PARIS, Feb. 29—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg's note on the outlawry of war has puzzled French officials and called forth criticism from the press. The officials apparently are unable to understand why Mr. Kellogg should inform France that the Havana resolution outlawed war without reserve, whereas the text of the resolution as received here merely condemned aggressive war.

Nor does the French mind profess to comprehend the assumption of the American secretary of state that the proposed pact is to include other great powers. So far as disclosed here they have not even been consulted on the subject.

There is surprise at the failure of the United States to obtain the collaboration of Great Britain, Italy, Germany and Japan in a multilateral pact.

BRICKLEY LARCENY CASE IN HANDS OF THE JURY

BOSTON, Feb. 29—(AP)—The case of Charles E. Brickley, former Harvard football captain, charged with larceny and conducting a bucket shop, was in the hands of a jury tonight. When the jury received the case today it was understood that if a verdict was not reached until after court adjourned it would be sealed and reported to the court tomorrow morning.

Brickley was tried on indictments charging him with the theft of a certificate for 22 shares of stock of the Gillette Safety Razor company and $2,195 in cash from Patrick Callahan, of Boston, and with larceny of a smaller sum from Mrs. George Boynton, of Marlboro, who were clients of his brokerage business.

ASSAULT THE OUTCOME OF AN ANTI-MUSSOLINI PLOT

ROME, Feb. 29—(AP)—Belief that the attempt on the life of Father Tacchi-Venturi, who is known as the confidante of both Mussolini and the Vatican, was the outcome of a long-planned anti-Mussolini plot, had gained credence tonight in clerical and other circles in Rome.

Departing from the reserve which they hitherto had maintained in discussing the case, several ecclesiastics who are close to the Jesuit scholar-diplomat revealed

But for the timely action of Albert Bellwire, a black and white hound dog would have choked to death on Main street about nine o'clock this morning. The dog, wearing a collar minus a license tag or name plate, had been eating out of a garbage can near the Hibberd block when it suddenly pulled away with a yelp and went staggering down the sidewalk toward North street. Bellwire, standing with a group of men, saw a large swelling on the canine's throat and grabbing the animal he massaged its throat, allowing the obstruction to pass down clear of the throat and windpipe.

Having been accorded the unanimous endorsement of over 125 merchant members of the chamber of commerce, the wake-up committee of the Merchants' association is now ready to put into action the elaborate plans drawn up for the big spring-time opening event. There is every indication that the event will carry with it the largest attraction of anything of its kind ever attempted locally. The program is so planned as to bring several of the surrounding towns into actual contest with the preparation, this being done mainly through the poster contest. William B. Sweeney, chairman of the poster contest has announced that it is to be staged among students of the normal, high and grammar schools of the city and the schools of the surrounding towns, comprised within Willimantic's trading area. A grand prize is to be awarded for the winning poster and a copy of this poster will be reproduced in colors and used as the official display of the merchants during the three days of the opening. The judges for this contest will be, John Jamison of the Graphic Arts company of Hartford; Mrs. Louis H. Arnold, formerly connected with the art department of the local schools and Professor Frederick W. Staebner, science teacher at the normal school. Standish states that special prizes of value will be presented the winning decorators who will be local men according to the rules of this contest. James B. Fullerton is general chairman of the opening.

As yet this city has not fallen in line with Hartford in announcing an increase in gasoline prices, the failure to date of the local stations to follow Hartford's lead coming as a surprise to local consumers. Last week's prices continue to prevail this also being true of one of the large companies which dropped in price last Friday.

Civil action to recover on alleged loans of money to the amount of $680 has been instituted against the White Eagle Polish-American band by The Thaddeus Kosciuszko club of this city. Anthony Pionowski was awarded damages of $1,130 in his suit against Michael and Alexander Pionowski, according to a decision recently handed down by Judge Christopher L. Avery of the New London county superior court where the suit was heard. The plaintiff sued to recover money he advanced to the defendants for the purchase of a farm in Lebanon four years ago. The three principals, in company, bargained for the farm, the plaintiff advancing one-half of the purchase price. The plaintiff later found that Michael, his uncle, had entered the farm in his own (Michael's) name. When Anthony tried to recover his money, the uncle transferred the property in the name of Alexander Pionowski, a cousin.

ONLY SIX-INCH ICE CUT ON DORRVILLE FIELDS

A large number of visitors was at the Dorrville ice fields Wednesday, where Shea Bros. are housing ice only six inches thick. With a persistently rising temperature, the hope of anything like a full crop has been abandoned. James Shea said Wednesday night that his only hope was to get enough of the thin product to sandwich in between the quantities he will have to buy. Carload lots from the north arrive at uncertain intervals and the big market refrigerators must be filled daily. When operations stopped Wednesday night there were 400 tons in the houses, which is hardly a start, and the lower runways are still being operated. About 80 tons has been cut in Leonard's cove, on the Pachaug reservoir. This ice is eight inches thick and has been teamed here, a three-mile haul, and stored in a shed. Two of the main handicaps being experienced by the ice men are breakage, and the fact that the long endless chain, when the lugs grapple a cake, on the one movement a 12-inch cake, is handled just as quickly as one only half as thick, which answers the question of twice the time for the same tonnage cut. Last year, the houses were filled in late December with 14-inch ice. Within two weeks the same fields were covered with ice, of finest grade, about a foot thick. Tuesday afternoon, Doc Gingrass was operating the big halfton rotary gasoline plow. Nearing the end of the cross marking, where the field is divided into great square sections, the weight of the approaching cutter proved too much for the thin division left between the plowed groove and the water. A long section parted, and man and plow started for the bottom, 15 feet below. It was off the north shore of the island, the deepest part of the pond. Gingrass let out a shout, while he held fast to the controls, hoping to gain the solid ice. Mr. Shea saw a thousand dollar machine and a good man going down. Everybody ran. Two or three heavy joists were shoved through the frame and fly wheel, reaching across to solid ice, and man and machine were rescued by means of stout ropes. Wednesday night, the main channel was all open from where it makes across the old mill dam, clear down to Ashland mill. In all of 45 years of ice harvesting on the Dorrville fields, not once has the work gone on with the channel open within a few feet of the plow marks.

A valentine social held at the Congregational parsonage by Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters, although a postponed affair, provided a most delightful evening. There were 25 present, who were most joyously welcomed by David, the youngest son of the household. The rooms were adorned with numberless red hearts, some with most expressive faces. Bewitching youths were evidently waiting for a leap year proposal, and amorous hearts caused the maids to say "I love you" numerous times. Doors, curtains and chandeliers were hung with red and white streamers. Cupid's mail was most exciting and pinning the envelopes on the mail box landed some of them in strange places. The envelopes each held a valentine favor. There were three readings, Aunt Ruth's Valentine by Miss Mabel Wilcox, Grandmother's Valentine by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, and From Mother—A Valentine, by Mrs. A. C. Burdick. Cupid's messages, which were hearts with unfinished poetry, were given to each one to finish. Mrs. A. C. Burdick received the first prize, and Mrs. Carter the second, both valentines. The Cupid's mail prizes went to Mrs. W. E. Marshall and Mrs. J. W. Carter. A short but very spicy and laughable play, The Wooing of Jane, was given by Ethel Fisk as Jane, Sadie Thompson as Preston, Eleanor Stetson as Bobby and Miss M. A. Burdick as Aunt Jane. The poetical spirit had moved Mr. Goodenough after attending the recent minstrel show, to write a sonnet on Lizzie Was a Lady, and he was asked to read it. Each one of the star performers received special valentines. The refreshments carried out the color scheme of valentine day. Raspberry jam heart sandwiches, cake and jello with red candy decorations, cookies and cocoa were served. The napkins were folded in envelope style, and the waitresses had valentine aprons. Miss Grace Olin made all the decorations, the house being decorated by Miss Birdick, Mrs. Hiscox and Mrs. Goodenough. Miss Olin was assisted in arranging the evening's entertainment by Mrs. W. H. Payne, Eleanor Stetson, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mrs. Ella Geer and Mabel Wilcox.

Babcock, Mrs. William Perry, Mrs. Solomon Pacquette, Mrs. Edward Raney and Mrs. Thomas Brown. A patriotic programme was prepared by Miss Mabel McBroome, Mrs. E. E. Scates and Mrs. Louis Hewlitt. It opened with America the Beautiful. Marian Wilbur recited Washington's Birthday; an exercise, I Would Tell of Washington, was given by Robert Scates, Edwin Hewlitt, Hermon and Rollin Tripp; Her Part was recited by Miriam Scates; Mrs. Walter Hebert sang Today, accompanied by Mrs. E. E. Gilbert; Arthur Tripp gave The Flag as a recitation; an exercise was given by Alberta Scates, Lois Hewlitt and Virginia Pacquette; Mrs. G. H. Prior sang Your Land and My Land, and America closed the programme.

NOANK

ALLEN ASHBY WAS BORN ON FEBRUARY TWENTY-NINTH

On the last day of February, leap year, a man in the fishing village, Allen Ashby had a birthday on the 29th. He had four years to wait to celebrate it. His friends and the school children wanted to shake hands with the ex-sea captain, wishing him many returns of the day. Capt. Ashby received a shower of cards from in and out of town. He was smiling as everybody said it is Captain Ashby's birthday. Noank was some proud to find out of 1,000 persons one man's birthday came in leap year. Captain Ashby followed the sale water for over 36 years at the lobster game and knew every wave on the ocean, could tell when a storm was coming and would tell the fleet it was time to head for Noank. He retired a few years ago. He received many gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. L. LeDevine came from Boston after spending a week on the stage at the Tremont theatre. Driving through in their automobile to New York Tuesday they stopped at Groton Long Point where they have two cottages, also are summer residents of the point. They were looking over the cottages to see if the winter storms did them any damage and found their property O. K. Walking around the point they saw several changes and new cottages going up and Mr. LeDevine said it looks like another busy season. A few carpenters and plumbers were working on the small cottage on Middlefield street as the actors jumped into their car and started back to New York.

George Watrous, watchman on the steamers at the shipyard is confined to his home by illness. His place is taken by George McCarthy.

Tuesday afternoon as some person was walking from the trolley waiting room at Groton Long Point down to the board walk and near some cottages a cigarette was thrown over in the high grass. After ten minutes it was all ablaze moving toward a cottage. Charles Hadley was working nearby. He saw the fire and getting several men with brooms, went in and worked hard for 20 minutes before the blaze was put out. A length of garden hose was brought out of a cottage which had running water, as the family stays the year round. The hose played a big part in putting out the fire by wetting around the edges. The fire company at the point with the Ford fire engine was not called out. The quick work of Chief Charles Hadley and his get-together fire fighters saved the cottage.

Steamer Quick-Step has been put on the east ways at the shipyard for repairs. Carpenter work will be done and two coats of paint will be given the steamer. It will take about a week after the steamer is launched and it will leave for a fishing trip to Georges banks, after tile fish.

GALES FERRY

THE NEW FIRE DISTRICT FORMALLY ORGANIZED

The organization meeting for a fire district at Gales Ferry was held Tuesday evening, at the Country club house, with a good attendance. Fred W. Burton, first selectman of the town of Ledyard called the meeting to order. Walter T. Clark, president of the Village Improvement association, was made chairman of the meeting with Prof. Chester E. Dimick, clerk.

Prof. Dimick read the call of the meeting. To vote, on a petition of 20, or more voters, that a fire district be formed at Gales Ferry on the following district lines:

North boundary—To start on the east bank of the Thames river at a point north of Clark cove, where the right of way of the Eastern Connecticut Power company is located; and to follow this right of way due east to the Military highway.

East boundary—To start at the intersection of the Eastern Connecticut Power company's right of way and the Military highway and follow west side of said highway in its southerly direction for about 1315 feet, thence crossing said highway and following the upper wall, through the property of the late Henry Hurlbutt, in a southerly direction as far as Christy Hill road.

South boundary—To follow westerly on Christy Hill road to the junction of Trout Brook road, thence south along Trout Brook road to a point on the west side of Trout Brook road where a wall divides the property of Carl W. Brown and Mrs. Susan Batterbee; from this point following the said wall to the Military highway. The line from Military highway to continue westerly along wall separating property of Carl W. Brown and Allyn L. Brown to the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad; thence following said railroad in a southerly direction to south boundary, of the property of George Frost, thence westerly to the Thames river.

West boundary—To be along east banks of Thames river to point of beginning or northerly boundary.

The matter was then announced open for discussion. A motion put by Nelson Parker and seconded that the petition with boundaries stand as read, was carried by a standing vote. Walter M. Buckingham suggested that the name be The Fire District of Gales Ferry, and this was voted. Temporary officers for the next meeting were elected: Walter T. Clark, clerk; Prof. Chester E. Dimick, treasurer; Arthur O. Paford, collector. Upon motion of Prof. Dimick the next meeting will be held Tuesday evening, March 13, at the clubhouse.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

DANIELSON

FORMER DANIELSON MAN DIES AT WEST GLOUCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 29—Tonight the body of J. E. Logee was brought here from West Gloucester, R. I., where he died today, in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood. Mr. Logee would have been 83 years of age had he lived until next Sunday.

He is a well remembered resident of Danielson through a period of more than half a century. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Logee, and for a great many years was engaged in the bakery business at the corner of Main and Hutchins streets in the building now used as the office of the Crystal Water company. Retiring from business nearly a quarter of a century ago, he has been resident in Rhode Island about a score of years. Mr. Logee during the years he lived in Danielson was one of its best known and most respected business men. His business acquaintances and personal friends were legion, and of all of these that remain there will be regret over his death. Mr. Logee leaves his wife, and two children by a former marriage, Arthur W. Logee, rural carrier out of the Danielson postoffice and a daughter, Addie, resident in Florida.

This afternoon funeral services were held at her home in East Killingly for Mrs. ennie L. Westcott, widow of Charles Westcott. Rev. William Swainson, pastor of the Congregational church at Dayville, conducted the funeral service. On Thursday A. F. Wood, who is in charge of the funeral arrangements, will forward the body to Sioux City, Ia., for burial beside the body of Mr. Westcott. Both Mr. and Mrs. Westcott had lived their early lives in this town.

There is, it seems established, an outstanding ambition to keep town expenditures in Killingly at the lowest possible level during the next year or two. One hears that idea advanced about every day. As a matter of fairness to public officials charged with administration of the town's affairs, it should be stated here that the officers are trying to do that very thing. They have in mind, as have all other interested citizens, that inconsiderate expenditure of public money militates, in the long run, against the general well being of the town. The forthcoming budget will show figures pared to the lowest point advisable, with the probable bills to be paid considered. Killingly is a big town. It costs money to run it. Those who work for the town expect fair compensation, and can get it elsewhere if they do not get it here. Those who sell things to the town sell them at a profit, and that, too, must be expected. Having all of those things in mind, official Killingly is striving to keep down the operating costs, but they never can be small so long as Killingly is a growing town, and that is what it happens to be.

James R. Walsh, tax collector of the town of Killingly, again has achieved one of the finest records accredited to collectors anywhere in Connecticut in getting money due communities on taxes assessed on the last certified lists. Up to today he had collected 96 per cent. of all the money due this town on the last completed grand list. The total he was charged with collecting amounted to 173,806.60. Here is the particular reason why the republicans—of the majority party in Killingly—have repeatedly endorsed Mr. Walsh's candidacy for his office. Mr. Walsh is a democrat. It would appear to the credit of the business acumen of the people of the town of Killingly that they recognize ability above partisanship as a very good policy. As things are today, Mr. Walsh is an asset to both the republican and democratic parties, or, saying it in another way, a very valuable town official.

Judge James N. Tucker of East Killingly, keeper of a daily weather record for ever so many years, supplies information today establishing that February of 1928 was anything but a summer month. As a matter of fact, figuring this on the daily sunrise temperature for the period, the February closing today was colder than the corresponding month of 1927, 1924, 1922, and 1925, to mention some recent years. It has not seemed so Judge Tucker remarked today, largely because the world has not been shrouded in a mantle of snow, as usually is the case in February. This leap year month has been the coldest of the winter as a whole. Judge Tucker's records show the following daily sunrise temperature averages for the years back to and including 1920: 1920, 20.79; 1921, 25.23; 1922, 24.64; 1923, 13.78; 1924, 16.25; 1925, 30.40; 1926, 20.86; 1927, 26.67.

March 1, Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's church here for nearly four years, officially begins his pastorate at Christ church in Pomfret. The date, however, does not finally mark the cessation of his ministrations to the local parish. Next Sunday morning he is to conduct a service at St. Alban's at 9.30, a. m. and will officiate at the dedication of candle sticks presented the church by Mrs. Walter A. Musgrave in memory of Judge and Mrs. Milton A. Shumway, who for many years were the members of the parish. On Thursdays, also, during the Lenten period he will conduct services at St. Alban's. It is understood that he will regularly conduct a Sunday morning service here until such time as his successor is appointed. His family is to remain at the rectory here for the time being.

Today Miss Wanda Niejadlik was awarded a waffle iron by the Danielson division of the Eastern Connecticut Power company. This award was a sequel to a series of demonstrations that have been conducted during the winter season by Mrs. M. K. Linton of Norwich, who is in the Danielson office of the company. The demonstrations of the use of waffle irons were given before members of the Danielson Girls' club, the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church here, the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. at a recent meeting of the organization at the Parish house of St. Alban's church, the Social club and the Brooklyn grange.

Heavy snow squalls threatened to cover the city with another blanket of snow on Wednesday afternoon. The flakes began to fall shortly after noon but did not amount to much. The people of Putnam had an idea that winter had given way to spring, when the mercury started to rise on Tuesday, but the heavy snow squalls on Wednesday made many change their minds to the old saying that March usually enters like a lion.

February 29, did not age many people who were born on the extra day of February. Although many papers carried stories and pictures of folks who have had their first birthday in four years, none seemed to claim the honors in Putnam. One of the local newspapers offered any person, living within the district where the paper circulated a year's free subscription if they would send in their names that they had been born on the extra day of February.

The Junior class of Putnam high school have completed plans for the annual junior promenade of the class. The prom is to be held on Friday evening April 13, in the new state armory on Harris street. PILES DISAPPEARED RABALM ENDED MY SUFFERING

"About twenty-five years ago I had a successful operation for piles and have never been troubled since until about a month ago when they came on again. My only thought was an operation, but under the circumstances this was impossible owing to the expense. So I delayed and suffered terribly until about two weeks ago I saw an advertisement for Rabalm. The second application gave me relief and after the third day I haven't had them at all, and no pain now—am like a new man." (For obvious reasons, we cannot give here the name of the man who wrote his testimonial. But we will supply his name and address on request. His letter was entirely voluntary and was not solicited by us.)

If you too suffer from piles (hemorrhoids) you also can find relief without an operation by using Rabalm. Buy some today and start using it tonight. Two sizes, 50-cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists.

MOTHER!

A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play if Constipated

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

NECESSARY FOR INDUSTRIAL CENTER

In most every city there is a desire to expand industrially. It is realized that therein is a most important opportunity for growth, and every progressive community wants to grow.

The state of Ohio has a committee on public utility information and this body has set forth 18 desirable points for the city which desires to expand as an industrial city. That being one of the things which Norwich is interested in, not only for the purpose of getting more industries but to keep those which it has and encourage them to expand, it might be well to give a bit of study to this list. It is in fact no more than any community should want, but it cannot always be said that they possess them. The list follows:

1. Land at fair prices.
2. Reasonable taxes.
3. Good shipping facilities and favorable freight rates.
4. Adequate and reliable electric power at low rates.
5. Constructive banking.
6. Good housing at reasonable rentals.
7. Pure water in sufficient quantities.
8. Good street car service.
9. Churches which include tolerance among their virtues.
10. Good schools.
11. Safe sewage disposal system.
12. Dependable fire and police protection.
13. Skilled medical, surgical and dental service.
14. Gas service.
15. Progressive merchants.
16. A fair and independent electorate.
17. Adequate telephone service.
18. A community spirit friendly to industrial development.

Probably there are additions that might be made to such a list that would help to strengthen it, but the committee has picked well and taken as a whole Norwich will answer in the affirmative on the greater part of them, but inasmuch as there are points there which cannot be claimed by the city the endeavor should be made to measure up to them all, and then some. Certainly if those qualifications are needed for an industrial center in Ohio they cannot be disregarded in Connecticut.

THE WRIGHT PLANE

After considerable time it has been decided by Orville Wright that his flying machine, the one in which he and his brother demonstrated that flight was possible, will be placed in South Kensington Institution in England, there to be preserved for the benefit of posterity.

Under ordinary circumstances it would be expected that it would go to the Smithsonian institute at Washington inasmuch as it is an American machine, made and demonstrated by Americans on American soil. This is the country where it should be kept on exhibition. There are other machines there and it is claimed that due to the failure of the institute authorities to place upon the marker for the Wright machine the credit which it is believed is due the Wright brothers and the machine in comparison with the Langley machine, now reposing there, it goes to England.

The decision is a cause for regret. There is a stipulation however that the machine can be brought back in case the time ever comes when the Wright requirements are met or a compromise can be reached. It is unfortunate that there has arisen any such dispute for it doesn't appear that there is any attempt to detract from the Wright accomplishment or the contributions which the brothers have made to aviation. There is glory enough for all and it seems strange that there cannot be a setting forth of the accomplishments of the Langley machine as well as that of the Wright machine without causing any such conflict as that which has resulted in the decision to send the American machine to a foreign museum. Let us hope that time will overcome what seems to be technical differences.

THE DIRIGIBLE DEMONSTRATION

Now that the Los Angeles has made its trip to the Canal zone and is on its way back, it is inevitable that the success of this flight and the demonstration of the speed that can be made by a dirigible in covering such a distance should create a greater interest in this type of flying machine, or airship.

There have been numerous demonstrations of what the Los Angeles can do, but this latest accomplishment centers attention upon the dirigible quite the same as the good will flight of Colonel Lindbergh into the same region directed attention to the possibilities of the airplane.

It was quite fitting therefore that Senator Bingham should direct attention on the floor of the senate to activities of other nations in the construction of dirigibles and urge that there should be no time lost by this country in going ahead with a programme of construction.

We are much interested in the Panama canal. We are mindful of our duty in maintaining and operating it and we cannot overlook the responsibility of protecting it. We are in the closest touch with it through the air and there are advantages which are to be obtained from a dirigible that are not furnished by the airplane. Senator Bingham is a flier and he knows what he is talking about when it comes to setting forth the merits of the respective aircraft for all kinds of service.

His reference to the Los Angeles' flight bringing the canal closer to this country applies equally well to all similar points and while he had no definite programme to present there was unquestionably much food for thought in what he had to say relative to what others are doing and what we should do for our own welfare, stress being laid not solely upon the matter of defense but upon the availability of such an airship for commercial purposes, a demonstration of which is promised this year by British builders. The rigid dirigible has been persistently overcoming some of the defects disclosed in early construction.

TRAIN CONTROLS

Years ago the interstate commerce commission decided that automatic train controls were necessary, and it ordered certain of the railroads to equip a part of their lines before a certain date, which was later extended for the accommodation of the roads.

Now that such a device has been put into operation by the leading roads over a long aggregate distance it is the desire of the commission to learn the results and it is hearing this week from about 160 railroads what has been accomplished, how the devices are working, what the merits of the different controls are and many other facts which will provide the commission with the means of determining whether the equipment of additional mileage is advisable at this time and if so how extensive it should be.

We do not hear so often of what is actually being accomplished by the automatic stopping of trains for it isn't in the prevention of accidents that as startling news is told as in those crashes which might have been prevented but are not. Yet there is no doubt a most interesting story and a record of facts for the respective railroads to place before the commission. Not all are using the same type of control. Some have been impressed by the merits of one and some by another, and it will not surprise if it has been the experience of many that valuable improvements have been perfected since the first devices were put into operation. Because of that very thing, and the expense attached to the changes, railroads sought for delay until they might have reasonable assurance that the heavy cost of installation would not have to be repeated before a foolproof control was obtained.

Many of the railroad accidents proclaim the need of automatic train controls. The demand for a reinforcement of the human agent in control of trains is recognized in case of bad physical condition, chance taking and conditions where signals are more or less obscured. There can be little question but what there will be more train controls before there are less and the information gleaned by the commission should determine to a large extent how soon.

AMERICAN SHIPPING

From the prompt manner in which the house passed the Jones bill which would inaugurate a system of government ownership for merchant vessels, it would seem as if it thought the country wanted it and that the legislation would be the proper means of solving the shipping problem. Again it is possible that it was thought that the quickest way to kill such legislation was to let the country express itself upon it and there can be no doubt but what it has since the house voted it.

From all directions it is apparent that it is not wanted. Government ownership is no more popular than it ever has been, but even if the Jones bill is killed the fact that it was adopted by the house may be sufficient reason for getting such consideration for the shipping question that legislation will be adopted which will meet existing requirements.

The merchant marine committee of the house is engaged in the task of framing new legislation that will help to revive American shipping, and it is getting some very interesting suggestions as to how it should be done. From such views as it may have itself and from the advice which is being given it by shipping men and others who may be regarded as experts there should result a plan that will meet the situation.

No one is denying the fact that American shipping has its handicaps. The need is to remove them. Obviously this cannot be done by making matters worse. American shipping should be gotten into the hands of private capital and congress should see that it is with such governmental encouragement as will be needed to meet foreign competition but not to the extent of government ownership.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: More and more evidence that the winter never had a backbone.

The talk in New London about the ending of the city managership and return to the old form of government has been increasing with the years. One excuse is just as good as another if the time is ripe.

Does the Dartmouth student who declined a Phi Beta Kappa key, because the present system of marks does not show the students true ability, figure that someone else is entitled and his membership?

WHEN SILENCE IS GOLDEN

"You are forever making failures of your social possibilities," Dot complained to her husband. "Last night was awful. You didn't utter more than a dozen words the whole evening!"

Bob looked gloomily across the table.

"See here, Twinkles, you've been reading magazine advertisements."

"Magazine advertisements?"

"Yes, the kind where a baby doll is pictured riding home in a taxi with a wilted Willie, and she says to him, 'William, you did not speak two words the whole evening. I was positively ashamed that you should be so ill informed.'"

"And I can sympathize perfectly with the baby dolls in those pictures," retorted Dot. "There is certainly nothing more embarrassing than having a husband who can't think of anything to say."

"Silence is not necessarily a signal that one is dumb."

"Nonsense," spluttered Dot. "It couldn't mean anything else."

"I take issue with you there, Mrs. Perkins."

"You are simply trying to wiggle out of a distasteful truth."

"Here's another point," suggested Bob. "What do you suppose they would have thought of me if I had talked? Didn't you warn me the very last thing before we left this house that my paramount obligation for the evening was to overflow with courtesy toward the hostess and the guest of honor?"

"And how you overflowed! They simply had to pry the words out of you, even when conversation drifted toward animals and cows. My goodness! You were raised on a farm. You certainly could have thought of something enlightening to say on the subject of cows."

"I certainly could have."

"Then why didn't you say it?" cried Dot in exasperation.

"Because by saying it I should have proved myself discourteous to our hostess and guest of honor."

"You don't know what you are talking about!" cried Dot.

"Oh, don't I?" snapped Bob. "Who began the ballyhoo about the cows? Wasn't it our hostess?"

"Indeed it was not. She was talking about animals in general, how they are all equipped with some means of protection. It was the guest of honor who mentioned the subject of cows."

"All right, and what did old Biglow say? 'That's very true. Take, for instance, our cow. Look at the important position its horns occupy. They are placed in location even before the ears. One might conclude from such an example that self-protection is of greater importance than the sense of hearing.' And then didn't our hostess beam with pleasure and look as though she thought all the smartness in the world was condensed in little old Biglow's cranium?"

"And you never uttered a word about what you knew about cows."

"If I'd have said what I knew about cows," boomed Bob, "I'd have busted up the party. There was enough I could have said. For one thing, I might have lambasted Biglow with a 'Look here! I'll give you credit for knowing your onions when it comes to cards, but, by jimminy, old boy, you must walk through barnyards with your eyes shut for that line of yours about horns and ears is bosh. A cow's horns don't come before its ears any more than midnight comes before 12 o'clock. And it looks to me as though this little assembly of ladies and gentlemen are all yappish on bovine anatomy or they wouldn't swallow such bunk.'"

Which silenced Dot for the remainder of the morning meal.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Something to Puzzle Over

Mr. Editor: A good mental exercise, which would be educational and promote enlargement of vocabulary in both young and old and prove a test in spelling, can be had in trying to write out as many words as can be formed from the letters in the months of the year current.

It will be surprising to any one who has not attempted this, how extensive this possibility becomes by a study of it.

The appended list of 15 by this writer, and there may be yet more, is a kind of revelation to himself.

Appending a brief meaning to each word in a given list, will also fix them in the memory.

March

Arch—an architectural structure.
Arc—a part of any circle.
Am—the verb to be.
Arm—a part of the body.
Harm—damage or hurt.
Ham—the thigh part of pig.
Cam—a mechanical device
Cram—to fill forcibly.
Ram—the male sheep.
Charm—a magic spell.
Char—to burn partly.
Mac—a son of.
Mar—to injure.
Marc—a pre-name.
Car—a wheeled vehicle.

Perhaps, indeed this may be added to, but may form an illustrative suggestoin of what the intent of our letter is, to convey a source of mental improvement and enlargement of other facilities and from a useful pastime.

Age Limit in Wrong Place

Mr. Editor: The city of Norwich has an ordinance which says: "No person over 35 years of age shall be designated and appointed to our police force either as a supernumerary or ordinary policeman." It has taken some of the men who are ordinary policemen today seven, eight or ten years before their turn came to be made a regular policeman. Norwich has one chief, a captain, three sergeants, 29 patrolmen and 19 supernumeraries. I understand the youngest member of our supernumerary force is now 24 years of age. Since 1923 four policemen have been retired to the pension list. No matter how it is figured, according to this ordinance most of these young men are going to be out of luck when their turns come to be made regulars. Is this a fair shake? No, the age limit is in the wrong place. In the future no man over 30 years of age should be appointed a supernumerary, then if appointed and he puts in his time, he should, when his turn comes, be made a regular policeman. If a man is good enough to be made a supernumerary, he surely is good enough to be made a regular. Here's the routine and expenses of a newly appointed supernumerary: He is sworn in, given a badge, cap, club, a signal box key and a police whistle. He receives no schooling. If he makes mistakes he foots the bill. The first year he has the following expenses viz: Uniform $55, extra trousers $7.50, overcoat $60, police shoes $7.50, overshoes $3.50, boots $6, rubber coat $14, rubber cap $3.50, hand cuffs $10, revolver (Colt or S. & W.) $23, holster $2.50, twisters $1, flashlight $1.75, a grand total of $200.25. He gets $5.50 a night, has 2 per cent. deducted for the pension fund, works probably two nights a week or almost a year to pay for his outfit, has to appear in court after each arrest, loses half a day's pay (sometimes his job) from his regular employment. As you know if he is lucky and his employer likes cops he can still retain his old job after being appointed a supernumerary. He works until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, rushes home and gets one or two hours sleep, then goes to his regular employment.

Just like New York? Regardless of the fact a person may know there is such an ordinance he, or no other person, can tell how long he has to serve in the capacity of a supernumerary, but, if the age limit was on the to-be-made supernumerary and he was over the age limit, all arguments would be settled, he would be under no expense and have nothing to expect. It's not a fair deal to any man to serve as an officer four or five years and maybe more, bound to make enemies because to some if he does what's right he is wrong, to others, if he don't do it, wrong again and always open to criticism by the public, many of whom do not always judge right. Going along like this for some time and when his turn comes and he is well versed in police business, he is told, "he is too old," but can still remain a supernumerary. A man under 24 years of age seldom thinks of settling down to the responsibility of being a supernumerary. Then we have others under that age who are called amateur fighters, but it is not boxers we need half so much as common sense. Let us hope the council will adjust this matter and if they must have an ordinance like the one they now have, make the age limit 40 and give the supernumerary of today a chance. They are all young men, able-bodied and have many good years ahead of them, and surely it is not fair that they should get the only training our fair city can afford which is "experience," then finally, when their turns come get ditched, just when they can be used to the best advantage of the public. In the future why not place the age limit where it belongs then, if he's good enough to be a supernumerary, he's good enough to be a regular. Sincerely,

B SQUARE

YOUR HEALTH

WHAT KIND OF INDIGESTION HAVE YOU?

By Joseph C. Bloodgood, M. D., Baltimore.

Up to the present time the efforts to educate the people in regard to indigestion have apparently had little or no effect on reducing the number of deaths from cancer of the stomach, cancer of the colon, and cancer of the rectum, and all kinds of cancer within the abdomen.

These unfortunate patients still come to the surgical clinics of the country in the late stages of cancer. Yet the histories of these patients show that they have known that they have been ill for months or years. Many have never consulted a doctor, but have tried to treat themselves by patent medicines and different kinds of diet.

Fortunately, the majority of patients who suffer from the different kinds of indigestion do not develop a cancer. Many of them carry their indigestion to their graves at a ripe old age.

The medical profession feels that it can reduce the number of deaths from cancer of the stomach, colon, and rectum by getting the people more interested in the kind of indigestion that they suffer from, by exciting their curiosity as to its cause rather than stimulating their hope to get some medicine or food for its relief.

The first thing to do for indigestion is to find its cause and, if possible, to remove the cause. This means a thorough examination by some trained diagnostician. Many questions must be asked about your symptoms; x-rays must be made after taking bismuth by the mouth; the rectum must be examined with the finger and an electrically-lighted proctoscope; a stomach tube must be passed and the chemistry of the gastric juice analyzed; a specimen of the blood and urine must be studied chemically and microscopically.

To the majority this examination seems formidable. With the exception of the stomach tube it is not, and the common report of the discomfort of swallowing a rubber tube, like Mark Twain's death, is; "grossly exaggerated."

Deaths from cancer of the stomach, colon, and rectum will never be reduced until the public is educated to demand such an examination by an expert member of the medical profession, or in one of the hospital clinics of the country. We should change the expression "take your medicine" to that of "take your examination."

Everyone is familiar with indigestion. The message or symptoms come from that part of the body called the abdomen. This is a cavity below the diaphragm and above the pelvis. You may have discomfort, pain, colic, nausea, vomiting, heartburn, constipation, diarrhea, blood in the stools; the abdomen may distend, it may become tender.

These symptoms may be brought on by food or not; you may lose weight or not; you may or may not be jaundiced or yellow. But whatever the character, whatever the severity, the right thing to do is to seek an examination and find out the cause. Often the examination ceases at the end of a careful history. All the examination may not necessarily be made, but the essential thing is the examination.

Carry in your mind that ringing sentence of one of the patriots of this country: "Millions for defense, and not one cent for tribute"—and translate it: "Millions for examination, and not one cent for treatment until the examination is as complete as possible."

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

By Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D. D., Federal Council of Churches in America — Copyright 1928.

"Counting on God"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Fret not thyself" (Psalm 37:1).

Read: Psalm 37:18.

MEDITATION: Three times in the short passage for today the author says, "Fret not thyself." He adds: "It tendeth only to evil." It frays the soul and robs the spirit of poise and power. Religion has at the core of it the belief that at the heart of this universe there is a Spirit working ceaselessly in behalf of truth and justice. And this Spirit can never finally be defeated.

After the famous decision in the house of lords concerning the funds of the United Presbyterian churches of Scotland, a decision which was very disheartening to a group of Scottish leaders, some asked how Professor Rainey was taking it. "As smiling and happy as ever," was the reply. "And why,—because he has been long years rooted in God, he is an experienced Christian." This "experienced Christian" knows that the triumph of error and wrong is short. Right wins.

PRAYER: O Lord, give us hearts never to forget Thy love, but to dwell therein, whatever we do, whether we sleep or wake, live or die, or rise again to the life that is to come. For Thy love is better than life, and is our sufficient hope. Through Christ our Lord.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1927 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income in determining net income. Such items include interest on money borrowed to defray personal expenses and money borrowed for the purchase of real estate. If a person owes money secured by a lien or mortgage on his home, the amount of interest paid on such indebtedness may be deducted. However, interest need not be evidenced by lien, judgment, or mortgage to make the interest thereon deductible. Frequently, indebtedness is evidenced only by notes without additional security.

Interest paid on behalf of a friend or relative where there is no legal obligation on the part of the payor can not be deducted. In such case the payment amounts to a loan or gift.

Stories That Recall Others

"Steppin' Lively"

One night recently, Mrs. O. and her daughter came home on the last car. When they reached the end of the line all the passengers had left the car except themselves and a rather rough-looking man, evidently a woodchopper. They hurried off the car and started walking rapidly for home which is about ten minutes walk. They had not gone far, however, when they noticed the man hurrying to catch up with them so of course, they increased their pace. No sooner had they reached home, breathless but safe, when there came a knock at the door and there stood their pursuer. "Excuse me, ladies, I didn't mean to frighten ye, but one of ye dropped a glove. I tried to ketch up to ye, but," with a grin, "ye sure kin step lively."

Just Woke Up

Blanche, not quite four, was riding with her parents late one afternoon when suddenly the street lights were thrown on.

"Look, mother," she cried, excitedly, "the lights just woke up from their nap!"

Former Norwich Leaders

(From Norwich Bulletin, Nov. 10, 1873.)

David Smith.

None but feelings of unfeigned sorrow and regret will be awakened in this community by the announcement made in our Saturday's issue of the death of David Smith. Long identified with the business and religious interests of Norwich, the town loses in him an upright, useful, and widely esteemed citizen. Mr. Smith has been failing in health for the past two years, but until very recently none of his friends or family suspected that he was so near the end. Disease, however, had a deeper seated hold on him than was at first apparent, and though he had a robust constitution, and had enjoyed uninterrupted good health through a long and laborious life, he sank very rapidly, and has passed away almost before it was generally known he was dangerously ill.

Born in Norwich, September, 1796, he began his active business career in Windham, organizing a company there for the manufacture of paper. His success in this then comparatively new line of industry, his practical understanding of the business, together with his high personal character procured him the invitation to the Chelsea Paper mill of this town, which he accepted in 1825.

Here, associated with J. C. Rives, formerly publisher of the "Congressional Globe" at Washington, D. C., Mr. Smith was for many years a prominent proprietor of the mill, and during his direction it achieved a marked success. While thus engaged in the manufacturing of paper, he resided in Greeneville, and by his public spirit and benevolence did all in his power for the building up of that part of the town. He was an active member of the Congregational church there, and is still gratefully remembered for his generous contributions in its behalf, as well as in aid of every good cause that appealed to him through the church.

In 1856 he removed to the city, having built the fine residence in which he continued to live up to the time of his decease. In 1858 he retired from the manufacturing business, having through his successful management of business accumulated a handsome property.

From this time onward he was connected for a longer or shorter period with various business enterprises here. He was a prominent director in the Norwich Water Power company and was president for some twenty years of the Jewett City bank. In the organization of the Norwich and New York Transportation company Mr. Smith was among the first movers, and succeeded Captain Joseph J. Comstock as its second president, serving with ability as such until 1863, when he declined a re-election.

Interested in all that promised to promote the general growth of Norwich, he was identified with both the Norwich and Worcester and the New London Northern railroads, being a director in each. He was the second president of the Second National bank of this city, and by his personal interest in its affairs, and his good business judgment, contributed not a little to its prosperity. The Chelsea Savings bank also had him as one of its vice presidents, and found in him an able and wise friend.

Mr. Smith had no taste for political life, and studiously obtained therefrom, departing only once from his settled preference to represent the town for one year in the state senate.

Widely known for his benevolence, many are the institutions and charitable societies which reckon him amongst their most generous contributors. Uniting with the church while in Willimantic, just prior to his removal to Greeneville, he, till the day of his death maintained a consistent and universally respected Christian life. He aided in building the churches in both the above places, was a liberal donor to the Second church in this city, when it was remodeled, and made his last contribution in this line to the new church now being erected on the Great Plain.

Watch Girls Gain in Two Weeks Time!

Growing girls and boys need something only Nature can provide. It isn't found in drugs, and it can't be done by diet. Enough fruit would keep the system sweet, but what youngster will eat a quart of apple-sauce every day; or six bananas; or a pound of figs? But all children just love the daily treat of California fig syrup. A rich and fruity syrup that delights the palate, and aids digestion of anything that's eaten. And whets the appetite of children who don't eat enough. Fig syrup for that listless, sluggish, or feverish child! It invigorates a torpid liver; thoroughly cleanses the entire alimentary tract. It will solve childish ills that might otherwise end in stomach disorders or in diarrhea. Try fig syrup! In two weeks you may not recognize the boy or the girl who is now handicapped by constipation or sour bile. Three days will tell that better assimilation and elimination are established. Twenty-four hours will clear the furriest tongue and have bowels in better condition! So much better than tonics of temporary value; or harmful cathartics! Let pure fig syrup take the place of both, but see that you do get the genuine California fig syrup; say "California" when you ask for the generous, sixty-cent bottle.

GAVE $10,000 VERDICT AGAINST COLCHESTER MAN

Damages of $10,000 were awarded Gilson M. Hall, of Middletown, against Clayton R. Root, or Colchester, by a jury in superior court at Middletown Tuesday afternoon. Hall, the plaintiff, sued both Root and Johann Oscar Sodesten, of East Hampton, for damages of $10,000, but the jury found that only Root was negligent. The plaintiff, Hall, is administrator of the estate of Miss Muriel Clark, of East Hampton, whose death occurred in an automobile accident at the East Hampton four corners two months ago. The suit was brought as a result of the accident.

Root, the defendant, was not himself involved in the accident, but his car was one of the two involved. It was driven at the time by Leslie Hill, a friend, and the jury found him negligent and to blame for the accident.

COLCHESTER WOMAN IS PLAINTIFF IN SUIT

Damages in the amount of $2,500 are sought by Katherine Drelick, of Colchester, against Clifford H. Belden, of New London, in a suit brought in the superior court, as the result of an automobile collision on the New London-Hartford turnpike on Feb. 6, 1927.

The complaint alleges that the plaintiff was riding as a guest in an automobile driven by Wolenti Malaczewski, and when about three-quarters of a mile from Colchester, the plaintiff's car was struck in the rear by the Belden car. The plaintiff sues for personal injuries and damages to a $200 fur coat and dress worth $25.

Men's Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

Wednesday evening at the supper meeting of the men's Bible class at the Y. M. C. A., an interesting discussion and study was enjoyed.

The Scripture used was Mark 3:1-15, and the topic was, "The Price of Popularity." Some points brought out in the study were as follows: Jesus was very unpopular with the Scribes and the Pharisees; the religionists of His day. They thought that they were God's favorites, and that He cared little for others, but Jesus made God a common father of all who loved Him. They were religious but their religion was anything but practical; Jesus was at the same time very religious and very practical. They were inconsistent, while Jesus was beautifully consistent. Jesus was popular with the common people because He helped them in a practical way, but more because of what He was than of what he did. The basis of all genuine popularity is real merit. Christy Mathewson was popular because of real merit; so is Lindbergh. Abraham Lincoln is a pre-eminent example of popularity based on real merit, and his popularity increases with the passing of the years. Some of the traits that make for lasting popularity are self-sacrifice, service to others, clean living, etc. Jesus had something to give to others, and as we follow Him, we, too, will have something to help those about us.

Making additions of $8,350 to the town's grand list of taxable property and abatements of $126,513, a net reduction in the list of $118,163, the board of relief made the grand list of taxable property in the town $22,860,128 when it concluded its duties Wednesday and signed the books before Miss Nellie V. Harrington, as notary public.

The three members of the board James C. Fitzpatrick, Francis Beique and Edward Kirby, had 131 appeals from the doings of the assessors presented to them but made abatements in only 60. The net result of their work was to cut the grand list figure of $22,978,291 as placed by the assessors to $22,860,128. This is $228,258 more than the taxable grand list of a year ago.

The additions made by the board of relief consisted in finding a store, a manufacturing establishment and a garage that had not been reached by the assessors. In the abatements the largest amount taken off was in the case of the Atlantic Carton Corporation which was $95,000. For several years past now the assessors and the board of relief have failed to see things in the same light as regarding the amount at which this company should go into the list. The assessors regularly put it in at one figure and the board of relief just as regularly make a substantial abatement. The abatements made were on nine different classes of property in the grand list including dwelling houses, barns and garages, acreage, stores, mills, farm implements, automobiles, stock in trade and the ten per cent lists. Besides the abatement on mills, the only considerable abatement was on dwelling houses, amounting to $8,650, on automobiles $6,196 and on stores $12,000.

The following shows the additions and abatements made by the board of relief.

SPOKE ON COMMERCIAL ASPECTS OF AVIATION

Aviation, its commercial possibilities and its future, were ably explained by B. A. Pollett of Hartford, district manager of the Colonial Air Transport Co., Inc., at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Pollett, who was introduced by Albert E. Van Wagenen, viewed aviation strictly from a commercial standpoint and not a mere pleasure fad. Mr. Pollett said:

"Some one has said that 'the future is only to be judged by the past.' It certainly sounds reasonable to me whoever the gentleman was, and personally conceding this to be a fact, I look forward with considerable optimism to this coming year as one when will be one of great importance to aviation development. It would be impossible for me to feel otherwise in the face of the overwhelming strides made in the last year, not only in the extent and efficiency of operation, but what is more significant, in the actual volume of business transacted in the various branches of aviation. I call and maintain that it is more significant, because aviation will only live and expand in proportion to its utility to business of one sort or another. It seems unreasonable but it is nevertheless perfectly true that the popular conception of the duty of an aeroplane is to fly. If one gives it but a moment's thought one will immediately realize that this is not so, but that the very existence of the aeroplane is by reason of its importance as a new means of transportation. To me this presents almost the whole problem, the solving of which will determine the speed and extent of the development of the existing air lines in the United States.

"Once get a person to consider the aeroplane in terms of transportation and not of flying and you have him sold. That this is a vital and rather neglected problem may be gathered by the examination of the plane-building figures of the past year, which show the construction of pleasure cruising planes out of all proportion to those built for transportation of goods and passengers on a large scale. Just consider the situation. Here we have a new means of transportation, which can carry with safety, at a hitherto unheard of speed, regardless of the terrain, be it land or water, mountains or valleys, and the only thing we do about it is to occasionally entrust with considerable scepticism an air mail letter, just to prove that we are right up to snuff in whatever new happens. Or we wander to the nearest airport to pry ourselves loose of some two dollars and a half, and consider our duty done to the pioneers who made flying possible. Were it not for the air mail, I doubt if there would be a single company of any consequence who would be so rash as to invest money in a venture which depended on its income on the use of an aeroplane. This statement seems somewhat broad, but aside from sales agencies and manufacturers I know of almost no company which is attempting to make a living in aviation unassisted by either one of these or the ownership of an air mail contract. The obvious answer and incidentally the point I am trying to make is, that the public which regards the aeroplane as a means to an end and not as an end in itself, doesn't yet exist. The problem is further considerably involved, by the fact that by reason of the attitude of the public towards the aeroplane, flying means, as of course it would, motion through the air. As an illustration of the consequences of this conception just imagine yourself being the owner of an aeroplane about to take a trip to Albany. What would be your first consideration? 'The plane,' you say. Right, of course. But as you went on checking your requirements you would find that the thing next in importance to your plane would be a field. Not only to take off but also to land, not only on your course but anywhere near it, and not only at the point of arrival but anywheres along the route. The public, however, considers the planes as being in the air and seldom if ever relates it to the ground. You would look far and wide on your course to Albany for any fields which could be considered under any circumstance airports. You would have to trust your stars to the efficiency of your motor or the providential existence of a cow pasture as you tried to land.

"The picture is, however, not at all dark, despite these croakings. We have, as I pointed out, the air mail, and through this medium we are gradually educating a growing number to look upon the aeroplane not as some new expensive toy reserved for the favored few, but as a medium of transportation available to all. All indications are that the existence of this public is being noted, and the next year will see a greater number of large transport ships being built than ever before. Everybody is prone to magnify the spectacular and this tendency has been another retarding influence in aviation so far. One hears immediately of the altitude records broken, of the non-stop flights accomplished, the oceans crossed, etc., but one hears but seldom of the fact of some eighteen thousand miles being flown every day, more than halfway around the world; that one company alone flies the distance of the trans-Atlantic hop daily, and that this is done, if not through all weather, at least through some weather which it would be hard to name. This very tendency is the one, of course, which makes the average person see the aeroplane as the medium of flight rather than the medium of transportation. I think everyone has probably heard the old wheeze of the two looking up at the plane in the air and Mazy saying to Maimy, 'Just look at the aeroplane, Maimy, how would you like to be way up there in that aeroplane?' and Maimy answering, 'I'll tell you I would much rather be up there in the geroplane, than be up there out of it.'

"To them the aeroplane was just built to fly in and not to carry anything in. It's just as if you still considered the automobile as a means to take a joy ride, whereas you consider it of far greater importance as a means of getting you somewhere. And there incidentally we touch another problem. The rather glib comparison of the plane to the automobile. 'Some day the sky will be as full of aeroplanes as the roads are now of flivvers.' You can already imagine yourself hanging up the receiver of your radio after a hurried goodbye, across space, rushing out of the house to your private hangar, buttoning your gloves as you go, and dashing off in your one man top flivver plane for parts unknown. Far be it from me to discourage any optimism as to the future of aviation, but I think anyone who has flown will agree with me that there are still one or two things to be done before a plane and its occupants can be trusted to the average person who drives a car say. Ford said well when he stated that it still takes 80 per cent pilot and 20 per cent plane, and to all appearances this will be so for some considerable time. My plea is to look at this in a commonsense way, unprejudiced by stories read in the 'air adventure magazine,' taking full consideration of the significance of the aeroplane as a medium of transportation which will in time rival the railroads in size and importance. 'Give a thought to Aviation' seems like a good slogan to carry around with you when you are trying to solve your transportation problems.

"That many business houses have crystallized their thoughts into action may be gathered from the fact, that some 400 per cent increase in the air mail load carried by the Colonial Air Transport has been noted since the inauguration of the service in June, 1926, and this has been exceeded by a good number of the contractors in the far west, notably the Western Air Express, which operates out of Los Angeles. Starting with an average of some 600 pounds in 1926, the Colonial is now carrying well over 3,000 pounds each month and with every prospect of a continued increase. And right here it may be well to point out, that this increase is not so much due to the increased number of mailers as the increased amount of mail sent by the firms awake to the possibility of air transportation. This is significant because it proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that the continued use of the air mail as a means of communication has meant a definite saving of dollars and cents over a period of time. Ask your postmaster who your air mailers are and he will tell you that there are some few firms who use it not only consistently but more and more extensively. In speaking of air transportation today one of course means air mail, but there will come a day when the carrying of mail will be relegated to the position of the mails on the railroads, not insignificant by any means, but certainly secondary. Such a day will only come, however, when the true utility of the aeroplane as a means of transportation is recognized. No one will deny, I hope, that there is no place in the world where the saving of time means money as truly as it does in America today, yet we fail to realize that the opportunity to do so is given us every day. Some 15 commercial users of the air mail have been compiled by the department of commerce.

"When you think of aviation, think of transportation. The fastest, the most efficient and yes, the safest. Expensive? yes. But then so was every other medium until it was sufficiently used. Even now they are passing legislation to reduce the air mail rate from ten cents a half ounce to five cents a half ounce. Steps are meanwhile being taken right in this district to increase its usefulness by the extension of the service by means of feeder lines to be operated for the time being with motorcycles and sidecars, and when the traffic justifies it by means of feeder planes.

"Every era of prosperity in the history of the world has been presaged by the coming of a new means of transportation. If 'the future is to be judged by the past,' we are about to enter another such era."

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Pollett answered a number of questions relative to the cost of a landing field and the approximate cost of providing and equipping such a field. A rising vote of thanks was given the speaker.

At the business session President Clarence A. Spear presided and Thomas E. Burdick was the song leader. Henry J. La Fontaine was at the piano. During the meeting there were numerous selections by the glee club and visiting Rotarians. President Spear announced that H. B. Cary had been appointed as chairman of the local committee for the International conference at Milwaukee. Benjamin Palmer was appointed secretary of the local committee for the spring conclave to be held at Waterbury next month.

Letters from the district governor and also from the international president were read complimenting the club on its attendance.

James L. Case, in charge of the program for March, announced this as follows:

BOZRAHVILLE SECTION HAD SPEAKER FROM NEW YORK

The Bozrahville section, National Council of Jewish Women, held its regular meeting at the Wauregan hotel Monday with Mrs. Nathan Gilman presiding. The opening prayer was by Mrs. Belle Rubinstein. Interesting reports by committee chairmen were given as fololws: Mrs. Esther Schatz on welfare cases; Mrs. Jeanette Manes on the peace study group organized, having held its first meeting Feb. 12 an dto hold monthly meetings.

The report on adult education revealed the great need for means of transportation for the people who are located too far from the school. Having no means of conveyance, they are being deprived of the privilege of attending this night school, opened recently in Bozrah. A sum of money was voted to provide such transportation.

The sum of $25 was also voted for the support and upkeep of the Hebrew Educational school in Bozrah.

The observance of Council Sabbath was favored, and a committee will formulate plans for date, place, and speaker, to be announced later.

For the educational feature of the meeting the members had the pleasure o flistening to a most interesting and instructive lecture on child psychology and child behavior, by Miss Bessie Myers of New York, field worker on the educational staff of the farm and rural department of the National Council of Jewish Women. This was the first of a series of five lectures on this subject, which Miss Meyers expects to give. Following her very interesting talk, Miss Meyers was given a rising vote of appreciation, and a cordial invitation to come again. The meeting was then closed in due form.

LLOYD HAHN MISSES WORLD'S MARK BY SECOND IN WINNING KACEY MILE

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 29.—(AP)—The widely heralded "mile of the century" turned out to be a hollow triumph for Lloyd Hahn, rugged star of the Boston Athletic association.

Removing any lingering doubt that he is the greatest miler in America, Hahn raced his foremost home-bred rival, Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., and the famous German champion, Dr. Otto Peltzer, into submission in the feature event of the K. of C. indoor athletic carnival tonight.

2:10.00 See Race.

Before a jam of 20,000 spectators, the greatest crowd that ever witnessed an indoor track meet in New York or anywhere else, Hahn set the pace from the start to finish and broke the tape 25 yards in front of Conger, the only man who has beaten the Boston ace in three years. Straggling 75 yards behind the winner, game but badly beaten and close to the point of exhaustion, came the slim, blond Teuton flier, Dr. Peltzer.

Hahn to the tumultous cheers of the record throng, shook off his rivals with a terrific sprint over the last four laps of the 11-lap journey but failed by a second to equal the world's indoor record.

The Nebraskan product broke the tape in 4 minutes, 23 seconds, it was one of the greatest races he has ever turned in but still short of his aim to beat the standard of 4:12, set in 1925 by Paavo Nurmi and equalled the same season by Jule Ray.

Had he been pushed to a greater extent or spurred on by any attempts of either of his rivals to set a faster pace at the start Hahn might have shattered the record. But he was forced to make his own pace all the way. Neither Conger nor Peltzer showed any inclination at any time to move into the van. Their main hope was to have enough speed left at the finish to give Hahn a race but they were not even within striking distance when the bell rang for the last lap.

Hussey and McAllister Win.

The opening feature of the special sprint series, at 40 yards, went to Frank Hussey of the New York A. C., who won in a romp from Jimmy Pappas of Princeton and Al Miller of the Boston A. A.

The 60-yard dash was captured by Bob McAllister, the "flying cop," in a driving finish with Chet Bowman of the Newark A. C., and Roland Locke of the New York A. C., less than a yard separating all three at the tape, Bowman barely nosing out Locke to qualify for the finals at 50 yards.

Coming from behind on the last lap, Phil Edwards, sensational Negro star of New York university, outran Geo. Leness of the New York A. C., 1927 winner, and five other rivals to capture the classic Casey "600."

Another come-back failed when Harold Cutbill of the Boston A. A. C., erstwhile "flying parson" finished 10th and last in a half-mile race won by Sidney Robinson of Cornell, former Mississippi A. and M. star.

BOTH RICKARD AND MULLEN HIT SNAG IN MANDELL BOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Tex Rickard was checkmated today in the preliminary round of his joust with Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, for the prize of a lightweight title match between Sammy Mandell, the champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, sensational challenger from the Pacific coast.

Mullen came to New York today along with Eddie Kane, manager of the titleholder, to protect the contract he holds with Mandell for a match scheduled for Soldier Field sometime in June, and if possible to sign McLarnin to the same agreement. Rickard has signed the Baby-faced Irishman, who knocked out Sid Terris with two punches last week, for a title bout here in May.

Although Mullen opened the engagement with a $30,000 bid for McLarnin's services and Rickard countered with the use of his Texan oratory on Kane, the promoters failed to achieve results.

Kane promised, however, to "talk turkey" with Rickard tomorrow, lending strength to the report that he will sign for a match here if Mullen is unable to swing McLarnin to his side in the meantime. Mullen insists that he already has McLarnin's verbal agreement to fight Mandell in Chicago. The champion has posted a $5,000 forfeit with the Illinois state athletic commission to guarantee going through with the bout.

TALBOT AND FARMER STEVE WIND UP THEIR TRAINING

Harold Talbot, "The Fighting Motorman," and Farmer Steve, Bean Hill Battler, wound up their training in their respective camps last night and today will do only light work in preparation for their feature bout at the Pastime A. C. on Friday evening. Both boys when seen last night radiated perfect confidence that he would win over his opponent. Both were in the pink of condition and looked mighty good.

Steve was working out over in the Smoke Shop gym with Young Pecheeni and Young Pedacy. He worked a round with Pecheeni for speed and then worked another round with Pedacy in three minutes of hard slugging. Shedding his gloves Steve gracefully skipped rope for another round and topped off the evening's work with a round of shadow boxing. Talking with Steve it was learned that the Bean Hill boy is under the impression that at the last fight Talbot had the brass reverse handle stowed away in his glove. Steve insists that on Friday night Talbot must put on the gloves in the ring and not in the dressing room. Sidney Shabecoff, the West Side boy who brought Farmer Steve from obscurity, stated last night that he had sold his managerial rights to Phil Hertz who will direct the Farmer's campaign in the ring tomorrow night.

At the Pastime gym The Fighting Motorman went through his paces without turning a hair. He easily jumped rope for a couple of rounds, punched the big bag for two more, spent six minutes with the chest weights and then started four fast rounds of boxing. Young McCarthy took Talbot over two fast rounds and then handed him over to Charlie Ladd, former local boxer and now appearing as Talbot's advisor and manager. Both Ladd and Young McCarthy had difficulty in holding the big boy off during the four rounds and although Talbot took some stiff jolts of the nose they did not even make him blink. Talbot looks mighty good and is a decided improvement over his last appearance. After seeing the two boys in action at the respective gyms it looks like a toss up with Talbot perhaps having just a slight edge.

At the Pastime gym last night, Mush Moriarty, Vic Darr, Johnny Dosch, Bobby Tennant and a few others were working out for the amateurs Friday night. Young Frankie McCarthy who made his debut last week looks like a mighty likely boy. The Norwich team will have plenty of opposition on Friday night as Willimantic, New London, Westerly, Colchester and many other places are sending boys to the show.

'BOUT SPORTS

The rank and file of pilots in the Eastern league for the season has been filled with the signing of Jack Egan as its newest member, Worcester. Worcester, which ran into a snag as a league town when Holy Cross was turning out championship nines with Owen Carroll, Doc Gautreau, et al., now figures on staging a comeback. The Eastern league as a whole, is also preparing to hit the comback road after a dismal season in 1927.

The Heeney-Delaney bout tonight has only attracted much attention in the last day or so. Interest has come rapidly during the last 48 hours after it had been predicted last Saturday that the show would be rather a bust, financially. Now, it looks like a capacity audience with interest enough to have it announced over WJZ. From the smallest crystal up to the real classy sets will be in on the New York station this evening for the fight.

BASEBALL NEWS

BRAVES HAVE HORSESHOE CHAMPION FOR TRYOUT

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 29.—(AP)—It was mostly a case of checking in new arrivals and holding down those already on the scene at the major league southern training camps today as most of the squads swung into a regular conditioning program of batting and fielding practice, pitchers workouts and in some cases abbreviated games between patched up line-ups.

The first casualty of the season was marked up at Tampa when Pitcher Hopkins was spiked by Bob Reeves during a practice session of the Washington Senators. The hurler, was not seriously hurt.

Whether a former horseshoe pitching champion can make good as a baseball flinger will be determined by the Boston Braves, from whose camp at St. Petersburg came the announcement that Putt Mossman, 21 year old former champion at "barnyard golf" of Florida, Ia., had been given a recruit's uniform.

He former played semi-professional baseball at Rochester, N. Y., and was credited with striking out 21 batsmen in one game.

Probably the first curves of the season were attempted today by Clarence Griffin diminutive southpaw obtained by Washington from Memphis, who drew a tirade from Trainer Mike Martin to the general tune of "cut it out." Reports indicated that the same problem is bothering other pilots and battery coaches who continually are on the watch for curves so far forbidden their charges.

Rogers Hornsby of the Braves, and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, who also are at St. Petersburg, smashed the ball all over the lot in their respective parks. Babe Ruth didn't get into action with anything larger than a golf club, but expects soon to forsake the links for the diamond. Hauser, who Connie Mack said will play first base regularly for the Athletics, got a clean home run on his first time at bat at Fort Myers.

Twenty Chicago White Sox led by Manager Ray Schalk, reinforced 12 players who had preceded them at Shreveport, La., and shortly after their arrival got in a light workout.

In New Orleans, the Cleveland Indians indulged in a stiff practice round.

The day's new arrivals also included Eddie Moore and Andy High, of the Braves, and Todt, Hindson, Rollings, Barkiewicz, Lajeski, Regan Williams, Taitt, Tarbert and Ruffing, of the Red Sox at Bradenton.

Pirates and Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs, assembling his charges at their Santa Catalina Island training camp at Avalon after their arrival at noon from a trip to Los Angeles where they witnessed the Godfrey-Uzcudun fight last night, put his athletes through a heavy afternoon workout today.

McCarthy brought with him a pitcher named Maugham, a free agent, who is said to have had a trial with Cleveland last spring. Maugham, during the summer, played semi-pro ball at Youngstown, Ohio. He will be given a tryout tomorrow.

McCarthy today had on the mound Weinert, Root, Carlson and Holly. "Hack" Wison, outfielder, performed with a limp, owing to a slight sprain to his ankle, but he gave the pellet several long "rides."

At the Paso Robles camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates Manager Donie Bush had his full strength on the field, with the exception of John Gooch, veteran catcher, who has been detained at his home at Nashville, Tenn., by the death of his mother.

Mahaffey, Spencer, Hartholomew and Tauscher did the pitching in a long batting practice. Travis Waner, cousin of Paul and Lloyd, attracted much attention. He is only 19, but much larger than his famous cousins.

RENAISSANCE BIG FIVE HANDS PLAINFIELD PROS BAD BEATING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 29—The world's colored champion basketball team, the Renaissance Big Five of New York overwhelmed the Plainfield Pros last night at the Plainfield Community house before a record crowd by the score of 56 to 35. Fast floor work, superb passing and general all-around team work enabled the champs to take the lead from Plainfield early in the game which they did not relinquish.

The game started off with both teams taking it easy. Bernot for Plainfield broke the ice with a field goal on a pretty overhand shot to the basket. The Renaissance, after some nice passing gave the ball to Jenkins, the right guard who is considered one of the fastest if not the fastest man in basketball, who by fast footwork, wiggled and bobbed his way through his opponents to make the first goal for the New Yorkers. Saitch followed with a foul nad from then on they kept the lead from Plainfield, although the latter team threatened on several occasions. A field goal by Dessinger, a foul and a field by Benson, and two more fields by Brusso nearly tied the score. However, goals by Sanders, Mayers and a few more by the elusive enkins enabled the Renaissance to surge ahead. Dessinger came through with a perfect shot while Benson, Bernot, Madden and Brusso contributed with goals. Then Ricks, the fast moving forward, got going. He made two fields after some great team passing and then Saitch managed to get a field goal to take the honors for his team, the first half ending 25 to 22.

Close at the Half

Plainfield playing an excellent game went into the second half striving to overcome the lead of the Renaissance, but the goals of Brusso and Benson were no tenough to combat the offensive of the colored lads, who gradually increased their lead throughout the second half. Benson and Brusso starred for Plainfield, and taking into consideration the mighty fast opposition against them, played a good game both collectively and individually. Their passnig was not as fast or spectacular as the Renaissance, but their defensive play was very good. The New Yorkers had some plays that one might call mystifying. The individual good work of any one of them is hard to describe. Jenkins' plays perhaps outshining the rest, although Ricks and Saitch are worthy of special mention with their floor work and sharpshooting. Mayers, too, had the uncanny faculty of dribbling the ball with his opponent on his heels, and making a fast complete turn to shoot a basket. Sanders, the six foot five-inch center, was proof of opposition for Bernot and all he had to do was to reach into the air head and shoulders over his opponent and either pass the ball or try for a basket.

It was a mighty interesting game to watch and the crowd applauded the many fast and deceiving plays of both teams, especially the Renaissance. Plainfield was in there trying every minute but their all around playing did not come up to the calibre of the colored champs. The summary follows:

The Plainfield Buddies lost a hard fought game to the fast South Manchester five 36 to 32. Nip and tuck all the way South Manchester came through in the last few minutes of play to take the lead away from Plainfield. This is the fifth game out of twenty three that the Buddies have lost.

MALCOLM SHOULD HAVE BEEN GIVEN TWELVE POINTS

In the Crescent-Danielson game at Taftville Tuesday evening, Peloquin, playing center for Danielson, was given credit for six field goals for a total of 12 points. This is an error in score keeping and the points should have been credited to Malcolm. This is done in fairness to Peloquin's opponent, Roland Harris of the Crescents who played his man so well that he was only able to get one field goal. This field goal credited to Peloquin will not mar Harris' mighty fine record in the basketball world.

It was also stated that Godreau of Danielson played opposite Normandin when he actually drew Brown as his opponent. Normandin opposed Kittridge instead of Godreau. So it works out that the records of all men concerned will not be in jeopardy. Brown of the Crescents only got three points off Godreau while the latter got only five off Brown. Normandin, perhaps, can be given the most credit for getting fourteen points from an opponent such as Kittredge, while Harris must be given credit for holding a player of Peloquin's calibre to two points.

ACADEMY PREPARES FOR TWO WEEK END GAMES

The Academy gets back to work today in preparation for two stiff games over the week end, Windham at Willimantic, Friday and Stonington here at the "Y" gym Saturday. The locals are in for some stiff work today as their final work for these important tilts.

The Windham basketball series is ranked as the objective one of the year. Windham has always ranked next to Bulkeley as the Red and White's main opponent and, seeing as how the New London school has no official representative, the Callaghan machine takes first honors during the winter.

The locals will probably drill today with arvis, Tigar or Viau at the forwards, with Les Pingree back at center and Buck LaCroix nad Capt. Jim Kelley at guard.

Interest is running high regarding these two games. Willimantic expects a packed house at the state armory Friday night and the Academy is also thinking likewise regarding the game here Saturday evening.

PUTNAM AMATEUR BOUTS SHIFTED TO MARCH 16

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 29.—Manager Daniel Treaudeau of the Putnam Sporting club has announced that the boxing bouts that were scheduled to be held in St. Jeane's hall Friday evening have been postponed until the March 16. The postponement was necessary as some of the pugilistic stars that were to perform for the Putnam fans received recent injuries in other bouts making it impossible for them to appear in Putnam Friday.

AGGIES TOP SPRINGFIELD, 39 TO 36

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MANSFIELD, Feb. 29.—The Connecticut Aggies came through the present season of basketball with no defeat marring their home schedule, the final threat being turned aside here tonight when the Springfield College was beaten by a 39 to 36 score. This defeat for Springfield was the first suffered by them in 17 encounters.

In the first half the lead alternated between the two teams with Springfield being in front as the half ended by a 16 to 14 score. In the last few moments of the first half, James for the visitors threw in a field goal to break the tie.

Ellovich tied the score at 16 all and Ryan tossed in a field goal in the opening minutes of the second period, to place the Aggies ahead and from then on the locals were never headed. In the first 5 1-2 minutes of play in this period Ryan, who was the feature of this game, shot five baskets.

With five minutes remaining to play the Aggies leading 37 to 27 Springfield staged a sensational rally, Duncan, Craig, James and Gustafson being the heavy scorers. Their marvelous play in these latter minutes brought Springfield within striking distance of the game, 37 to 36, but their hopes were soon shattered for Ellovich counted with a field goal, putting the locals three points ahead as the game ended. DELANEY 7 TO 5 FAVORITE OVER HEENEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 29—(AP)—The age-old axiom of the prize-ring—no good little man can beat a good big one—will come in for another test within the ropes of the Madison Square battle ground tomorrow night.

There may be data, too, for the scientists in the meeting of Jack Delaney, picturesque French-Canadian, with the crushing right hand, and Tom Heeney, of the rock-ribbed, reinforced concrete chin. No one yet has solved the problem of what happens when an irresistible force meets an immovable object.

In the final analysis, observers see in the 15-round semi-final of Tex Rickard's elimination tournament only the question of Heeney's ability to absorb the Bridgeport rapier's raking shots. They concede Delaney the ability and punching power to dent the hitherto impenetrable armor of Heeney's sturdy body and rugged chin. The odds today were 7 to 5 on Delaney to win.

Heeney Never Kayoed

But no real knockdown ever has been scored on the rugged Heeney. He pushed his chin into the most powerful shots of Paulino Uzcudun, Jimmy Maloney, Johnny Risko, and even Jack Sharkey. His short, hairy arms either pounded out victories or held his rivals to a draw, except for one unpopular decision he lost to Uzcudun early in his American invasion.

Delaney has been but moderately successful since vacating the light-heavyweight throne to toss his numbing right hand against heavyweights. Jimmy Maloney checked him with a decision defeat in the Garden last winter.

Since then, Delaney has sharpened his punching equipment on several lesser heavyweights with much crumpling of chins as a result. He crashed Sully Montgomery from the picture with a single right-hand smash a few weeks ago.

Delaney Only 176

Heeney's greatest advantage, aside from unlimited ability to "take it" and still force the going, will be in the weights. Delaney is expected to scale little more than 176 pounds at the New York state athletic commission's offices at 2 p. m., tomorrow, while Heeney probably will weigh over 195 pounds.

Delaney After Early Win

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 29. —(AP)—Jack Delaney will leave tomorrow morning for New York for his fight with Tom Heeney in Madison Square Garden. The Bridgeport fighter went through seven rounds of light exercises in his final workout here and expressed himself as being in the best shape of his career.

The former light heavyweight champion asserted that he will try for a knockout early as possible and will go after Heeney from the first gong. "Either I knock him out or he'll turn the trick on me," Jack said.

Eddie (Doc) Casey, his trainer, asserted that Delaney will weigh in the vicinity of 177 pounds before the New York boxing commission, despite the comparatively light poundage Jack showed when he went through his workout before Deputy Boxing Commissioner Daniel Skilling last Monday.

Marat was slain by Charlotte Corday, July 13, 1793.

The killing took place in his bathtub.

The stubs of many cigarettes were found about the floor. They were of a very inferior grade.

"I had a room nearby and his coughing was unbearable. With a coughless brand on the market there was no excuse for it. I just had to kill him. He deserved it."

WESTERLY

CELLAR INTRUDER MET A VERY WARM RECEPTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 29—Irving Tanner, colored, residing corner of Pierce and Pond streets, was arrested Wednesday about noon by Officer Michael Curtin on a charge of breaking and entering. He is also wanted to explain his whereabouts at the time of other depredations of a similar nature. About 4 a. m. Wednesday James Dericco, railroad laborer, residing at 92 Oak street, heard some one in the cellar of his house, entrance to which is thought to have been gained by breaking a lock. As armed with a box he waited for the intruder to appear he brought it down upon Tanner's head, apparently with not much effect. He then seized a wine jug which he smashed over the head of the intruder, in spite of which he succeeded in making a successful get-away. Tanner was arrested and locked up at Westerly police station Wednesday afternoon to await his presentation to the third district court.

The Washington county superior court, with Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner of Providence on the bench, began the February term of the Westerly adjournment Wednesday at 11 a. m. There was no representative present from the Rhode Island attorney-general's department and the civil cases on the Westerly trial calendar were called for disposition. In the case of Kenyon vs. Green Attorney Dunn announced that an important witness was ill and in the County Trust company vs. "Paul" V. Brucker, called for default by Attorney McKenna the judge announced that you could not sue a man unless his right name is used. The judge then declared that no longer wait would be made for Atty. Gen. Jackvony, called for the trial of the first civil case, Taylor vs. Nardone. Attorney Roche announced that while his honor was discussing the previous case the attorneys had talked over the case and agreed upon a settlement while they were waiting.

"Are there any civil cases ready for trial this morning," asked Judge Sumner. Attorney Roche said he already had witnesses waiting in court on two criminal cases and had not notified others as the criminal cases came first. Court took a short recess.

In ten minutes Judge Sumner returned to the court room and announced that he had heard from Third Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony of Providence and that due to the death of his brother he would not be in court. He announced that trial of civil cases would begin at 10:45 on Thursday morning when the petit jurors were to report and cases would be called in order and if not ready marked passed.

All cases on the criminal docket were put over until next Monday morning.

Deputy Court Clerk Mrs. Edna E. Treat paid off petit jurors under summons for this court term for their Court term for their Kingston service as follows:

Narragansett—Bridge, William A., candy maker; Briggs, William P., fisherman.

Following the east-bound accommodation train's departure Wednesday morning, after the locomotive had taken water at the standpipe, the shut off valve failed to function properly, with the result that water flooded up all about the iron stack and out upon the railroad track. It is thought that ice formed about the valve preventing the valve from "seating." With the rush of water, it was thought the ice became melted and after flowing for fifteen or twenty minutes the shut-off again automatically functioned, to stop the flood.

A Happy Fright

A fright that leaves you feeling glad
Is hardly to be classed as bad.
—Old Mother Nature.

So you see there are good frights and bad frights. We usually think of frights as being bad, but you will find that not infrequently frights end happily. If you doubt this just ask Whitefoot the Wood Mouse; he knows.

You know Whitefoot had gone back to the Green Forest in search of Mrs. Whitefoot. He didn't know exactly where to look for her, but he suspected she would be somewhere around the place where he had last seen her, before he was caught by Black Pussy the Cat and carried up to Farmer Brown's. It hadn't occurred to Whitefoot to think that anything might have happened to her. Now it suddenly popped into his head that she might have been caught by some one during his absence. "I was caught by Black Pussy," thought Whitefoot. "She may have been caught by Black Pussy or she may have been caught by Reddy Fox or Houty the Owl or Old Man Coyote or Shadow the Weasel or Yowler the Bobcat. She may have been caught by any one of these and I wouldn't know it. No, sir, I wouldn't know a thing about it. Oh, dear, I do hope that nothing of the kind has happened! Yes, sir, I do hope that nothing of the kind has happened! Why, I wouldn't know what to do without Mrs. Whitefoot."

It appeared that Whitefoot had quite forgotten that he had been living for some time without Mrs. Whitefoot. The more he thought about it the more dismay filled his heart. He began to hurry faster than ever. He was so worried for fear he wouldn't be able to find Mrs. Whitefoot that he quite forgot the possible dangers which might be awaiting him. I believe that if Reddy Fox had been around there Whitefoot would have run right into his mouth without seeing him. That is what worry will do to people.

Suddenly Whitefoot sat up and listened. Those little round ears of his are very sharp. They heard a sound back of him. It sounded very much like the very faint scratch of tiny toenails on the crusty snow. It seemed to Whitefoot that his heart jumped right up in his throat. It didn't, because it couldn't. But that is the way it seemed. Perhaps you have had a sudden fright and so know just how Whitefoot felt. His first and only thought was of Shadow the Weasel. He waited only to make sure that he hadn't been mistaken in the sound. There it was again! You couldn't have heard it. I couldn't have heard it. But Whitefoot heard it! He didn't wait to see what was coming. Away he went! Fortunately he was not very far from a certain tree, a dead tree, in which was an old home of Downy the Woodpecker. Whitefoot had used that hole in the tree more than once. He made for it now. He didn't know where else to go. If that were Shadow behind him there wasn't much hope. Shadow could go anywhere that Whitefoot could go.

Up the tree he fled and popped in at the little round entrance

Up the tree he fled and popped in at the little round entrance. Then, with his heart thumping until it seemed as if it would thump its way right out, he waited. He didn't have to wait long! No, sir, he didn't have to wait long! Almost at once he heard the sound of sharp little claws on wood. Some one was climbing up that tree just as fast as he had climbed. It must be Shadow the Weasel! Whitefoot was filled with terror. He shook all over. Those claws were coming nearer and nearer. They were right up at the entrance now. Whitefoot held his breath. His eyes were fixed on the little round opening. A shadow darkened it. "I-I guess this is the end of me," thought Whitefoot.

And right then a sharp, squeaky little voice demanded, "Why are you running away from me, Whitefoot?" It was the voice of Mrs. Whitefoot. Such a relief as Whitefoot the Wood Mouse felt! His terrible fright gave way to a great gladness.

Very Itchy Pimples On Face And Back Cuticura Healed

"My trouble began with pimples which broke out on my face. I also had a few on my back. The pimples were hard and red and some of them festered. They were very itchy and I used to scratch them until they would bleed and then they would fester again. The irritation caused a lot of sleepless nights. The trouble lasted three or four months.

"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some. I got relief after using them so continued the treatment and in about two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Walter A. Danner, 83 Bromfield St., Lawrence, Mass., July 12, 1927.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Cuticura Ointment as required, keeps the skin fresh, smooth and clear. Cuticura Talcum is an ideal toilet powder.

RESUMPTION OF POOL ACTIVITIES

RESULTS IN RISE OF STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's market on a resumption of pool activities and short covering. Bear traders succeeded in uncovering a few weak spots, but the general list pressed forward with gain of 1 to 3 points in many popular industrials and advances of 6 to nearly 15 points in a few specialties. Trading was on a larger scale than yesterday, total sales running close to 2,000,000 shares.

Call money held steady at the renewal rate of 4 1-2 per cent, despite heavy month-end demand for funds. There was no change in other monetary accommodations. Wall street was inclined to place a bullish interpretation on the sale of New York City corporate 4 per cent. stock on a yield basis of about 3.87 per cent., the lowest in 20 years, as evidence of underlying ease in the money market. The senate hearing on brokers' loans, which started today, also was expected to develop favorable information on the subject.

Revival of activity and strength in the oil shares, presumably based on Secretary Work's announcement that governors of oil producing states would be asked to co-operate in federal conservation plans, was one of the day's features. Rumors of impending favorable oil developments in Mexico also were heard in the street but they lacked confirmation. Houston, Pan American issues and Sun Oil advanced 3 to 3 points and Mexican Seaboard moved to new high ground for the year.

U. S. Steel common, which sold ex-dividend today, closed at 139 3-8, which represented a net gain of nearly a point. General Motors ran up more than 2 points to 197 3-4, but lost nearly half its gain on reports that William C. Durant, who has been active in that stock, was leaving shortly on an extended vacation. Hudson Motors, another Durant favorite, closed 1 3-4 higher at 85 3-4, and Hupp advanced 1 1-4 to 38 7-8.

Bullish activities were quite pronounced in Allied Chemical, American Power & Light, Bayuk Cigars, A. M. Byers, Case Threshing, Commercial Solvents, Cudahy Packing, DuPont, Eaton Axle, General Electric, Greene Cananea Copper, International Combustion, and F. G. Shattuck. National Distillers and Porto Rican Tobacco issues, which have been weak recently, made good recovery.

Midland Steel Products preferred was the individual feature, soaring 14 1-2 points to 219 1-4. Warren Bros. jumped nearly 10 points to 173. Kresge Department Stores preferred climbed 9 to a new peak at 89, while the common advanced 5 3-4 to a new top at 77 1-4, but the both issues lost part of their gains.

Acute weakness of Continental Baking A, which broke 8 3-8 to 40 1-8, aroused fears for the safety of the $4 annual dividend. National Lead dipped 3 1-2 points to a new low at 124 on publication of a disappointing 1927 report.

Railroad shares, measured by the average of 20 leading issues, lost ground, due largely to fresh liquidation of some of the southern carrier stocks on reports of poor earnings. Atlantic Coast Line sagged 4 points to a new 1928 low at 167 1-4 and then rallied to 169 3-4. Louisville & Nashville duplicated the year's low of 140 on one sale. Seaboard Air Line common touched a new bottom at 15 1-8, or less than half of the year's high. Atchison also touched a new low at 132 1-2. Canadian Pacific and Missouri Pacific preferred were among the few issues to show gains of a point or more.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Spanish pesetas lost their 5-point gain of yesterday and sterling cables were quoted a shad lower at $4.87 15-16.

Commodity markets were mixed. Cotton rallied about $1 a bale. Grain prices improved on buying influenced by Secretary Jardine's prediction of better prices for agricultural products, rye making the best showing. Coffee forfeited 20 to 30 points on their recent advance and sugar quotations held steady.

THE CITY MANAGER'S $6,000 SALARY LOOKS GOOD TO SOME NEW LONDONERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 29—It developed today that there is yearning for the appointment to the office of city manager. That is, provided that the office be vacated as the result of the present movement, William A. Holt tendering his resignation at the last meeting of the council, because of the continual wrangling between the members of the council and City Manager Holt. The most recent controversy is the result of City Manager Holt ordering that Bank street be made a one-way street, between State and Tilley streets, with traffic proceeding in a northerly direction. Whether the city manager's resignation will be actually consummated by its acceptance remains to be seen. It is reported that several New Londoners are seeking the office, which carries with it a salary of $6,000 annually, for the city manager is the highest paid of the city's officials. Those most prominently mentioned as seeking the appointment are Thomas F. Murvey, a former member of the council and battery a member of the board of relief; Carlos Peck and Clifford B. Peltier. Another mentioned as a possibility for the place is James E. Barlow, of New York, former city manager, whom Mr. Holt succeeded about six years ago. It is highly doubtful if Mr. Barlow would return to New London and take charge of the city's business affairs, for if he did so he would come at a salary less than he received when he originally held the office. It is believed that Mr. Holt's resignation will not be accepted and that he will continue to serve for it is known members of the chamber of commerce are to exercise their influence among members of the council, with a view to smoothing out the existing difference between the council members and the city manager. There are others, however, who believe that the councilors and the city manager cannot agree and that City Manager Holt will not change his order for the reversal of the one-way traffic on Bank street to a southerly direction, which was the controversy to bring about a break between the city's business official and the members of the council. No action on the resignation, it is believed, will be taken at the regular council meeting to be held next Monday and it is the conviction that no action whatever will be taken until after Councilor Edward L. Streeter, Jr., who is absent from the city returns; it is not known when that will be.

DEATH OF THOMAS HOWE AT LOS ANGELES HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 29—Thomas Howe, 67, former New London business man, died yesterday at a hospital in Los Angeles, in which city he had resided for several years. He is survived by a sister, Miss Minnie E. Howe, of 4 Cliff street, this city and by a brother, Frank Howe, of New York. Mr. Howe was a member of New London lodge of Elks, 360, and St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. It is believed that Mr. Howe's death was sudden for the Elks lodge had not been advised of his illness and it was with surprise that members were informed today of Mr. Howe's death. Mr. Howe was a son of the late Frank and Annie Larkin Howe. For many years he conducted a prosperous livery business at the corner of Green and Golden streets on the site now occupied by the Arthur building. When the automobile took the place in the business and pleasure world of horse and team, Mr. Howe entered the automobile business as sales representative. In 1922 he disposed of his business and went to California where he had since resided. He was a past exalted ruler of the Elks and had a wide acquaintanceship here.

The funeral of Sarah L. Wells, wife of Henry T. Wells and mother of Patrolman Clarence Wells, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 43 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. Members of the New London police department acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, in making his rounds late last night, discovered the entrance of the Hebrew school, corner of Blackhall and Prests, unlocked. The officer secured the building for the remainder of the night. Several nights ago Officer Moriarty found not only the entrance unlocked, but six of the windows on the ground floor unfastened, indicating that some one in leaving the building is extremely careless.

In the police court this morning there were but two cases to claim the attention of Judge Victor Prince. Hyman E. Ritt, 143 North Bank street, charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances in parking his automobile on the east side of the street, which is restricted to parking, was fined $5. Ritt was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Lawrence Fardy. The other case was that of a man charged with intoxication. He was given a suspension of judgment. The fellow was arrested yesterday afternoon on State street by Patrolman William Riordan.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the driver's license of Pauline Clark, 127 Willetts avenue. The license was suspended three weeks ago for violation of the state motor vehicle law.

Samuel Snitkin was tendered an informal reception last night by several of his acquaintances. He was summoned to the score of the New London News company, Bank street and there with his friends enjoyed several hours in a social manner. The event was because Mr. Snitkin is to leave town soon to pursue college studies.

The mission being conducted nightly for women at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, is being attended by immense throngs, the crowds taxing the capacity of the church. The women's services will continue throughout the week. Next week the mission Fathers will preach to the men of the parish and their friends.

GRAND LIST $43,500,575, AFTER REDUCTION OF $29,632

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 29—The board of relief has concluded its work for the year, this having been accomplished last night, and as a result of their investigation of grievances of property owners, who appealed from the decision of Assessor Burrows in levying valuation on various descriptions of property, the board made a reduction on all property of $29,632. With this reduction made, the city's grand list is now $43,500,575 for the fiscal year ending Sept. 31, 1927. The grand list exceeds the list of a year ago by $587,560. Now that the board has completed its work the council is in a position to prepare the budget and fix the amount of millage that will be assessed against property owners for 1927-1928. The council, as a committee, has held several meetings for the purpose of preparing a tentative budget.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. John Siragusa, 40 Orchard street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Siragusa, to Vincent Barone, of Niantic.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Sullivan, of Hillside road, who are touring Europe, have received messages from them from Cairo, Egypt. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan state that the trip across the Atlantic was a rough one, but that they are enjoying the trip immensely. They will return to New London in April.

John Duffy, janitor at the municipal building, who has been confined to his home on Starr street a fortnight by illness, has resumed his duties.

Mrs. Edward Davis, of New York, formerly of New London, is visiting relatives in this city.

James Carver, 126 Harrison street; Miss Elizabeth Bingham, 26 Woodbridge street; Marshall Purdy, 41 Raymond street; Thomas Rouzee, Groton, and Mrs. William Manice, 334 Huntington street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

After having obtained estimates for repairs to their wharf, dating back to last October, the Fishers Island Navigation company today had the work started. Probably it will not be completed before May, but will be prior to the starting of summer business. The work comprises the entire repairing of the big wharf, including the laying of new planking throughout, extending from the head of the pier to the railroad crossing. The improvements also take in the razing of the wooden building that long has been an eye-sore because of its dilapidated condition and which has not been occupied since the latter part of last September. The building when demolished will not be replaced, but where the foundation stands a concrete surface will be constructed so that a permanent surface will exist.

John P. Beebe, former resident of Waterford, died Sunday at his home, in Worcester, Mass. The funeral will be held in Worcester, but the body will be buried in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. Addie A. Gallup, 77, widow of Erastus Gallup, a former resident of Groton, died Monday at her residence, 288 Blue Hills, Hartford, death ending a lingering illness. Mrs. Gallup is survived by a son, William M. Gallup, of Hartford; two daughters, Mrs. Fred H. Leland, Collinsville, and Mrs. Fannie C. Hewitt, Hartford; a sister, Mrs. Phoebe E. Gardner, of Groton, and a brother, John O. Miner, of Groton; a grandson, William R. Hewitt, Hartford, and a step-grandson, George H. Leland, Collinsville. Mrs. Gallup was born in Groton, the daughter of Elisha M. and Nancy Strong Miner. She moved to Hartford about 50 years ago. She was a member of the Asylum Hill Congregational church, Hartford, also a member of Good Samaritan chapter of the King's Daughters.

SLEEPING SICKNESS CASE HAS FAVORABLE ENDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 29—Mrs. Frank Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Dorsey, of Neptune avenue, Ocean Beach, has entirely recovered from an attack of sleeping sickness at her home in California. Mrs. Morrison was in a slumber three days before she finally awakened and in a weakened condition, but since then she has rapidly regained her strength.

FISHERS CO. BOAT BRINGS OVER 260,000 LBS. OF HADDOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 29—The largest catch of fish yet to be brought to the plant of the American Fishers company, the former Groton Iron works, was received there today on one of the several fishing steamers. Fully 260,000 pounds of haddock was received and the fishermen received about $260 for 11 days' labor. As a result of the enormous catch, a force of employes was kept at the plant tonight, getting the fish ready for shipment to market.

Lieut. E. A. Baim, 715 Ocean avenue, reported to the police this afternoon that while his automobile was parked in front of his house last night it was struck by another car and damaged. No report of the accident has been made at the police station by the driver of the colliding auto.

An automobile truck owned by the Saybrook garage and attached to which was a welding machine, was practically destroyed by fire this afternoon when the truck became ablaze from an unknown cause and, before the firemen could respond to a still alarm, the truck was so badly damaged that it was rendered fit for the junk heap. The truck was on its way from Saybrook to New London and when on the outskirts of the city and near the city line, about opposite Mercer field, the driver discovered that the rear end was on fire. He attempted to extinguish the blaze and upon being unsuccessful he sent a still alarm to fire headquarters. Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Engine company responded, but by the time the firemen arrived where the auto was burning it was doomed to destruction. A large amount of chemicals, including a 35-gallon tank, was thrown on the burning machine, but it was necessary to pump another quantity of chemicals on the fire before it was extinguished. While the blaze was in progress, the gasoline tank exploded, but no one was injured. When the fire was discovered the entire rear end was afire and the heat of the blaze, it is believed, caused the solder around the tank to be melted, so that there was a flow of the gasoline that fed the flames. How the fire started is not known, neither did an investigation by Chief Shipman reveal the cause.

Residents along Truman street are anticipating that the heat there next summer will be more intense for dwellers on that highway than it has ever been before, for the many elms have been removed to widen the street and they will take shade from that section during the hot summer days. The work is to be extended from Bank and Truman streets to Broad street.

There is no ice in the Thames river on the last day of February. Indeed, there has been little ice there at any time during the winter. Nor is there any ice in the lower harbor nor in the Sound.

Montauk avenue is again being patched to cover the depressions that have been worn in the surface. It is believed that during the summer or fall that highway will be laid in cement, a dressing that will be permanent and that will obviate the necessity of repairs.

The police officers report fewer arrests of late than at any time in recent weeks.

An extradition treaty between the United States and Poland was approved by the senate foreign relations committee.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Group Insurance at Saxton Woolen Mill

Employes of the Saxton Woolen corporation in Norwich Town have been given the opportunity by the company to join the ranks of the thousands of industrial workers in the country who are buying insurance protection through the medium of group insurance.

The plan adopted at the Saxton mill is administered by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company and is on the so-called contributory plan where the employes and the employer together contribute to the cost. Life insurance, total and permanent disability benefits and weekly sickness and non-occupational accident benefits are provided in the policy. Every employe at the plant was given an opportunity to purchase this protection for one thousand dollars of life insurance and ten dollar weekly benefits. More than 75 per cent of the employes took advantage of the opportunity. The Saxton company pays the balance of the cost.

Each employe applying for the insurance names his or her own beneficiary. No medical examination is required, and there is no age limit. Nursing service is given to all people insured under the plan through the local visiting nursing association. No charge for this service is made to the policyholder. The Metropolitan pays the nursing association for all calls made. Close to five million working people in the country are now insured under such contracts. The Metropolitan for the benefit of its group policyholders maintains a service bureau, made up of experts in various economic lines; marketing experts, industrial engineers, economists, health specialists are on this board and its services are available without charge to all companies carrying group insurance with this company.

The Saxton company have made a very progressive step in adopting this program.

Breed Theatre

A new musical comedy came to town yesterday, a tale of Main street, Manhattan, and all the romance and tragedy that unfolds between the exit marches of the theatres at night and the clank of milkwagons in the early morning, all the jazz-mad adventure of the mecca of the modernists.

This lovely bit of artistry and feeling is called "Broadway Nights" and you'll be surprised when we reveal that it is a photoplay.

Anyone who doubts that a musical comedy can not be unravelled in celluloid, that all the movement and lilt and harmony of a finely directed stage show can not be put into film, should make it a point of going to the Breed theatre where "Broad Nights" is showing for the last time tonight.

A horse, a dog and a mule, all trick animals, appear in "The Boob," a Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer production which is the added feature on the bill closing tonight at the Breed. George K. Arthur, Gertrude Olmstead, Joan Crawford and Charles Murray are featured in this whimsical comedy of youth, in which Arthur plays the role of a modern young Don Quixote who sets out on an ancient nag to seek adventures.

Ponselle Course Still in Doubt

In the short time that remains for the option on Rosa Ponselle for a recital here on May 22nd, the committee is anxiously awaiting the receipt of a larger number of course-ticket pledges that are required to assure her coming. It would indeed be a pity for Norwich to lose this one opportunity of having Ponselle simply because of neglect on the part of many who would delight in her recital but who had failed to register their pledges with the committee. However, in spite of the interest already shown by many, such will be the case unless a greater number respond by sending their course-ticket pledges immediately to Mr. Archibald Mitchell, 89 Broad street.

The following tributes of musical critics show how others value her:

N. Y. Sun—"Here is one of the most beautiful organs of tone that the Metropolitan has ever known."

Chicago Herald—"One of the remarkable artists of this generation."

Worcester Daily Telegram—"Ponselle's voice like a Strad Fiddle."

New York World—"A Caruso in Petticoats."

Norfolk Ledger Despatch—"It is one of the great, beautiful voices of our time, and it is great and beautiful from the top to the bottom of its wide range." See advertisement.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

If one likes good, clean, fast moving comedy for their motion picture entertainment, the place to get it is at the Palace theatre.

Bebe Daniels, Paramount star, makes the offer. The beautiful player really outdoes herself in her latest screen offering, "Feel My Pulse," which will be shown today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Fun? Plenty! And some idea may be derived from the situations given the dashing comedienne by Howard Emmett Rogers who is credited with the original story. Can't you picture Miss Daniels as a girl who is perfectly healthy but who believes that she is an invalid? And her experiences in a sanitarium filled with patients who are members of a bootlegging gang? And the action involved around the battles between the "patients" and the hijackers—with Bebe in the midst of it all?

These are just a few of the situations which suit Miss Daniels' talents perfectly. And she makes the best of her opportunities.

Miss Daniels plays the role of a beautiful American girl who has been brought up with the idea that she is a frail thing when in reality there is nothing the matter with her. She visits a sanitarium, left her by an uncle, a health crank, and finds it in possession of a bootlegging gang. Her exploits from that moment on never fail to get a string of laughs, and the rousing climax had the audience last night in convulsions.

An unusually fine vaudeville bill will be shown this week. The two big headline acts are the feature attractions. The Revue Claseque is a dancing act that is unusual. There are five girls and two men in the cast, the costumes and settings are exceptionaly fine and the dancing is said to be wonderful. The four Kareys will present the unusual and sensational novelty act which has been a hit where ever presented.

Other acts on the bill are Fields & Cook, two boys who are champion steppers, Edna Kay a singer of great ability and Pillard & Shelton in ten minutes of laughter.

Strand Theatre

"The Phantom Flyer" is the title of the cloud thriller at the Strand theatre featuring Al Wilson, the daredevil aviator. The locale of "The Phantom Flyer" is in the southwest and the story deals with the adventures of the air hero in running to earth a group of schemers and marauders who are bent upon ruining a settler whose home they covet. Lillian Gillmore plays the leading feminine role, and is the delightful heroine whom Al Wilson rescues with the aid of his airplane and flies away with her. There is a happy romance woven into this exciting picture.

"A Night on Broadway" is a musical comedy of fifteen artists and pretty girls. There are some clever dancers and singers, and good comedy that each member of the family will enjoy. The scenery, and electrical effects are attractive, and the music is catchy. Enjoy an evening with this clever group of players.

Frigidaires in Asia

KABUL, Afghanistan, Feb. 28—An American kitchen appliance has gained a place in the household where mighty ambassadors never dared enter, at the palace of Amir Amanullah Khan, here in the country's capital city.

The amir recently purchased an electric refrigerator from the India representative of Frigidaire corporation, and the modern convenience has been transported through historic Khyber Pass by railroad, then by caravan to Kabul where it has just been installed in the Amir's palace.

This purchase by the amir of the most modern means of refrigeration is significant of the new orders of things in Moslem Afghanistan, which for thousands of years was regarded as the walled-in heart of Asia and key to India, inaccessible to travelers and sufficient unto itself. Afghanistan, meaning "noisy or tumultuous," consists of lofty ranges of snow-covered mountains, deep ravines, and fertile well-watered valleys.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Negro Spirituals in New London

Have you ever heard real, cultured, cultivated, highly educated Negroes sing the old Negro Spirituals and Negro songs in the way that they should be sung; artistically and yet at the same time so emotionally moving as to carry you off your feet? Mr. J. Rosamond Johnson, baritone, who also is the accompanist for himself and for Mr. Taylor Gordon, tenor, will be heard here in such a program on Friday, March 2nd at Bulkeley auditorium, New London.

To hear them sing "Didn't My Lord Deliver Daniel?" "My Lord's A-Writin' All De Time," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Go Down Moses," "I Got a Home In-a Dat Rock," "My Lord What a Mornin'", "All God's Chillun," "Nobody Knows De Trouble I See," "Deep River," and other such songs is to have an experience you will never want to miss.

Strand Theatre

"The Phantom Flyer" is the title of the cloud thriller at the Strand featuring Al Wilson, the daredevil aviator. The locale of "Phantom Flyer" is in the Southwest and the story deals with the adventures of the air hero in running to earth a group of schemers and marauders who are bent upon ruining a settler whose home they covet. Lillian Gillmore plays the leading feminine role, and is the delightful heroine whom Al Wilson rescues with aid of his airplane and flies away with her. There is a happy romance woven into this exciting picture.

POETRY

New England

New England, New England, my home o'er the sea,
My heart as I wander turns fondly to thee.
For bright rests the sun on thy clear winding streams,
And soft o'er thy meadows the moon pours her beams.
New England, New England, my home o'er the sea,
The wanderer's heart turns in fondness to thee.

Thy breezes are helpful and clear are thy rills,
And the harvest wanes proudly and rich are thy hills—
Thy maidens are fair and thy yeomen are strong
And thy rivers run blithely thy valleys among.
New England, New England, my home o'er the sea,
The wanderer's heart turns in fondness to thee.

There's a home in New England where dear ones of mine
Are thinking of me and the days of Lang Syne;
And blest be the hour when, my pilgrimage o'er,
I shall sit by that hearthstone and leave it no more.
New England, New England, my home o'er the sea,
The wanderer's heart turns in fondness to thee.

—ANNA W. WELLS.

Faith

O world, thou choosest not the better part!
It is not wisdom to be only wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes,
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.

Columbus found a world, and had no chart,
Save one that faith deciphered in the skies;
To trust the soul's invincible surmise
Was all his science and his only art.

Our knowledge is a torch of smoky pine
That lights the pathway but one step ahead
Across a void of mystery and dread.
Bid, then, the tender light of faith to shine
By which alone the mortal heart is led Unto the thinking of the thought divine.

—Anna W. Wells.

—By George Santayana.

She—Marry you? Are you on the football team?

She—I like you as a friend, Mr. Jenks, but I could never marry you. Have I made myself perfectly plain?
He (bitterly)—Well, you may have had something to do with it, but I should say that Nature was the chief offender.—Montreal Star.

Reveller—Could you oblige me with a program?
Box office attendant—But the show's nearly over!
Reveller—I know that, but I want to prove to my wife where I've been.—Tit-Bits, London.

"Who's that impressive-looking woman over yonder?"
"That's Mrs. Peckum. She's a remarkable woman, and they say that she commands a very large salary."
"How does she earn it?"

MODERN RADIOS AND EXCELLENT SERVICE AT W. H. NELSON'S

What musical instrument in anyone's home is more appreciated than a modern radio? It is difficult to think of anything that is within reach of the average person, that would be more pleasing to the individual or whole family than a fine radio.

W. H. Nelson, the well known electrical contractor, located at 252 Franklin street, is the authorized dealer for three nationally known and dependable radios that are guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every way. They are the Bosch Radio, manufactured in Springfield, Mass., the Kolster Radio, the well known Crosley, and the Sleeper "Electric Scout" manufactured by Sleeper Radio & Mfg. Corp., of Long Island City, N. Y. The Electric Scout set requires no batteries, operating direct from the lighting current, using standard tubes.

Inexpensive, simple, easy of tuning, glorious in volume and tone to a degree almost undreamed of in battery sets.

Imagine the joy of having no installation or upkeep problems—no cumbersome, confusing batteries to replace or recharge, nor substitute makeshift devices.

Here at last is a true electric set made by a company old in radio whose products have always enjoyed a good name. Here is a fine receiver of long established reputation with now the tremendous added advantages of electric operation.

Mr. Nelson has on hand a large number of these various models which he will be pleased to display upon request.

Where Quality and Service are the Watchword

NORWICH MERCHANTS CAN PROVIDE FINE SERVICE

Whether it is in the automobile tire business, the jewelry trade, contracting, or in any other line of business, Norwich has the firm or the business house which stands ready to give prompt and courteous service.

In rainy or pleasant weather, whether it is hot or cold hundreds of local business men await the calls of the patrons for service, that kind which they allege cannot be provided by the concern in cities miles away.

In particular this is true of the automobile accessory business. A tire or tube purchased in Norwich, if it gives trouble, can be serviced best by the concern from which the purchase was made. If it's radio trouble it's the local dealer who gets the call for assistance. If it's any type of quick service you need — it's the local dealer who supplies it.

Back up this type of local service by trading at home. The local dealer stands ready to serve you—isn't it fair that you should give him your trade?

You will find this type of service at any of the mercantile houses mentioned on this page and they urge you to give them a chance to prove their assertion.

MAKE YOUR PLANS FOR HEATING WHILE COLD DAYS ARE HERE

The pleasant fall days are to be much enjoyed but it cannot help but make one think of the cold wintery days which are to come. And, with them comes the problem of heating your home, your office, your business place. Plan now for those days before another winter arrives.

Gas is becoming more and more popular every year as a means of insuring comfortable, warm homes and business places, an even temperature at all times, easily controlled, and without any fuss or muss.

The Eastern Connecticut Power Co. at any of their eastern Connecticut offices will tell you how easily and economically this method of heating can be installed, how simple it is to operate and how inexpensive, all things considered, it is to maintain.

OVERHAUL YOUR AUTO AFTER LONG WINTER'S HARD RUNNING SEASON

Your auto, probably, like many others, has had a hard season's work to its credit. It probably needs a rest. You would, likewise, if you had done half that auto has. But your auto, more faithful perhaps than some human beings, is perfectly willing to keep on pounding the state highways for you, if you will just give it a little grease and oil, have a few of its bolts tightened before they fall out, a few inches of superfluous carbon thrown away and a little odd things tinkered with.

The Delco Garage at 199 West Thames Street is just the place your auto would like to go if it had its wish. It's a good place for you to take it, anyway.

The garage does particular work for a particular people. It also has the most approved machinery for specialized work, such as brake lining machinery, valve grinders, etc.

A trial of the work at this garage will convince you of its good work.

DAWSON SHOP IS HOME OF HIGHEST GRADE MILLINERY

The Dawson Shop at 12 Cliff street, next to the Salvation Army building, is an exclusive millinery shop.

Here the particular women are given every courtesy and receive the personal attention of an experienced milliner.

The Dawson Shop specializes in hand made hats, for all style tendencies point to the demand for millinery made by hand, rather than for the machine made hats, of which there are so many duplicates. Thus by the policy of this shop our customers are assured of exclusive hats of any design, one thing which above all others has made this shop the Mecca toward which all women who desire the exclusive in hats are drawn.

One very interesting fact about the shop is that it is not expensive, although only the best grade materials are used. There is always a full line of better hats of the latest style on hand at the Dawson Shop and your visit to the shop would more than convince you that quality and moderate price may go hand in hand at such a shop.

WHY I ADVERTISE?
I believe that seven-tenths of all headaches have their origin in strained vision. I also know that correctly fitted glasses will entirely relieve the headaches by removing the cause. Scarcely a day passes but I relieve some sufferer through my knowledge of making and fitting glasses. I am anxious that all sufferers should know there is a remedy so simple. This is one reason why I advertise.

Following the devotional period, a short time was devoted to business during which the class voted to furnish one of the large lights to be installed in the chapel auditorium. All officers were re-elected, as follows: President, George Durr; vice president, Burton Jopson; secretary and treasurer, Arthur Avery. Mr. Jopson was also appointed chairman of the class committee and Theodore Sterry was appointed chairman of the social committee, the remainder of the committee members to be appointed later. During the social hour which followed games were enjoyed by the class members. Miss Hyde served cake and cocoa. At this time the chief attraction was the birthday loaf for the president, Mr. Durr, who observed his birthday Tuesday. Among those present also a class member, was Raymond Smith, of "Fair Acres," Mystic, formerly of Norwich.

Recent improvements to the interior of the First Congregational chapel, include a fine new hardwood floor, fresh paint of a delicate tint on the side walls, etc., also improved sanitary equipment. Not long ago a new modern heating system was installed, and two large electric light fixtures are to be suspended from the ceiling in the auditorium making the chapel much more attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Quinn and son Master Richard Quinn, Jr., residents of 18 Elm avenue, Norwich Town for several years are to move to Greene avenue, Norwich.

On the grounds that the defendant, William M. Williams, of Groton has been guilty of a statutory offense, Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court in a decision handed down Wednesday granted a divorce to Aileen McKeen Williams of Groton. The couple were married February 28, 1925.

Seeks Divorce for Desertion

Claiming desertion since April, 1924, Cora Fraser, of Groton, seeks a divorce and change of name to Cora Fountain, from Charles Fraser, formerly of New Haven, now of Boston, in a suit returnable to the superior court. The couple was married March 27, 1922.

WINS VERDICT OF $575 IN SUIT FOR INJURIES IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

In the suit of Horace S. Pervere of New London against William Barstow, 76, of Plainfield, brought for $5,000 damages and tried in the superior court at New London Wednesday, the jury gave a verdict for $575 for Pervere. Judge C. L. Avery accepted the verdict. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney G. C. Morgan and the defendant by Attorney Lafleur.

Pervere brought the suit on a claim for injuries received in an automobile collision at about 11 o'clock in the morning of Nov. 6, 1926 between cars owned respectively by the two men.

The first witness for the plaintiff was Attorney Harry E. Bach of Danielson who testified as to statements of the defendant, made in the town court of Plainfield. He illustrated his testimony with a drawing on the court easel.

The plaintiff was the next witness and he told of the crash and of the injuries he received. He told of being treated by Dr. Frank M. Dunn, of New London for about four months. He said that the force of the impact caused his car to turn a complete somersault.

Dr. F. M. Dunn next testified regarding the plaintiff's injuries, one of which was a fractured collar-bone. The doctor said that his bill for services was $104.

Judge George R. Torrey of Central Village, judge of the town court of Plainfield, testified that Barstow said in court that just previous to the accident he was traveling on the left side of the street which intersected with the main highway.

At this point the plaintiff rested his case.

The defendant took the stand. He testified that as he came out of the intersecting street and as he was about 25 feet from the edge of concrete, he saw the Pervere car about 150 feet ahead. He said he "stepped on the gas" and started to cross the state highway and reached the car tracks in road when the collision occurred. He said that in his opinion Pervere was traveling about 40 miles an hour.

The jury on the case was composed of the following:

New London—Charles C. Appley, J. H. Lyon; Groton—Adrian C. Hewlitt, Ernest W. Brown, Addison Gray; Stonington—Mason Manning, Everett D. Chapman, Walter C. Merrill; Montville—Frank Schofield, Walter Beckwith; Ledyard—Gilbert Hagen; Waterford—George Dayton.

TAR KETTLE BLAZE MAKES NORWICH TOWN EXCITEMENT

A tar kettle which blazed up in the rear of the new Samuel Huntington school building in Norwich Town, shortly before 7 o'clock Wednesday evening was responsible for a telephone call at the central fire station, resulting in the despatch of three fire companies to the scene. A few minutes before 7 o'clock a Norwich Town woman called up the central station and notified the department that the new school building was on fire. Chief Howard L. Stanton immediately despatched Squad A, Engine Co. No. 3, and the Yantic fire company was called out. Chief Stanton also responded.

Arriving at the school building no signs of fire could be seen. Just as Chief Stanton was about to order the companies to return to the station, a man said to be employed as a watchman at the building, informed the fire chief that a tar kettle had caught fire. Chief Stanton instructed the Yantic company to remain on the scene should their services be required and sent the city companies back to the stations.

The tar kettle was some distance from the building and there was no danger of the building catching fire. The hurried arrival of the apparatus caused quite a stir in Norwich Town and a number of people gathered at the scene. No one seemed to know what it was all about until it was finally learned that the tar kettle had caught fire.

Damages in the amount of $10,000 are sought by the Raymond & Alexander Lumber Co., of New London against Ricardo Girl, alias Mike Girl, and Dominico Girl, alias Domico Girl, both of that city in a suit returnable to the superior court.

The suit, which is based on the common counts, alleges that on Jan. 30, 1928, the defendant was indebted to the plaintiff in the amount of $10,000.

The special lenten preacher at the vesper services in Christ Episcopal church on Thursday night at 7.30 will be Rev. L. Y. Graham, rector of St. Mark's church, Fall River. Rev. Mr. Graham was associated with Bishop Slattery of Boston when he was rector of Grace church, New York city.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER IS FINED ON THREE COUNTS

Pleading guilty to charges of reckless driving, evading responsibility and operating under the influence of liquor, Frank Malinowsky of Uncasville was fined $100 on each count with costs which he presented before Justice J. T. Miller in Montville Wednesday night. Half of the total fine was remitted, making $150 and costs which the Uncasville man will pay.

Malinowsky was the driver of an automobile near the Uncasville trolley switch Tuesday night which collided with a machine driven by Pasquale Capone of Denison avenue, Groton, who had with him Vincenzo De Crezenzo of New London. The Capone car was upset on the trolley track, but Malinowsky drove away towards this city after the accident. De Crezenzo commandeered another car and caught Malinowsky after a two mile chase as far as Derry hill. Malinowsky was taken back to the scene of the accident and there placed under arrest by Sergeant Albright of state police barracks in Groton, who locked him up at New London police headquarters.

Capone suffered a broken collar bone in the accident. His automobile was badly smashed and the Malinowsky car had the front end stove in. The machines were traveling in opposite directions at the time of the accident and it was reported that the Malinowsky car was zigzagging over the road and tried to pass the other machine on the right.

Connor, who brings the suit because of injuries she received in an automobile accident on Feb. 7, 1927. While she was riding as a guest in the automobile owned and operated by the defendant, it is alleged in the suit that Mr. Connor lost control of the machine upon the state highway in Bozrah, it left the road, ran into a fence and was overturned with the plaintiff underneath the car. Thereby she received injuries upon the head, body, arms and legs, was incapacitated for several weeks, requiring the services of a physician, and has been prevented from continuing to have the enjoyments of life she had before the injuries.

Music Teachers Musicians

You Can't Change the Facts, So Let's Look the Facts in the Face

By Earle L. Sparks

My article in last Saturday's Bulletin was not intended as a slam or knock against the classical teachers. On the contrary it was a direct invitation to the prejudiced to tell-it-to-me on paper instead of whispering in the ears of an unsuspecting public. I have studied the classics too long to condemn the works of the masters or their exponents. No, I have nothing whatever against the classical teachers. But I refuse to remain silent after hearing the rumors concerning keyboard harmony, jazz and whats-what in music that are circulating throughout the county. I am here to tell the public that much of the stuff they have heard concerning harmony and "that horrid jazz" is pure, unadulterated bunk.

Here Are the Facts—Refute Them If You Can

On the piano, the tempered musical scale consists of 12 tones repeated over and over in various pitches of high and low degree. The essential fundamental chords are but few, and must remain so, but the combinations which can be made to represent them, are almost infinite. Every composition you've ever heard and ever will hear, ever played and ever will play, consists of the 12 tones of the musical scale, singly or in combination. The compositions taught by every piano, violin and vocal teacher in the city, contain in whole or in part the harmonic structure, progression and 3 elements of music featured and taught in the Sparks-Shefte School. The foregoing statement cannot be dodged nor successfully explained away. Try and do it. I make the above statement because many classical students have been led to believe that the harmonic structure found in jazz-music is different than that found in the classics The idiom of classical and popular music is different, but the basic characteristics are the same. There is only one harmonic structure and it is built upon the 12 tones of the musical scale. Changing the rhythm of a composition does not necessarily change the harmony.

Prominent musical educators throughout the country endorse Keyboard Harmony as an aid to better piano playing. Any teacher who declares that I teach students to "fake" only, and do not teach them to play as written, is unwittingly or deliberately evading the Truth. I do not underestimate the advantage of being a good note reader. Strict-note-reading is all right in its place but it does not cover the whole realm of piano playing. That is why many otherwise excellent students and pianists are handicapped. Never having been shown what they can do with note-values, chord tones and passing notes, they are unable to add those fascinating effects in both classical and popular music. The pianist who plays by note without a working knowledge of harmony and rhythm is handicapped. This applies to every student and teacher in the city. The mere memorizing of a few chords and playing an octave-chord bass amounts to little. It is an evasion of the truth for any teacher to state that my students play only an octave-chord bass. I contend and can prove that the effects produced by every professional pianist or organist, every church organist in the city, are produced by employing the identical methods that I teach. All effects, written or improvised, have root in the harmonic groundwork. The compositions of the masters, standard harmony textbooks and all musical recordings bear witness to that statement. No matter what your degree of proficiency, if you are playing piano without a natural or acquired knowledge of harmony, the type of instruction I offer will prove a positive teaching and playing revelation to you. Whether you wish to emulate the styles of recording artists, dainty embellishments, play hot, improvise, play hymns like an evangelistic pianist or make a song into a pianistic rhapsody, you will have to employ the three elements of music, harmonic structure and progression taught in the Sparks-Shefte School of Music. I do not pretend to have any monopoly on this information. It is known by many professionals and should be known by all classical teachers.

ANOTHER RICH DIAMOND FIELD IN SOUTH AFRICA

Deposit Found in Northwest Part of Cape Colony is Said to Be the Biggest Diamond Field Ever Discovered Anywhere—One Man Picked Up Diamonds to the Value of $3,000 in One Hour—Experts Already Have Taken Stones Valued at $800,000 in a Few Weeks' Hand Picking—The Government is to Declare the Whole Area, Which Contains 30,000 Claims, as "State Diggings."

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Mar. 1—(AP)—Another rich diamond field has been discovered—to swell the wealth of South Africa. This revelation was made today in the assembly by the minister of mines, F. W. Beyers.

The diamond deposit lies in Namaqualand, in the north west part of Cape Colony. "It is the biggest diamond field ever discovered anywhere," said Sir Davis Harris, member of the assembly for Kimberley and director of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, Ltd., and chairman of the Jagersfontein estate and diamond mining company.

Minister Beyers announced that it was the intention of the government to declare the whole area, which contained 30,000 claims, as "state diggings."

Describing the richness of the field, the minister declared that he personally had picked up diamonds to the value of £600, ($3,000) in one hour.

Fears were expressed by members of the opposition that the overseas press would blaze forth the impression that South Africa was paved with diamonds. Mr. Beyers warned the house that such an impression was quite erroneous. Nevertheless he characterized the diamond fields in Namaqualand as an Eldorado, unique in the history of the country.

Experts already have taken diamonds valued at £160,000 in a few weeks' hand picking, it was announced, from the one hundred claims owned by the government. The output of the new diamond field will be controlled by the government, which will employ a large force of diggers.

ITALY PAYS HOMAGE TO MARSHAL ARMANDO DIAZ

ROME, Mar. 1—(AP)—King and commoner, soldier and citizen today made a pilgrimage to the modest home outside the Porta Del Popolo, where repose the mortal remains of Italy's greatest soldier, Marshal Armando Diaz, victor of Piave and Vittorio Veneto. Not far distant once stood the Porta Flaminia, through which for centuries marched Rome's and Italy's armed men, spreading Roman conquest and civilization throughout the world.

Never has Italy mourned one of her sons more sincerely than she mourns Diaz, whose victory at Vittorio Veneto is recalled as the prelude to the march by the fascists on Rome. Beginning with the king himself, in the morning, followed by Premier Mussolini, all Rome seemed to throng to the shrine where the marshal lay in full uniform, embowered in flowers, which were spread over the bier by ladies in waiting to the queen at her majesty's orders.

From all Italy tonight picked men of every regiment in the country were hurying to the Eternal City with their regimental colors, as wel as representatives of the ex-soldiers, with the war-torn standards of the regiments disbanded since 1918. These will be flung to the breeze during the funeral of the leader, who was best known as "The Duke of Victory."

PHILIP RAUSCH PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO MURDER

WATERBURY, March 1—(AP)—Philip Rausch, of Wallingford, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with the first degree murder of Albert Hoag, a Cheshire reformatory guard, when arraigned before Judge Arthur F. Els in superior court late this afternoon. Rausch is alleged to have killed Hoag on December 10, 1923, while he was an inmate of the state reformatory. He was arrested in Jacksonville, Fla., last week and waived extradition to be brought back to Connecticut. Rausch elected a trial by jury, but his counsel, Public Defender William W. Sager, asked and received the right to change the choice to a court trial if it is found desirable.

Rausch was brought to Waterbury this afternoon by State Policemen Paul Lavin and Michael Smith. He was taken to the office of State's Attorney Lawrence L. Lewis where he was questioned by Coroner John T. Monzani, Judge Ells, Waterbury's resident judge on the superior court bench, came down to this city from his home in Litchfield and opened court at 4:50 p. m.

The accused appeared nervous as he entered the half filled court room.

BODY OF ANOTHER BOY WAS TAKEN FROM CANAL

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., Mar. 1—(AP)—The body of another boy, about nine years old and with a wire tightly twisted about his waist, was found in the muddy waters of the Indiana harbor ship canal late today. The body was found less than five blocks from the spot where a child of similar age and appearance was taken from the canal, Feb. 22.

Police, who have sought vainly to establish the identity of the first boy, believe they were victims of a fiend who bound them and threw them into the canal alive or were victims of their parents who wanted to get rid of them.

No marks of violence were found on the bodies. Their deaths were pronounced as due to drowning.

No children, answering the description of the two found, have been reported missing in this vicinity.

ONE MAN INJURED WHEN TURRET CRASHED

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP)—One man was injured today when a turret crashed from the seventh floor of an apartment building under construction in the fashionable Eastern Parkway section of Brooklyn.

First reports that three men were caught under the debris caused rescue squads to search for two hours. A final checkup, however, disclosed that Carlo Pierre, 28, was the only man injured.

Several workmen on the fifth floor jumped to safety as the turret fell.

MRS. KREIDER DIED AT SEA ON THE FRACONIA

NEW HAVEN, March 1—(AP)—Mrs. D. Albert Kreider, wife of D. Albert Kreider, associate professor of physics at Yale university, died at sea on the "Franconia" on February 22, it was learned here today. Her death followed an illness of 10 days.

Professor and Mrs. Kreider were making a tour of the world on the "Franconia."

Burial was at sea after the ship left Ceylon.

JOHN R. KENLY, A PIONEER RAILROAD BUILDER, DEAD

WILMINGTON, N. C., Mar. 1—(AP)—Death today closed the career of a pioneer railroad builder of the southeast, John Reese Kenly, 81, Confederate veteran and president of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

He had been confined to his home ten days and in poor health since an attack of influenza last fall.

Born in Baltimore Mr. Kenly while still a youth joined the army of the confederacy and fought through the last year of the Civil war. He was at Appomatox when General Lee surrendered.

In July 1868 he started his 60 years of activity in the railroad world as a flagman on a surveying crew of the Pittsburgh and Connelsville railroad. He left this road on April 5, 1872, to enter the employ of the Richmond and Petersburg railroad, nucleus of the present Atlantic Coast Line railroad system. He rose through various positions to head of the road in 1918.

Mr. Kenly is survived by his daughter Miss Edna Kenly and three brothers.

DEATH FOR PERFORMING AN ILLEGAL OPERATION

CHICAGO, Mar. 1—(AP)—After three and a half hours of deliberation, a jury tonight convicted Dr. Amenti Rongetti of murder and fixed his punishment at death for performing an illegal operation on Loretta Enders, 19, causing her death. This is the first death sentence passed in Cook county (Chicago) since electrocution displaced hanging as a means of execution in this state.

His case went to the jury shortly before 5 o'clock. It was reported that he was voted guilty on the first ballot, the remaining ballots being taken to determine the extent of his guilt and the penalty.

He was accused of performing an illegal operation on the young woman and refused to do another operation that might have saved her life because she did not have sufficient funds.

The doctor claimed the state's case against him was a conspiracy and that the young woman did not come to the hospital until after she had undergone an operation elsewhere. Several witnesses told of threats to intimidate them and the court indicated he would investigate their charges.

MARY MILES MINTER IS RECONCILED TO HER MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 1—(AP)—Mary Miles Minter, erstwhile film star, has become legally reconciled to her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, a check of the records revealed here today. Miss Minter's suit asking her mother to account for approximately $1,000,000 of her earnings was dismissed on Miss Minter's request, by Superior Judge Harry R. Archbald.

The suit for an accounting was begun three years ago. Miss Minter alleged that her mother had taken control of all money earned by her from 1916, when she was a child actress, to 1925.

HARTFORD, Mar. 1—(AP)—Receipts for the state of Connecticut in February totalled $2,228,323.51, bringing the grand total of all receipts from July 1, 1927, the beginning of the fiscal year, to $25,827,433.33, it was announced today by Edward F. Hall, commissioner of finance and control. The report, showing the itemized record of the state's receipts at the close of business Wednesday, was submitted to the department of finance and control this morning.

MARINES MASSING FOR ATTACK IN NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 1.—(AP)—While American marines today were missing in northern Nicaragua in pursuit of the Sandino rebels, eight of their comrades, wounded from ambush Monday were under treatment in the town of Condega.

The five men killed by the burst of machine guns and rifle fire that met the marine detachment near Daraili, Monday, were buried near the place they fell.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LISBON, Portugal, March 1—(AP)—The Portuguese police have found more bombs and have made more arrests in a drive against radical agitators.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 1—(AP)—An official communique has been issued warning the public against too hastily believing the various forecasts concerning the results of the Anglo-Egyptian political conversations which are being published.

MANILA, March 1—(AP)—Praise for the inaugural address of Gov. Henry L. Stimson, in which he pointed to economic development as the way to greater political freedom for the Filipinos was voiced today by both Americans and natives of the islands.

PARIS, March 1—(AP)—Americans who have been divorced in France, even if they maintain only a "paper domicile," have little need to fear the Versailles decision which threw out of court the suit of Bainbridge Colby. This was the opinion of a dozen lawyers who were consulted today by the Associated Press.

STRIKE IMMINENT ON N. Y. SUBWAY AND "EL" LINES

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP)—Indications that a strike is imminent on the city's principal subway and elevated lines increased today. The Interborough Rapid Transit Co. was recruiting carmen, the applicants being housed at carbarns in the Bronx. William D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Workers of America was on his way from Detroit to take charge of the union's interests.

Police were arranging for extra protection in case a strike should be called. Large corporations were planning for transportation of their employes by bus if the transit system is tied up.

The dispute arose from the suspension of 20 I. R. T. employes, who are members of the Amalgamated association.

Efforts of Mayor Walker to avert a strike failed temporarily yesterday when the company refused to reinstate the suspended men but agreed to turn their cases over to its legal department for investigation, charging they had been suspended for verbal attacks on members of the "company union."

Local union officials said they would defer the threatened strike for one day pending the result of the investigation.

At the Bronx carbarns it was estimated that as many as 1,000 new men had entered and not come out. The barns were used during previous labor disputes as barracks for men who remained at work while regular employes were on strike.

M'MILLAN PARTY LIVING IN HUTS ON THE ICE

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., March 1—(AP)—Held captive by ice in Anatalok bay, North Labrador, Cliff Himoe, radio operator with the MacMillan Polar expedition, sent a message to relatives in Chicago this afternoon. The message was picked up here by A. L. Kent, radio amateur, and relayed to Chicago. Himoe's relatives got the word from him ten minutes after he had sent it.

In radio conversation with Kent, the MacMillan operator said members of the party are living in huts on the ice, enjoying good meals and being entertained by radio programs from the United States, England and Russia, all of which countries are equal distance from the position of the ship. They amuse themselves with hunting and skiing while waiting for the ice to melt and free them. Himoe said all in the party are well.

HOPE OF FINDING THREE MISSING FLIERS IS FADING

WASHINGTON, March 1—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur said today that the hope of finding Comdr. T. G. Ellyson, Lieut. Comdr. Hugo Schmidt and Lieut. Rogers Ranschousen, missing naval aviators, alive is fast waning.

Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commandant of the Fifth naval district, believes, the secretary said, that the amphiblan plane carrying the officers from Hampton Roads to Annapolis early Monday morning fell into Horn harbor. The area was being dragged but no trace had been found of the craft.

Fliers from various army, navy and marine flying fields reported that they had thoroughly covered their specified areas of search without results.

The navy department plans to continue the search tomorrow on a smaller scale.

Perkins and Company, Inc., a novelty store of Hartford, has liabilities of $46,353.57 and assets of $15,024.78, and the liabilities of Sam Demetrion, doing business as the Plymouth Market company, also of Hartford, are $3,281.39, with assets of $2,100, according to the voluntary petitions in bankruptcy file dby the two with the clerk of the U. S. district court today.

The Perkins' company's petition was signed by Harry L. Perkins, as treasurer of the corporation. Unsecured claims amount to $43,600.78. Demetrion stated unsecured claims of $2,892.39. There are no New Haven creditors.

LITHUANIAN NOTE TO THE POLISH LEGATION

WARSAW, March 1—(AP)—The text of the Lithuanian note which was forwarded from the Polish legation in Riga last Monday was published here today. It shows the two governments still at loggerheads and that little progress has been made in the negotiations.

Premier Waldemaras expresses the opinion in the note that a continued exchange of such communications would be useless. He asks if Poland is still opposed to having the League of Nations assist in the negotiations and whether, in that case, she is willing to meet Lithuania in a conference at Koenigsberg.

FIGURES OF MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS IN CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, March 1—(AP)—Although the number of motor vehicle accidents in Connecticut increased during the week ending Feb. 25, when compared to the number occurring in the corresponding week of 1927, only two people were killed last week, while four were killed in the corresponding week last year, it was announced today by the state motor vehicle department. Of the total number of accidents during the week ending Feb 25, 208 occurred in the 14 principal cities. Those killed last week were Rosario Bologna in Hartford, and George Talmadge, in Norwalk.

D. State Committee Favors Gov. Al. Smith

Went on Record Unanimously For Smith's Nomination For President.

NEW HAVEN, Mar. 1—(AP)—The democratic state central committee called together by Chairman James J. Walsh, of Meriden this afternoon, went on record unanimously in favor of the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, for the presidency on the party ticket by the convention to be held at Houston, Tex.

The matter of the committee's attitude towards presidential candidates was brought up by Judge John A. Walsh, of Stamford, member from the 27th district, who said that he believed it was proper that a motion be offered "to endorse the suggestion that Governor Alfred E. Smith be the nominee of the national democratic convention." The motion was put and carried unanimously and with some applause.

The committee left to Chairman Walsh and Secretary A. S. Lynch the matter of selection of a place and time for the spring convention and the invitation to a keynote speaker who will be the temporary chairman.

The committee was notified by the chairman of the deaths of Thomas C. McKeon, of the first district, and Dennis P. Sullivan in the thirty first district and change of residence of the woman member from the latter district.

Committees were named to prepare resolutions on the deaths of the two members. To fill the vacancy in the first district, Colonel John L. Purcell, of Hartford, was chosen with endorsement of the Hartford town committee. As the interval since the death of Mr. Sullivan had been brief the chairman in the district had not had time to make recommendations to fill the two vacancies and the matter of new members was left in abeyance.

John J. Kennedy, of West Hartford, resigned as member from the fifth district and former Mayor Joseph F. Dutton, was elected in his place.

Mr. Spellacy gave a review of the national situation as reported upon at a recent conference in Washington. He said that New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Massachusetts are expected to go democratic and the national committee expects Connecticut to put Smith across.

The committee did its work at the close of luncheon.

DIFFICULTIES OF MAKING OUT INCOME TAX IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 1.—(AP)—Americans who are grumbling just now over the difficulties of making out an income tax return may take comfort in considering the task confronting a conscientious Frenchman in paying his income tax.

First, he is expected to digest a 36 page supplement of the journal officiel consisting of 96 columns, which was issued by order of parliament last year, codifying the income tax laws and the amendments thereto.

Next, he must study another supplement of 24 columns published to correct errors in the foregoing, and after that a third supplement of six columns, only recently put out which corrects the corrections.

If he trusts only to the 96 columns of the first text he will go wrong in 427 places.

Aside from wondering whether the corrected corrections are correct, taxpayers who are inclined to be sarcastic say that all three supplements are a great treat to those interested in how a legislature can use legal phraseology to conceal its thought.

F. A. GOODWIN HAS BEEN REMOVED FROM OFFICE

BOSTON, March 1.—(AP)—Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, announced tonight that he had been removed from office by Commissioner of Public Works William F. Williams. In a statement issued to newspapermen at the state house the registrar said:

"I have been removed from office because Mr. Williams has been requested by the governor to remove me."

A special meeting of the governor's council has been called for tomorrow morning and it was understood that the recommendations of the commissioner of public works will be acted upon at that time.

ENCOURAGING REPORT OF AMERICAN WOOLEN CO.

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP)—A. G. Pierce, president of American Woolen company, says the period of drastic losses from operations apparently has ended, preliminary figures for 1927 indicating the company earned in the neighborhood of $2,500,000 and about $500,000 after full depreciation charges. The company's financial position at the close of the year was the most satisfactory in a long time. Bank loans were down to $1,300,000, lowest on record, while cash gained during the year to $8,000,000. Working capital was $64,000,000.

Increase Range of Big Turret Guns

Expenditure of $14,800,000 Approved by the House Naval Committee.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1—(AP)—An increase of ten thousand yards in the firing range for the big turret guns on the battleships Pennsylvania and Arizona would be provided for under a $14,800,000 expenditure approved today by the house naval committee for the modernization of the two vessels.

Representative Britten of Illinois, ranking republican on the committee, said this would prevent the ships from being outranged by those of any other power and also would approximately equalize the "extreme range of all battleships of our own fleet."

The committee in approving the authorization disregarded the navy department's request for an appropriation of $34,670,000 which would have permitted the modernization of three additional capital ships, the New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho.

Britten said that if the conference to be held in 1931 under terms of the Washington naval treaty should not prohibit further modernization he felt sure that the committee would authorize the work on the other three ships.

The $14,800,000 authorization will include he said the installation of additional protection against submarine attack, of anti-air attack deck protection, the installation of airplane catapults and of a modern fire control and the rebollering of the vessels.

"Installation of a five inch anti-aircraft battery is also provided for each ship in accordance with standards adopted for all of our first line battleships," he added. "When modernized to better withstand airplane and submarine attack the Pennsylvania and Arizona will afford much greater protection to officers and men aboard and will continue in the first line of the nation's right arm of defense, for an additional ten years."

NOMINATED A MAN NOW IN MASS. STATE PRISON

BOSTON, March 1—(AP)—Herman A. Macdonald, secretary to Governor Fuller, explained tonight that the nomination of Michael Flynn, 2d, former Stockbridge tax collector now serving a sentence in state prison for larceny of town funds, had been submitted to the governor's council for reappointment as master in chancery through an error by the attorney general's department.

Secretary Macdonald said the list of nominations for several minor offices had been sent by the governor to the attorney general's department for investigation, as was customary in such cases, and that the list had been returned to the governor with the report that there was no objection to Flynn's reappointment. He said that Flynn's name would be stricken from the list.

SINCLAIR CONTRIBUTED $160,000 TO REP. COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Will H. Hays, former postmaster general, testified today before the senate committee that Harry F. Sinclair had handed him a total of $260,000 in Liberty bonds for use by the republican national committee after the oil operator had leased Teapot Dome.

Of this amount $160,000 actually was used to help extinguish the committee deficit resulting from the 1920 presidential campaign, which Hays directed as chairman of the national committee, the remaining $100,000 being returned to the wealthy oil operator.

The transaction occurred in 1923 after the Continental Trading Company of Canada had made its $3,080,000 in profits and gone out of business, but Hays said and Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, agreed with him, that he knew nothing of the Continental at that time.

COL. CHARLES LINDBERGH SEES HIGH HONOR BESTOWED UPON HIS MOTHER

BOSTON, Mar. 1—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, whose notable flying feats have brought him honors from many cities in this country and abroad, flew to Boston today to see his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, receive the highest honors of the National Education association—a certificate of life membership in the organization.

But although the spotlight at tonight's final session of the association's convention was focused on the flier's mother, Lindbergh today was not without the tumultuous ovations that have greeted him wherever he has flown. From the time he landed at the Boston airport, this morning, after a trip of one hour and thirty-nine minutes from Schenectady, N. Y., until his day was done, the flier was the center of enthusiastic greetings in all parts of the city.

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons gathered at the airport to see Lindbergh arrive. A detail of 300 policemen was unable to check an advance of the spectators when Lindbergh alighted from his plane and entered the army headquarters at the field. The crowd remained on the field and was there to cheer Mrs. Lindbergh when she arrived to pay a brief visit to her son a few minutes after he had landed. And, finally, when Lindbergh left the airport with Rear Admiral Philip D. Andrews, commandant of the Boston navy yard, many persons followed in automobiles.

There were scores of persons at the main gate of the navy yard when Admiral Andrews and his guest arrived there.

The greatest crowd of the day gathered in Copley square when it became known that Colonel Lindbergh would attend a luncheon at the Copley Plaza hotel. For more than two hours, a crowd composed largely of girls, remained outside the hotel and even surged into its lobby, until Lindbergh had departed. His whereabouts during the afternoon remained unknown. The colonel told newspapermen he preferred to remain hidden from the public eye.

"I want to retire from public life," he said.

STANDARD OIL CO., INDIANA, RE-ELECTS R. W. STEWART

Remains Chairman of the Board, Notwithstanding That He Stands Charged With Contempt For Refusing to Answer Questions of Senate Committeemen—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Holding 1,339,920 Shares, Voted Neither For Nor Against Stewart.

CHICAGO, Mar. 1—(AP)—Col. Robert W. Stewart, charged with contempt for refusal to answer questions asked by members of the Teapot Dome senatorial investigating committee, was re-elected chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana today with the 1,339,920 shares of stock controlled by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., voted neither for nor against him.

Mr. Rockefeller sent a letter to E. G. Seubert, president of the company, directing that the stock be voted for the re-election of all other directors, but as to voting for Colonel Stewart, Mr. Rockefeller wrote:

"I am not prepared at this time to vote either for or against Colonel Stewart's re-election as a member of the board."

For the other members of the board 6,320,275 votes were cast of 9,231,540 shares of stock outstanding.

"It is not my time to talk," was Colonel Stewart's only statement, "but I am deeply gratified that no shares were voted against me."

Prior to his re-election by the stockholders to the board of directors, Colonel Stewart read the company's annual report, which revealed net earnings for 1927, $29,401,308 less than for 1926 and a dividend reduction from the $6.00 a share in 1926 to $3.26 a share last year.

The net, after reserve for taxes, of $30,132,456, lacked $1,997,714 of meeting the year's cash dividend of $32,130,170, but a surplus of $106,537,280 was reported for 1927 as against $108,307,075 the previous year.

Colonel Stewart attributed the reduced net earnings to "the reduced realization on sales of petroleum products as well as to a loss occasioned by the large carry-over of the petroleum products inventory of December 31, 1926, at prices in excess of realization during 1927."

Nevertheless, the position of the company was asserted to be "exceptionally strong," with a reduced inventory offering "an effective safety measure," and the cash and securities reserve of $86,869,833 the greatest in the company's history.

HICKMAN'S UNCONCERN INDICATION OF INSANITY

LOS ANGELES, March 1—(AP)—William E. Hickman's purported unconcern over being convicted of murder, condemned to hang and accused of a second killing, was cited by the defense as an indication of his insanity today at Hickman's joint trial with Welby Hunt for the slaying of a druggist.

Alfred, elder brother of the accused Hickman, took the stand to plead that the slayer of Marian Parker was of unsound mind. Alfred said:

"Only the other day my brother told me he had enjoyed his stay in the county jail more than all the last two years.

"I asked him if he did not realize how terrible it was for us that he should be sentenced to be hanged. He said it did not make any difference."

Hickman is under sentence of death for the Parker murder. He and Hunt are accused of killing C. Ivy Toms in a drug store hold-up.

Alfred told of the change that had come over his brother, once a brilliant Kansas City High school student, following his defeat in oratorical competition.

Acute tonsilitis, sore throat, and enlarged and diseased tonsils were observed in their relation to physical defects and illness.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE DROPPED AGAINST DRIVERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 1—On the grounds of insufficient evidence Judge Frank H. Foss found Charles Cyr and Patrick Gamache, both of this city, not guilty of charges of reckless driving in police court this morning. Automobiles operated by the two men figured in a collision near the Jillson Hill underpass last Sunday evening, both cars being damaged and Cyr sustaining a dislocated left elbow and bruises. The drivers failed to agree as to who was responsible for the mishap and were consequently notified by Officer Roderick Lariviere to appear in court. Gamache's testimony was substantiated by Emile Gamache of 60 Spring street, Norwich, Felix Gamache, father of the accused, Emile Heon and Napoleon Gamache. With two others the men were passengers in the light delivery truck operated by Gamache which collided with Cyr's roadster while leaving the city for Norwich. Witnesses who testified for Cyr in addition to himself were Philip Chabot, Abraham Robarge and Albert Therous who were riding with him in the roadster. Peter Nesuit acted as interpreter for some of the witnesses and was guardian ad litem for Gamache who is 20 years of age. Both defendants had pleaded not guilty.

Rev. J. W. Platt, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church and his family were enjoyably surprised Wednesday evening at the parsonage, 74 Spring street, when the entire membership of the church made an unexpected call in the nature of a "grocery" shower. Everything had been carefully planned so that each member of the congregation carried an allotted number of pounds of groceries. The party gathered at the home of Mrs. E. J. Bentley and the trip to the parsonage was made in cars driven by Carroll Watson and Jerome Lacey. The procession into the parsonage was to the tune of I'm Coming, the song being kept up in lusty tones as a circle was formed about Rev. and Mrs. Platt and the gifts presented. A response of deepest appreciation was made by the pastor on behalf of himself and his family and he expresses special gratitude to the generous thoughts of Mrs. Bentley, Mrs. Cora Stanley, Mrs. Queenie Watson and Joseph Hatcher, who had always been unfailing in seeking out the needs of the pastor.

The case is returnable in the Tolland county superior court in April.

The quarantine from Willimantic's lone case of smallpox at 69 Mill street has been lifted by City Health Officer Dr. W. P. S. Keating after having been in force since February 7. The patient, Miss Bertha Blanc, a book seller, has returned to her home in Middletown. While every precaution was taken to prevent a spread of the disease, Miss Blanc's illness was mild nature. The strict quarantine maintained by the health authorities was augmented by a police guard with night and day shifts at the house. These precautions and the foresightedness of the school board in urging vaccinations among school children as well as grown-ups kept the city free of an epidemic.

The action of the board of directors of the Goyer Manufacturing company to dissolve the concern has been ratified by the stockholders and the directors have been named as trustees for disposing of the machinery, tools, etc., and other holdings of the company. The Goyer plant, located in the former Turner mill at the corner of Valley and Bank streets will soon be taken over by the town to be used as a state trade school. Part of the building is still occupied as an annex to the Holland Manufacturing company and as some 35 to 40 hands are being employed there the school committee will take no immediate steps to secure control of the entire building. Plans for the remodification of the building for a trade school are virtually complete, however, and action on them will be taken early in the spring.

A family cat prevented what might have proved a sever fire and guarded the safety of the family of Joseph Belemore at 1061 Main street shortly before 11 o'clock last Tuesday night by keeping up a continuous scratching on the door until members of the family were awakened. The blaze had started from a severe chimney fire and had burned through the floor joists to the partition between the first and second floor and beneath the flooring. Engine No. 1 was called and extinguished the fire with chemicals.

Seven of the scarlet fever cases were reported for the week ending February 25. Three similar cases were reported from the town of Windham during the same period.

Donnelly, president of the Connecticut Exchange association and a member of the local club, as well as to the entire community. A report on arrangements for the lecture was given at the weekly dinner-meeting of the club held in the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday evening. President Alfred P. Abbe was in charge. (Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 1—Every once in a few months, the long-suffering residents of Jewett City get an influx of neckties and suspenders through the mail, accompanied by instructions concerning their purchase. No record is known where these articles have been bought, as per directions, by signing on the dotted line and enclosing $1. This week, a little lower level of the human anatomy is being given a try-out, with the arrival of an invoice of elastic web garters "for gents only," with the information that they are cheap at twice the small cost of purchase. Probably most of them will go back home.

The matter which has become urgent, of new and up-to-date fire apparatus, to furnish adequate protection for the borough's property, will be discussed in the March meeting of the board of borough government, Monday evening next. At the freeman's meeting, which will be warned by Warden E. J. Jodoin, it is believed there will be little or no opposition to favorable action on the issue. It is a coincidence that five small towns in this end of the state are purchasing new fire-fighting apparatus. Warden Jodoin has received this week a number of letters, with information touching every phase of the local needs, as concerning Jewett City's probable purchases. It was said that doubtless the borough freemen would not stop at a half-way job.

Andrew Chesbre, of Pachaug, was calling on friends in the borough, Thursday, and he was, as he said, "over afoot." It seemed strange to many not to see him driving a "stepper," as he has most of the time for the last 40 years. The term "stepper" is used in its literal sense, for Andrew has owned not a few that could make an automobile hump some, to get to Slater's bridge ahead of him.

In the north part of the borough, notably on the East Main street highlands, a number of gray squirrels are living in pretty good circumstances, and have become pretty tame. There are also great flocks of English starlings. The latest report from a nearby section is of interest. A pair of squirrels built a nest high in an elm tree in the yard of a friend. Night after night several starlings went to bed in the same nest. Each morning the family watched to see both starlings and squirrels come out of that nest. What the starlings did to the nest is not known, but the squirrels had to repair it every day.

Elphege Chenette has partly filled his ice house on Hawkins' cove, with ice that averages up with any harvested in this section.

While so much is being said about local fire apparatus, the following item in The Bulletin of Dec. 29, 1896, is of interest: "The new A. A. Young, Jr., Hose and Ladder Co., No. 1, coped with its first fire at 8:30 Tuesday morning. The fire was in the new two-story, double tenement on North Main street, which, when completed, is to belong to John Tillinghast. The fire started from a stove used by the workmen, and when the alarm was given through the streets, and by the ringing of St. Mary's bell, the fire had gained considerable headway. Very soon, Foreman John Barnett and First Assistant Foreman F. O. Whiting were at the fire and by the aid of the teams of C. W. Reynolds, Philip Kahn and Finn Bros., the hose pumper, nozzles, etc., were soon on hand. Quickly there arrived 50 of the new firemen, from bench and loom and wheel. The smoke of burning green hemlock lath and studding was blinding. The firemen entered the building, and in 20 minutes Foreman Barnett ordered the water shut off. The damage was over $200." The item says, "At their first fire the men did well, obeying orders and going into the thick of it, like true fire-fighters. Over 1,000 watched from the streets, praised the new men, and blessed the water pressure which registered 120 pounds to the square inch. During the fire, Foreman Barnett was cut about the face by flying glass. Jonathan Niles, an octogenarian, was knocked down and drenched by a stream from one of the pipes."

NOANK

John Bentley and Charles Patterson are rated the two best pinochle players in the Mechanics' lodge and Raymond Sistare and Roy Scaplan asked them to play for the championship of the lodge at 2,000 points. So Sistare and Smiley Scaplan were holding good cards and putting the hooks right into their rivals. But Never-Give-Up Patterson and Hold-Them Bentley were taking it easy and near the end of the card battle Patterson and Bentley showed that left handers know a thing about the game, while Sistare and Scaplan could not get going, making misplays, holding only nine-spots, also jacks, while six aces were the cards the champion pair were shooting to them. So when the smoke cleared, it was found that Patterson and Bentley are the champions of the lodge, beating Sistare and Scaplan by a close margin, 2,000 to 1,990. After the contest, cheese sandwiches and doughnuts with tea were passed around. The next pair to play the champs, next week, are Sam Fish and Keith Ebbetts.

The Aunt Sarah Peabody club, who are no-tobacco users, gave a two-act play at the Tavern hall Wednesday, to help put in a radio and get a new rug for the club. Every seat was taken as Cannerey's Noisy Five orchestra played popular selections before the curtain was raised. The name of the play was "Mike and Ike." Ike Jerome got caught stealing a $100 radio at the 25-cent store on Fifth avenue. Night Cop Sam Crawford (Billie Fitzgerald) was looking over the town of Burrville as the people slept. Harry Law (Stretch Morrison) was coming home early in the morning after calling on his girl, Miss Julia Barr (Miss Mary P. Johnson). The cop fired two shots through his iron hat, known as the derby, but could not stop Harry. The noise woke up Movie Actress Miss Nellie Starr (Miss Elizabeth Johnson). If a pin dropped in the village she would hear it. Mike Jerome was caught by High Sheriff Dave Long (Flash McDonald), taking him for Ike. In the second act the case was being tried in the town hall on Saturday morning, Judge Percy Nick (Bernard Carson) on the table opening the case. The courthouse was packed and among those present were Ike's Uncle Jerry Sterry (Card MacGrath) and aunt, Mrs. Sterry (Miss Mollie Deane). Uncle Sterry had a padlock on each pocket so the afternoon gang at the corner would not pick his pockets. "You cannot tell what the crooks in Burrville will do!" Judge Nick said, "bring in the prisoner." So Cop Crawford brought in Ike instead of Mike. The crowd had a great laugh, as the two men could not be told apart. So Judge Nick threw the case out of court and Mike and Ike were happy again, but where did the radio go? Grandmother, Mrs. Agnes MacCarthy (Miss Marion McDonald) wanted to see Mike Jerome about buying a spinning wheel and then the curtain dropped as the actors and actresses sang "They Called Them Twins from Ledyard." The sum of $50 was cleared for the club's new rug.

Mrs. Ada M. Revell, 58 Baltic St., says:

"I just soak and rinse for a whiter wash

—this easy way saves the clothes, too!"

"RINSO saves so much time and work that I use it for my wash and for my other cleaning, too.

"I soak the clothes overnight in the wonderful Rinso suds and they're so easy to wash that about all I have to do is rinse and hang out. And talk about white clothes! Why, even when I boiled them they never turned out nearly as white and sweet as now!

"And when it comes to dishwashing and making the house bright and spotless, there's nothing like Rinso. I use it for the floors, sinks, tiles, woodwork and everything. You surely get your money's worth in a package of Rinso."

...Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this one, which is from a woman living right around here...

Try these amazing suds next washday!

You never saw such thick, creamy, lasting suds as Rinso gives—in hard water or soft. Dirt and stains float right off, and clothes rinse whiter than ever. Even grimy cuffs and edges become snowy with little or no rubbing.

This way saves the clothes; they aren't scrubbed threadbare. Saves the hands, too—they're not in hot suds so long.

You get your full money's worth when you buy Rinso, the granulated soap—it's so compact. Just feel how weighty the package is. It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders. For economy and best results follow the easy directions on the package.

Marvelous in washers

Try Rinso in your washer! More than 32,000 demonstrators use it to show their machines at their best. And the makers of 32 leading washers say, "Use Rinso for safety and for a whiter wash!"

Sponsored by the makers of VIM. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

DANIELSON

OPEN RESERVOIR GATES TO RELIEVE PRESSURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 1—To relieve the danger of the dam bursting and letting an avalanche of water down upon East Killingly and the territory between that place and Elmville, the gate in the dam at the Eadie Pray reservoir has been opened and the water drawn down materially. Having that reservoir and others in the chain of which it is a part full at this period of the year is regarded as dangerous, with the prospect of heavy spring rains setting in at any time. Sensing this, King George Jacques, who has been in charge of manipulating the gates and control the water flow for the past 23 years has taken the precaution to let some of the surplus water run off at this time.

Old residents of East Killingly recall the havoc that was wrought in that community in May, 1865, when a section of the dam at the Eadie Pray went out without warning. It must have surged forward like a tidal wave when the dam let go, for weeds from the bottom of the pond were thrown 20 feet in the air, there to cling to limbs of trees as the water receded.

In that flood the dam near where the plant now operating on asceptic products burst as did other dams farther down the valley. The repair cost at that time is said to have amounted to about $15,000, but like repairs in this day and time would be nearer the $50,000 mark. However, with the pressure on the Eadie dam already relieved there is little danger now of that incident being duplicated.

The Eadie Pray reservoir is the uppermost in a chain of reservoirs owned by the Chestnut Hill Reservoir company. They have no connection with the reservoir system of the Crystal Water company in the same territory. The Chestnut Hill company chain were developed through the course of years by the building of dams to hold back water flooding what in the long ago were farm or wooded acres. When the waters are low there may be seen ruins of old sawmills and other structures that stood in what is now reservoir territory. Water from these reservoirs supplies some power for the mills still operating and in years gone by helped keep the machinery humming in plants no longer in use or since destroyed by fire or fallen into decay.

Of interest to his many friends here is that William S. Pepler has been named as president of the newly incorporated Pepler Weaving company, capital $25,000. The concern is to manufacture, import and export woolen and worsted goods and other fabrics. The plans also call for carrying on silk-combing and yarn spinning. William R. Pepler is treasurer of the company. President Pepler formerly was with the Paco Manufacturer, a fact that forecasts his capable direction of the new concern. He is at present in Taunton.

Mention that the Rockville Fish and Game club has purchased some pairs of snowshoe rabbits for release in woods where the members hunt recalls that these rabbits have inhabited territory near East Killingly for a great many years, and are regularly hunted there every winter. They are numbered among the speedsters of the wild and rough country where they are to be found and hunting them rates a fine sport by those who like it.

There was no regular checkup of drivers of motor vehicles today to determine whether they had the new operating licenses they are requird to have, but some car owners said they had left the machines in their garages because they were without the new licenses through failure to apply for them in time.

Evening grosbeaks, reported from various sections of eastern Connecticut within the past few days have made their appearance in Danielson, and are reported as feeding at places where food regularly has been put out for other birds throughout the winter season. These birds have quite regularly appeared here for a considerable number of years.

Again there is talk in town about adopting voting machines. Last fall the town twice turned down the proposal that they be brought into use here. The majority against having them was quite impressive, but advocates of their adoption still feel that there is the chance of the town accepting them. Whether the effort to get them this year will be made prior to the town and state elections next fall has not been determined as yet.

Local shareholders and officials of the United L. A. W. corporation, with headquarters in Worcester, were interested today in an announcement from Newark, N. J., of the arrest of Washington E. Carton, an automobile dealer of that city and the holding of him under bonds of $45,000 to answer to charges of embezzlement, forgery and conspiracy. It is alleged that by forging invoices, purporting to show the arrival of cars in Newark and with forging notes signed fictitiously, Carton was able to borrow large sums from finance corporations, one of these being the Newark branch of the United L. A. W., from which, it is claimed, he obtained $60,000. It is charged that he also swindled New York finance companies and that he managed through his operations to obtain $350,000. In default of his heavy bail Carton was locked up.

P. L. Cerety of the New England council is to give the address at the March meeting of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday evening. His subject is of such vital interest to everyone who lives in and makes a livelihood in New England that an unusually large attendance is anticipated. The matter of improved street lighting for the business section also will get attention, as well as a number of minor matters.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM GRAND LIST IS REDUCED $26,724; NOW $11,309,963

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 1—The board of relief for the town of Putnam has finished its duties and has turned in its report. Putnam's net grand list is now $11,309,963. The net reduction from the list submitted by the board of assessors is but $26,724. The board added $30,054 to the list and allowed $56,780 in reductions. The increase was divided between three property owners. An addition of $34,000 to a manufacturing plant made up the greater part of this increase. The reductions were made between twenty-four property owners, the largest being $7,000 and the smallest being $30.

The board of relief met and organized on the 1st day of February 1928 and kept adjourning from day to day until the 21st day of February. During that time they received 157 appeals from taxpayers for relief and many more oral appeals. The appeals totaled more than a half million dollars. The members of the board stated that this session was the most strenuous that they had ever witnessed during their terms of office. Arthur Lamb of the Interstate Appraisal company, who is head of the concern that revalued the city property a short time ago was present at many of the sessions of the board.

Although there were many appeals, the board found that the property owner did not realize that the greatly increased amount of the grand list meant a great reduction in the tax rate. An explanation of this sent many away satisfied.

It is almost assured that a tax rate of about half of what it was last year will be in effect this year. The common council has recommended that a tax rate of 5 1-2 mills be levied on the grand list. This is fifty per cent reduction of last year's tax rate. Since the small amount of reduction has become known it is probable that the city council's recommendation will be carried out.

During the last session the members of the board of relief feel that they have accomplished much and they are to be commended for their work. The board consists of Frederick W. Seward, Oscar Dugas and Frank H. Smith.

The outstanding feature of Leap year ended with the 29th day of February and March entered like a "lamb" as the folks say. The first day of March was a typical spring day and the appearances now seem to be that winter has gone for another year, but the oldest folks recalling the March of 1888 when the whole of New England was buried beneath a snow storm known as the "blizzard of '88." The older natives of Putnam say that the March of that year entered in jest the same form as the first day of March did today, but before it ended Putnam had snow until late in April.

It is hoped by many, that the snowman has bowed to Lady Spring, but one can never tell just what the weather man has in store, in the line of weather, until it actually happens.

Many Putnam theatre fans witnessed the showing of the "Lamb and the Brute" at the Bradley theatre, Wednesday evening and were well pleased with the mystery show. The play was presented by the Chas. K. Champlin Stock company. The creepy scenes caused two women at the theater to faint away. They were carried out. In other gripping scenes many of the local fans clung closely to each other. The production was probably one of the best enjoyed mystery dramas that has been presented to the public.

The classes of the leadership training courses were held in the Congregational church last evening. This week they were in charge of Superintendent Ralph C. Jenkins and Rev. J. C. Lanphier of Eastford. The classes are doing much work in the line of leadership work, and more than fifty pupils are enrolled in the courses.

The continuation of the civil session of the Windham county superior court will open this (Friday) March 2, with the short calendar and assignment of cases. Judge Edward O. Yeoman's will occupy the bench. On this list are a few divorces that are uncontested. There are also many civil cases listed.

The waterworks issue, has slowly faded into the background, since the voters favored the cement reservoir for a storage capacity for the city water. At the special city meeting held Monday a large majority voted for the water commissioners plan which was the cement reservoir. The question is little discussed about the city now. The issue will probably be brought to the fore again at the next regular meeting of the common council which will be held on next Tuesday evening. What action will be taken is not known.

Mrs. Frank Lucier who has been a patient at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester for the past number of weeks, has returned to her home on Chapel street. Mrs. Lucier underwent two successful operations for major causes and has returned to her home in a much improved condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Russell of Grove street who have been in Florida the greater part of the winter have left Daytona Beach, where they were staying, for Putnam on Wednesday.

The work of painting and repairing the furniture in the city council chamber has been completed and now every ing room of the governing body of the city has a neat and new appearance. The whole room has been painted and varnished and the chairs and desks of the aldermen have been varnished and repaired. The council has also installed new electric lighting fixtures in the meeting place. These lights were much needed necessities, as the old lights were the old style fixtures that were in the building when it was taken over by the city as a municipal building.

Many federal taxpayers were on hand Thursday to make their income tax returns to the government. United States Deputy Collector Leon T. Wilson was at the council chamber Thursday assisting the taxpayers to make their returns. Collector Wilson will be at the city clerk's office today (Friday) and Saturday, assisting with the taxes.

State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald addressed a group of highway engineers at the Engineer's club of Philadelphia Thursday evening, March 1st. The meeting was called to discuss "The Coordination of Construction and Maintenance of Roads and Streets." Other chief highway engineers from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois and Virginia also spoke at the meeting.

Commissioner Macdonald discussed the subject of "Recent Developments in Construction of Streets and Roads for Heavy Traffic." All the addresses at the club meeting were confined to engineering technicalities.

State Highway Commissioner Macdonald of Connecticut is a Putnam man and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, Sr., of George street.

Many of the Boston daily papers carried pictures and stories of the big coast artillery gun that was manufactured in the United States arsenal at Watertown, Mass. The gun was made to protect the Pacific side of the Panama canal and was being shipped to the Canal one to be erected. On its way to its destination the gun passed through Putnam on a flat car of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company. Many spectators watched Uncle Sam's new barking dog as it passed through on its way to the Brooklyn navy yard where it will be shipped aboard a steamer to the Panama canal.

The gun was of the 14 inch size and was conveyed on three cars. With its carriage and fittings it weighs over 135,000 pounds. The barrel of the "Death Dger" was 75 feet long. It was carried on a special car belonging to the government. The new coast artillery gun is of the second largest calibre in use for coast defense in the United States.

A union meeting of the ministers of Windham Congregational churches will be held at the Congregational church in Putnam on Tuesday March 6. The leader at the meeting this year will be Rev. Rockwell H. Pottes, D. D. of Hartford. His theme will be "A Gospel That We Can Preach." The Fellowship clubs of Willimantic and Putnam will also be represented at the conference of the ministers. This is the third Lenten conference of its kind to be held.

Captain John J. McGarry of the local military company is busy considering applications for the rental of the new armory on Harris street, that is now nearly completed. During the past months there has not been a public hall suitable for gatherings and now that the new armory is nearly completed many organizations are seeking to rent the hall for parties and dances. The Catholic Boy Scouts have a social and whist scheduled to be held soon, and the Putnam fire department are to hold their ball in the new one, all shortly after the Lenten season closes.

The Junior class of Putnam high school has engaged the hall to hold their annual prom on the 13th of April.

Only one birthday on the 29th day of February was reported and that was Miss Noyes Bosworth of Eastford, who had her first birthday in four years. Miss Bosworth passed her fourth birthday Wednesday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bosworth of Eastford.

The regular weekly card tournament of the Odd Fellows and the Kaceys will not be played in the K. of C. rooms this week owing to the repairs that are being made there. They will be played in the Odd Fellows hall this evening.

An adjourned meeting of the voters of the town of Thompson was held Wednesday afternoon to fix the tax rate for the town for the year.

The final tax rate laid on the assessment by the board of assessors and corrected by the board of relief was 26 mills. This is a large increase over last year's rate. The voters at this special town meeting also voted to close the accounts of the town on the second Saturday of August instead of the 31st of August.

Mrs. Clarence Webster of Willimantic is visiting with Mrs. George Gifford of Center street.

Dr. and Mrs. Leo F. McKenna have returned from a four weeks wedding trip to the Bermuda Islands. They will reside on Sunnyside avenue.

James Mahoney of Putnam was in Rockville on business Wednesday.

Herbert A. Miles of Park street who for a number of years has been in the employ of the state forestry service is to resign his position to enter the employ of the Interstate Appraisal company. The company is engaged in the revaluation of property and are the ones that did the recent work in the revalueing of property in Putnam. Mr. Miles will continue his residence in Putnam.

MAKING A CITY ATTRACTIVE

According to the Kansas City Star that city is to present a spick and span down-town district, for the republican national convention in June. That shows the right disposition, the idea being to give the large number of visitors the best kind of an impression. It is a chance for the city to do some advertising and it is already being recognized that it should be good and not bad advertising.

In Kansas City those located on or interested in certain streets form an association for improvement purposes and it is through these organizations that seven major improvements have been agreed upon. They have set out to Get utilities companies and cities to repaint all trolley and light poles, street signs and fire plugs.

Fill all vacant storerooms and windows with industrial exhibits to serve a dual purpose of city advertising and obviating ragged and run down appearances.

Removal of all overhead signs possible.

Removal of sidewalk obstructions.

Removal of merchandise displays in front of stores and shops.

Clean up and beautify vacant lots.

Repainting and improving building fronts.

There is much to be said in favor of this interest which is being displayed by improvement organizations in Kansas City. It is a manifestation of the right kind of spirit and a display of pride such as ought to be expected in any progressive city.

But while Kansas City is making preparations for a big convention, and is therefore responding to an unusual urge, why wouldn't it be a good idea to see that these things are done at all times? Or why wouldn't it be an excellent thing if every city underwrote such a policy, convention or no convention?

There are always visitors in a city. There are always those who are passing through and possibly looking for a place to locate. The desirability of making a good impression upon all visitors and not solely those during a particular gathering should be borne in mind. There is much that every city can do in this direction as a fixed policy.

LIGHTHOUSES ON LAND

Along our coasts there is maintained a system of lights for the purpose of guiding the ships that sail during the night. Getting their bearings from these lights navigators are able to tell just where they are, how to head their ships and what to avoid. It is a protection that has cost much money but it is of inestimable value to mariners and those who travel by ship.

We are fast getting to the time when similar systems on land are being made necessary for the guidance of those who fly by night. Landing fields are equipped with powerful lights for this purpose and beacons have been established along routes used by aviators who are thus able to definitely seek out their courses after darkness falls.

How much more elaborate this may become is indicated by the gift which has recently been made by E. G. Sperry of a revolving searchlight which will be placed on the top of a skyscraper in Chicago and is expected to throw its light for a distance of 200 miles so that within that radius of the windy city it will be possible for the flier to make a bee line for the metropolis of the midwest under favorable weather conditions. This will of course outshine anything in the way of the standard air mail beacons. Its chief value will be for those who are bound for Chicago, but like lighthouses it will also serve as a guide for those who are heading for other cities inasmuch as it will furnish a bearing for other points. Inasmuch as the cost of the light is placed at $2,000,000 it is a gift of no small value.

The good results of this light after it is put into operation should encourage other gifts or action establishing similar lights by other cities. And with such a system of signals being made necessary it becomes evident that these various beacons will have to display different lights, or flashing signals, in other that there may be no confusion in reading them. In time it can be expected that the country as well as the coastline will be dotted with numerous lights shedding their rays over short and long distances.

CONSOLIDATING COAL MINES

Within the industry there are occasional evidences that methods are occasional evidences that methods are being considered for overcoming existing conditions in the bithminous coal fields. From time to time it has been demonstrated that there are more mines than can be successfully operated. There are mines where the cost of production is high and others where it is low. Naturally it is difficult for the former to meet the competition offered by the latter and attention has been directed toward an improvement of this situation by bringing about a consolidation of the many times in certain districts.

Combinations are under consideration in three sections of the bituminous field. In Virginia and West Virginia there is a group of 59 coal companies with an annual production of 33,000,000 tons which are considering merging. They place a valuation of $150,000,000 on their property and the efforts have gotten to the point where the plan will probably go through if an agreement can be reached concerning the various appraisals of mine property.

There is another group of 75 companies in northern West Virginia claiming property valuation of $125,000,000 and having an annual output of 38,000,000 tons which is contemplating similar action and besides these there is the possibility that three other mergers, involving smaller properties and production, that may go through.

The aim appears to be to bring about a cut in the overhead and to put an end to the disorganized condition among the coal companies. It is not understood that all the mines involved in such mergers would be operated. Production would probably be concentrated at those where the most favorable conditions prevailed, but even if these combinations should be carried out they would not approach a control of the nation's output for where they would approximate 70,000,000 tons annually the total bituminous production for last year was practically 520,000,000 tons.

With the closing of many of the mines there would probably be greater stress placed upon the claim that there are too many miners and not a few would be obliged to seek new employment. The effect should be to keep away from high cost production with a consequent effect upon the selling price.

AS IT SHOULD BE

In beginning his administration as governor general of the Philippines, Henry L. Stimson urged upon the Filipinos the importance of cooperation and the need of concentrating their efforts upon economic developments rather than political strife and endeavored to convince them that it was through such a course that they would be more likely to the quicker accomplish their greatest benefits.

It was a time for minimizing controversial matters and Governor Stimson did this in pointing out the desirability of a successful administration and the part which cooperation can place in accomplishing it.

When he declared, "For my part I shall use my utmost endeavor to establish such harmonious cooperation under the organic law under which it is our joint duty to labor," he indicated his attitude. When he said "It is not within the province of the governor general to determine the future relations of the inhabitants of these islands to the United States—that rests with the government of the United States—but it is his duty, so long as the present connection remains, to endeavor to make that union a happy and fruitful one and to carry on the government of these islands as far as it rests in his hands in full conformity with the noble, unselfish purpose of the American leaders who in past years have devised, created and administered it," he set forth the situation as it is and it should be apparent to the Filipinos that the sooner there is recognition given to the governor's appeal the easier will be the administering of the islands and the more satisfactory the results for the islanders. That is as it should be.

BELATED, BUT NEEDED

In the fighting of crime New York put into operation the Baumes law as an experiment. Thus far the test has been so gratifying that more of such laws are regarded as desirable.

Furthermore New York has been urged to close up other holes through which criminals have been escaping in the past and it is significant that the legislature of that state should adopt this week a law which makes it possible for the evidence of a thief to be heard in the prosecution of those who are engaged in the buying of stolen goods.

Hitherto New York law has prohibited the acceptance of such testimony. The thief was looked upon as an accomplice and therefore his word could not be accepted. This was a highly valuable protection to the person making a business of purchasing stolen goods, and a desided handicap for the authorities. It was playing into the hands of the criminal bands and operating to the disadvantage of the public. It took some time to convince the legislators of the need of this change but it has finally been accomplished.

When the new law goes into effect New York will be launching out on another experiment in the curbing of crime. Of its success there ought to be little doubt. The surprising thing is that there should be such a willingness to give protection of that character to the underworld for so long a period of time, or in view of the many cases concerned that there should be such a reluctance to give better protection to the public.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Even though February is drawing to a close we must beware the ides of March.

The man on the corner says: From first appearances March must be looked upon with approval.

It was a good resolution that promised an early income tax return, but have you started it yet?

With Russia wanting complete disarmament in five years, what will the Balkan states say to that!

LIFE'S LITTLE DIFFICULTIES.

"It would be different," insisted the stringbean girl in the wisp of a sports suit, "if I actually were snippy and snobbish, because then I'd take my medicine and say nothing but, you know, Verbena, how —"

"Yes, yes, I know, Daisy," soothed the young person in the advance fall satin, eying her glass of orange juice with dislike. "It's just killing me getting off the five pounds I gained up at the lake! Why, I know you never—"

"Of course, I never should think of being upstage, naturally," proceeded the girl in the sports suit. "It was just the principle of the thing, and while I believe in the equality of the human race, why, of course, there are some people that you're just crazy to meet and others that you'd never really see of your own free will.

"The very first day on the boat trip around the lakes we went on a tour of the ship, and I noticed this young man right away down among the strokers! Not that you especially notice stokers, you know, but he was quite near me, and I give you my word I was just shocked to see him there shoveling coal, and all grimy and hot! It certainly seemed terrible that a person who would have looked all right on the Lake Shore drive or posing for a collar ad should be reduced to such awful labor!

"I am terribly sensitive and sympathetic and I stayed right there observing him while the others went on and, my dear, I thought he must be sort of deaf and blind because he never batted an eyelash in my direction.

"Probably he didn't like his job at all and was supporting an invalid mother or something. It seemed very sad and the incident kept coming to my mind a lot, so probably that was why I knew him instantly the next day when I came on him sitting reading on the first cabin deck as calm as you please, all dressed in quite good clothes although he couldn't get his hands scrubbed real clean. Of course I knew stokers weren't allowed there and I couldn't help staring—but when he looked up I smiled and spoke resolved to be democratic and everything, but my dear, the horrid creature just seemed puzzled and went back to his book as though I were a fly or mosquito or something!

"It made me utterly furious to have an engine-room employe be so rude and lofty and the more I thought of it the plainer it was that I had a duty before me! There weren't such a lot of attractive young men on board and no doubt some unsuspecting girl who hadn't seen him down below would come along and he'd strike up an acquaintance with her and think how embarrassed she'd be on finding out what he really was! Why, she might get really interested in him!

"And, too, why pay a large fare on a boat for exclusiveness and then have the workmen strolling all over the place?

"So the next time I saw the captain I explained the situation to him. 'Right here on the best deck!' I said to him. 'And not only that, but acting just as though he had a right to be there among us! I thought you'd like to know about it!'

"I never met a man who talked less than that captain. He stood there a minute and then gave a sort of grunt and walked away, but I could see purpose in his eyes and knew he'd make short work of the fellow. But the very next day right in the same place sat the young man as though nothing had been said to him. I decided he wasn't merely ignorant, but pushing and impertinent and before I knew it I had stopped in front of his chair.

"'Don't you know you don't belong here?' I demanded calmly and coldly. If nobody else would do it I could! My dear, he got right to his feet and stood there looking sort of surprised and foolish. 'Why—why,' he stammered, 'is this your deck chair? I thought——'

"'No,' I informed him, 'but it isn't your deck! What do you think you are doing here?'

"He seemed quite dazed and dumb. 'Didn't realize I was taking up space,' he said at last, shutting up his book. 'Guess I'll be on my way!' 'That would be best, I think!' I said in a very dignified manner, glad that I had settled the matter so efficiently.

"My dear, that very night he was dancing like a dream with some girl making a dead set at him and when the first mate came in believe me I told him right away about the stoker on the floor. He looked and just grinned.

"'Him?' he said. 'Why, he's the nephew of the owner of the entire boat line and he had to knock off fifteen pounds quickly to make his college team this fall, so he decided shoveling coal would do the trick faster than anything else! Why, that lad has $2,000,000 in his own name, if you're asking me!'

"Well, I believe in letting the dead past bury its dead, but the rest of the trip was practically spoiled for me, dear, if you understand what I mean!"

"Of course it was!" agreed the girl in the satin frock abstractedly. "Oh, I'd give my hat to know if the coal shoveling actually did take off the fifteen pounds."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An Ex-Councilman Explains

Mr. Editor: Since reading Mr. Pitcher's letters I have been making inquiries, and find that the reason he is so worked up over the expenditures of the public works department is because he, or his son, had not been employed by this department as civil engineer.

Mr. Pitcher had been employed by the city a number of years as civil engineer, and his work then, in a number of instances, was not satisfactory.

For example, the Smith avenue sewer was supposed to drain a brook, at the end of the sewer. While under construction, when within a few hundred feet of the brook, it was discovered that it was developing into an aerial sewer. That is it was coming out of the ground, and going into the air and if continued it would have required a pumping station to drain the brook. The brook is not drained to this day and causes complaints when we have heavy rains.

Then again an estimate was made by Mr. Pitcher on changing the course of the Franklin street brook in Chestnut street, upon request of the gun shop, then making the Belgian rifle. When this was completed the cost was double the estimate.

Mr. Pitcher quotes figures of money received from the city for labor and material, by P. F. Sweeney and Thos. Donovan. A large amount of this labor and material was for fences. I am informed, and that there are miles of city fences that ought to receive attention now, if the department of public works had the money.

There are contractors doing work for the city that have received a great deal more money from the city than the ones mentioned, one at least who received about $40,000 in one year.

Of course Mr. Pitcher is not interested in them. Mention has been made of the building of a new house by the street commissioner. Why, the commissioner has two other houses and has had them for a number of years.

A former street commissioner built three houses while in office. There was no comment made at that time.

If Mr. Pitcher wished to see what work was done for the city, the bills, itemized, are all on file in the treasurer's office.

In closing I would like to ask Mr. Pitcher since when is an asphalt road called a tarvia road?

AN EX-COUNCILMAN.

"The Outward Look"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Stretching forward to the things which are before" (Philippians 3.13).

Read: Philippians 3.12-16.

MEDITATION: Dr. Alexander Whyte of Edinburgh used to give this advice to his assistants and other young ministers: "Be careful of your health, but be careless of your life." These two bits of advice are closely related. One of the greatest enemies of health is too much self-concern which easily runs into introspection. The cure for this is to give oneself to abandon to people and causes. A person who is gloriously careless of his life will not dwell questioningly and calculatingly on consequences. He will have the spirit that is conducive to every form of health. There will be no place for self-pity or solicitous self-concern.

"Look up, not down,
"Look out, not in,
"Look forward, not back,
"And lend a hand."

PRAYER: O Lord of life, who hast ordained that no man should be idle, give us grace to employ all our faculties and talents in the service appointed for us, that whatsoever our hand findeth to do, we may do it with our might and find the joy and peace that lie in faithful service. Amen.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Bad debts constitute a considerable item in the returns of many taxpayers and may be treated in one of two ways, either by deduction from gross income in respect to debts ascertained to be worthless in whole or in part, or by deduction from a reasonable reserve method is limited to taxpayers having a large number of accounts where credit has been extended to cover a considerable portion of time. It is not granted for the purpose of handling one specific debt.

Bad debts may be deducted from gross income only for the year in which they are ascertained to be worthless and charged off the books of the taxpayer. The taxpayer should attach to his return a statement showing the propriety of any deduction claimed for bad debts. Where the surrounding circumstances show that a debt is worthless and uncollectible, and that legal action, in all probability, would not avail, proof of these facts is sufficient of their worthlessness.

Unpaid loans made to relatives or friends with little or no expectation of their return are not deductible but are regarded as gifts. If a debt is forgiven, it can not be claimed.

YOUR HEALTH

CATARRH

By L. W. Oaks, M. D., Provo, Utah
Member Gorgas Memorial.

In former days, when dawn of medical knowledge had merely announced its approach, the name catarrh had a wide use by members of the medical profession. Today the word is rarely employed by physicians trained in disease of the nose, throat, and ears; because they have learned it is only a term used to cover lack of exact knowledge.

People in general have come to regard catarrh as meaning some stubborn disease of the nose or its associated structures, which is attended by more or less discomfort, and some dropping of secretion from behind the palate into the throat. They also frequently consider interference with proper breathing trough the nose as being due to this condition.

As a matter of fact, these symptoms may come from any one or more of nearly a dozen different diseases in the nose and throat. This list includes widely varying troubles, from stopping up of the nose by new growths to shrinking away of soft tissues there, which leaves abnormally great space with marked crusting and very foul breath. Deformities within the nose are usually responsible; and they, in combination with infection, account for nearly all troubles inside the nose.

Many charlatans are daily extracting money from innocent victims for the treatment of "catarrh," without any more knowledge of what they are trying to treat than their patrons themselves have. In most instances, the proper treatments for these various diseases are as different from each other as are the correct measures for appendicitis and a broken leg. It is obvious, then, that no one who really desires to be of service to his patient will even prescribe for such trouble, without first making a proper examination of the sufferer's nose, sinus cavities, and throat, at least. Guessing is not a scientific means of investigation; and he who accepts anyone's guess in matters pertaining to that most precious of possession—his health—is certain to suffer in consequence.

Consult your physician and give him a chance to see what is wrong, so he may help you to right it.

Chest Colds Need Direct Treatment

(1) Direct to air passages with its healing vapors released by body heat;

(2) Direct, like a poultice, it "draws out" the soreness.

Stories That Recall Others

Soldier's Sweetheart

In an English literature class the teacher was describing a character in a book, who was a general in the army. In the course of the talk she said: "This general was a fine, big, handsome man of the army. You have all known men of his type I dare say."

One pretty girl raised a timid hand and in a sweet voice said: "Oh, teacher, I know one."

Couldn't Go Home

An energetic young mother enjoys broadcasting her cleanliness. She is always late at her bridge club because she had cledenaheu ehrso ..-fro cause she had cleaned her house from top to bottom, mopped the kitchen and bathed the children. The club was meeting around the corner from her home. After all was said and the game was on, a gentle rap was heard at the door. The hostess ushered in a bedraggled, dirty boy, who came up to his immaculate mother.

"Where I go, mother? I fell in mud and can't go home and get your house all mussed."

Last November the entire force of the Reid & Hughes company store, divided into two teams, the Reds and the Blues, engaged in a sales contest in which the competition was keen, but the Reds won after a hard struggle. Thursday night the winning team enjoyed the fruits of their victory when the store gave a banquet at Odd Fellows hall to the two teams and the Blues provided the entertainment that made the evening a red-letter event for the 100 present.

Special guests for the evening included two officials from Waterbury, John R. Hughes, president of the company and R. G. Peters, office manager there, besides Manager William H Cruickshank, Treasurer Charles I Smith, Secretary Alex Sharp and Accountant C. E. Fitch of the local store.

After the banquet had been served Miss Sarah Blum gracefully officiated as toastmistress, calling upon the different officers for remarks which were given in a way to emphasize the fine fraternal spirit existing in the Reid & Hughes organization and the results that are achieved by cooperation. Following this enjoyable part of the evening, the Blues put on their entertainment which was a minstrel show that was full of melody and mirth under the guiding genius of Miss Mae Welsh as interlocutor, Miss Nonie Nagle, Miss Florence Parkhurst, Miss Mary Delaney and Miss Leah Addelstone as ends. In the chorus were the Misses Viola Cousins, Alice Gallup, Lillia Molleur, Helen Barry, Mary Shelley, Sarah Blum, Anna Simoneau, Florence Shaefer, Evelyn Eccleston and Betty Pike.

While the minstrel troupe was preparing to appear for its programme, Treasurer Charles I. Smith, with Mr. Fitch at the piano, entertained the company with songs and musical monologues.

After the opening chorus by the entire company, the musical numbers of the minstrel programme were given as follows: My Blue Heaven, Miss Inez Carter and Miss Irene Bentley; Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses, Miss Shelley; She Don't Wanna, Miss Delaney; Among My Souvenirs, Miss Pike; Broken Hearted, Miss Parkhurst; Cherie, Miss Addelstone; When You and I Were Young Maggie, Roger Tighe, the only surviving male member of the Blue team; Side by Side, entire company; Yesterday, Miss Girard; I Don't Care, Miss Nagle; closing chorus, entire company.

Among the features of the evening were the solo work of Miss Shelley, an exhibition of the Charleston by Miss Delaney and the headline part taken by Miss Nagle to whom a beautiful basket of flowers was presented by the Blue team.

Dancing closed the programme of the evening.

More than ordinary interest attaches to a book just procured by the Otis library, the latest volume by Sigmund Spaeth, with the suggestive title, "Weep Some More, My Lady." The author explains that the book is the result of so many persons asking for old favorites, following the appearance of his other book, "Read 'em and Weep—the Songs you Forget to Remember." The old songs collected in the gay volume are typical examples of the sentiment of a past generation.

Buy My Roses, The Merry Swiss Girl, are among the first of the old ballads printed; and then appears a picture of the famous Continental Singers, four dignified gentlemen heavily bearded giving local interest to the book. Their picture, the author explains, appeared on the cover-page of the "Continental Vocalists' Glee Book," published in Philadelphia in 1855. The band consisted of four singers all natives of Connecticut: Charles W. Huntington, of New London, first tenor and pianist; William D. Franklin, Norwich, second tenor and violinist; J. Wesley Smith, South Glastonbury, counter tenor and flutist and William R. Frisbie, of Branford, basso and violoncellist. (William R. Frisbie was father of Calvin L. Frisbie, of Norwich.) A biographical sketch of each singer is written by John A. Sterry.

Their wide repertory included such quaint compositions as Lulu is Our Darling, Railroad Chorus, War Song of the Texan Rangers, Come Let Us Ramble and the like.

The over 360 pages of "Weep Some More, My Lady" are filled with songs of the past, reproductions of title pages of sheet music, cuts of singers and concert stars. Most interesting bits of biography relating to old-time composers and singers accompany the variety selections of these forgotten ballads of America in a past generation.

WILL CALL CONFERENCE OF COLLECTORS OF TAXES

Due to numerous inquiries concerning the tax lien law passed by the 1927 session of the general assembly, the increased interest rates now to be required on delinquent property taxes, and other features of the law, State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett proposes to call a statewide conference of tax collectors during March. This law, chapter 300 of the public acts of 1927, made several important changes in the administrative duties of local tax collectors. There are certain essentials with which collectors and taxpayers alike must be made familiar in order that the intent of the law may be fully understood. That is the purpose of the conference, a statement issued by the tax commissioner says.

For Prompt Tax Payment

The most important change in the law, from the viewpoint of the taxpayer, concerns the increased interest rate on delinquent taxes, and the tax commissioner is frank to admit that it was designed for the very distinct purpose of requiring citizens owning property to pay their share of the local tax burden when due in order that municipal budgets might be met and annual deficits forestalled.

The rate of interest charged under the new law is 9 per cent for the first six months following the due date of the tax, 10 per cent for the next six months or until the lien certificate is recorded, and 12 per cent from that date until the tax is paid, whereas the former interest rate was 9 per cent, during the first year of delinquency and 7 per cent each year thereafter, upon the filing of the lien certificate.

Liens for Five Years

Such liens can no longer be continued for fifteen year periods, as was the case under the old law, but cannot hereafter exceed five years. Foreclosure or payment of the tax must be had within five years. Otherwise the lien shall be invalid. It is important, the tax commissioner points out, that people should realize that the tax collector has no discretion under the law, as to the revised rates of interest or lien periods. If the collector fails to satisfy the tax he can be held personally liable to his town for the amount of tax so lost to the town, under the provisions of chapter 289 of the public acts of 1927, governing uniform bonds for local officials. Municipalities may proceed against such negligent collectors for failure to give "faithful performance" as required by such bonds.

Misuse of the old act is responsible for the present lien law, according to the commissioner. He advises those collectors who may find this law troublesome and difficult of administration that all, including the taxpayer, will actually be better served by requiring prompt payment of the tax.

Applies on 1927 Lists

The new law applies to taxes laid on lists of 1927 and thereafter. Liens now in force on taxes previously due will continue in effect under the former interest and limitation provisions. No interest is charged against the taxpayer who shall pay his tax within thirty days from the date when due, but interest shall run from the due date of the tax in every case of delinquency. This is similar to the old law.

The unfortunate practice of a number of municipalities in being compelled to borrow money to meet current governmental costs due to failure to collect the amount of revenue called for in the town's budget is responsible for constantly increasing debt conditions and resultant gross unfairness to taxpayers, Commissioner Blodgett emphasizes. Abnormal tax rates, fixed to meet current expenses plus unnecessary indebtedness and interest charges, are to be discouraged, and indifferent tax collections will not be tolerated, Mr. Blodgett says, once public opinion is brought to bear on the subject.

In Special Cases

In order to meet cases where the financial circumstances of poor and needy persons justify deferring collection of taxes assessed thereon, the new law contains a provision whereby such special consideration may be given. However, an affidavit must be filed with the collector by such poor persons within ninety days of the due date of the tax showing the detail of such financial circumstances. In such cases the lien is continued for fifteen years, but the tax collector must refer requests for deferred collection to the selectmen, board of aldermen or similar body for approval before a certificate of such lien may be filed. This provision, it is pointed out, is intended to be granted only to the needy, and every affidavit filed as required should be scrutinized with planstaking care and the affairs of the taxpayer closely examined before the privilege is granted. Commissioner Blodgett suggests that collectors and other officials, in administering this provision of the law, must resist the claims of those not entitled to the favor intended only for the poor. No interest is charged in such cases.

As a result of this new act, it appears that there will be little or no reason for abatement of taxes of the poor under the provisions of section 1289 o fthe statutes. If no interest is to be charged upon a tax assessed against a needy taxpayer, selectmen and other officials now authorized to so abate taxes would do well to require claimants previously treated under section 1289 to be classified under the new lien law, the commissioner says, as the abatement usually operates to favor the one or two mortgage holders quite as much as, or actually more than, the owner of the equity in redemption.

It is felt that the conference of collectors will do much to clarify conditions facing tax officials when the provisions of the new law become operative.

MADE THREE ARRESTS ON LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGES

State and local police made three arrests on liquor law violation charges Thursday night and all of the accused will be presented in the city court this (Friday) morning. John Coraka, 40, of No. 19 South street, was the first to land in the police net. A police aide secured evidence of an actual sale at the man's house and he was arrested by State Police Officers Smith and Whitmarsh and Sergt Matthew Delaney and Officer Patrick Shahan of the local police department. He secured a bond of $1,000 and was liberated for the night.

About 9:30 o'clock evidence of an actual sale was secured at the home of Mrs. Helen Lienkowski 35, on Aqueduct street and she was arrested by the same officers. At this place the police took possession of a drink alleged to have been purchased by a police aide and also took possession of a quart bottle containing a quantity of alleged liquor. The woman was locked up in default of bonds.

Later on in the evening the police secured evidence of an actual sale at the place on North Main street, near Scott and Clark's garage, conducted by Stanley Walenda. He was arrested and held in bonds of $1,000 for his appearance in the city court this (Friday) morning.

DESCRIBED BIRD BANDING TO THE COLLEGE CLUB

The Norwich College club and the Norwich branch of A. A. U. W., met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, Rockwell terrace. Dr. Edward G. Rowland, of the local state hospital, entertained the club members and the guests with a talk on Bird Banding. Dr. Rowland described in a graphic way the equipment needed to carry on this form of scientific research, which is being carried on by bird lovers all over the country, under the auspices of the United States biological survey. He showed models of the different kinds of wire meshed traps used in trapping the birds. Trapping, he said, does not harm the birds. After a bird is captured it is very carefully observed, after which a small aluminum band bearing a serial number is passed around one of its legs and then it is set free. The bird bander then sends the data about each individual bird to the United States biological survey in Washington, where an index card file is kept. When an American banded bird is trapped, its band number, date and the place where it is found, are sent to Washington, while the bureau sends back to the finder the recording data on the origin of the bird. For instance, a bird banded near the Canadian border might be discovered several weeks later in Louisiana and from this data the distance covered and its speed in flying can be determined.

Through bird banding, the habits of birds are being very carefully studied and much valuable information is being collected about the length of life and migratory habits of the birds that come and go with the change of season.

At the close of his talk, Dr. Rowland answered many questions asked by interested listeners. Following this, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

MAJOR LEAGUERS NEARLY READY FOR FIRST GAMES

ATLANTA, March 1—(AP)—Major league baseball's training machine was given added steam in southern camps today as virtually completed squads were put through accelerated paces in preparation for exhibition games just a week away.

March 1, the deadline date for players to report, found a number of players listed as holdouts, including Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn, Carl Mays, and Pete Donohue of Cincinnati, Tony Lazzeri and Waite Hoyt of the New York Yankees and Flint Rhem of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Late arrivals, however, continued to report and some managers announced their rosters "all present".

Longer and harder practice programs were the order on all fronts, with the presence of Bucky Harris, Washington Senator manager-second baseman, and Tris Speaker of the Philadelphia Athletics, spurring their teammates to brisk action at Tampa and Fort Myers, respectively.

The day's drill took in virtually everything from batting and fielding practice and battery warmups to actual innings frays between divided teams.

Harry Heilmann, American League champion hitter, with Bob Fothergill, Jack Tavener and other veterans got into action with the Detroit Tigers at San Antonio, Tex., for their first light workout.

At New Orleans, Cleveland's Indians showed so much life under a hot sun that they drew expressions of delight from Manager Roger Peckinpaugh.

Manager Ray Schalk told his Chicago White Sox at Shreveport today that they would have only one practice session daily instead of two. They got in a brisk workout despite the absence of about eight regulars who are expected soon.

The Phillies, at Winter Haven, the St. Louis Cardinals, at Avon Park, and the Athletics all were put through double practice sessions.

The Phillies meet their townsmen in their first exhibition game at Fort Myers next Wednesday and the Cardinals play the Boston Red Sox at Bradenton. Haines and Alexander were allowed to bear down a bit in their workouts today and were pronounced almost in prime pitching condition.

Ganzel, Goslin, Simons, Barnes, Judge, Bluege, Cooper, Hayes and Gillis followed Manager Harris into the Senator camp today, leaving "Muddy" Ruel as the chief absentee. He is expected during the week.

Word came from the Reds' stronghold at Orlando that Sukeforth still is indisposed and was not in uniform today.

John J. McGraw and his New York Giants pitched camp at Augusta, Ga., during the day and continued their training begun a fortnight ago at Hot Springs. He has refused to discuss reports that he is dickering for the services of Ty Cobb.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 1—(AP)—Athletic representatives of Amherst, Williams, Wesleyan, Springfield college, Connecticut Agricultural college, Trinity and Worcester Tech, will meet at the Hotel Kimball in this city at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon to discuss Walter Okeson and the new system of selecting football officials. The Connecticut valley colleges feel that the Okeson plan is a severe handicap, in that it would force them to pay more money in order to obtain officials from the central board.

TOM HEENEY GETS 15 ROUND DECISION OVER JACK DELANEY IN MAULING BATTLE

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, March 1.—(AP)—The heavyweight ambitions of Jack Delaney crumbled once again tonight, this time before the bull-like attack of the iron-jawed battler from New Zealand, Tom Heeney.

Before a crowd of more than 18,000 that paid $175,000 to see the first of the heavyweight elimination semi-finals, Heeney carried off the decision over the erstwhile French-Canadian sharpshooter in fifteen mauling, bruising rounds.

It was not a one-sided victory for the blocky, square jawed boxer from the antipodes but it was decisive, nevertheless, and gained as the result of a determined rally in the last four rounds.

Heeney Out-Smarted

In a struggle that was fast, if not spectacular, punctuated by bruising clinches, Heeney emerged the victor because he was the aggressor all the way. Chunky Tom seldom gave handsome Jack a chance to get set for a knockout swing. Out-boxed, out-smarted and out-speeded by his rival, Heeney nevertheless kept charging in, punishing Delaney severely about the body with an attack that was as persistent as it was damaging.

Delaney, conceding nearly 20 pounds to his far more rugged rival, stood up gallantly under Tom's steady pummeling. The sharpshooter's main weapon was a left hook to the jaw. He used this repeatedly with jarring effect but it seldom made more than a fleeting impression on the grey and rock-like countenance of the Anzac.

The margin, nevertheless, between Delaney's sharpshooting and Heeney's constant plugging was so close at the finish that there was a wide divergence of opinion, not only among ringside experts but among the spectators. The verdict of the two judges and Referee Jack Denning in Heeney's favor was greeted with mingled boos and cheers by the colorful crowd that jammed the arena.

The Associated Press score sheet, however, showed a convincing margin in Heeney's favor. On it eight rounds were tallied for the Anzac, six for Delaney and one, the fourth, even.

Delaney Has "Mean" Rounds

Heeney's advantage was gained chiefly through the first five and the last four rounds while Delaney, from the sixth to eleventh, held the upper hand.

Tom rushed out of his corner in the first round with a bull-like charge that had Delaney back pedalling and sidestepping like a ballet dancer and at the finish the stocky Irishman was still chasing his foe with a two-fisted drive. It was monotonous the way Tom kept plugging, discouraging to Delaney the way his rugged foe kept boring in after absorbing the stiffest punches.

Delaney, dancing and feinting most of the time when they were not locked together in clinches, kept hooking his left to the head. The so-called deadly right of the Rapier wasn't in evidence, except on a few occasions. Maneuver as he tried Delaney seldom could get Heeney into a position for a full shot at Tom's chin or shake off the latter's flailing arms.

As early as the third Delaney swung his left with everything behind it he could muster. Twice he connected flush with Heeney's jaw, but Tom, like a terrier, shook the blows off and charged back in.

As if discouraged, Delaney went back into a defensive shell, bringing all his ring craft, speed and boxing ability to bear as Heeney kept plugging, digging his left to the ribs, then swinging his right to the head.

Delaney Connects in Tenth

Once again, in the tenth, Delaney let his once-famous "haymaker" go. Again it was a left hook to the head. For a few seconds Heeney's knees sagged. The Anzac looked a bit shaken but he was still forcing the fight at the bell.

Delaney, in spite of his big handicap in weight, fought courageously but he was outlasted, outslugged and a badly battered warrior through the last four rounds. This was the decisive turn of the fight and Heeney's stamina was the deciding factor. Tom burrowed his head in Delaney's shoulder time after time as they clashed, pumping both hands to the body. Once or twice he straightened up and sent Delaney back to the ropes with swings that started from the hips. But Jack was too shiftly to be caught off guard. He was outhit three to one but dodged or took as many blows on his glove as he actually absorbed.

As a battle to determine an outstanding contender for Gene Tunney's crown, it was far from convincing. It marked the elimination of Jack Delaney, such as he was put out of the picture a year ago by Jim Maloney in the same ring, but so far as Heeney was concerned, the bout chiefly served to strengthen his record for bull dog grit, aggressiveness and durability.

Heeney weighed 198 to Delaney's 178 1-4.

All Prelims End in Kayos

The main bout by going the limit, provided more rounds of action than the entire preliminary program put together. The big crowd came in the hope of seeing the fireworks set off in the main go but instead they saw all five preliminaries decided by knockouts and lasting in the aggregate, less than fourteen rounds. The semi-final was the shortest of the lot, ending in two minutes and sixteen seconds of the first round when Pierre Charles, Belgian heavyweight, knocked out Jack McCann, of St. Paul.

JIMMY QUINN WINS BOUT AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 1.— A record breaking crowd estimated at 1000, including many ladies witnessed nine classy bouts of amateur boxing presented at the second show of the Willimantic A. C. under the sanction of the Conn. A. A. U. at the Al Pierre Tabarin tonight. The first bout, class 145 pounds, brought together Charlie Rayhall and Frannie Connor of this city and proved a fade out in the third round when referee Billy Conway pronounced Connor out of condition and gave Rayhall the decision.

In the 118 pound class John Yagin of Worcester scored the only knockout of the show when he floored Billy Madden of Manchester in the second round after a minute and 40 seconds of fighting.

Frank Pesta of Hartford and Vernon Cormier of Worcester, both 112 pounds, met in the third bout but Pesta quit in the first round after receiving a hard left on the nose.

The fourth bout at 135 proved the feature go of the evening, Joe Martino of Manchester getting the verdict over Joe Billings of Danielson. It was a good fight and both men were aggresive.

In another bout in the 135 class Lucien Brouillard of Danielson met Ross Campbell of Manchester. Brouillard who is said to be but 16 years of age and has become a favorite through previous fights won the decision by a steady follow-up and a whirlwind finish.

The sixth bout found Dan Cotter, colored Hartford boy, facing Ollie Koski of Worcester, both 140 pounds. Koski with the advantage of reach copped the decision by a hairline. Cotter proved himself a good scrapper.

The next bout was a 126 pound go between Billy Carmel of Hartford and Charlie Goek of Danielson. The three scheduled rounds ended in a draw and in the extra round Carmel took the erdict. This had hardly been expected as Carmel had appeared awkward but game and his body was set on legs that spelled the letter X.

In the eighth bout at 146 pounds Sidney Dunning of Hartford proved too aggressive for Joe Brusso of Worcester and was awarded the decision.

The last and final star bout was between Al Dowd of Manchester 126 and Jimmy Quinn of Norwich, 126. Quinn showed superior ring science and forced the fighting for which he earned the decision.

During the show Jack Slattery A. A. U. official of eastern Connecticut was introduced. He announced that the local bout would be on March 15th with a show at Putnam the next night. The officials were: Judges Arthur Small and H. N. Bullard; timer, Roy W. Downer; referee, Billy Conway; announcer, Frankie Murphy

About one-third of the crowd remained after the show to hear radio announcements on the Heeney-Delaney fight at New York.

Pirates and Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 1—(AP)—Regular infielders and outfielders of the Pittsburgh Pirates in training at Paso Robles, devoted today's session largely to batting practice. Lloyd Waner, Adams, Paul Waner, Wright, Traynor, Grantham and Barnhart took turns at the plate.

George Grantham has a touch of neuritis in his right shoulder but not enough to prevent his practicing. Burleigh Grimes mounted the hill to work on the batters for the first time and looked good. Other hurlers were McHaffey, Dawson, Deming, Meadows and Tauscher.

Pilot McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs doing their early baseball training stunts at Avalon, said today that he expected to have little worry so far as his outfield was concerned.

With six fast men, each rounding into good form, as applicants for the outfield posts, the C manager said he would have more cause for worry in trying to figure out whom he shall leave off the team. He has the colorful Kiki Cuyler, former Pittsburgh Pirate, Hack Wilson, Riggs Stephenson, Cliff Heathcote, Earl Webb and Joe Kelly.

Sheriff Blake, hurler, has reported in form and ready to go. Nehf, Bush, Jones, Malone and Grampp each took the mound and received the mark of being in condition for any game.

Pete Fowler, pitcher, who was a holdout because he wanted a slice of the price paid for him to the Atlanta club of the Southern association, will report to McCarthy Saturday, it was learned today.

TY COBB SIGNS WITH ATHLETICS FOR SEASON

PHILADELPHIA, March 1—(AP)—Ty Cobb has signed a contract to play with the Philadelphia Athletics again this season Manager Connie Mack announced tonight in a telegram from the Athletics' training camp in Fort Myers, Fla.

"I have come to terms with Cobb," said Manager Mack's telegram, and Ty will play in the Athletic outfield again this year."

ANOTHER FAT-SLIM MEN'S GAME NEXT TUESDAY AT Y

The Fat Men and Lightweights of the Y senior gym class will tangle in the second game of their series next Tuesday night at the gym. The Heavyweights took the first tilt last Tuesday by a four point margin and their more agile brethern have thought long and hard since then and have also put in some stiff practice sessions. Plenty of mystery surrounds this second meeting with the Lightweights, their backs to the wall, ready to hurl charges at the Mullenmen of using, or planning to use, "ringers" while the big men are just remaining silent, planning as they say "to fight it out on the courts."

AL MELLO SUSPENDED FOR FOULING HUDKINS

BOSTON, March 1.—(AP)—The Massachusetts boxing commission today suspended Al Mello, Lowell welterweight, for three months for fouling Ace Hudkins, "the Nebraska Wildcat" in their bout here this week.

'BOUT SPORTS

The Academy and Windham finish their 1928 basketball series tonight. The Willimantic school sort of takes Bulkeley's place in basketball for the locals and tonight's meeting will carry a lot of color. Windham has had a good season, in fact, it is nigh as good as any school in the state has had. The Academy is still in basketball despair.

Windham of course is on the big end her Academy series. Her floor-work look so "hot" here in the first game of her A ademy series. Her fifloor-work aside from the flashy captain, Eddie Nichols, was only mediocre while on the shooting end, the Willimantic boys were like the Englishman who said that Palm Beach was just a "short bit" out of Canada—way off on the distance. That was probably an off night for the boys from the Thread City and tonight may be their chance to not only get back for that defeat but also for those of football and baseball in recent seasons.

HARTFORD K. OF L. AT DANIELSON SATURDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 1 — The Knights of Lithuania from Hartford will play the Danielson Town Team at town hall here Saturday night. This team comes with a remarkable record for composed of only youngsters they have made a big name for themselves in the state and surrounding parts.

They lead the state Knights of Lithuania league and also topped the Farmington valley loop for the first half. They agreed to withdraw from this league for the second half on recommendation of the other teams because of the runaway they had made of the affair in the first section of the schedule. This team is popularly regarded as a successor to the Dixie Speedboys in the Hartford basketball world and right now they seem fairly certain of going even farther than that prodiguous club did.

SABIN CARR TO TRY 14 FT. 4 IN. SATURDAY

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP)—Sabin Carr is hunting for new heights to conquer.

Convinced that he has not yet reached the "ceiling" the crack Yale senior has picked the annual intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championships here Saturday night for his next attempt to shatter his own world's record for the pole vault of 14 feet, one inch.

Carr has prepared a schedule for what he himself terms his last serious attempt to break the pole vault mark before the Olympics, with 14 feet 4 inches his goal.

The Yale star, after clearing 14 feet, one inch at the National A. A. U. championships last Saturday, failed in three attempts to soar over the bar after it had been set two inches higher.

NEW ENGLAND BOXING WINNERS TO GO TO DETROIT

BOSTON, March 1—(AP)—Winners in the annual New England A. A. A. U. boxing championships here, on March 12, will have a chance to compete in the junior national championships at Detroit, March 22 and 23, the New England association decided today. The association voted to send a full team to the junior simon pure tourney on the strength of the record number of entries for the New England bouts which are pouring in to Manager Tom Kanaly at the Boston Athletic association.

HORNSBY SIGNS THREE YEAR CONTRACT WITH BRAVES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 1—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, captain of the Boston Braves, today signed a three-year contract with the Hub squad. The contract will run through the season 1929 and 1930. The salary agreement was not divulged by Judge Fuchs owner of the squads.

The Braves are in spring training here.

Harvard to Meet Stiff Test

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 1—(AP)—Harvard's chances of winning a third successive indoor intercollegiate track and field title at New York, next Saturday night, are not classed as bright even by such a noted optimist as Eddie Farrell, the Crimson coach.

Windham and the Academy tonight at the Willimantic state armory.

Stonington was another to prove that in teamwork there is after all something, by trouncing the Bulkeley Ravens at New London Tuesday night

They meet this same team in Stonington tonight.

Windham and the Red and White ought to draw a big crowd tonight. There is plenty of rivalry stuffed into all their meetings.

Chapman Tech got back into competition this week by trimming the champs of the rest of the student body.

BOXING JABS

The Steve-Talbot bout outshines the rest of the Pastime card tonight and also practically all other boxing events around here for some time.

The principals were reported only anxious for the gong late Thursday night.

Taftville ought to be able to put forth an able representative or two with Al Beauregard as a coach.

The next big thing in the boxing line comes with another "elimination" among the heavyweights Monday, the twelfth.

TALBOT-STEVE BOUT IS FEATURE OF PASTIME AMATEUR CARD TONIGHT

Last night we had the Heeney-Delaney bout and tonight it is the Talbot-Farmer Steve bout. One packed Madison Square Garden and the other should fill Olympic hall to overflowing. The mention of these two bouts in the same breath, as it were, doesn't mean that they are anything alike. They are as far apart as the poles. One bout is between two boys who have reached the peak of the pinacle of pugilistic fame, while the other is between two lads who have just set their feet on the first rung of the ladder that leads upward toward a seat in the sun. Who can tell but that some day one of these lads may be a champion.

This Talbot-Farmer Steve bout is the feature bout of an all-star amateur card to be put on at Olympic hall this evening under the auspices of the Pastime A. C. Two weeks ago these two boys fought to one of the most spectacular draws ever seen in the history of the ring in Norwich. The crowd was in a frantic uproar and the unsatisfactory ending of the bout made the rematching of the boys almost imperative. They were signed and the interest is at fever heat, the boys of the Smoke Shop gym on the West Side where Farmer Steve has been training have risked a barrelful of dollars on the Bean Hill prodigy, while Talbot's supporters, the trolleymen and members of the Pastime gym, have been gathering in all the wagers possible. Both the Farmer and Talbot spent a quiet day yesterday, Talbot piloting a docile trolley between New London and Willimantic, and Steve playing with his three youngsters up at Bean Hill. Today will also be quietly spent by the two antagonists.

Supporting this feature attraction are nine bouts of unusual merit. Many of the amateurs from Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Westerly and Colchester, have entered and prospects of real fighting are bright. A number of local favorites will be on the card. Johnny Dosch is to meet a new opponent tonight and Vic Darr will be matched with some likely boy from Willimantic.

New London is sending up a number of new boys to enter this show and if they are like the others that Joe Connelly has furnished they will be a welcome addition to the card. A new slugger has developed in the Willimantic stable and will be on hand for the bouts tonight. The matchmaker for the Pastime is endeavoring to give the fans entirely new bouts this evening and not matching any of the boys with opponents they have met before.

The list of boxers will include Jimmy Metcalf, Harry Hopper, Young Burrows, Mickey Casey, The Polinsky brothers, Vic Darr, Frankie McCarthy, Young Paulino, Johnny Dosch, Young Tennant, Mush Moriarty and many of the boys from eastern Connecticut.

As usual the bouts will go on at 8.15 with Jack Callahan doing the announcing and the other officials to be named at the ring side.

Bobby Mays of New London will referee the bouts.

"EASIEST FIGHT"—HEENEY "THOUGHT I WON"—DELANEY

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP)—Tom Heeney thinks he must surely have busted the bubble of Jack Delaney's vaunted clouting prowess in his 15 round victory tonight over the former king of the light heavyweights.

"Why he's not one-third the puncher they said he was," Tom announced in his dressing room while the foam from a bottle of British ale, prescribed for medicinal purposes, trickled down his chin.

"It was a terrible scramble," he said mournfully, "and must have been awful to watch. It takes two to make a fight and he held me at every turn. My forearms are numb from banging into his elbows.

"I'd rather fight this fellow a million times than that Spaniard, Paulino once. Jack Sharkey is a much better hitter. Delaney must have landed some good ones, but he never hurt me. I think it was the easiest fight I've had in America.

"Now I realize I was down too fine when I fought Sharkey to a draw. I weighed 193 then and tonight at 198 I was far stronger. I think I could have gone another 15 rounds without tiring."

Aside from a cut across the bridge of the nose there were no marks on the plugging Irishman, "The Honest Tom" of New Zealand. Delaney likewise was unmarked and had not a single alibi to offer in defeat.

"I thought I won," Delaney said. "They told me in the corner that I had nine rounds and I rated the pace accordingly. Honestly, I thought I had a nice lead at the close.

"There was nothing wrong with my right hand. I just couldn't hit him the way he held his head d and kept clinching so much. I didn't bring it into play more because I thought I was winning with my left hook to the body and the jaw. Heeney held his head down and kept clinching so much. I didn't bring it into play more because I thought I was winning with my left hook to the body and the jaw. Heeney was just pushing, not punching."

Delaney was far from downcast at the verdict. He wants a return match with the New Zealander before calling quits on his attempt to win recognition as a heavyweight.

ACADEMY-WINDHAM CLASH THIS EVENING

The Academy and Windham meet once more in their athletic combats tonight at the Willimantic state armory, this time in basketball. The Thread City crew is a big favorite to win, because, whereas they are among the top-notchers in the state, the Red and White, in its second year at the sport, has not been hitting a good pace at all and has won but four in 13 games.

However, with the memory of the first fight of this series here about a month ago in mind when the locals had the upstream to a seven still after a hectic first quarter only to lose by four points, the Whitneymen are betting for that outside chance of victory.

Another factor to bolster up the local's chances is the appearance of Les Pingree back in the lineup. Les returned for th Beacon game but then it was without any practice and he was "off" against the Colchester outfit. Now, however, he has been working hard all week with the rest of the squad and tonight should take up where he left off about a month ago and once more assume first position among eastern Connecticut's centers.

Windham is counting on taking nothing or granted and will present its strongest lineup with Capt. Eddie Nichols and Max Heller at the forwards, Eddie Saba at center and Tinker and Monast or Dillon in the background. The Academy will in all probability take the floor with Jarvis and Tigar or Viau at the forwards, Pingree at center and Captain Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix at the guards.

MAN WHO KICKED MOTHER OF FIVE CHILDREN ON TRIAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 1.—Thursday, the second day of the Westerly adjournment of Washington county superior court before Judge Arthur P. Sumner, trial was begun in the case of trespass for assault and battery, Rose Simone vs. Santo Gaccione, both of Westerly. The assault was alleged to have been committed about 4:30 p. m. Dec. 27, 1926 near the junction of Tower and Oak streets, where the parties to the suit resided. It was claimed that defendant was shooting a rifle at a street sign and was accompanied by two other men. Powder grazed the left cheek of plaintiff, rough talk by both parties was followed by Gaccione's grabbing Mrs. Simone by the throat and while she was in a delicate condition he kicked her in the stomach. As a result, it was alleged, she suffered much pain, was confined to her bed for seventeen days and that her child was prematurely born.

Mrs. Rose Simone, the mother of five children, living at 40 Pierce street, and formerly at 111 Tower street, testified that she is of French descent, her husband Italian and that she understands and speaks English, French and Italian. Following the discharge of the gun, she wiped blood from her left cheek near her eye, she testified. In the tussle which followed the harsh words Joseph Gabrielle pulled Gaccione, her assailant from her before he could do her more bodily harm, as he had threatened. Other witnesses to testify were Dr. John E. Ruidi and Dr. Charles P. Crandall who had treated, attended and examined her following the alleged assault. Joseph Gabrielle, storekeeper at 30 Oak street, was on the stand both completing the morning session and in the afternoon, and gave details of the fracas as he saw it. He was followed by Peter A. Simone, a watchman employed nights, and the husband of complainant.

The jury empanelled to try the case was: Gorton T. Lippitt, foreman, William J. Carran and Joseph H. Rockwell, North Kingstown; Fred H. Kenyon and Albert G. Barber, Westerly; John Cirwein and Christopher N. Clarke, South Kingstown; Enoch D. Jerue, Hopkinton; Charles F. Kenyon, Richmond; Herbert A. Edwards, Exeter; Robert Browning, Jr., Charlestown, and William A. Bridge, Narragansett.

Mary Simone, eight-year-old daughter, was the last witness for the plaintiff. Then Santo Gaccione, the defendant, took the stand. The attorneys made their pleas and Friday morning Judge Sumner will charge the jury. The next case to follow for trial is that of Gavitt Furniture Co. vs. Joseph A. Guarino. Criminal matters will be taken up Monday.

FAIR PLAY COMMITTEE WANTS SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 1.—Filed with Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple Thursday was the petition of the Westerly Fair Play committee asking that a special financial town meeting be called at an early date to take action on proposed changes in Westerly town governmental departments, at which special meeting the qualified electors will be asked to vote an appropriation for the rebuilding of Granite street. At the special town council meeting held last Monday and the special session Tuesday evening it was found that the required 10 per cent of the votes cast at the last town meeting in qualified legal signatures were not attached to the resolutions as required to consider matters which had come before the recent annual financial town meeting. BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mrs. Whitefoot's Sharp Tongue

A tongue that's sharp is never smooth;
Its purpose never is to soothe.
—Old Mother Nature.

Whitefoot the Wood Mouse sat in an old home cut in a dead tree by Downy the Woodpecker. He was looking up at the little round doorway, which was now quite filled by Mrs. Whitefoot. A great gladness filled the heart of Whitefoot. He fairly bubbled over with gladness. He was so filled with gladness that it was some time before he needed what Mrs. Whitefoot was saying or even noticed that that high, squeaky voice of hers was unusually sharp. He was glad for two reasons. Not two minutes before, as he had listened to the sound of claws coming up that tree, he had been in despair. For he had been sure that those claws belonged to Shadow the Weasel. To discover that Mrs. Whitefoot instead of Shadow had been following him naturally filled him with a great gladness.

The second reason he was glad was because he had found what he had come to the Green Forest for. He had found Mrs. Whitefoot. It would be more truthful to say that she had found him, but the result was the same. So Whitefoot was too happy to pay heed to much of anything. By and by, however, he began to realize that Mrs. Whitefoot didn't appear to be nearly as happy as he was. In fact, Mrs. Whitefoot appeared to be quite out of sorts. Yes, sir, she appeared to be what is called peevish. Her always squeaky voice was squeakier than ever.

"What do you mean, Whitefoot?" she demanded, "running away from me? Aren't you ashamed of yourself? What do you mean by it all?"

"I-I-I wasn't running away from you, my dear. I was running away from Shadow the Weasel," protested Whitefoot.

"No such thing!" retorted Mrs. Whitefoot. "Shadow the Weasel wasn't about, so how could you be running away from him? You were running away from me! You left me a long time ago for no reason at all and without leaving word. Now today you try to run away from me!"

"No, no, my dear! No, no!" protested Whitefoot. "I didn't leave you and I wasn't running away from you. The fact is, my dear, I was looking for you."

"Looking for me! Looking for me!" sniffed little Mrs. Whitefoot. "If you were looking for me what did you run away from me for? A likely story that is! Looking for me! You may have been looking for some one, but it certainly wasn't for me. And if you didn't leave me I should like to know where you have been all this time! Certainly I did not leave you!"

"I was carried away," squeaked Whitefoot.

"Who carried you away?" demanded Mrs. Whitefoot suspiciously.

"Black Pussy the Cat," replied Whitefoot.

"What's that?" squeaked Mrs. Whitefoot, and her voice was more shrill than ever. "What's that?"

"I said I was carried away by Black Pussy," replied Whitefoot.

"And you really expect me to believe that?" demanded little Mrs. Whitefoot.

"No," replied Whitefoot, beginning to lose his own temper a little bit. "No, I don't expect you to believe it, but it's true just the same. I don't expect you to believe anything, but it's all true."

"I suppose you'll be telling me next," said Mrs. Whitefoot, "that Black Pussy let you go and you came right back as quickly as you could."

"No," said Whitefoot, "Black Pussy didn't let me go. That is, she didn't mean to. Farmer Brown's Boy saved me."

"And, of course, you came straight back as soon as he let you go," squeaked Mrs. Whitefoot.

Whitefoot didn't say a word. He didn't like to admit that he hadn't come straight back as soon as he had been set free.

MARKET WAS NARROW WITH THE MAJOR BUYING ON SIDE OF RISING PRICES

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—The stock market continued today to move within a relatively narrow trading area, but with major speculative activity on the side of the rising prices. Resumption of pool activities in a number of special stocks, which were marked up 2 to 4 points, was offset by the cropping out of new weak spots. Apathy on the part of many professional traders was reflected in the reduced volume of trading, the day's sales again falling well below 2,000,000 shares.

Credit conditions were unchanged. Call money was in plentiful supply all day at the renewal rate of 4 1-2 per cent, and the other monetary accommodations held steady. The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced no change in the 4 per cent. rediscount rate, which is now in effect in all reserve districts. Considerable interest was manifested in the weekly federal reserve statement of brokers' loans issued after the close of the market, which showed a decrease of $6,482,000, bringing the total down to $3,721,834,000. Early estimates ranged all the way from a drop of $40,000,000 to a gain of the same amount.

Monthly bank reviews reported irregularity in the general business situation, but most of them were inclined to take an optimistic view of the course of spring business. The continued falling off in railroad car loadings was disappointing and tended to restrict trading in railroad shares. Some fresh buying came into the oil shares as a result of a further extension of recent advances in gasoline prices, but the poor 1927 earnings report of most oil companies has made bullish operations in that group difficult.

U. S. Steel common closed unchanged at 139 3-8 after fluctuating within a range of 1 1-2 points on a total turnover of only slightly more than 200,000 shares. General Motors closed 5-8 net higher at 127 1-2 after having sold a point above that figure. Baldwin advanced more than 3 points to a new 1928 peak at 258 1-2 but converted the gain into a loss of nearly 1 point at the close. American Can closed fractionally higher and American Smelting and General Electric lost ground. The hurried retreat of an overcrowded short interest in International Nickel carried that stock up more than 2 points to $4 3-4, or 12 points above last week's low, but part of the gain was lost on realizing. Radio also was bid up at the expense of the bear crowd, rallying from a low of 92 7-8 to 96 3-8, and closing within a fraction of the top. Outstanding strength also was shown by American Encaustic Tiling, American Safety Razor, Bayuk Cigars, DuPont, S. S. Kresge, Montgomery-Ward, Union Carbide, Universal Leaf and the Western Dairies issues.

General Railway Signal was the new weak spot discovered today, crashing 7 points to a new low at 98 1-3, or 25 points below the year's high. Further weakness also developed in the Continental Baking issues, all of which reached new low ground. Calumet & Arizona, International Silver, Moto Meter A and Federal Light & Traction also were conspicuously heavy.

Except for a moderate gain in Frisco common, coincident with the announcement of nearly $150,000,000 in new financing, there was little of interest in the rail group.

Foreign exchanges showed no important change, with sterling cables steady just under $4.83.

Commodity markets were irregular, with price changes narrow. Cotton closed slightly higher, wheat futures showed practically no change, coffee rallied 8 to 22 points and the sugar market was slightly easier.

THE INDEPENDENCE OF OTHER DAYS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Last night, just as I had got settled down for the evening, the electric lights went out.

This may not strike you as very important news or worth chronicling in a daily newspaper.

But to me it actually meant more than anything in the columns of the paper which I had to drop when darkness came on. It came nearer hitting me where I live than the Teapot Dome scandal or any discussion of the chances of Al Tammany Smith.

It set me grunting and grouncing and groping for candle-ends to at least temper the gloom.

The lights are still off this morning, but, as the sun has reopened its eastern doors and resumed business at the old stand, one doesn't so much care.

What has happened and where I haven't the rightest idea. The "power," which actuates my electric lights comes from a station some 50 or more miles away beyond reach of inquiry except by the long distance telephone and, usually, dumbly unanswering to that. It may be that a dynamo blew up or a cable broke or the power-house burned down or an earthquake shook all the anodes into geodes or a monkey-wrench fell into the machinery. All I know is that there are no lights and no information when I'm going to have 'em again.

When a lonely old countryman has got used to having electricity illuminate his rooms, light him about his dark cellar, make his morning toast, heat up his bed-warming pad when he retires, etc., it simply "breaks him all up" to have the current suddenly go on strike. It's more than "news" to him; it trenches closely on the borders of disaster.

But what can he do about it? Nothing except sit as calmly as he can till the clouds roll by, and rely upon unknown somebodies somewhere and somehow to straighten things up.

That very fact of my utter helplessness in the matter has set me to thinking about one of the characteristics of the age, viz: to wit, that is to say, our tendency to let some company or corporation take our work and our responsibility off our shoulders and do everything for us which we used to do for ourselves.

The slangy "let George do it," isn't merely a cant saying; it's the motto of the big majority. It's an accurate statement of the attitude of most of us towards life. Let some organization come along and offer—for a consideration—to relieve us of the need of looking after our own luxuries or comforts or even necessities by attending to them for us, and we jump into its arms with infantile trust and satisfaction. It is SO nice to have some one carry us, instead of having to walk on our own feet.

—Until, as I have suggested, some money-wrench drops into the carrying company's machinery and it drops us, usually in a mud-puddle or at the foot of a long, steep hill. That isn't so pleasant.

When such a thing happens, there's no use cussing out the company. It's human, like all the rest of us, liable to make mistakes and meet with accidents. It has to use materials which aren't always perfect and tools which will wear out. Scolding will neither prevent mistakes nor remedy accidents, nor improve the desirably good relations between the scolder and the scolded.

But the blow-out certainly does make things decidedly uncomfortable, all round, till somebody, somewhere, perhaps a hundred miles away, has found out what caused the trouble and has repaired it. Then we heave a contented sigh and settle down to the usual easy snap,—till something else happens.

This is true, not only of electric lights but of scores of other things. It is almost universally true in the cities; it is steadily becoming true even in the country. The baking of "home-made bread" is fast becoming a lost art. The big bakeries have taken that job away from the pantries and kitchens. And there's no doubt that it's a convenience to thousands,—till someday, when you're out of bread, something happens to prevent the wagon from making its regular deliveries.

Walking is rapidly passing out as an exercise. It's easier to use the auto or take the trolley,—till some morning when the car won't start and can't be made to, or the trolleymen strike and that method of transportation is shut down. Then we have to take to our unaccustomed legs, which make mighty hard going of what was once thought just a bracing walk.

And so on and so on, ad infinitum, ad nauseam.

I'm thinking, this morning, of life as it was lived in a backroad farm-house 70 years ago. I am not going to make any such silly assertion as that life was "all beer and skittles" in those days, or even that it was, on the whole, better than today. But I can't help recalling one feature of it which is noticeably lacking at present.

I mean its self-maintaining freedom; its ability to take care of itself; its lack of dependence on outsiders. There was always flour in the barrel and lard in the crocks and butter in the firkins and sugar in the pail; there was salt pork in one barrel and corned beef in another and an old-fashioned whole cod-fish hanging beside the cellar stairway; there were potatoes and cabbages and turnips in their bins; there were apples and winter pears in their boxes; there were long strings of dried apples and jars full of boiled cider apple-sauce for emergencies; there was ham and bacon in the smoke-house; there was a whacking big pile of seasoned and dried hardwood in the wood-house, with plenty of dead pine in one corner for kindlers; the barns were full of hay and the granery of corn and oats for the stock; there was a big bin full of carrots and mangels for the milch cows.

It made no appreciable difference if bad roads or other difficulties prevented a trip to the store for a month or even more. No trouble followed if a delivery wagon failed to show up on time, or storms in the west hindered the movement of food supplies. That old farm-house was an independent kingdom sufficient unto itself, and its dwellers prided themselves that they were able to stand on their own feet without any propping up by outsiders.

—Now, don't go off half-cocked and criticize me for ignoring the other side of the picture. Don't ask me why I am not setting against all this the scores of limitations and handicaps which they had to endure in those days. I know them all, for I was part in them and sharer of them. I'm not pretending that theirs was any "golden age" or their life any Edenic one.

But there was one streak of real gold running through life in those days which is being eaten out of it now; the vein of sturdy independence which made each isolated farm a real principality in its own right, and dependent on no company or corporation or profiteer for its life, liberty and happiness.

Lord love you, no! I don't want to go back to the days of tallow dips and dried apple pies, and getting up before daylight on below zero mornings to start a fire in a cold stove in a cold kitchen.

But I can't help wondering if there isn't any possible middle course, which shall conserve the really valuable features of the old ways while making free use of modern improvements.

Isn't there any choice between ice-water and boiling water for the morning bath? Can't we have the water somewhere in between, where it will neither chill us blue nor scald us pink?

Can't we hold on to that which was good of yesterday, while taking hold of today's benefits and reaching out after tomorrow's promises?

Human nature, as has been noted by a great many observers wiser than either you or I, is a queer mixture. It doesn't seem able to keep the middle of the road, but is forever wabbling into the ditch on one side or the other. Then it toddles off to somebody else's telephone to call up somebody else's garage to please send somebody with a wrecking car to pull it out. All of which it might have avoided by the seemingly simple expedient of watching where it was going.

But all the preaching since Adam hasn't succeeded in making men good, nor has all the philosophizing since Plato availed to make them wise. They'll gang their ain gaints and, generally speaking, they'll fall into marching step with those who happen to be momentary leaders. When the leaders are themselves lame or blind we all know what is apt to happen.

But do you and I,—confining the discussion just to ourselves, for the time being,—do we have to limp and struggle because the rest are hobbling and skew-gee-ing?

It is an old saying of the opportunists: "When in Rome do as the Romans do." Mr. Pickwick, when asked what was the best policy when a stranger got between two yelling crowds at an election, replied: "Shout with the biggest." On the other hand various men, including one Peter the fisherman, declined to do, while in Rome, as the other Romans did. And various sturdy souls in lesser and latter predicaments have hurrahed all by themselves despite the boolings of majorities.

You and I, at least, have brains of our own, given us to think with and to guide our conduct. It's better to be unpopular and lonesome in what we are convinced is wise than to be just "yes-men" in a fickle mob.

Of course, the difficulty is in making sure that our particular ideas are wise; in drawing the line between reason and self-satisfied bigotry.

But I don't think you and I will go far wrong in defending as vigorously the manly independence of our grand-dads as in ballyhooing for the vociferous "progressiveness" of our grandsons.

Let's cling to the "golden mean" as long as the holding is possible.

THE FARMER

HANOVER

Rev. Mr. Rollinson of Middletown, Conn., called and his eldest son Duncan called on friends in their parish a few days since.

William G. Park attended the hockey game at the Yale rink Saturday evening, witnessing Yale's defeat by Princeton.

Richard Beverly Ussher, a pupil at Broadway school, Norwich, is spending his vacation with his father, Dr. Clarence D. Ussher, at Worcester, Mass.

The February missionary meeting was held in the parish house Wednesday afternoon with its usual large attendance under the leadership of Miss Helen Eadie, and with Miss Margaret Eadie and Mrs. Angus Park as hostesses.

Deacon and Mrs. Henry B. Hazen have had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Hazen's brother Walter from New York state recently. Sunday they had as visitors Mrs. Hazen's mother, Mrs. Dexter and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Craig from Danielson and Mrs. Lester Craig and twin sons Robert and Russell from Moosup.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crombie have been entertaining Mrs. Crombie's brother, Mr. Kebbie of Jamaica Plains, Mass., who recently returned from a cruise to Central and South America and the islands adjacent. His description of the climate and the attractive features of the animal and vegetable life found there, including the flying fishes which Kipling tells are to be seen on the "Road to Mandalay," make it seem wonderfully attractive to those who are dreading the possible blizzards of March.

All are pleased to note that the deep ruts in the Nipmuck trail at the point where it leaves the village for Versailles are being filled with gravel. Certain sections of the road have been in such condition that even an Indian in moccasins would find them difficult to follow, and an observer might infer that he had been indulging in fire water.

The children of the parish have been invited to the parsonage this (Friday) afternoon immediately after school for the story hour, and the young ladies in the evening, under the auspices of the Daughters of the Covenant.

The entertainment committee of the guild for the first quarter met at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Webster Standish, Tuesday evening and made plans for March.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning next, the subject considered will be Jesus as a Teacher. The sacrament of the Lord's supper will be observed at the close. The choir rehearsal and the church school will be held as usual at ten a. m. and 12 m. respectively, the meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. will be omitted that the members may have an opportunity to attend the first one of the special services to be held at the United Congregational church, Norwich and hear Dr. Samuel Griffin of New York.

A power drill and dynamite are much in evidence these days upon the fields surrounding the residence of Charles Chapman as many of the huge rocks are being leveled to the ground. William Pocquette is making good use of the ax and the bush-hook on Judge Adams' hillside adjoining the Chapman property on the north. The two trucks which meet certain milk producers here in the village every morning and transport the filled cans to the larger centres of population may be obliged to increase their capacity next summer, after the development of so much additional pasturage.

CHESTNUT HILL

A. A. Latham is seriously ill. A registered nurse has been in attendance for some time.

Llewellyn Latham of Cleveland, O., spent a few days with his father over the week end. His daughters, Miss Edna Latham and Mrs. Clayton Lyman, of Hartford, have been staying at the home for a week or two.

W. W. Palmer and his cousin, Mrs. Clark, of Springfield were dinner guests of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lavis, in Franklin, Tuesday.

The fourth annual dog-show of the Athletic Foot Guard association held in artford Saturday, Feb. 25th was attended by G. B. Dimon and C. E. Goodrich of this place. Mr. Goodrich's police dog "Cherie" won a prize of $25 in the scaling contest of a 9 foot fence.

Mr. Goodrich remained in Hartford over Sunday being a guest of Mr. Winchester and attended church in Hartford Sunday morning.

Mrs. Kittie Clark of Springfield has been the guest of her cousin, Mrs. G. T. Chappell the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Peckham and daughters Ella and Evelyn of Manchester visited Mr. Perkins' parents of Monday afternoon.

Miss Dorothy Davis, a Lebanon teacher spent the week end at her home in Fall River.

Richard Dimon has been a Hartford visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stiles were Norwich visitors Tuesday.

Charles E. Goodrich was in New London on business Monday.

Albert Schweitzer, who owns a poultry farm in this place has been building another large hen-house. He has ordered 3,000 chicks, to be delivered soon.

Many have sent larger orders than usual for chickens.

WAUREGAN

At West Wauregan Wednesday afternoon, William Hills, 12, was kicked by a horse at the Benham farm. The boy had just come from school and went over to play with the Benham boys. The Hill boy got near the horse's hoofs and was kicked in the head, making a badly lacerated wound over the left eye on the frontal bone. The shoe calk evidently cut through the bone, for Dr. J. L. Gardner, who was called to attend the lad, found a depression in the bone large enough to admit the end of a small finger. The external wound was sutured and dressed and the boy's parent was ordered to take the boy to Backus hospital, at Norwich.

Martha Geleau was home over the week end from the hospital. She is much improved. Your correspondent hopes to hear of her getting home for good soon. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Gray of Campbell Mills. She has been there five months. She went the same day that Mrs. Bitgood fell and hurt her hip. That was five months the second of March. Mrs. Bitgood says she wishes she was gaining as fast as Martha is.

Mr. Bitgood and Mr. Devolve were in Jewett City shopping the end of the week.

Your correspondent thanks the two ladies of Jewett City that sent her the nice box of chocolates for a valentine and she hopes this summer they will come and see her so she can thank them by the word of mouth. She also thanks Mrs. Fred Gilbert for the nice box of candy she sent her and thanks Mr. Wallace for the box of chocolates he gave her and Mr. Condie for the grapefruit and the nice green tea he gave her. They are from Lisbon.

Alfred Devolve lost a nice horse. He got up and went to the barn to feed it and found it dead. It was all right when he put it up for the night.

Miss Lizzie Maynard spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Warren Tanner on Ekonk Hill.

Visitors and callers at William Bitgood's Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber and granddaughter of Jewett City, Mr. Wallace and Mr. Condie of Lisbon and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Devolve of Eastern Voluntown.

TWO MEN IN NEW LONDON HOSPITAL AFTER SPEED CRASH, THIRD ESCAPES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 1—Patrick Sullivan, of 18 Warren street, this city, employed by the revenue department at Boston and Charles Kelly, 66 Wentworth street, Boston, are patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, the former seriously injured. The automobile in which they and a third person, whose identity has not been established were riding, overturned and was wrecked at Quaker Hill, Waterford, early this morning. Sullivan has a possible fractured skull, double fracture of the cheek bone, lacerations of the face and possible internal injuries. Kelly sustained a possible dislocated left shoulder and severe bruises. The injuries sustained by the third young man are not known, for he disappeared on the hospital grounds and has not been located.

The automobile, a Chrysler sedan was being driven to this city and at a high rate of speed. After the car descended Quaker Hill and approached the curve leading to Belles' Hill, it was traveling at a terrific rate of speed. The curve is a sharp one and as the turn was being made, Sullivan drove the car from the shoulder of the concrete in order to prevent its overturning. As he did so the auto was headed for a telephone pole and to avoid crashing against the pole, Sullivan turned the steering wheel quickly to the right, causing the car to climb a steep embankment and on an angle. The machine overturned, rolled back down the bank and came to a stop amidst a pile of rocks and with the three occupants imprisoned in it. The crash aroused residents, who went to the assistance of the autoists and a telephone message was sent to the state police bararcks, Groton.

The injured men were taken to a nearby residence and made as comfortable as possible until the ambulance arrived, when they were rushed to the hospital. While attendants were taking Sullivan and Kelly into the hospital, the third and unidentified man walked away. He was not missed until after Sullivan and Kelly had been taken to the operating room and then he could not be found. State Police Officer John Smith went to the site of the accident. His investigation revealed that the auto was traveling at such a high rate of speed that the curve could not be taken, with the result that the car left the highway and climbed the embankment. Marks on the concrete showed that Sullivan had applied the brakes for the marks showed where the rear wheels had dragged about 45 feet. The wrecked automobile was towed away about two hours after the crash occurred.

To Clear Skin Of Pimples

Do It Quickly And At Small Cost —It's Easy This Way.

Why should anyone allow pimples blackheads and other blemishes to mar the beauty of their skin when they can be so easily gotten rid of with Peterson's Ointment.

All you have to do is to rub the Ointment thoroughly and regularly into the skin for a few days till it is soft, clear and perfect.

Emma Lillian Baier of St. Louis writes—"I was very pleased with your sample, and I advise every family to have a box in their medicine cabinet. It has cleared my skin wonderfully and I appreciate your sending me a sample. I am going to buy a large box and always have it ready for use. It sure is a wonderful salve. I wouldn't be without it."

And Edward King of Pittsburgh Pa., writes—"Had pimples all over my face for over a year, but Peterson's did the work." 35 cents a box at all drug stores.

TRUANT CHOSE RIVER RATHER THAN ANGRY FATHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 1—John Swanson, 15, residing on Thames street, Groton, had a close call from a watery grave this morning when he leaped overboard in an attempt to evade his father, who had been searching for the youth, as the latter had run away from home. The boy is now in Lawrence-Memorial hospital, as he was rescued from the Thames river and was taken to the hospital because it was feared pneumonia might develop.

The Swanson boy disappeared from his home last Monday and today the father was informed that two or three boys had been sleeping n one of the buildings of the American Fisheries company, Groton. The father requested the state police to assist him in finding his boy, also informed the officers of his information regarding the sleeping place of the lads. Sergeant Henry Albright and Officers John Smith and Arthur Whitmarsh went to the fish works, but did not find the boys, although they were informed that boys had been occupying one of the buildings. After the officers had left, the father of the Swanson boy observed his son a short distance from the pier and as he was walking toward the boy, the latter ran to the pier and leaped overboard. Swanson hastened to the barracks, which is but a short distance from the fish works and the three officers rushed to the dock where they found the Swanson boy clinging to piling. A rope was lowered to the boy and he was pulled upon the pier, but was nearly exhausted. The boy was taken to the state police barracks where he was given hot baths, but when a physician was summoned the boy was ordered taken to the hospital in an endeavor to prevent the developing of pneumonia.

An automobile owned by Lyle Davis, of Old Mystic was stolen in this city last night. Davis drove the car to New London to attend a theatre and parked it on State street, between Union and Washington streets. When Davis two hours later went to where he had left the car he discovered that it had been stolen and reported the theft at police headquarters. The state police and the police of Norwich, Westerly, New Haven, Hartford and Middletown were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen auto. It is an Essex coach, painted black and carries Connecticut markers, N-5313.

The fire department had a stubborn fire to combat last night because of the nature of the contents of one or two buildings on Howard street. One of the buildings and which housed a large quantity of hay, bagging and an antiquated automobile was destroyed while another that contained a horse was damaged. Both buildings were of wood and in a delapidated condition, so that the loss will not be large. The fire, when discovered was burning rapidly in the barn in which the hay, bagging and automobile were stored and an alarm was sent in from Box 44, corner of Howard and Hamilton streets. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and five companies responded. When the firemen arrived the building where the fire originated was doomed and the other building which adjoined it had become ignited. The building containing the hay, bagging and automobile was quickly razed, but the fire in the other building was not subdued until after the roof had been burned away. The horse was removed to a nearby barn when the fire was discovered. How the fire originated is not known, but it is believed it was started by a careless smoker, a butt either being dropped among the hay during the afternoon or the hay being ignited by smokers who might have been using the building as a sleeping place. Both buildings were owned by Barbet Gordon.

George Whittlessy has sold a building lot on Berkley avenue to Horace A. Newbury and wife.

Abel P Tanner has sold a house and lot on Hope street to John F. and Mary Herlihy.

Bridget O'Connor has sold a house and lot on Shapley street to Helen Rondomanski.

Mrs. Frank DeWolf and infant son, of Waterford; George Sheffield, Stonington; Ernest Ungerer, Uncasville; Mrs. George Bathgate and infant daughter, 560 Montauk avenue and Miss Elizabeth Bingham, 26 Woodbridge street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Edson H. Strickland was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 208 Broad street and was attended by a large number of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Francis Allanach, Eugene Smith, George Eastman, Taylor Douglas, Peter Fournier and Clarence Bingham. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

Private funeral services for William Van Keuren, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mr. Van Keuren's residence, Quaker Hill, Waterford. Rev. Herbert Hutchins, pastor of the Quaker Hill Baptist church, officiating. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

The funeral of Mrs. Annunziata Russo, wife of James Russo, of 26 Truman street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large concourse of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan with Rev. George Clark deacon and Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan sub-deacon. As a waiting hymn, Edward F. Murray sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Walter Reed, advertising manager of The Globe, is confined to his residence, 19 Pearl street, by an attack of grip.

SAILOR'S PAY DEMANDED—SHAW'S COVE BRIDGE HOLD-UP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 1—This evening, a young man named Day, a sailor at the United States Coast Guard academy, was attacked on Shaw's Cove bridge in an effort to obtain money from the sailor, as today was pay-day with the coast guard men. Day left the reservation about 7 o'clock and after passing through Hamilton street, started to walk across the bridge to get to Bank street. When about midway of the bridge, Day was accosted by a roughly dressed man, who demanded his money and, at the same time, pulled a blackjack and attempted to use it. Day succeeded in evading the blow and then ran across the bridge to Bank street, where he telephoned what had occurred to the executive officer at the academy. The latter communicated with police headquarters and Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Braxton Hill went by automobile to the location of the attempted hold-up. The officers also made a search of the vicinity, but could not locate anyone acting suspiciously.

THREE CARS COLLIDE, ONE DRIVER CUT BY GLASS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 1—As a result of a three-cornered collision of automobiles on Bank street this afternoon, all three vehicles overturned and one man was slightly injured. Two of the automobiles, one being a truck, were badly damaged. An automobile, owned by the Connecticut Power Co. and driven by Kenneth L. Williams, was on Bank street, headed in a northerly direction. A truck owned by Joseph Eisenstein, driven by Ralph Staplins, Vauxhall street, and a pleasure auto, driven by James Treadway and owned by Abe Neiman, proprietor of the Hupmobile sales station, were being driven in the opposite direction. When the other two automobiles were near the corner of Jefferson avenue, a fourth auto that had been preceding the truck and pleasure car, stopped abruptly. To avoid a collision, Staplins and Treadway swerved their cars sharply to the left side of the road, with the belief that they could drive around the auto that had stopped. At the same time, the power company's auto was passing and the truck and pleasure car crashed against it. All three machines were overturned. Treadway, who was caught a prisoner in his auto, was cut about the arm and leg by glass. He was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where his injuries were treated, after which he went to his home. The power company's car and the truck were damaged.

Edward O'Brien, Hartford, a patient at Norwich State hospital, made his escape this afternoon and the police of New London have been requested to be on the lookout for the man. He is described as being about 61, about five feet three inches in height and weighing 125 pounds.

There are now 21 scarlet fever cases under quarantine. The latest cases reported at the office of the health department are as follows: Jane Dunbar, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Dunbar, 1003 Bank street; Mrs. Edith Foster, 44, of 556 Bank street; Oscar Lubow, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Lubow, 37 Alger place; Mrs. Rose Little, 47 West Colt street; Madeline Sullivan, 9, and Frances Sullivan, 7, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Sullivan, 70 Mountain avenue; Franklin Whitehead, 13, son of Mrs. Florence Whitehead, 113 1-2 Howard street.

Mrs. George Banks and infant son, of Noank; Mrs. Fred LaFemina and infant daughter, 44 Smith street; Mrs. Thomas Hamrah and infant daughter, 151 Main street; Mrs. Clifford Friars and infant son, 19 Woodbridge street; Ernest Shaw, Somerville, Mass.; Mrs. Floyd Zprens and infant son, 537 Main street, and Mrs. Ralph Merrick, 31 Richards street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Esther Gracey Atwood, 35, wife of Walter A. Atwood, of Mystic, died this morning at Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital. She is survived, besides her husband, by a son, Walter A. Atwood, Jr.; her father, Manuel Gracey, and two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Gates, of Groton, and Mrs. Wesleyan Bradley, Mystic. Mrs. Atwood was born in Mystic, the daughter of Manuel and the late Nellie Bogue Gracey.

The body of John F. Beebe, formerly of Waterford, who died at Worcester, Mass., where the funeral was held this morning, was brought to New London this afternoon and buried in Jordan cemetery, Waterford, the committal service being conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Today, Mayor James A. May communicated with City Manager William A. Holt by telephone and is understood to have asked that official as to whether the city manager was defying the council in not ordering the change in the course of Bank street traffic, for at the meeting Monday night the council was unanimous in its expression that the traffic be in a southerly direction. Since the meeting, City Manager Holt has caused traffic to continue the same as he had ordered it and from his attitude it is apparent he intends that the one-way traffic shall proceed as it does now, notwithstanding the council's action. The work of widening the street, which is the cause of the one-way traffic, is continuing as fast as it is possible and much of the highway is torn up.

Because of the many organizations that solicit advertisements from merchants for so-called "programs" in connection with their venture, at a meeting of the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce held at the Hotel Mohican last night, it was voted that none of the merchants taking space in the "program" shall pay more than $1 for such space. Heretofore, solicitations have been made for space that cost as high as $25.

Breed Theatre

Buck Jones and Silver Buck, his famous horse, will again thrill thousands of their fans in Buck's latest starring vehicle for Fox films coming to the Breed theatre, for a two day showing, commencing today.

Silver Buck, is Jones' greatest pal and inseparable companion. Buck claims that animals are the truest friends that a fellow can have. Once your friend always your friend. The devotion and love a horse can show for his master is comparable.

Silver is one of the most beautiful horses in America, in that he is pure white and very large, and well made, yet with grace in his movement. Besides he is intelligent, knows what he is told to do before the camera and in many cases has saved Buck from serious injury through "sheer horse sense."

The only other companion that Silver Buck has is Bozo, a blue Great Dane. He is his stable mate and they are the best of pals when Silver is not working.

Silvers original price was $100. Buck bought the horse from a small boy about four years ago while he was on location at Calabasas. Now the animal is priceless. It is a fact that he is more valuable to Jones than any sum of money that could be offered for him.

Silver and Buck have put some of their famous team-work in this new picture, "Black Jack," with promises of new thrills and hazards of every discription.

Buck is supported by Barbara Bennett and a cast including Theodore Lorch, George Berrell, Harry Cording, William Caress, Buck Moulton, Murdock MacQuarre and many others.

Need More Pledges to Assure Course

As the time grows shorter for the option on Ponselle the committee in charge of the Slater hall concerts wishes to urge most earnestly all those interested to send in their pledges today so that the required number may be reached in time and the possibility of bringing Ponselle to Norwich may not have to be lost.

To many subscribers other parts of the tentative program which Ponselle's recital would open are of equal interest. The prospect of hearing Andre Segovia, that very unique guitarist, who is stirring the musical world, not only of all America but of Europe is delighting many. A native of Spain, Segovia, who came to the states early in the fall, has been proving himself the sensation of the current musical season in New York and critics everywhere give him their highest and most enthusiastic praises. The interest of those everywhere who are following musical development has been focused on him these recent months and seems to be constantly increasing rather than diminishing.

The coming of Florence Nash, considered by many America's foremost and outstanding woman pianist, is enthusiastically anticipated by many and Merle Alcock, one of the youngest of the Metropolitan Opera artists is also ranked as that company's finest contralto. See adv.

Mr. Enright will be pleased to see all his friends at the opening, Saturday, March 3rd.

Strand Theatre

The Strand presents "A Night on Broadway" with a company of well known artists. Lew Levy the greatest Jewish comedian in the N. E. states, Isabelle Hanson who has played leads in musical comedy throughout the West and New York. Jim Manning ukulele artist and dancing wonder, and a talented chorus of girls who come to us direct from New York. Complete change of program Friday.

St. Mary's Players

In most cases clean plays have had the longer and greater success on the professional stage. Our show for this year had a long run on Broadway. If there were not something good and clever about it, it would not have lasted as long as it did. The fact then that it is a good play has already been proved. A splendid play and a capable cast—this guarantees a pleasant evening. We have both. Many of your old favorites are in the cast. Their ability has been proved, and no doubt you will be on hand to see them again.

Palace Theater.

When it comes to providing excellent motion picture entertainment and a steady series of laughs Bebe Daniels, Paramount star, has no equal among comediennes.

The dark eyed star of the screen again proved this last night at the opening of her latest farce, "Feel My Pulse," which is now showing at the Palace theater.

Funny situations, fast action and many thrills go together with Miss Daniels and this production is no exception.

In the opening reels one is led to believe that the Paramount star will be given little chance to show her athletic prowess for she is shown as a young American girl who is interested in nothing else but her health. One tiny germ disrupts her day. She goes to a sanitarium of which she is the owner, on a desolate island and there finds it in possession of a gang of bootleggers who are using it as a base of operations for their work.

At first, Miss Daniels is led to believe that the "patients" are legitimate but it soon develops that she has landed in the midst of a tiny war between the bootleggers and the hijackers. Here it is that the star is given ample opportunity to demonstrate just how healthy she really is. The finish is fast, furious and highly amusing.

On the stage are five splendid vaudeville acts. The Revue Classique is a singing and dancing act and is in a class by itself, the costumes are unique, the scenery colorful and the singing and dancing is exceptional.

The Hungaria Troupe present a novelty offering that is out of the ordinary and is exceptional pleasing.

Fields and Cook, a pair of fast steppers execute some difficult dance steps. Elwyn Handlon pleases with ten minutes of music and Gates and Finalay, the comedy pair, keep the audience in an uproar.

NORWICH TOWN

About 7 o'clock Wednesday evening residents of Norwich Town were astonished at sight of two of the large fire trucks from the local station, accompanied by Chief H. L. Stanton, speeding over the state highway with fire gongs sounding, followed by a procession of automobiles, pedestrians, etc., some on the run. Upon inquiry it was learned that the new Samuel Huntington school was on fire. Later it was reported that the fire was confined to a tar keg at the rear of the building that had been in use during the day. The fire was so slight that the big chemical engines did not even go on the schoolhouse property. The Yantic company responded but was shortly dismissed as there was nothing to be done. Traffic was so badly congested that Constable Luther Fenton was obliged to render his services in directing traffic to clear the highway. No damage was done, according to reports.

Millard F. Clark of Westerly, a painter and paper hanger, lost his suit brought in the superior court against Magnus Y. Avery and a jury, with Clark represented by Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and Leon J. Beisheim and Falck represented by Attorney John Gallagher.

Clark brought suit for $5,000 damages, alleging that he was a passenger on Aug. 3, 1927 in an automobile belonging to A. E. Hoxie in the borough of Stonington when it was run into by Falck's machine.

Clark claimed to have been tossed from his seat in the car and to have been seriously injured rendering him totally incapacitated to work at his regular occupation.

The defendant denied the allegations.

G. M. LANDERS INSOLVENT AT TIME OF DEATH

George M. Landers, for several years a resident of New London, formerly an officer and large stockholder of Landers, Frary & Clark, New Britain hardware and cutlery manufacturing corporation, was insolvent at the time of his death on Jan. 25, 1927, according to the appraisal of his estate filed in New York. Mr. Landers had only $4,320 assets, of which $3,749 was cash, $171 insurance and $400 as the value of 10 shares of stock in the Yale Leasing corporation, but he had debts of $12,680, mainly on leases at 1125 Park avenue and 200 West Fifty-eighth street.

Mr. Landers, once mayor of New Britain, and president of the Connecticut senate, had been vice president of Landers, Frary & Clark, the $14,000,000 corporation founded by his grandfather, but at the time of his death was head of the New York office.

His fortune would have been considerable if he had survived his mother, because he would have received the principal of a trust fund left to her. His will gave his estate to Hazel R. Landers, his second wife, who was Hazel Fox, actress, whom he married after he had been divorced from his first wife.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED IN SUIT FOR $1,200

The $1,200 damage suit brought by the Dolly Madison Baking corporation of Springfield against the Mowsen Camp, Inc., of Yantic, as the result of an automobile crash between cars owned by the parties involved, was settled out of court Thursday. The case was scheduled to be heard before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court at New London.

The baking corporation, represented by Attorney Thomas F. Mitchell and Judge Arthur F. Libby of Norwich, claimed that on Aug. 26, 1926, the defendant's truck crashed into a car of the plaintiff, driven by one of its employes. The plaintiff alleged that failure on the part of the defendant to grant half of the portion of the traveled highway in West Town street, was the main cause of the accident.

The Moween camp, represented by Attorneys Perry J. Hollandersky and Foster K. Sistare, denied the allegations.

Ellonsky Wants Different Name

John Ellonsky, a merchant of New London, has brought a petition in the superior court, asking that his name be changed to John Ellon, according to papers filed Thursday, with the clerk of the superior court.

The petitioner claims that he has been a resident in New London for about 25 years and is engaged in the retail shoe business in Bank street and has been known by the name of Ellon. The members of his family have adopted the name of Ellon, it is alleged, and there is some confusion in the appellation of the plaintiff on account of the fact that he is known by both names.

FALL RIVER RECTOR PREACHES LENTEN SERMON

Judas Iscariot was not a bad man but he became a bad man, said Rev. L. Y. Graham, rector of St. Mark's church, Fall River, who preached the sermon Thursday evening at the special Lenten service at Christ Episcopal church. Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of the church, led the service. Rev. Mr. Graham took as his text, St. Luke 6:16—"And Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor".

Judas Iscariot—that name has come down through history accompanied by hissing. It signifies treachery, the betrayal of one's friends. To call a person a Judas is one of the worst insults that can be offered. Why did Jesus Christ choose such a miserable wretch as one of His disciples? Could He not know that Judas would betray He not konw that Judas would betray Him? I think one answers to these questions is that Judas was not a bad man when he was chosen by Christ. Judas was not a bad man at the beginning. Judas would not have followed Jesus unless he was enthusiastic. Jesus fascinated Judas. Here was a teacher with new ideas.

Judas was not a bad man but he became a bad man. St. John tells us the devil put it into the heart of Judas to betray Christ. I think it was jealousy, the green eyed monster. Judas saw others chosen by Christ on special occasions. Judas had ambitions to become Jesus' chief of staff but seemed to get nowhere. No doubt he began to brood and to think "I'll blast the whole works". "I'll throw a monkey wrench into the works." Judas betrayed his best friend.

Think hard about Judas. The world is full of Judases. They clog the wheels of government, they clog the wheels of society and yes, many of them are found in the church. Let us work out Jesus Christs purposes and not our own little mean purposes.

SUIT FOR $250,000 AGAINST MAYOR THOMPSON, CHICAGO

Libel Suit Brought by William McAndrew, Ousted Superintendent of Schools—Alleges Slander in Connection With Charges of Insubordination and UnAmericanism Filed Against the Former School Head—Suit is Designed to Clear McAndrew's Record—If Damages Are Returned the Money Will Be Used For Educational Purposes.

CHICAGO, March 2—(AP)—William McAndrew, ousted superintendent of schools, today sued Mayor William Hale Thompson for $250,000 for libel and slander in connection with charges of insubordination and un-Americanism filed against the former school head.

It was Mr. McAndrew's second broadside fired in two days at his accusers, he having issued a public letter yesterday denying all the charges against him and branding the board of education as the worst enemy of the Chicago schools.

Only the declaration in today's suit was filed by Mr. McAndrew's attorneys, who said a bill of particulars would follow shortly. Coincident with filing of the suit, McAndrew's attorneys announced that they will take the decision of the board of education which tried McAndrew to a court of record as soon as it is issued.

The five months' trial of McAndrew, part of which both the former superintendent and his attorneys refused to attend, was ended this week, but the board of education has not yet handed down its decision. Mr. McAndrew's term of office expired while the trial was in progress.

Francis X. Busch, one of McAndrew's lawyers, said the suit is only to clear the school man's record and that if damages are returned, the money will be used for educational purposes.

Among the charges aired at the trial before the board were those that the superintendent was a tool of the king of England and that he sponsored the teaching of history texts which placed a wrong light on the deeds of American patriots. Mr. McAndrew, who refused to attend the sessions of the trial, denied each of the allegations separately yesterday in an open letter.

STANLEY YALE BEACH WINS CASE IN APPELLATE COURT

STRATFORD, Conn., March 2—(AP)—Stanley Yale Beach, inventor, aeronautical expert, who today won in the appellate court of New York a decision upholding the contention that Connecticut courts had no right to deem him incompetent and appoint a conservator for him, has been in litigation with his family several years.

The legal battle revolved around his efforts to legitimatize Marguerite, now 19, daughter of Mrs. Carline Watson, born out of wedlock during twenty years relationship with Beach. Mr. Beach has claimed that his family opposed efforts he made to legally adopt the daughter and he has spurned all efforts to be reconciled with his wife, hi sthree children and his mother, who live here in the ancestral home.

Beach is a beneficiary with his mother and a sister in a trust fund of $500,000 left by his father, Frederick Converse Beach, founder of the Scientific American, and they, with the trustee, have fught every effort Beach made to give Marguerite his family name.

In superior court two years ago today a hearing was held on an appeal from probate court which had found Beach incompetent to manage his affairs. Judge Isaac Wolfe upheld the lower court. The appeal was taken both by the trustee, a bank, and Beach, the former claiming that through a conservator Beach's family would suffer as funds sent to him and diverted from his family would be used to support his New York home. Beach challenged the right of Connecticut courts to interfere in his affairs as he had lived in New York twenty years. The family claimed his residence was in this town.

HERO'S HOMAGE PAID TO THE MEMORY OF HARRY BROOKS

MELBOURNE, Fla., March 2—(AP)—With as elaborate ritual as the little town could give, the people of Melbourne paid a hero's homage today to the memory of Harry Brooks, Ford chief pilot, missing since his flivver plane dropped into the Atlantic ocean off the beach here last Saturday.

Nearly three thousand persons were at the beach not far from where the youthful flier went down with his plane. They lifted their voices in prayer and song after which the military tributes of three volleys and "taps" were offered.

The waves, which have failed to give up the body after nearly a week of constant vigil by searchers, literally were covered with flowers and wreaths by 400 school children, led by reserve army officers.

"His immortal life began here," said the Rev. Alfred Evenden, in delivering the memorial sermon. "Harry Brooks was a hero. Life today is keyed to the heroic. Not to seek an exalted plane of living in a world full to the skies of heroism is to be out of tune."

COUNTERFEITERS ARRESTED BY SECRET SERVICE AGENTS

CHICAGO, March 2—(AP)—Federal secret service agents today arrested five men who were alleged to have been preparing distribution of $30,000 worth of bogus $20 bills counterfeited by accomplices in Minneapolis. About $500 worth of the spurious notes were seized, the agents said.

Those arrested were Carl Abbatemario, a grocer, Andrew Brick, Benjamin Schaefer, Vincent J. Duff and Benjamin Hirsch. The gang numbered about 12 Hirsch acting as distributor of the counterfeiters in Minneapolis, agents said. Only $200 worth of the fake notes had passed when the five men were arrested, according to the agents, and most of the amount has been traced down.

CARAWAY LOBBYISTS BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—Brief but sharp debate marked the passage by the senate today of the Caraway bill requiring lobbyists to register in the house and senate. The measure now goes to the house.

OIL MAGNATE STEWART INDICTED FOR CONTEMPT

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—The ninth pending criminal action growing out of the senate's investigation of the Teapot Dome-Elk Hills leases was written in federal court dockets today when Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, was indicted for refusing to answer questions asked by the Teapot Dome committee.

Stewart was charged by the grand jury with having refused to answer questions concerning the disposition of liberty bond oil profits of the Continental Trading company. The committee, seeking to trace $3,080,000 of the profits, some of which reached former Secretary Fall in a $233,000 payment from Harry F. Sinclair, asked Stewart if he knew anyone who received any of the bonds and if he had discussed the bond transactions with Sinclair.

The Standard Oil man refused to answer the two questions on two different occasions and was indicted on one count for each refusal.

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE FOUR HOURS AT BEDSIDE OF MOTHER

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who came here from Washington yesterday to visit her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, ill at the Dickinson hospital, spent almost four hours at the bedside of the patient today.

Mrs. Coolidge was at the hospital from 11 o'clock until one, and made a second visit from four o'clock in the afternoon until almost six. Before the afternoon visit John Coolidge came from Amherst college, where he is a student to call on his mother at the Coolidge home on Massasoit street, in company with Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut. BAY STATE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES DISMISSED

BOSTON, March 2.—(AP)—A stormy career of eight years as state registrar of motor vehicles was ended for Frank A. Goodwin today. The governor's council, with one member absent and two dissenting, approved his dismissal by William F. Williams, commissioner of public works. Late today, George A. Parker, federal prohibition director for New England, was named by the commissioner to succeed Goodwin.

Goodwin's removal had nothing to do directly with his conduct of the office of registrar. It resulted from his activities in connection with the Commonwealth Service association, an organization of state employes which he had promoted and in behalf of which he had waged a long campaign for reclassification of such employes and higher wages.

Nicaraguan Rebel Killed by Marines

American Patrols Are Endeavoring to Run the Rebel Forces to Earth.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 2—(AP)—American marines, scouring northern Nicaragua in search of Sandino rebel forces which clashed with a marine detachment near Daraili on Monday, killed one rebel and wounded another in an encounter near Somoto. There were no marine casualties.

The marine patrol, commanded by Lieutenant LePage Cronmiller of Maryland and including members of the Nicaragua national guard, encountered a rebel band of 15 men about 20 miles southwest of Ocotal, marine headquarters, in the state of Nuevo Segovia.

American patrols are swarming over the Daraili region in an effort to run the rebel forces to earth and should the Sandino followers venture to leave their hiding places in the mountains it is expected other contacts will be made.

The eight Americans wounded in Monday's encounter today were en route to Ocotal by oxcart and plans were made to transfer them to Managua by airplane as soon as possible. In the absence of further information from the scene it is believed that Lem C. Davis of Nixon, Texas, the most seriously wounded of the men, was recovering. The five men killed in the fight were buried near the scene of th engagement.

DEATH PENALTY FOR AN ILLEGAL OPERATION

CHICAGO, March 2—(AP)—Dr. Amanie Rongetti, the first practitioner ever sentenced to death from Chicago for murder as the result of an illegal operation, and the first Chicagoan to be sentenced to the electric chair under Illinois' new capital punishment law, awaited the passing of formal sentence tomorrow while the state's attorney's office launched immediately into an investigation of intimidation of witnesses during the trial today.

Dr. Rongetti was convicted in three hours and given the death penalty by a jury of eleven married men and a widower last night on a charge that he had caused the death of Miss Loretta Enders, a patient at his West Side hospital, by performing an illegal operation. He said the case against him was the result of a conspiracy of professional enemies.

During the trial some of the state's witnesses refused to testify declaring they had been threatened, and one girl charged that Rongetti's lawyer, William Scott Stewart, had threatened to besmirch her reputation if she testified while a brother-in-law of the girl now dead, said he had been kidnaped and held a prisoner for three days.

The state's attrneys office and Judge Frank D. Comerford, trial judge, both started investigations which assistant state's attorneys said will result in grand jury action if the facts warrant.

HARTFORD MAN WAS BURIED UNDER FIFTY TONS OF COAL

HARTFORD, March 2—(AP)—Andrew Mocha, of 20 Union street, an employe of the W. C. Mason Coal company was buried for 15 minutes in approximately fifty tons of coal which gave way as he was attempting to loosen it in a freight car in the company's yards this afternoon.

Mocha was dug out by about twenty other employes, assisted by a squad of a dozen patrolmen hastily summoned from police headquarters. His rescuers worked furiously with shovels to release him. "I'm all right," were his first words, and he attempted to climb from the stretcher on which he was being carried to the waiting ambulance. He was rushed to the Hartford hospital where he complained of injuries to his left leg. So far as the first examination disclosed, he was not seriously hurt.

VERBAL BATTLE BETWEEN WETS AND DRYS IN HOUSE

Tilt Was Result of Representative Sirovich's Advocacy of Making Industrial Alcohol Nauseating Instead of Poisonous—Had Several Bottles of Alcohol With Which to Illustrate a Speech—Admitted That Over-Indulgence in Alcohol Might Inspire Human Derelicts to Dream That They Are Millionaires or Even Members of Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—The display on the house floor today of bottles containing grain alcohol and other things precipitated a verbal battle between wets and drys during which it was said that alcohol buoyed the spirits of some people and made them imagine they were great personages, even members of congress.

The dispute developed when Representative Sirovich, democrat, New York, placed on a table in front of the speaker's chair a half dozen or so bottles and test tubes which he said, contained the alcohol. He announced that he proposed to use them to illustrate a speech on the practice of poisoning industrial alcohol.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, an avowed dry, immediately objected. He said that the constitution expressly provided for maintaining order in the house and that he considered such use of alcohol would constitute disorderly conduct.

Before the Michigan member could conclude several wet members were clamoring for recognition and insisting that Sirovich was within his rights. Representatives Linthicum, Maryland, and Black, New York, both democrats, and Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, urged that Sirovich be permitted to proceed. Linthicum said that former Representative Upshaw of Georgia, once had displayed empty whiskey bottles on the floor and had announced that he had gathered them from waste paper baskets in offices of members. He observed also that former Senator Stanley of Kentucky, while a member of the house, had made whiskey on the floor, citing the instances as precedents favorable to Sirovich.

Objection having been overcome, Sirovich said that he was a "total abstainer," that he was not speaking either for or against prohibition, and was interested solely in preventing the use of poison in alcohol. He added that he was a physician and had never written a prescription for whiskey. This brought applause in which Cramton joined.

Sirovich urged that nauseating and other ingredients be used in the place of poison for denaturing purposes. He frequently was interrupted by members and once Blanton of Texas, a democrat, asked: "Is it not a fact that the very best whiskey to some topers is absolutely abhorrent for them to smell, and is it not a fact that when they do drink it for its effect that many of them hold their noses?"

This brought laughter and Sirovich replied that Blanton was referring to the "pathological specimens of our country," he then explained that there are two types of persons, one of the "world of reality," and the other of the "world of dreams."

Some people are unable to succeed in the world of reality, he continued, and "they become the ones who become over-indulgent and become drunkards," adding:

"So under the influence of intoxication they are millionaires, they are scientists, they are even members of congress and they run for the senate. They do everything."

Sirovich said that much of the alcohol now being used for beverage purposes was diverted from industrial alcohol supplies and treated by "half-baked" chemists who take it out "in a half-baked way."

Cramton said he appreciated Sirovich's position but that the "harm as I understand it, is that the thing which the gentleman suggests might be used as denaturants would fail in two respects.

"First, they would not comply with the needs of the industries using the chemicals," he said, "and, second, they would be so easily removed from the alcohol that it would make them ineffective as a protection."

Sirovich offered to let Cramton smell one of the denaturants, pyridine, which he had suggested be used. This again brought laughter and Cramton said: "Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order."

Linthicum then proposed a motion that Cramton be permitted to smell the bottle of pyridine and the house laughed again.

"I ask, Mr. Speaker, that that remark be expunged from the record," said Sirovich, amid more laughter.

Later in the day, Blanton returned to the floor and declared that the "speech of Representative Sirovich was not good for the cause or for the good of the law."

He described the speech as "scientific" but said that it condoned lawlessness in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

The Texan was interrupted by Representative Schaifer, republican, Wisconsin, who declared he thought the lawlessness could be prevented by modification of the Volstead act.

"Then you are near the border line of being a socialist," said Blanton. Schaifer took the floor and declared that if the Anti-Saloon league should place a presidential ticket in the field next fall, he recommended Blanton as the nominee.

"For their vice presidential candidate I suggest S. S. Kresge who donated them so much money and kept a love nest in New York," he added.

He declared that Sirovich had not brought the house into disrepute by the display of bottles.

FLARE-UP IN SENATE ON POLICY IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—After a brief, but sharp flare-up today in the senate on the administration's policy in Nicaragua, Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee, made public the testimony given to that committee on Nicaraguan conditions last month by high naval officials.

Secretary Wilbur, Rear Admiral Latimer, former commander of American naval forces in Nicaraguan waters; Major General Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps, and Brigadier General Lane, of the marine corps, furnished the testimony, giving in minute details the whole situation since American forces first were landed.

Withdrawal of the marines was demanded by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, who engaged in a running battle on the floor of the senate with three republicans, Borah, of Idaho; Shortridge, of California, and Edge, of New Jersey. Dill charged that the marines were sent in at the request of American concessionists in Nicaragua and denied that American property and lives were endangered.

COL. LINDBERGH IS IN SECLUSION IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Back in New York after visits to Albany and Boston, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh went into seclusion today, clinging to his desire for relief from the acclamation which greeted him wherever he appears.

His plane dropped down on Curtiss field after a flight from Boston, where his mother, a Detroit high school teacher, had received an honor medal awarded by the National Education association. The trip was made in a little less than four hours.

With him were Major W. B. Robertson, Harold M. Bixby, of St. Louis, and H. Allan Sullivan, of New York. Col. Lindbergh climbed out of the plane, evaded interviewers, and with his party was driven to New York.

Later in the day he attended a conference at the offices of the Guggenheim Foundation for the promotion of aeronautics. He has not indicated how long he would remain here.

TWO AVIATORS AND THEIR ESKIMO GUIDE ARE SAFE

OTTAWA, Ont., March 2—(AP)—Given up for dead by all but a few persistent comrades, two aviators and an Eskimo guide, forced down by engine trouble in the frozen wilds of the Arctic circle two weeks ago, were reported safe today.

Brief messages from Port Burwell at Hudson Straits failed to give details but indicated that the men had fought their own way back to civilization afoot through raging snow storms.

The aviators, who were engaged in obtaining data on winter weather conditions in the Arctic circle, are Pilot A. A. Lewis and Sergeant Terry of the northern air patrol. The Eskimo, who was taken along as guide, is spoken of in official messages only as Bobbie.

The story of the men's probable privations and undoubted bravery during their long fight for life is bracketed by two laconic messages.

A few hours after the take-off from Port Burwell on February 17 Lewis wirelessed the base from an unknown position: "Engine cutting out. Am off course. Landing on ice." Today, after two weeks that must have seemed an eternity to the three men lost in the icy wilderness and to their comrades who had refused to abandon the search for them, came the following from the officer in charge at Port Burwell: "Air men safe. Port Burwell"

The relief felt in official circles at news of the fliers' safety was made plain in a message dispatched to Lewis from the department of marine "Heartiest of congratulations to you, Terry and Eskimo," it read. "All hands here delighted. Cheerio."

BELIEVE TWO YOUNG BROTHERS WERE SLAIN

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., March 2—(AP)—The bodies of two unidentified boys recovered within ten days from the Indiana harbor ship canal lay in a morgue here tonight while the authorities busied themselves with theories and speculation as to how the children, about eight and nine years old, came to their deaths.

The police were agreed that the boys, believed to be brothers, had been slain, but the reason for the slaying or the identity of the slayer was as much a mystery as when the body of the first youth was found floating in the canal on February 22. The body of the second was recovered yesterday.

Both bodies had wire twisted about them leading the police to believe that they had been weighted and thrown into the canal but that the weight later had loosened. No children in this vicinity have been reported missing and the Chicago bureau of missing persons has failed to supply a clue.

RECTOR ENJOINED FROM USING CHURCH PROPERTY

MERIDEN, March 2—(AP)—The Rev. Stephen I. Burdikoff, rector of St. Peter and St. Paul's Russian Orthodox church here, has been enjoined by the superior court of New Haven county, at the instance of John S. Kedrovsky, as a delegate of the holy synod of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic church, and as archbishop of the diocese of North America and the Aleutian Islands, from using any of the property of the church in Meriden, and from all acts as priest of the church and congregation, or using the church for religious worship until the first Tuesday in April, or until the superior court shall make further orders in the premises.

In the complaint Kedrovsky alleges that as archbishop of the diocese he suspended Fr. Burdikoff on February 17, but that he continues to act as priest of the church. He states that the suspension resulted from the complaint of five members of the church that Fr. Burdikoff acted in a manner unbecoming in a priest, failure to recognize the authority of the archbishop and that he preached against American schools.

LITTLE BLACK BAG WAS USED TO CARRY $17,000,000

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—A little black bag, frayed at the edges was used today to carry control of the Bank of America, in the form of $17,000,000 in capital stock, three blocks through Wall street to the bank.

Leo V. Belden, vice president of the Bancitaly corporation, carried the little bag from the office of Ralph Jonas, who last week sold his controlling interest in the bank to A. P. Giannini.

Mr. Jonas is the owner of the bag, but he stands very little chance of getting it back, for it will be placed among other historic relics in the Bank of America's Museum, in charge of Osborn F. Heyner.

BRIDGEPORT POLICEMAN SUFFERS LOSS OF FOOT

BRIDGEPORT, March 2—(AP)—Policeman Roderick Ludwig, who fell from an excursion train as it was pulling into the local railroad station early today and in some manner slipped upon the truck and lost his left foot by being run over by a railroad coach, had an amputation operation performed at St. Vincent's hospital.

Ludwig stepepd from the train as it stopped on signal near the south end freight yards, apparently thinking it was close to the depot. When the train started up he was thrown upon the tracks.

EXPLOSION OF CELLULOID CAUSED $75,000 DAMAGE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 2—(AP)—Damage roughly estimated at $75,000 was done by fire, caused by an explosion of celluloid, that destroyed the three-story C. E. Rice company building in wight street tday. So quickly did the fire race through the structure that workmen on the second floor were forced to rush for the exits. The largest tenant, the Rice company, is a distributor of refrigerating machines and oil burners. There are several other concerns in the building

THREATENED STRIKE OF N. Y. SUBWAY AND EL EMPLOYES MAY BE AVERTED

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—The pendulum of the controversy between organized labor and the Interborough Rapid Transit company again swung toward peaceful settlement tonight.

Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, an A. F. of L. organization, after a conference with Mayor Walker, held a private meeting which resulted in an offer to have either the mayor or the transit commission review the case of its 21 members suspended by the Interborough.

The Amalgamated had rejected the proposal of the company, made at a conference with the mayor, to have the matter reviewed by the company's legal department, and tonight's proposal was the first plan of settlement announced as satisfactory to the Amalgamated.

The proposal stipulated that should it be found the 21 men had been suspended because they had joined the Amalgamated, they must be reinstated and paid for lost time. If it should be found that they were suspended for some other reason, the arbiter should determine their punishment.

The Amalgamated leaders asked that the company cease hiring substitute workers and remove from its property those already employed while the arbiter should consider the case.

Mayor Walker said he would reply to the Amalgamated proposal Monday. He did not indicate whether he would attempt to win the company over to it.

GRAND LIST TO BE CUT $160,000 BY BOARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 3— The board of relief, comprising Lewys G. Gerry, F. Louis Hall and John H. Willcox made reductions amounting to $14,942 on the grand list of 1927 according to the report of the board filed with Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. There were 32 appeals totaling $15,837 to be acted on by the board. The grand list as it was filed with the board of relief by the assessors before any reductions were made, totaled $17,771,291. The making of legal exemptions to ex-service men, active service men, blind persons, and others now remains to be done before the actual grand list figures are ascertained. It is estimated that the total reduction from the assessors' figures will be about $160,000. The selectmen are already preparing the call for a special town meeting to levy a tax rate.

Mrs. Virginie Desrosiers Ducharme, 35, a former resident of Willimantic died at her home in Albion, R. I., Saturday of last week. I., Napoleon and Pierre Ducharme of Albion and Adelard Ducharme of San Francisco; four daughters, Mrs. Joseph Desgrand of Albion, Mrs. Fred Lord of Willimantic, Mrs. William Boyea of South Coventry and Miss Carmelite Ducharme of Albion, one sister, Mrs. Enable Deseillier of Providence, R. I., also several grandchildren and great grandchildren. Mrs. Ducharme retained a wide acquaintance of close friendships which she had formed during her residence here. She was a member of the Ladies of Ste. Anne society of St. Mary's church. The funeral was held Tuesday with services in St. Ambrose's church and burial in St. Ambrose's cemetery, Albion.

Ice harvesting in March has become the unusual order of things locally. Louis N. Ayer could not harvest the crop from the cove on the Willimantic River a few weeks ago because of washing rains and thawing weather which halted his work when but a small quantity of ice had been stored. The temperature and general weather condition of the past few days however, has enabled him to rush the harvesting and it is expected that by Saturday he will have his sheds well filled with a fine stock of ice ranging from 9 to 12 inches in thickness.

Residents liable to the payment of the two dollar personal tax had paid in about $3,200 up to this afternoon, it was stated by Collector Alphonse L. Gelinas who proves through this figure that he is making an enviable record in the collection of the taxes on the 1927 enumeration. There are 5,775 persons listed on the enumeration, 3,590 of the number being women and 2,185 men. While women are generally in excess of men in the make-up of the population, they outnumber the male sex on the list by such a large majority owing to the fact that nearly 800 men are exempt from payment of the tax because of military service and through being active or ex-firemen. There remain but $3,350 to be collected before the end of March.

The chamber of commerce rooms are rapidly becoming the hub of much activity as daily use of offices is being made by many organizations. The project of removing the pool tables from the west front room into the main assembly hall and using the room for conference purposes is already proving its value. Time has not allowed the installment of new furnishings and the making of proper renovations of this room for its new purposes, but it has come into constant demand. This afternoon all of the five rooms which make up the chamber of commerce suite were in use. Even the kitchen had to be opened up and several business men sat in conference among dishpans, crockery and other utensils. An extension of the telephone in the secretary's office is to be made to the conference room.

Starkel of the Stafford Springs barracks found that the truck operated by Mikas was loaded with several hundred pounds over its legal capacity at the time of the arrest.

Much progress is being made in the establishment of a tourist information bureau at the chamber of commerce. Pamphlets and maps giving valuable information are being acquired and it is hoped to have the bureau functioning properly when the tourist season opens. Much of the information to be gathered will be of roads and historical places in eastern Connecticut and it is hoped through this service to make the attractive "trails" of this section as popular as some of the more widely advertised routes.

DENIED POINTING GUN AT SCOTLAND YOUNG MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 3—A squad of police headed by Capt. McLean, County Detective William E. Jackson and Constable Trenor A. Rice made a rush trip to Scotland about 5.30 o'clock this evening upon receiving information that a man apparently demented had pointed a large revolver at a young man named Wilson in Scotland and then disappeared into the woods. He was described as being between 40 and 45 years of age, partly bearded of face, wearing a light short overcoat. Footprints of the man were followed up the railroad tracks, through South Windham to the local yard, where they were lost. In the fear that the man might be a dangerous lunatic the police swept the city in the hope of locating him. The mystery was believed found, however, when a man answering his description walked into the police station and asked for a night's lodging which was given him. He gave his name as George Fuller and said that he had walked in through Scotland, up the railroad tracks from Rhode Island. He denied, however, having had anything to do with the gun, which led the police to believe that some mistake had been made of his actions.

It is expected that within few days a sergeant will be appointed for the police department by Mayor Charles A. Gates. This is a new position, the duties of which are to patrol the streets at night and generally assist the officers on the various beats. As yet Officer Grant Bombria, the oldest man on the force in point of service, is still the logical nominee for the position. The sergeantcy will not bring about any changes in the hours or the duties of the chief, captain and lieutenants.

Alderman William E. Jackson, chairman of the police committee, has arranged to have an officer do traffic duty during the rush hours of Saturday evenings at the junction of North and Main streets. A white circle, 6 feet in diameter, has been painted in the center fo Main street opposite the junction and it is planned to install a light to shine down no the circle, from which the officer will direct traffic. The placing of an officer at this point will serve to safeguard the heavy pedestrian as well as automobile traffic in that section of the business center and will also tend to slow up the speed of automobiles upon approaching Railroad street and the crowded section of Main street.

NOANK

The firemen gathered at their rooms Thursday evening where a 6 tube radio was on the table to inform them about the fight between Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney. About 40 Smoke-Eaters was present. Before the main fight Jack Ellis showed his pals a few new tricks with a pack of cards, stunts which he learned in Boston and that had them all guessing. Walter Palmer played a banjo and violin at the same time, something never done around the village. A ring was marked off in the middle of the floor, where Battling C. Ashcraft and Cannonball R. Lamay had a five round match. Referee G. Devean was the third man in the ring. The fireworks were set off as Cannonball Lamay hit Battling Ashcraft on the bugler and the latter hit the deck for the count of 5. But getting up as game as Heeney he stayed to round out the fight and the fire fighters cheered him.

In the second round Ashcraft put over a right to Cannonball's breadbasket then a hard left to the chin that sent the pride of the smoke-eaters down for the full ten seconds and the smelling salts had to be brought out to bring Cannonball to; so it was some battle. Then a voice came over the radio that the big battle is on in New York. Some were cheering for Delaney to win while the left side cheering section was for the blacksmith Heeney.

A guest from out of town with the Noank fire fighters was Chief Frank De Berry of Milville, Mass. There was a lunch of doughnuts and coffee.

Berry, explained that the money is low in the tin box again; one legionnaire is in a hospital in Newport and a sunshine basket will be sent to him from the post this week. It was voted to attend the district meeting in Montville this month. A membership drive is on to put the post over the top for 1928. The meeting closed as the colors were carried out, while Eddie Morgan played the piano. There was a lunch of pressed ham and peanut butter sandwiches, with marble cake and cocoa. Stretch Morrison told the legionnaires about the time the Herald newspaperman George Burnside was on the staff, where he drew pictures. It was a rainy day in France and the ground was slippery as the bugle blew for dinner. On the mess kit was roast beef and potatoes. Stretch had to go up a side hill, he slipped and was trying to save his dinner, although he had both feet in the air. Burnside made a sketch of it, as for five minutes he kept falling in the mud. He couldn't save his chow. The picture was put on the bulletin board and then in the Stars and Stripes newspaper on the front page. The soldiers had a great laugh over the joke. Several other war stories were told. E. Franke did the Harvard hop, with John Jensen on the drums to make him step fast.

Coming over to Frank Muse's house in automobiles were 22 from the plant of ship engine who play in the new band of which Frank is the leader. A name of the band was wanted and Mode Wilbur said "We will name it Muse Minute Men band." A short rehearsal was held for an hour. C. Keeler will be on the bass drum. New band uniforms have been ordered from New York. The Corn Cob club has chipped the band to play next week, where a big time is going to be held. Leader Muse said he is going to have the best band that the Ship and Engine company ever had and the 200 men will have to take their hats off to the new organization when the members will march in their gray uniforms to the steam-fitters' ball to be held at the plant soon. DANIELSON

W. H. CLEWLEY DIES SUDDENLY IN BROOKLYN

DANIELSON, March 2—William H. Clewley, a resident of Brooklyn for many years, but living here with Mrs. Clewley, on Maple street, died unexpectedly at his home here at 11 o'clock this morning. He had not been feeling well the past three days and suffered an attack of acute indigestion about 2 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mr. Clewley was a retired jeweler. He was born in Providence and lived there the greater part of his life, coming with Mrs. Clewley, to Brooklyn to make his home about 20 years ago. He was the son of William H. and Miranda Gerald Clewley, an old Maine family, and was born September 2, 1854. His wife, who survives him, was Miss Mary Putnam, a descendant of General Israel Putnam, and in the family are many antiques coming down from the famous patriot and members of his family. Among possessions of which Mr. Clewley was particularly proud is a gold watch that was carried by General Putnam during the Revolutionary war. This watch was manufactured at LeBourget, France, and is said to have been one of three carried by famous men of the Revolution, George Washington and General LaFayette having the other two. The watch remains in good condition and running order and is very valuable.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock funeral services for James E. Logee were conducted at the home of his son, Arthur W. Logee, Winter street, by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church. Numbers of relatives and friends were in attendance. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were friends of the family. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Owing to a flagrant instance of disobedience of the orders of Health Officer Dr. W. H. Judson, Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill authorized issuance of the following statement this afternoon: Any person afflicted with a communicable disease shall immediately report to Dr. W. H Judson, as health officer. Any person who wilfully disobeys the health officer's orders is subject to fine or imprisonment. No person shall enter or leave a house under quarantine without permission of the health officer or shall needlessly expose a child or other person to a communicable disease.

It appears that this statement becomes necessary because of the prevalence of mumps and chickenpox in the community. Dr. Judson is endeavoring to enforce quarantine regulations as effectively as possible, but is finding this difficult in some instances.

For this reason the statement of the prosecuting attorney was given out this afternoon, and the assumption is that drastic means of making the quarantine effective in every instance will be taken unless the health officers orders are fully met.

County Game Warden John Ash of Pomfret said while here today that the week has netted the arrest and prosecution of the first setter of wire snares to be apprehended this season. The man was P. J. Smith, a man about 50 years of age, of West Woodstock. Presented before Justice Scranton of the town of Woodstock, Smith's fine and costs amounted to $22. He was apprehended while tending the snares, by two game officials. The snares are set for foxes and are illegal, general experience with them being that they catch about as many dogs as they do foxes.

A "stolen" car that proved not to be a stolen car gave state officers here a flurry and then a laugh. Two New London men came here on business in a machine owned by one of them. It appears they travel a great deal together. While one of them was engaged with a business errand here the other one, neglecting to mention that he was going, took the car and went to Putnam. Missing the machine a few minutes afterwards, the owner reported it to the state police as stolen. The information was relayed to Putnam, where Officer Donald J. Geddes happened to be at the time. He located the car, parked in the square near the railroad station, and set a watch for the driver to appear. When the driver did come he appeared to be very much surprised that it was believed that he had stolen the car and after satisfactory explanations he was allowed to return to Danielson and pick up his friend.

A new feature of the now well developed motor coach service between Providence and Hartford via Danielson and Willimantic is the recently established "express" service maintained by a line operating sedans and running without stop between the two state capitals. The cars are luxurious and fast and they are carrying passengers over the 75 mile route for the comparatively small sum of $3.00. The service has just been established.

People of Putnam helped to make up the vast invisible audience that listened in over the radio to the Delaney-Heeney fight Thursday evening. Many of the merchants had the radios out on the street so the folks that did not have a set at home might enjoy the fight as much as those who had paid for a ringside seat. The reception was clear and everybody who enjoys the thrill that comes from hearing the events that take place in the squared ring of boxing went home or went to bed satisfied. Yet many fans who had wagers on the dashing "rapier" of the north as great sportswriters term Delaney, had their alibis to offer when the battle had stopped at the end of the fifteenth round, and the decision was given to Tom Heeney the pugilist from Australia.

CITY IN DARKNESS WHEN POWER FAILS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Mar. 2—The city was left in total darkness Thursday evening when a power feeder from the Eastern Connecticut Power company's main supply line in Montville was short circuited. The power house in Mechanicsville started to restore to the city the power by means of a water generator which was able to carry the load to the homes. The house current was off just seven and one half minutes, while the street lights were out for more than fifteen minutes, as the water generators that were running in Mechanicsville were unable to carry the excessive load. Other towns between Putnam and Norwich were without light for more than fifteen minutes.

A four stroke alarm brought the hook and ladder company from the central fire station to extinguish a chimney fire at 181 School street. The dwelling was owned by Mrs. Hattie Miller of Woodstock avenue. More than forty gallons of chemicals were used to overcome the chimney blaze. Chief Thurston of the fire department reported that there was little damage done to the house.

JEWETT CITY

REALTORS ARE HOPEFUL OF GOOD SPRING SALES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 2—There are indications that the opening of spring will see a number of important real estate deals. New York buyers within the last ten years have taken over more than $20,000 worth of farm property in the outlying districts of Griswold, and in most cases have made good themselves, or negotiated other sales, quite often to Polish people, who have, every one, more than doubled the values of the properties. One dealer in real estate showed today that he had five parcels of local property, with probable disposal only a few weeks ahead. He told of two farms in this vicinity which were sold, "almost," he said, "for a song," to Polish homemakers. Today the tax lists show that both have trebled in value.

The men of the Congregational church put up a clam chowder supper, Thursday, that has passed into history with a record for excellence which only King George Jacques can establish. The tables were filled, and filled again. The king had selected native quahaugs, and "Een" Cheney worked overtime to open two gallons of Albertine's, finest and best, right from the Scarboro sands. E. L. French, superintendent of the church school had the supper in charge, and was largely responsible for its success.

The waiters were in charge of Earl S. Hiscox, head waiter and were Norman B. Parkhurst, John T. Stewart, William Marshall, Gerald Wolf, Everett Thornton, Arthur Goodenough, Earl Robinson. L. G. Buckingham was cashier.

The advance ticket sellers were Andrew McNicol, Edward Richardson, Donald Buckingham, Earl Robinson, William Stebbins, Arthur Goodenough and Donald Nichols. The food solicitors were Earl Robinson and Walter Richardson Jr.

Jewett City Chapter American Red Cross has received a letter from Major Paul Bock, A. C. at France field, Canal Zone, acknowledging the gift of one of the chapter's Christmas bags. He writes "Upon my return from leave I received a bag as a Christmas gift from your chapter. Please accept my hearty thanks. I have seen soldiers who are being transported carrying these little vari-colored Christmas bags, and I am sure that in many, many instances there is a strong hunger upon the part of lonely soldiers to be remembered in such a fashion. I believe it is unnecessary to do anything for the officers because most of them make the army their life career and adapt themselves to the conditions of their life." It is signed in warm appreciation of the efforts for our enlisted soldiers and sailors.

It is often said to members of the chapter "I don't believe the men ever get the bags." This letter and other cards received prove that is not true—also how much they are appreciated.

On the Jewett City alleys last night, the Glasgo Pennents won from the Glasgo Giants. The high single 125 was bowled by L. Grenier. The high total 312 was bowled by L. Grenier.

VOLUNTOWN

ONLY ONE DIPHTHERIA CASE IN THE TOWN

A news item in Thursday's Bulletin stating that churches and moving picture theatre were closed on account of several cases of diphtheria was incorrect, as the churches held their usual services. The theatre was closed at Manager James' suggestion, as an aid to the town health officer, Mrs. Emily Chatfield, in preventing contagion among the children. There was only one case of diphtheria in town, that of Miss Josephine Bebo, who is making rapid recovery. Three other children were under observation and quarantined. Every reasonable means was taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

WESTMINSTER

RURAL CARRIER PEARL COVERS 30-MILE ROUTE

These are strenuous days for Uncle Sam's R. F. D. men. The unusual rainfall this winter has caused bad washouts and in some instances water has eaten channels under the roadbed, making travel extremely dangerous. This, followed by cold weather, left deep ruts. Some of the outlying roads have been in almost impassable condition for days at a time, yet only once has Reuben Pearl, the R. F. D. man, failed to cover his entire 30 mile route, and to the usual question of patrons along the line, "Have you got my Norwich Bulletin?" comes the cheery answer, "Sure, I have!"

An incident of where it was "all in the family" occurred recently on Westminster hill. Fred Green, returning from Plainfield, had just made the turn off the state road by the church, driving his Ford, when he struck a place in the road where the water was seeping under the surface, and down he went. In trying to extricate the car from the hole he broke a gear, which rendered it useless. Later he got his brother, Nathan Green, with the yoke of cattle belonging to his father, Amos Green, and they hauled the car home. A short time after Ray Green with his brother, Archie Green, came along in their roadster and got mired in the same hole. The boys succeeded in getting their car out, but in a damaged condition. That particular bad place is a part of a new road recently cut through, to connect with the state road, and has not become settled yet.

PLAINFIELD

Voters of the town of Plainfield are to meet March 1st for the laying of a tax on the grand list of 1927. The board of relief has left the final figures $6,097,223. This is $101,709 less than last year. At the present tax rate of 23 mills the colections should be less than in the previous year by about $2,330. The board of relief did not change the total as left by the assessors. Selectman H. J. Bessette would make no definite statement as to what rate would be required but he indicated that he did not expect a change from the present one, of 23 mills.

ILLINOIS GAS TAX

The attack upon the constitutionality of the gasoline tax law of the state of Illinois was made by the Chicago Motor club. The effort was successful and the law has been declared unconstitutional by the highest court in that state. The club has won but it is believed it has done a big dis-service to the state and placed a handicap on road building in that state which will have its greatest reaction against the motorists themselves.

When the gasoline tax is imposed as in Connecticut, it affects solely those who use the highways and the proceeds from the tax go to the construction and maintenance of highways. Thus the ones who pay the tax are the ones who get the benefit, and those who pay the gasoline tax do so only to the extent that they use the highways. If they do not drive a car the tax amounts to nothing to them. If they drive it only a few hundred miles it is almost nothing and if they are constantly on the road there is no great sum which is exacted from them.

On the other hand those who own or ride in autos know that if it were not for the good roads there would be little interest in the motor vehicles. The increase in autos has created a demand for better roads and more of them. These demands are constantly being heard and will be as long as there are unimproved roads. There is nothing about the gasoline tax but what all those who are affected by it should welcome. If it affects only the auto owners it is evident that they are the ones getting practically all the benefit, and the average tax is of little significance. If there were no such tax and the road building appropriations for all the work that is done had to be obtained by a property tax there would be less chance of getting it and motoring conditions would be far less satisfactory.

It will be interesting to note the result of the motor club's victory in Illinois, since if the motorists themselves are not willing to stand for the slight tax for something that is for their particular benefit it is not improbable that the general taxpayers will be unwilling to assume the burden.

THE MOFFAT TUNNEL

In the quest for speed, reduced operating costs, lessened hazards much progress is being made through the bridging of rivers, digging canals, tunneling under streams, straightening transportation lines and highways and take by flying through the air. It was only a short time ago that the opening of the highway under the Hudson river was occasion for special attention being given to the engineering feat that was accomplished in its construction. It contributed greatly to the relief of the congestion in the big city and the speeding up of vehicular traffic from one side to the other of the river.

For the same reason attention cannot fail to be halted by the opening of the Moffat tunnel under the great divide. This pierces the mountains for a distance of more than six miles, means a reduction of 23 miles in the railroad line, eliminates the heavy and costly grades and covers the distance in 12 minutes that required seven hours by the former route over the mountain pass.

The engineer for whom the tunnel is named and who gave the best of his life to it died before its completion. For 30 years he had worked on it although only five years were actually required for construction. It stands at the present time as the longest tunnel in the country and in North America but one underway in British Columbia promises to be slightly longer.

The Moffat tunnel has been completed at a cost of $18,000,000 but justification for this is to be found in the reduced operating railroad expense and the opportunities which it affords for further decreasing distances such as the contemplated elimination of a distance of 172 miles between Denver and Salt Lake City by the Denver and Rio Grande by the construction of a 12 mile cutoff. Some years have passed since the example for such construction was set by the building of the Hoosac tunnel back in 1873 but expense is being given a secondary place in these days when efforts are directed toward the cutting down of distance by going through instead of over or around.

DROPPING GOODWIN

There has been a change of registrars of motor vehicles in the neighboring state of Massachusetts. Registrar Goodwin has been dropped and George A. Parker has been named in his place. This replacement has not been occasioned by any failure to attend to duty on the part of Mr. Goodwin for he has been most alert in the administration of that office. It came about as the result of his activities in other directions and his clash with the governor on a question of veracity in connection therewith.

Had Mr. Goodwin stuck to his own, goodsized job for which he was particularly qualified and in which he has been most successful he would still be registrar. It was when he overstepped and began treading upon the toes of others in a manner which was certain to cause trouble that he experienced difficulties.

For the past eight years Mr. Goodwin has been an active head of the motor vehicle department of Massachusetts. He has fought persistently for the enforcement of the laws, demanded better laws for the safety of the public in the highways and waged many campaigns for better driving. He has been cognizant of the dangers caused by drivers under the influence of liquor and has not hesitated to place the responsibility for the effects of leniency upon the courts and other authorities in repeated instances. He hasn't always succeeded in his efforts and he hasn't always been right, but he has been a highly valuable official in that particular office.

It is entirely possible that just as effective results will be obtained by the employment of different tactics, and Massachusetts is going to have a chance to make comparisons in this respect under the new commissioner.

Mr. Goodwin is a man who is ready to assume large responsibilities. Could he refrain from overstepping he would overcome one of his great handicaps and the cause of many of his troubles. Whether or not the whole trouble rested on his shoulders in the controversy that resulted in his discharge a little discretion at the right time would have eliminated further difficulties and he would still be in the office where he has made such an excellent impression upon the people of Massachusetts and others who have been interested in his stand for greater safety in Massachusetts highways. He goes, but he must realize his own faults in connection therewith.

ILLEGAL ENTRANTS

It is perfectly evident that the testimony of a girl in New York to the effect that she had paid to be smuggled into this country, got across the border and was caught does not prove that there are thousands who come into the country every year illegally, but by the same reason it doesn't prove that such is not the case. It shows quite conclusively that there are those who are engaged in this alien smuggling business and those who are anxious to be smuggled and the very fact that such is the case indicates that the business must be good and success likely.

Sliding people across the border is not the only way of getting them into the country in violation of the immigration laws. Crews of vessels are constantly deserting in our ports and remaining. As long as they keep out of trouble they stand a good chance of not being molested, this being the case particularly of those whose presence here is not known.

When the authorities figure that there are thousands getting in by violating the law there is probably good and sufficient reason for it, but it becomes evident that a check-up on all illegal entrants might be made if it was necessary for all aliens to register in this country. Under such a system they would not find the encouragement that exists today of slipping across the borders, of being dropped along the shores or of deserting from ships. Those who have a right to be here would have the proper registration papers to prove it. Those who could not produce such proof would be less willing to get in by ducking under the tent.

MARSHAL DIAZ

How far we are getting from the World war is indicated by the passing of some of the great leaders in that conflict. It was only a few days ago that Field Marshal Haig of England was suddenly taken and now Marshal Diaz of Italy has yielded to a long period of ill health.

It was after the disastrous setback that Italy received at Caporetto, and when it was facing a serious situation, that Diaz was called to command the Italian forces. He had been doing successful work in command of a corps and he had in other previous campaigns ably demonstrated unusual ability. He was relied upon to stop the advance of the Austrians. They were headed for Venice and had been successful in their efforts. They had gained ground, captured many men and much equipment and the morale of the Italian army was none too good as the consequence.

Diaz did, however, just what was expected of him. He put new courage into the fighting forces, threw back the Austrians on the Piave by a magnificent defense and followed it up by equally gratifying results in stopping the enemy on the Assiago plateau. Those defensive movements had a wonderful effect upon the army and upon Italy and gave him a chance to rest upon his laurels until he could make the necessary preparations for that drive which he began in the summer of 1918 and which resulted in the rout of the Austrian forces.

Diaz was not only acclaimed for his victory at the time but recognized later by being made minister of war in the new government and later was made marshal. For the last four years his activities had been restricted by poor health.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Within the period of a single century have the words "telegram" and its cognate "telegraph" come into vogue. As a prefix the word "tele" in these latter days is being worked for all it is worth. The words "telegram" and "telegraph" became so financially successful that keen business and scientific men began to hatch out new schemes which they could add to the money-making "tele." After some years of heart-breaking failures, someone hitched on to it the new word "phone," and hence we have "telephone." The huge success of the latter has made scientists almost crazy for another "tele," and now we have "television." The electrical expert of the Westinghouse company has very recently come out with his "televox." Thus it is, we are almost constantly having new things with "tele" as a prefix. We are sometimes reminded that there is "nothing new under the sun." In support of this we are told that the "I tele what" man is always with us.

From every point of view one is perfectly justified in bearing a little hard on February as a month immortalized by the births of so many men, who, while they were so perfectly unlike, are entitled to the fame that posterity has given them. One hardly needs to mention the two outstanding political figures who head the list. Some others are names which America will not allow her people to forget, and that very justly. On Friday the 10th, Daniel Boone and Thomas A. Edison were born; the former in 1735 and the latter in 1847. In some respects these two men were most strikingly unlike, while along other lines one can see points of likeness. Both were pioneers in the field of discovery. Boone discovered territory, and put it on the map. Edison greatly increased our knowledge by making known the hidden potency of one of the greatest forces that the earth contains, electricity.

In the first paragraph, the writer had something to say—or, at least he thought he had,—on the various inventions that have the prefix "tele" attached to them. He thinks he can see a mere glimmer of logic between paragraphs one and two. In number two he puts emphasis on the month of February. Lest we forget that some great men were born in other than February, he would mention that March comes in for a bit of immortality, and with some show of reason. Eighty-one years ago this very day, March 3, 1847, Alexander Graham Bell was born in Edinburgh, Scotland. (This was about a month later than the birth of Thomas A. Edison.) As we all know, Alexander Bell had more to do with making the telephone a usable thing than any other man. It is in this that the writer would join the first paragraph with its "teles" to the second with its great men. At present we are too near Alexander Graham Bell to appraise him at his right value.

After all isn't it rather hard to name any one month and say this is the greatest one of all for the production of great men and women? When one comes to the 15th of this month, if he doesn't pause for a moment, he certainly is not well versed in American history. There he will find this sentence: "Andrew Jackson, 7th president of the United States, born, 1763. "Even if that was long ago, Jackson is not a name to be sneezed at even if "Old Hickory" was himself an inveterate snuff-taker. His place in American democracy is secure. Then on the next day, the 16th, there stands before us the immortal name of James Madison, 4th president, born, 1751, one of the "Big Four" of which Virginia may be justly proud. Then jumping over one day which I hate to do because it is St. Patrick's Day, we come to the 18th, the birthday of the sturdy Grover Cleveland. March is truly immortal!

The writer stood one day in a great railroad terminal. On one of the numerous railroad tracks stood a massive locomotive. The fires were burning, pressure up, every bearing inspected and oiled. The entire machinery was the very embodiment of potential force—but it was still, it did not move an inch. With all its vast possibilities as an entity in itself, it was absolutely useless; it was only fit for the scrap head. At length a small, thin-faced man came along, swung into the cab, touched some of the delicate machinery with the ease and coolness of one who knew just what he was about. At once the mighty mass of iron began to snort and then move, at first slowly, and then increasing until it reached a speed of forty or more miles an hour conveying a long train to Boston — yes, a perfect machine, but nothing unless a man was behind it. Man is always first in the scheme of things.

Speaking of Man as a generic idea reminds me how much we need men as well as man—men who in their combined capacity can do things that ought to be done, and among the things that ought to be done is to enforce all great moral facts that underlie law. It must be admitted that while Prohibition has accomplished much it might do much more if sharper teeth were put into the matter of enforcement. Personally the writer does not feel that it ought to be sold as a beverage at all, that is, of course, intoxicating liquor. Yet he feels there is just cause for criticism when millionaire clubhouses find no difficulty in getting stocked up. The poor fisherman often has his shabby boat searched, but the costly yatch that plies regularly between New York and other cities are rarely ever touched when beached near these magnificent establishments. Prohibition is not going to function properly, as long as such discriminating is made.

Much is being said in these days about church unity, but there is only one thing that will ever bring it about, and that is by actually uniting. We may talk about it till Doomsday, but we won't get one iota near to real unity until there is a unity of spirit among God's people. The matter of having the same form of church service is of very minor importance; neither is it of much importance that all churches should have the same creed. Probably no two churches of the same order now have identical creeds. If there is in our churches a burning desire to extol the life and spirit of our common Lord; if there is a disposition to cary the spirit and light of the Gospel into all the dark spots of the earth, until this earth of "will bud and blossom as the rose," who cares for those little, hair-splitting differences in theology which nobody ever understood and today cares absolutely nothing for!

During the period in which our churches are holding special services, one session is given to the consideration of Fear. The exact title of the subject is, The Conquest of Fear. For general purposes we may say that there are three types of fear, and strangely enough, the one from which we suffer most is the imaginary; the one that doesn't exist at all outside of our over-wrought fancy. Somethings loom up terribly big and awful before we face them squarely, and then they have the strange habit of slinking somewhat into the background, and then if we follow with some degree of determination, they will entirely disappear. The second type of fears are those that come from our bad living. For instance a man surmises that dyspepsia is coming on, and then he realizes how outrageously he has abused his stomach. The third type of fears is the real ones, and the only thing for us to do is to face them with knowledge, courage and faith.

MORE REMINISCENSES OF FORT NED:

Not since the flood has a place or location been more effectually put back onto the map, than Fort Ned, writes E. C. Peck of Willimantic.

For a place so completely gone to decay, it has in the past few months, received more notoriety than it did in its days of prosperity, except the time when C. A. Hilbert was elected as representative of the town, which I will tell more of later.

Since the question was asked by Winter Robin and the answer given, there have been other references to the place.

Last but not least, the splendid letter of recent date by Johnnycake in the Social Corner, gives a most comprehensive mind view of the Nipmuck trail, embellished by views and homes along the way from Hanover, to and above Fort Ned, and a side trip to the surrounding neighborhood, all of which is very familiar to me.

As the origin and history has been given of its industries, I think a letter giving something of a history of its social life will be interesting to the Bulletin readers and the contributors to the Social Corner.

Previous to converting the Crandall mill into a woolen mill, it required less help to produce yarn and twine than for that of finished cassimere, such as that turned out after the purchase of the property by Mr. Bachelder.

Hours in the yarn mill were long —12 hours a day and five and a half days a week, so there was but little disposition on the part of the operatives to indulge in social matters. The members were few, not more than ten or twelve made up the compliment of the total of three families, represented by as many nationalities.

After equipping the mill for the manufacture of woolen goods it necessitated more help. Soon the 12 tenements were filled and the hours of work were lessened, ten hours a day and half holiday Saturday.

During the winter months the operatives would congregate in some one or two houses for social games of cards, checkers, dominoes, etc. Pop corn and apples and occasionally some of Uncle Newt's cider with nuts were relished. They were like one big happy family. When summer came they congregated about the houses, or under the shade trees. Some musical instrument was played, while singing accompanied it.

Religious Services.

Mr. Bachelder often took his dinner at my home, as he lived at Eagleville and drove up to the mill mornings and returned at night. While sitting at the table one day my mother suggested that as there were so many in the village and no church nearer than Westminster, Scotland or Hanover, many might like to attend religious worship. Mr. B. thanked my mother for the suggestion and at once arranged for such services and notice was given out for a meeting. A minister secured for the next Sunday p. m. services were held under the large trees just to the north and east of the bridge, and sometimes in a grove a few rods west of the village.

Services were well attended and greatly enjoyed by the villagers and those of the surrounding neighborhood. These meetings were kept up pleasant Sundays through the summer.

After the purchase of the property by Mr. Hilbert nearly all the help remained in the village. Some slight changes in machinery were made, necessary for the making of a different quality of goods. Mr. Hilbert was of a most generous nature, so also was his wife.

Any sickness among the families of the operatives was quickly looked after. If a doctor was necessary some one was despatched to call him to attend to the needy one. A daily visit was paid to the family by Mr. H. or his good wife. No delicacies were withheld that would be relished by the convalescing one.

First Dance Hall.

Soon after his purchase of the property he bought additional land and commenced the building of the mansion on the hill overlooking the village. The grounds were beautified by terraces; fruit trees and flowering shrubs, made beautiful the once barren field. Commodious outbuildings were built, and when finished all represented an outlay of upwards of $20,000.

The mill roof covering the cleansing, dyeing and finishing department was nearly on a level, built thus for the drying of the wool. A substantial railing was built around it. The young people and even the older ones suggested that it was a grand place for dancing. The subject was broached to Mr. Hilbert, the roof was tested as to safety and was pronounced all right and permission was given to dance there as much as they pleased when not in use. Two of the neighborhood boys, my brother Dwight, and Mellen Smith, amateurs on the violin, were engaged to play for the dances. Mellen was prompter, Their playing was in good time, but not up to the smoothness and rhythm produced by the resin and bow on a violin in the hands of Harry Hazen, or "All Ready Mr. Cady." Once or twice a week, particularly Saturday nights through the summer up to nearly midnight their joys were unbounded. With the cutting away of most of the wooded growth in the pasture between my home and the village, and on quiet evenings with wind in the right direction, the music, calling, laughter and the shuffle of the merry dancers were plainly heard from the west windows of our house as they tripped the light fantastic toe to the music of Opera Reel, Money Musk, Lancers, Devil's Dream, Arkansas Traveler and the Irish Washerwoman. Oh, but those were the happy days!

Mr. Hilbert's Political Campaign.

Toward the last of February a political bee lighted in Mr. Hilbert's bonnet, suggesting that he might receive the nomination as a republican to represent the town of Canterbury in the assembly. With some little canvassing he found out that many were agreeable to putting him in nomination which they did at their caucus soon held. There was some shaking of heads in doubt of his ever being elected. Even some of his own party expressed some doubt of his being able to overcome the political influence of the Hon. M. H. Sanger and that of some of his trusted lieutenants pitted against him. Canterbury normally was democratic.

Some said, "It is laughable to think that that little Dutchman who operates a little four set woolen mill at Fort Ned should think of being elected to the legislature." Mr. Hilbert was a well educated man, sporty, but no soap box orator, as he told the members of the caucus. That he had no promises to make beyond that if he was elected he would use his influence and vote for such measures as he believed to be for the best interests of the state and town in which he lived. He quietly made a canvass of those of the democrats, most susceptible to a certain influence, but not of money. Upon his meeting them, or some one delegated by him, there was presented to them, according to conditions and members of the family, an order for a barrel of flour, or a certain amount of sugar, a pork or beef ham, pair of boots or shoes, calico or gingham for a dress to the wife or daughter, a selection of any quality or pattern of cassimere for a suit, to be made up by Jacob Frey, the village tailor. Frey was to select such trimmings as was suited to the material. Some asked what the order meant. They were answered by the asking of a question, "Can't you use it?" He made no promises, or exacted none.

As a clerk, one of my duties was to check off the load of whatever was brought from Norwich by the teamer, Dwight Kimball. Mostly his loads consisted of raw material, wool, dye stuffs, oil, etc., for the mill.

One night in particular I was surprised to find his four horse load consisted of flour, sugar, beef and pork hams, bolts of calico, gingham and other dry goods, boots and shoes.

In a day or two, orders were presented for the delivery to the bearer such articles as the order called for. I was instructed to fill such orders. We did a lively business for several days. Many a housewife was put to her wit's end to find place for the round hooped barrel of Niagara flour; a five or ten pound package had been the usual purchase at a time. No longer did the sugar scoop strike with a thud the bottom of the piggin, but buried itself in the depth of granulated sweetness. The quantity formerly brought from the store was barely sufficient to sweeten, from day to day the two quart runlet of good old New England or Santa Cruz purchased from a dispensary in Scotland. Savory ham cooking, filled the kitchen with its appetizing odor. The cook became extravagant in her culinary department. The doughnuts had a smaller hole, surrounded by a thicker ring; cookies and cakes graced the table. Pies with flaky crust and varied composition was a treat. White bread and biscuits took the place of the toothsome johnny cake and brown bread. New shoes and red topped boots with copper toes took the place of the runover-to-the-heel boots of the boy with his face of tan. New boots for the husband looked well with the new suit; the creation of Jake's the Tailor. The good wife was proud of her Morocco shoes, and her new gingham or calico dress was admired as she appeared on the street or walked down the aisle in church. Mr. Hilbert's unique and convincing oratory resulted in his election by a good substantial majority, showing plainly that his style of argument prevailed against the soapbox oratory of the opposing party. If I remember rightly, Captain Walter Smith of Gay Mead, one of Canterbury's highly esteemed citizens was Mr. Hilbert's colleague.

Election Celebration.

After the election a celebration was next in order. Word was sent out to that effect and a general invite was extended to all who wished to attend regardless of politics, to share in the festivities. The mansion was hardly large enough to hold the crowd; they came from the furthermost parts of the town. Many of the unterrified and uncompromising were there to share in the banquet. After a few hours of social intercourse and sampling of some of Stiner's or Vetter's good sound lager, they were invited to take seats at the tables, groaning under the weight of the chef's culinary art. Mrs. Hilbert and maid, Miss Bena Liebe, assisted by some of the ladies of the village, attractively dressed, served at the table. After the lunch, smoking, singing and speechmaking were indulged in, assisted by a little more lager (no hard stuff). Everything passed off pleasantly. No unnecessary noise or boisterousness. Before departing for their homes they wished Mr. Hilbert Godspeed and prosperity in all his undertakings, success as a legislator, and heaped unlimited thanks upon the "little Dutchman who was but a proprietor of a four set woolen mill at Fort Ned."

As far as I ever knew he deported himself creditably as a representative. In education he was far superior to a former representative many years ago. Mr. A. was a prosperous farmer, honorable in all dealings with his fellow man, but his early education had been somewhat neglected. This story was told of him. One night at the capital the representatives congregated in one of the rooms at the hotel where they were stopping, indulging in telling experiences, story telling, etc. As they were about to retire for the night, one of them, with all seriousness, asked Mr. A. who had a peculiar manner of speech (sounding his D instead of his G), what should be done with a man who committed suicide. After a moment's thought he made this reply, "Dood Dod, he ought to be made to pay $500 and marry the dal."

All Changed Now.

With the suspension of business, vacating of tenements and the departure of Mr. Hilbert to other fields of activity, much to the regret of the operatives and many neighbor friends, the death knell of all business and social life was sounded until the coming of the paper mill. After its destruction by fire and later the mansion on the hill, all social and business life came forever to a close. Soon decay and pillage commenced the complete destruction of the remaining buildings.

Today the phoebe, harbinger of spring, no longer finds a nesting place. No longer do we hear the twitter of the swallow from her straw built shed. The murmur of the water in its normal stage, flowing over at the dam and through the fast decaying flume where once turned the busy turbine, sounds a sad requiem for the passing away of the once quiet and happy Ford, or Fort Ned.

The conditions can be described no better than by Goldsmith's Deserted Village. With slight variation I will quote some portion of it.

Quiet social village, loveliest of the dell,
Where a happy people once did dwelt;
Amid thy bowers the fiery hand is seen,
And desolation saddens all thy green.
No more thy glassy brook reflects the day,
But, choked with sedges, works its weedy way
Along the glades, a solitary quest.
The hollow-sounding heron guards its nest.
How often have I paused on every charm,
The mansion on the hill, the cultivated farm.
The never failing brook, the busy mill,
The dear old home that topped the neighboring hill.
The spreading tree, with seats beneath the shade,
For talking age, and whispering lovers, made.
Now, many a year elapsed, I return to view
Where once the mansion stood, the sweet roses grew;
Remembrance wakes with all its busy train,
Swells at my throat, and turns the past to pain.

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

By Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D. D., Federal Council of Churches in America — Copyright 1928.

"The Healing Touch"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "As many as touched (him) were made whole" (Matthew 14:36).

Read: Matthew 9:18-26.

MEDITATION: One of the tenderest titles ever given to Jesus is "The Great Physician." The gospels are replete with stories of His acts of healing. Explain these recoveries as we may, we cannot fail to recognize that in some way He restored the health of many afflicted people. Jesus continually ascribes this to faith. He awakened faith in God as Friend of the sufferer. He awakened men's faith in themselves and stirred them to cooperative activity. Faith and prayer are healing forces. No informed, open-minded man can doubt that among the mighty restoring factors in life are prayer and the trustful spirit so perfectly exemplified in Jesus. This attitude gives strength, courage and hope.

"The healing of His seamless dress
"Is by our beds of pain;
"We touch Him in life's throng and press
"And we are whole again."

PRAYER: Thou has bidden us to come to Thee when our hearts are heavy-laden. Thou art our refuge, eternal God. Underneath are the everlasting arms and round about us is Thy faithful love. Thou are our rock and our salvation; we rest in Thee. Amen.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Taxes on personal property and real estate paid during the taxable year 1927 are deductible. So-called taxes assessed against local benefits, such as street paving or drainage, which tend to increase the value of the property assessed are not deductible, since they are considered as constituting the cost of a permanent improvement.

The federal income tax may not be deducted. However, income taxes imposed upon the income of individuals by states may be deducted by an individual on his federal income-tax return.

The federal estate tax is deductible from the gross income of the estate of a decedent in process of administration in ascertaining net income of the estate subject to the tax.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductible. Admission taxes are deductible but the taxpayer must show that account has been kept of the amount paid during the year. Guesswork will not be accepted.

Taxes are deductible as such only by the persons upon whom they are imposed. Thus, the excise taxes imposed upon the sales by manufacturers of automobile chassis and bodies and motorcycles are not deductible by the purchaser, even though such taxes are billed to him as separate items.

Sunday Morning Talk

Looking at the Unseen

If some one of us had money invested in some unseen property but which he firmly believed would prove a rich investment, how often his thoughts would turn to it; what an encouragement if at a certain time he was sure to come into a great, or what would be a great, fortune.

Such ought to be the Christian's faith and feeling; he has rich possessions, unseen, but as real as the things that are seen. His faith ought to be such as to make these things real to his heart and cause him to feel rich in his unseen possessions.

But many of us are lacking in this faith which makes unseen things real to our mind. We believe, in a way, in the realities of the world to come. We assent to the teachings of the scripture on this subject, notwithstanding our belief in the Bible we live as if there was little outside of this world worth striving for. We look too little to the things unseen.

One cause of the want of zeal and joy in religion: these unseen things are not real to our minds as the things that are seen, and we are not striving as earnestly as we should. We have faith but it does not amount to a firm conviction of the reality of that which is beyond this world and does not cause us to set our eyes upon it. And so we do not feel rich in the possession of heavenly treasure, which should mean the greater of all things in our life. We need the inspiration of Paul, whose greatest aim was to live and work for the Master. He could well say at the end of the journey, I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing. 2 Tim. 4:7.

Stories That Recall Others

Easily Satisfied

Thomas did not like mathematics. He had been absent when long division in algebra had been developed, and on his return to school had been unable to grasp the subject.

The day for the test came and, sure enough, there was a problem in long division. Thomas copied it, studied it thoroughly for a few minutes and without the least attempt to solve it, wrote underneath it the following note: "Dear Teacher—If you will give me five on this problem I'll be satisfied. Thomas."

No Difference

Marjorie had started to school and had won her way to the head of the class. Then for some reason she became inattentive and had to be placed at the foot. The mother felt this keenly and took the matter up with Marjorie.

"Why, Marjorie, don't you feel ashamed to be at the foot of the class when you can be at the head?" asked the mother.

"Oh," said Marjorie with a toss of her head, "what's the difference? The lessons are the same at both ends."

YOUR HEALTH

The Danger of a Boil

By Charles F. Kuhn, M. D., Detroit, Member Gorgas Memorial.

The common knowledge of boils dates to the time of Job, recorded in Holy Writ, when the evil spirit was credited with having afflicted him from head to foot with boils.

Boils, to the average person, are considered the results of impurities in the blood and are thought to be nature's way of ridding the system of poisons. Many people still believe the old tradition that "Every boil is worth five dollars."

A boil is an inflamed and infected hair follicle. Its technical name is furuncle. The germ known as staphylococcus is the common organism causing most boils.

Lowered resistance, diabetes mellitus, systemic infection due to diseased teeth, tonsils, nose, ears, appendix, gall bladder or fistula, irritation of clothing, scratching, uncleanliness, skin contact with oils, tar or chemicals, also excessive indulgence in sweets are exciting causes of boils.

Boils occur commonly in hairy regions of the body—eyelids (styes), the canal of the ear, nose, back of the neck, face, limbs and arm pits.

People should be warned against the popular practice of self treatment for the cure of this supposedly common affliction with the numerous remedies so frequently prescribed. Sulphur, cream of tartar, drinking lead water, swallowing fine lead shots are a few of these common remedies which are inert and often harmful.

The local application of carbolic salve, soap and sugar, beeswax and sugar, hot tea leaves or flaxseed poultices, all of which macerate the skin, lower the resistance of the area involved and predispose to further the spread of infection, leading often to carbuncles with much suffering and danger.

Boils and carbuncles are nature's warning of devitalization, infection or systemic disease.

It is unsafe to attempt medication without ascertaining the cause.

Whitefoot Explains

Explanations smooth the way
And clear the atmosphere, they say.
—Whitefoot the Wood Mouse

Whitefoot ought to know. Certainly he had a lot of explaining to do. Mrs. Whitefoot wasn't in a good temper. No, sir, she wasn't in a good temper at all. I don't know as she was to be blamed. Remember that Whitefoot had apparently left her, and then when at last she did see him he had run away from her. Naturally, it would take a lot of explaining to get around such facts as those. Mrs. Whitefoot wasn't inclined to let Whitefoot do much explaining. She wanted to tell him just what she thought about him, and that was plenty.

"I've got a new home," squeaked Whitefoot at last.

Mrs. Whitefoot held her tongue for a moment and stared at Whitefoot as if she would look right through him. "And who, may I ask, is living in that new home with you?" she speaked.

"Bees," replied Whitefoot promptly. "I have some for breakfast every morning. It's the finest place to spend the winter you ever saw. It was to get you to go back there with me that I came away over here."

Little Mrs. Whitefoot sniffed. "Do you expect me to believe that?" she demanded.

"Of course I do," replied Whitefoot. "If I didn't expect you to believe it do you suppose I would have come way over here and left all that nice honey and those bees for breakfast every morning?

In spite of her desire not to believe, Mrs. Whitefoot felt her mouth beginning to water. "Don't those bees sting you?" she demanded.

Whitefoot shook his head. "No," said he, "you see, they are dead. All the live ones are up overhead and they don't move around this cold weather. I've got the nicest nest. All the time I was building it I kept thinking of you and how you would like that new home. Then, just as soon as I had finished it, I started over here to look for you."

"Where were you before you found this wonderful new home?" demanded little Mrs. Whitefoot, still suspicious.

"I had another lovely little home that Farmer Brown's boy made for me," replied Whitefoot. "Listen, my dear, and I'll tell you all about it."

So at last little Mrs. Whitefoot held her tongue. It was hard work, but she did it. Whitefoot began at the beginning and told her all that had happened to him. He told her how Black Bussy the Cat had caught him in the Green Forest and carried him up to Farmer Brown's. He told her how Farmer Brown's Boy had rescued him and then put him in a little house out in an apple tree near the old stone wall. He told her how always there was plenty of food there and what a wonderful place the old stone wall was and how at last he had gone exploring and had found the beehives. Then he told her how he had built his nest in one of these hives and then started to look for her. It was when he reached this point that Mrs. Whitefoot found her tongue again.

"But if you were looking for me why did you run away from me?" she demanded sharply.

"Because," replied Whitefoot, "I could hear your toenails on the snow, but that was all. You were behind me, so you could get the scent of my tracks, but I didn't have any footprints of yours to get the scent from. I was sure that you were Shadow the Weasel, so, of course, I ran. Now, my dear, say you'll go back to that lovely new home and have bees and honey every morning for breakfast."

"Wel-l-l," replied Mrs. Whitefoot slowly. Then she licked her lips. "When do we start?" she demanded.

Capt. F. W. Fitch

Capt. Francis Wayland Fitch, 71, died Thursday night at his home in Noank, after a three weeks' illness. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Captain Fitch was born in Groton, Dec. 4, 1856, the son of Nathan E. Fitch and Louise Chester Fitch. He had ben an active worker in the Noank Baptist church.

Of recent years he had been retired, but formerly he was a fisherman.

STORRS HENS DEFY WEEK'S COLD WEATHER

Continued cold weather of the past few days could not check the 1,400 pullets that are staging a fast egg laying race at Storrs, and during the 17th week production was increased two more points. "Blood will tell" runs an old saying, and one that fully applies to factor for egg production as the present competition clearly demonstrates. Bred for production, these birds refuse to stop for cold weather and they continue to add to the record that has already surpassed scores for the first 17 weeks in any previous Storrs laying trials. It's a little early, no doubt, to speak of breaking records, but already a gain of 9,335 eggs has been established over last year's record contest for the same period of time. All of which constitutes a good beginning for a record-breaking try, at least.

In shelling out 5,548 eggs for the 17th week, the contest flock produced at a rate of 56.6 per cent. This is 104 eggs more than the score for the preceding week and 563 eggs more than the production for the corresponding week a year ago. Total production to last Monday night was 80,406 eggs. This is an average of 574 eggs for each of the 140 competing pens, or better than 57 eggs per bird.

They're still going strong, meaning, of course, the pen of Rhode Island Reds, owned by Charlescote Farm from Sherborn, Mass. They laid 61 eggs to head the honor roll for the fifth consecutive week, gained 12 eggs on the ranking pen of White Leghorns owned by Broadview Farm of Winsted, Conn., and in the language of heavy continued production insisted they are very much "in the running," and expect to be more so in the future. The Charlescote birds are now in second place, 58 eggs behind the Broadview Leghorns.

GRAIN STORE FIRE WILL WIPE OUT 100 YEAR OLD WATER STREET BUILDING

One of the old landmarks of the Water street wholesale district, a building that has stood for more than 100 years, is about to be wiped out by the razing of the building where the Norwich Grain company has been doing business at 39-41 Water street. The disastrous fire of Feb. 18 made such a wreck of the building that it is to be torn down.

Although additions to it have been made through the years, the front part is the old original structure built more than 100 years ago and the heavy timbering to be seen there is an indication of the period in which it was built. This was when that part of the city was known as Chelsea, or the landing, and the adjacent wharves on the harbor front were the port for sailing vessels with cargoes of groceries, rum and general supplies.

An old deed of the property, given Dec. 3, 1828, describes it as a "certain lot of land with a store standing thereon situated in Chelsea," and links it with such well known names of that day as Breed and Backus. In this deed the property was transferred from John and James Breed for $600 to Joseph Backus, who was in the wholesale grocery business. The trade which Mr. Backus was engaged in seems to have determined the character of the occupancy of the building for many years. And those who did business there carried names well known in the commercial life of the 19th century.

At his death, so that when the late Ansel A. Beckwith bought the property for his grain business in Sept. 29, 1890 he received a deed from the trustee and heirs under the will of Joseph Backus.

After buying the building from John and James Breed in 1828, Joseph Backus continued in the ownership until May 6, 1846 when he deeded it to himself in partnership with Henry B. Norton, one of the best known names in the business world of Norwich of that time. Subsequently the property came again into the possession of Joseph Backus and was a part of his estate.

In the various firms that have conducted a wholesale grocery business there since the Backus and Norton combination, the list can be begun with Cady and Hammond in 1857, these partners being H. Cady and H. K. Hammond. In 1862 the firm had changed to Hammond and Huntington (H. G.,) and in 1866 it was Hammond, Huntington & Co., N. G. Lippitt having been added to the firm. In 1870 the firm name was Hammond & Co., as the late Calvin L. Harwood and George Lippitt had come into the firm. In 1872 the firm's title was Lippitt and Harwood and in 1881 it became George Lippitt & Co., when B. P. Bishop, now of the Bishop-Bidwell company, united in partnership with Mr. Lippitt.

The grain business came into this location in the spring of 1891 when Ansel A. Beckwith moved there after the grain business he had been conducting at 85 Water street had been burned out there.

Mr. Beckwith bought the property and continued in business until April 3, 1905, when he sold out to the Norwich Grain company of which the late George R. Havens was president at the time. Subsequently the Cutler company of Wilbraham, Mass., came into ownership of the property and the business and is the present owner.

OVER $2,000,000 PAID TO STATE IN FEBRUARY

Receipts for the state of Connecticut in February totalled $2,228,323.51, bringing the grand total of all receipts from July 1, 1927, the beginning of the fiscal year, to $25,827,433.33, it was announced by Edward F. Two other liquor cases were continued until next Monday. These are the cases against Mrs. Helen Lienkowski of Aqueduct street and Stanley Walenda of North Main street. The cases were continued at request of counsel for the accused. Both were arrested Thursday night after the police claimed to have secured evidence of actual sales of liquor.

Several of the Norwich ministers who have heard Dr. Howard say that he is "simply great." The public is advised by those in charge of the meetings to come early, as in all probability large audiences will be the rule at this splendid series of addresses.

Mrs. Dumont claimed that Mr. Hubbell failed to keep an oral agreement to give her the property, 273 Frank in street, where he lived, in return for her care for him. NOT THE GRANDSON OF A MULTI-MILLIONAIRE

DETROIT, March 2.—(AP)—His "gold spoon" turned to brass by the recent disclosure that he is not the grandson of Joseph Boyer, multi-millionaire executive of the Burroughs Adding Machine company, a four year old child who has borne the name of Joseph Boyer, II, now is threatened with deportation from the United States as an alien.

The child was born in Canada of humble parentage and, according to her own admission, was taken a few hours old by Mrs. Myron L. Boyer, wife of the son of Joseph Boyer, and represented as her son. She did this, she said, to "save her home."

Now there is a question as to whether the child was legally brought into this country, according to John L. Burbrick, district director of immigration.

Burbrick announced today he would ask Mrs. Boyer, who now has the child, to appear Monday with him before a special board of inquiry to determine whether the boy should be deported.

SEARCH BEING MADE IN ITALY FOR JAMES O'NEIL

SAN REMO, Italy, March 2.—(AP)—Consular officers aided by detectives are scouring every village of France in which James E. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, may have sought toavoid the spotlight which the United States senate committee is attempting to throw on the affairs of the Continental Trading company of Canada.

Mr. O'Neil had been thought to be visiting some where in this section of the Italian Riviera but the search for him has now turned toward France.

REGULARS AND SCRUBS GRAPPLE AT CAMPS

ATLANTA, March 2.—(AP)—Workouts in the southern training camps of major league clubs rapidly are approaching top speed as exhibition dates draw near and today saw many luminaries showing competitive form, as regulars and yannigans lined up for impromptu scraps.

Holdouts also are attracting attention of the managers, as yesterday marked the deadline on reporting, and some camps still are minus box office attractions of other years. Joe Judge deserted the hold out ranks today, signing with Washington again.

Joy reigned in the Athletic camp at Fort Myers, where Connie Mack is grooming his 1928 machine. Tris Speaker took his regular turn at bat, hitting many offerings square on the nose, then took a turn in the outfield. The news of Ty Cobb's coming reacted as a tonic.

In the Braves camp at St. Petersburg, there was also rejoicing, with Roger Hornsby's name on a 3 year contract, Manager Slattery started discussion today by sending Eddie Moore to the outfield to work out. In the other St. Petersburg camp, Miller Huggins devoted much of his attention to the rookies in batting and fielding practice.

At Bradenton, the Boston Red Sox were told that a six inning practice game would be staged tomorrow, Ken Williams, flagstead, Denny Williams, and Doug Taitt, southern association recruit, alternated in the outfield today.

Jess Haines warmed up today under the watchful eye of Manager Bill McKechnie in the Cardinal camp at Avon Park, and after looking over Haines' knuckle ball, bill indicated that he will get the call for a turn on the mound against the Boston Red Sox at Bradentown on Wednesday. Frankie Frisch went through his second workout today. Ray Blades was called to his home at McLeansboro, Ill., because of the death of his father.

Brooklyn's Robins took a full three hour workout at Clearwater. A large squad of late arrivals increased the recruits of the Phillies at Winter Haven. Manager Shotten has ordered a practice game tomorrow, to get a line on his club for his opening tilt with the Athletics at Fort Myers next Wednesday.

The Cincinnati Reds took batting and fielding practice at Orlando. The St. Louis Browns at Palm Beach staged the first game of the season for which admission was charged, facing an aggregation of barnstormers, coaches and newspapermen in a charity game.

Manager Bucky Harris donned his uniform at Tampa and the Senators in camp went through a stiff session. George Sisler and Garland Braxton answered present today, but Muddy Ruel, Pitcher Jones, Infielder Taylor, and outfielder Kloza are still absent.

Johnny Neun, first baseman, Charley Gherringer, second baseman and shortstop Frank Emmer of Minneapolis joined the Detroit Tigers at San Antonio.

Cleveland had a routine workout at New Orleans. The White Sox at Shreveport took two sessions.

John McGraw and his Giants welcomed Dave Walsh, outfielder, at Augusta, Ga., and went through two workouts.

One amusing incident of President Hindenburg's eightieth birthday was a visit to the presidential mansion of "the cuckoo man," a well-known Munich street character who is seventy-two and sells newspapers for a living. He had been delegated by a number of humble Hindenburg worshipers of Munich to deliver a parcel of cakes and sausages to the president as a birthday gift. So affably did the president receive him that the "cuckoo man" was quite overcome with the emotion of it all and forgot all about the president. He went home again with the parcel under his arm.

ACADEMY STARTS STRONG BUT WINDHAM SOON TAKES LEAD AND WINS, 37 TO 20

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 2—Norwich Free Academy made a galaint stand for a time here tonight but after the first quarter succumbed to the attack of the formidable Windham high quintet and lost 37 to 20. A banner crowd packed the state armory for the second game of the annual series between these two old rivals and although the final score wasn't close still some nice basketball went on display.

The visitors ran up a 6 to 0 lead in the opening minutes and they were in the van for most of the first period However, the locals started and overhauled the visitors in the dying moments of the first canto. The teams were battling fairly even early in the second half when Les Pingree, Norwich's dependable center, went out with a wrenched ankle and with his departure the Red and White seemed to lose some of its vim. The Whitneymen presented somewhat of a makeshift lineup that had little chance for the rest of the way of going ahead. Windham led, 23 to 13, at halftime.

Pingree, holding the highest average of eastern Connecticut's leading high school players, did not score tonight, the first time that he has been held away from the basket this season. This was, of course due to his injury and had he been in there throwing in his usual 14 or 15 points then probably the locals would have had more trouble in winning.

Meet Stonington Here Tonight

The Academy clashes with Stonington here tonight at the Y gym in the closing Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island interscholastic league clash of the season. The locals will tie Stonington for second place by winning tonight and the affair ought to be a most spirited one all the way. Stonington won by a big margin at Stonington earlier in the season but everything points to something different this time. Comparing the scores of each team with Windham, the Academy has a slight edge.

In the preliminary the Y Emps will take the place of an Academy second team in meeting the Stonington Seconds. This game starts at 8 o'clock with the main attraction at 9 p. m.

JACK SHARKEY IS NOW READY TO HIT TOP SPEED

BOSTON, March 2—(AP)—Jack Sharkey, Boston semi-finalist in the lower half of Tex Rickard's current heavyweight elimination tournament, is almost down to ring weight and ready to throw his training schedule into high speed.

After three weeks of steady preparation for the 15-round bout with Johnny Risko, of Cleveland in New York a week from Monday, Sharkey is down to 194 pounds, within two pounds of the weight he carried when he stopped Jimmy Maloney last May.

Due to the derby distance of the forthcoming bout, the Boston heavyweight title aspirant has increased his road work to six miles a day and his daily sparring stint to 10 rounds. He has foregone all outside activities and his trainer, Harry Kelley, says he is in the best condition he has been in since he fought Maloney.

Jack Gagnon and Tom Kirby have been acting as sparring partners in the daily gymnasium work that follows the morning jaunt around the Chestnut Hill reservoir. Lou Bogash is expected to be added to the list Monday and Sharkey's final week of preparation will see him stepping two rounds a day with each of his foils.

ATHLETICS NOW HAVE A REAL SLUGGING OUTFIELD

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—With Ty Cobb back in the fold the Athletics will boast one of the heaviest hitting outfield arrays in either big league.

Connie may pick his regulars from a quartet that averaged altogether better than .350 in the American league last year. Al Simmons topped the list with .392, Cobb had a mark of .357, Tris Speaker .327 and Bing Miller .325.

The cannonading also will reverberate when such combinations swing into action as the Cuyler-Stephenson-Wilson trio of the Cubs, the Waners and Barnhart of the Pirates, and the Ruth-Meusel-Combs array of the Yankees.

ELEANOR GOSS TAKES FLORIDA SINGLES CROWN

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 2—(AP)—Miss Eleanor Goss, New York, today won the woman's tennis singles Miss Clare Cassell, also of New York, 1927 champion, 6-1, 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.

DANIELSON TOWNERS MEET K. OF LITHUANIA TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 2—The Danielson Town Team is all ready for the Hartford Knights of Lithuania, classy little quintet, Saturday night at Danielson Town hall. AGGIES EXPECT TRINITY TO FURNISH REAL TEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 2.—A hard game is expected from Trinity by the Connecticut Aggies when the two meet tomorrow night. This fact has been drilled into the Aggie hoop squad by Coach Louis Alexander, who fears that his men may take the Trinitarians too lightly, especially since the Storrs five has been travelling at top speed of late to defeat teams like Springfield, Holy Cross and Rhode Island State.

Westerly Amateur Nines

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 2—To the winner of the Rhode Island-Connecticut Amateur Baseball league championship for the coming season, Lewis Solomon of Westerly has offered a silver cup.

Teams expected to enter the league this year are the Braves, Hilltops, Red Sox, Juniors and Hope A. C. all of Westerly; Trogan A. C. and Cottrell's A. C. of Pawcatuck; Algonquin club of Charlestown; Hope Valley A. C., White Rock A. C. and Olympic.

Organization of the league will be perfected at a meeting next Thursday night, March 8.

NEXT DUWELL SHOW ON TUESDAY, MARCH 13

Because of the fact that the armory will not be available for either Wednesday, Thursday or Friday nights of the coming week because of state inspections, the Duwell amateur boxing show originally scheduled for Friday, March 9, has been postponed to Tuesday, March 13. On that date the Duwells will present another all-star card featuring a big time team of the same calibre as the Worcester outfit which appeared here a week ago.

Regardless of where the team comes from it must have a heavyweight as the Duwell management promised Earl Champlain (Big Boy Burlap) of Westerly a sure bout when he failed to appear because of lack of opposition at the last show. Negotiations are now being made to secure either a Hartford, Springfield or New Haven squad of boxers for Tuesday the 13th.

In addition to the feature bouts which will see the headliners in action a number of scraps will be arranged so that the boys who are not so far along may get into the mix up. The lone mistake of the last show, (lack of seats), will be remedied so that the seating capacity of the Armory at the second Duwell indoor show will be 1500.

The entry blanks for the bouts are ready and may be obtained by addressing "Sports" Duwell A. A.

MARTINS RESUME ON HOME PITCH SUNDAY

After a three week's layoff on the home field the J. B. Martin soccer football team will resume activities on the home grounds when they clash with the fast Cottrell A. F. C. of Westerly Sunday.

This will be the third time that these two teams met each having one victory tucked away and each having won it on their home grounds. The locals have yet to be defeated on their home grounds and the management of the visitors, realizing that, is bringing up his strongest lineup to be the first to administer defeat to the Velvetmen on their home territory. On the other hand the local management is taking no chances and has put his team through a half hour drill daily and this afternoon the team will be put through a stiff two hour practice session starting at 2 o'clock.

The visitors have not let known their lineup, but the locals will lineup the same as in previous games. Tommie Addison who so ably handled the past contests will do the officiating Sunday again, while F. Laycock and Wagner will act as linesmen.

The kickoff will be at 2:30 p. m.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Academy and Stonington tonight.

A large crowd is expected over at the Y gym.

There's a rumor about that the C. F. C. have closed up shop for the year but nothing authentic is forthcoming.

The locals have done well, winning 14 and losing three.

That Rennaissance bunch proved too much for Plainfield again.

Danielson and Taftville will meet at the Plainfield Community house for the third game of their series, probably on a Thursday or Friday evening.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 2—Al Koziol, Norwich, Conn., lightweight, slugged his way to the Rhode Island state title here tonight with four knockouts in bouts that none of which went through the first round. 'BOUT SPORTS

The simple announcement of Contracts Received—Montreal, Joseph J. Faber, in this week's Sporting News bears testimony that the local flash is now practically "all set" for his biggest year. Joe carries the well wishes of many in his big chance. Joe leaves for camp next Saturday.

There were two heavyweight elimination fights during the week but no great fuss has been made on the equilibrium of Gene Tunney. Godfrey and Heeney won in much the same way, by sheer weight and their wins were mighty close, at that.

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY ORDERED FOR JOE DUNDEE

LOS ANGELES, March 2—(AP)—A verdict of not guilty was ordered by the court here today in the trial of Joe Dundee, welterweight boxing champion, his manager, Max Waxman, and Dick Donald, fight promoter, charged with false advertising in connection with the Dundee-Ace Hudkins fight fiasco here last November.

Dundee refused at the last minute to go through with a scheduled championship bout with Hudkins at Wrigley field November 3, last, on the ground that he did not receive the full purse guaranteed him.

Fight fans had paid their way into the park were left holding the sack.

TALBOT-STEVE BOUT ANOTHER DRAW AS BANNER CROWD SEES PASTIME AMATEURS

Twelve hundred fans gasped at Olympic hall last night their amusement as Broadway Jack Callahan signified that the "battle of the era" was a draw. The crowd packed in like sardines was horrified. It could not be true, something was wrong somewhere. The judges had been bought up. The crowd simply would not believe that the Talbot-Farmer Steve bout was a draw. To everyone there that was able to see through tear-dimmed eyes "The Fighting Motorman" had fought a winning fight and deserved the laurels that were rightfully his. Yet, when robbed of the fruits of his honest effort in the ring, Talbot simply smiled a wan sort of smile, satisfied in knowing that he had fought a good fight and had won.

Sport writers at the ring-side gave every round to Talbot by a wide margin and it would not be surprising if there was an investigation into the charges that the judges had been "fixed".

Since the last bout between these two lads somebody has been teaching them a few fine points of the manly art. Talbot was not the awkward Talbot of two weeks ago. He was the shifty, hard-punching, gliding and sliding boxer that is intent to get his man. No, more did he turn his head in retreat but he was eyes front all the time, watching his man every second and driving in some mean blows at his tough opponent at every chance and many of them landed with sickening force.

Steve fought a cautious battle and seeing that Talbot could outreach him, he devoted his attack to the body. In fact any part of the body was fair game as far as Steve was concerned. That is from Talbot's shoe-tops to his shoulders. Only once did the Fighting Farmer from Bean Hill show any real aggressiveness, this in the first round. After that it was all Talbot as far as points went but the damage done by Talbot did not leave any impression on the Big Boy. In fact many times the Farmer taunted the Motorman by laying the thumb of his glove on his nose and wiggling it at his opponent. But the Carbarn Champion would not be led into any trap and he calmly fought his fight.

Neither would Talbot be dazzled by the oddness of Steve's regalia. It was immense, a creation worthy of a Worth or a Poiret. Never in the annals of the ring has such a wonderful pair of fighting trunks been propelled through the ropes of any squared circle. It was not until Steve shed his blue-hued bath robe just before the bell that the audience got its first glimpse of the startling ensemble trunks. When it did there was a collective choking sound, a sort of mingled gasp and groan and then laughter, such laughter. Eyes were wet with tears, backs were slapped promiscuously and poor Bobby Mays, the referee, suffered a severe attack of convulsions.

Those tights, no not tights, those oversized balloon type fighting trousers were a beautiful shade of salmon pink, with a band of white at the tops. Then on the inside in robins-egg blue were the fighter's initials, "F. S." Words fail to describe them and no artist not even Rembrandt, nor Sam Hellman, could paint them. Steve was proud of them too.

Good Supporting Cast

The main go was very well supported by nine other bouts that were full of action throughout, and gave the fans an evening of excellent boxing bouts.

Young Thorpe of New London, who has fought here several times and has proved to be a mighty fine performer, won the decision over Young Lavallee of Willimantic in the opener. The first round was replete with hard blows by both boys, Thorpe came into the second round the stronger of the two and set Lavallee back on his heels with a hard driven right. Lavallee, however, was fighting back every minute and his right was always dangerous. He weighed 122 and Thorpe one pound more.

Young Hagen, a newcomer to the game with a southpaw stance, had Young Dosh somewhat puzzled as to how he should go about the task of winning. It took him until the second to get started, but when he did he outfought Hagen to win the decision. Dosh drew blood in the second, but the left handed boy was game and fought back very well. In the third he caught osh with a hard left which sent Dosh to the ropes, but he fought his way out without much damage being done. Both lads are from Norwich and the former weighed 118 and Hagen 115.

Frank McCarthy of Norwich had a tough time trying to get through the guard of the long armed Young Rida of Westerly. Rida took advantage of his reach and managed to keep McCarthy off until the last round when Mac started to pile in with some body blows. He was wearing his man down at the final bell, and the judges pronounced the bout a draw. Both weighed 127.

The furth encounter brought together Young Paolino of Norwich, and Young Jannis of New London. Paolino sat Jannis down with one of his swinging rights in the first for a no-count and kept his left constantly in the New London boy's face who couldn't get out of the way of it. Jannis showed plenty of fighting spirit, however, and sent in some hard blows to the local boy. Both lads were bleeding from the nose and were rather tired at the final bell, Paolino weighed 158 and Jannis 152.

Moriarty Loses

The fans saw the local favorite Mush Moriarty, take a beating from clever and hard hitting Micky Ward from New London. Mush couldn't get through Ward's defense but showed great gameness in staying the limit. Just a second before the bell ending the second round, Micky crossed a hard right to the point of Mush's jaw and Mush went down hurt. He was carried to his corner and was somewhat refreshed when he answered the bell for the final round and managed to weather the storm. Both weighed 145 pounds.

The sixth bout was a renewal of the feud between Baby Jannis of New London and Young Metcalf of Westerly which like their other bouts was jammed full of action. Both lads are fast hard hitters and are fighting every minute and it is a pleasure indeed to watch them perform. Metcalf leads the feud by tonight's decision, having K. O.d Jannis in their go here this winter. In their last bout two weeks ago Metcalf came through to earn a draw after being practically out in the first round. In tonight's bout, Metty had Jannis almost tucked away in the first but he fought his way back and held his own for the remaining round.

The second was practically even. In the third Jannis brought his right over to Metcalf's face and sent him to the ropes badly dazed. But he, like Jannis, in the first fought his way out and swung with a hard right to Jannis' head which staggered the New London boy It was a mighty interesting bout and the crowd are willing to watch them go at it every two weeks. Both weighed 121.

Mike Campion of New London at 160 pounds took his time to whip Swede Benson, 162 pounds of Willimantic but the referee decided that the Swede had enough in the second and sent him to his corner. The crowd had had enough anyway. The Willimantic lad didn't show anything in the fighting line, and every one was satisfied to see Mike get a technical K. O.

Harry Hooper having solved Vic Darr's unorthodox style, stepped in close with his right and won over the Norwich favorite. Hooper crossed his right to Vic's jaw all the way through and had the advantage in the infighting. Needless to say Vic was fighting all the time as is his wont. That bout also is something of a series, this being their fourth meeting. Harry weighed 131 and Vic 132.

Young Fritz of Norwich didn't have a chance with Tony Turella of New London. A few hard rights and lefts to the local boys jaw had him almost out on his feet and the towel was tossed in to save him from further punishment. The New London boy weighed 135 and Fritz was five pounds less.

Bobby Mays made a wonderful referee. The judges were "Tex" Callahan and Alex Pasnik. The timer was Jack Carney and the announcer was Broadway Jack Callahan.

MISTAKE IN ADDITION BLAME FOR DRAW DECISION

As was stated in another article on this page the fans were nonplussed to say the least when they saw the announcer raise the hands of both Farmer Steve and Harold Talbot, in token of a draw decision. In fact they were so delirious with anger that several immediately got together and started an investigation. So vehement were they in their denunciation of the judges that it was feared for a time there might be bloodshed. However, this matter was smoothed out with the assistance of several cool headed persons present and a meeting was called to carefully go over the score cards of the judges and the referee.

They repaired to an anteroom and if Bobby Mays had not been the champion lightweight of the state it is safe to say he might have been subject to a severe trouncing. One of the judges (we won't mention any names but he is rather a large man as men go) refused for a while to show the investigators his score sheet he asserting that he would stand on his constitutional rights of declining to commit himself. Mays said that he thought Harold had earned the decision but he did not wish to be quoted as saying so in the presence of so rabid a crowd of Steve's followers.

The other judge also had an idea that Talbot should have been awarded the decision and he was high in his praise for the fighting trolley car boy. (funny how people will change their ideas when they are in danger) After a lengthy session and lots of bitter arguments between the crowd, the officials and the judges, the holdout was finally managed to be tied and the score sheet taken from him. And when it was added it was discovered that a grave mistake had been made. He had adde wrong He had given Farmer Steve five points for the last round and Harold five. He finally admitted that Steve should have had one and nine tenths points while Talbot was entitled to four and one tenth. And then and there the trouble ended it was fitting and proper that the announcement be made that the decision was changed and the bout awarded to Harold Talbot the fighting carbarn champion. This is official and cannot be debated. The investigation lasted until 2:46. Saturday morning and Mays caught the last trolley to New London.

ACADEMY READY FOR BASEBALL WORK MONDAY

A large turnout is expected Monday at the Y gym for the first work of the season for Academy battery candidates. Interest is running high at the local school for a successful season for the state champs and plenty of backing by the student body is expected right for the opening gong.

BOTH PIRATES AND CUBS SLACKEN TRAINING A BIT

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., March 2—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs has lessened the training grind of his charges because they have shown a slight stiffness that results from too hard training.

Instead of five hours of conditioning daily as has been the routine for the last week, the Cubs will undergo only four hours of training each day. Morning and afternoon sessions will continue, however.

McCarthy had Elwood English, infielder, working out under his personal supervision today, showing him how to slide to first base. English usually slides to first head first, and McCarthy is endeavoring to get the youth into the habit of going at it feet first.

The workout of the Pittsburgh Pirates at Paso Robles was conducted with occasional sprinkles of rain.

In the infield practice, Wright and Adams worked with great smoothness around second, looking as if they had ben together for years, instead of being a brand new combination.

Manager Donie Bush said that he was satisfied with the condition of his team to date.

RICKARD STILL SEEKING CHALLENGER

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—Putting a new twist to the French slogan, Tex Rickard set out today to "Cherchez L'Homme" in his discouraging quest for a challenger to face Gene Tunney in heavyweight title combat here next June.

"I'm still looking for the man to fight the champion," he said. "These elimination tournaments merely get more complicated as they go along. Tom Heeney certainly won't do on the showing he made in beating Jack Delaney last night. Perhaps there will be a spectacular winner to the Jack Sharkey-Johnny Risko match March 12. Right now you know as much about who'll fight Tunney in June as I do. I think all the contenders are terrible."

Along with this frank admission came Rickard's open avowal that he wants Jack Dempsey back in the fight picture again. And despite the former champion's denial that he will start light training soon at Gus Wilson's camp in Orangeburgh, N. Y., the promoter admitted he was bringing strong pressure to bear on the Manassa mauler in the hope of another comeback campaign.

Dempsey is due here late in March to continue legal skirmishes with Jack Kearns, his former manager. Rickard will leave about that time for Florida to tune up his golf game and no meeting is scheduled here. However, it was intimated that the promoter plans to stop long enough in Philadelphia or Wilmington, Del., to confer in private with Dempsey, for fram the prying eyes of New York's journalistic Hawshaws.

Rickard had no hope that Dempsey will fight in June and very little that the Californian will undertake a third match with Tunney in September. Pending the outcome of the Sharkey-Risko bout, the promoter will go ahead with plans to match Heeney and the winner of his second elimination semi-final some time in May.

Dempsey Denies Report

LOS Angeles, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey today denied that he was going to begin light training at Orangeburg, N. Y., in two or three weeks as reported by Promoter Tex Rickard in New York today. The former heavyweight champion said that he plans to go to Orangeburg but only to visit friends "not to train."

Dempsey said he expects to leave for New York about April 1.

KILLINGLY BEATS PUTNAM IN THRILLER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 2.—Killingly beat Putnam 23 to 21 here tonight. But the win has its reservations for Killingly had to extend itself and play three three-minute overtime periods to cop the game. It was the fastest and greatest game ever seen in the local Killingly high gym.

At the completion of the four quarters of eight minutes each the score was knotted at 18-all, so an overtime period was played in which Bove of Putnam tossed in a field basket and with a few seconds to go McKeon of the locals tied the count with a basket. No more scoring was made by either team and the period ended at 20 all.

In the second overtime period both teams fought tooth and nail, but were unable to count and the score remained deadlocked. So another extra period was required, if the game were to be settled.

Lague does It

In this the third and last period Donovan of the visitors broke the ice with a foul, making the score 21 to 20 in Putnam's favor and the score remained thus until Lague counted with 35 seconds to play. He made a field goal and at the same time a foul was committed upon him, giving him a free throw, which he made. These points brought the score to 23 to 21 in favor of Killingly, and victory for them.

MUCH INTERESTED IN LETTERS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is such a beautiful day, I will do my little bit by writing a few lines to the Corner page.

Lately I have more than enjoyed letters from some of the sisters written on our page.

Johnny Cake's letter was fine. I really would like to know who she is I live on the Nipmuck path myself.

And now today comes an interesting letter from Tafts. And another from Ann Tenna. I, too, have followed Mindy on his travels both by air and papers. And thankful I was that he made a safe arrival back in the home land. He has made a wonderful record. "Courage and nerve," where others failed.

A while ago a sister wrote to the Corner page telling me she was in Providence and I think she said she too saw Colonel Lindbergh. There was no pen name signed. Please write again, Sister and sign your pen name, as you were the first sister to ever write to me through the Corner page. I wonder if Johnny Cake saw the piece written to the editor last week. I think it was in Tuesday's Bulletin. Our page is getting to be very interesting. Hope to read more of the good doings and sayings of our sisters.

With best wishes to you all, I am
LUCKY LINDY.

NICE SUGAR COOKIES.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is some time since I wrote to the Corner. I'm like a lot of others. I mean to but that is far as I get.

Johnny Cake: What an interesting letter you sent into the Corner! I have never had the pleasure of taking that trip, but it was interesting to go along with you in imagination. Do write again.

Auralee: Where, oh where, are you? Four weeks ago when you called on me you said: "I will see you in a couple of days," but not a sign of you have I seen. Come up again. Come early in the morning and stay all day. I have lots to tell you.

Lone Feather: Why didn't you write to the Corner? I think this is my third letter and how many have you written in that time. I hope the little fellow's face is all right by this time.

Ora: Saw you in Norwich a week ago Saturday or maybe two weeks. You didn't speak, so take it you you did not see me. You were with another lady going into the Boston store.

Sugar Cookies: Two- thirds to 1 cup shortening, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, 3 cups pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla or lemon, or 1 teaspoon of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg or a mixture of spices; or you can use 1 cup nuts, raisins or currants or a mixture of each to make a cupful. If drop cookies are desired, use 1-2 cup less flour. Cream sugar and shortening, add eggs, then sifted flour with baking powder and salt; flavor nuts or fruit. Roll out thin and cut. Bake in greased tins. I like these as you can vary them.

ENJOYING THE RADIO.

Good morning, Everybody—This is a most beautiful morning; I had a non-stop sleep last night as cheerio says and have heard the blue birds of happiness sing so I ought to feel like writing a good long letter. But I am late this time for we had company yesterday to lunch, consequently no letters at all were written.

I want to tell Nonesopretty my cold is getting along all right but I have not been out yet. It seems a long time to stay in the house with all this bare ground.

Joan—You are a good guesser.

Hepatica—Good for you. Which certainly shows you read the corner sisters carefully. Hope to hear from others on the subject.

Moses Wife—Yes, I heard the South's Y. M. C. A. conference, which lasted an hour. Wasn't it good? Then came Dr. L. Parks Cadman's excellent talk. I love the Gloria Trumpeteers, that Immanuel Swedish band couldn't be beat, and the Rest Chord is always beautiful to me. I sat at the radio two and one-half hours. I was alone and no interference.

Martha Veazia—Are you one of my neighbors when I am home in the land of my golden dreams? I haven't been planning anything yet about garden work, but have perused three seed catalogues which I have recently received. Haven't seen out doors yet for weeks. Am glad you have started in to enjoy the corner with others that like it so well. I hope you go to the meeting in Putnam and write it up so I can hear all about it. I won't be able to attend. Wish I could. Hope everyone will have a good time and I know they will have a good dinner.

Cherry Blossom—When I have time I'll tell you about my pen name. Wish all the other writers would write more about theirs.

Best wishes to all,
ANN TENNA.

SCHOOL DAYS

Dear Editor and Friends: As I was sitting by the window watching the little folks trudging up the hill to school it made me think of my own school days when I went two miles to school. I have recently seen the death of one of my schoolmates and I extend heartfelt sympathy to the dear ones he has left. My last teacher was his wife's sister. As I watched the little ones this morning I thought how soon their school days will be over and then a start out in real life little knowing what is before them.

Kansas Lily: Are you sick or have you gone away? I have written twice but no answer.

Aries: I will try and answer your dear letter soon. I had some more of my good luck. In some way I broke my glasses and must wait until I can get some more. Still it would have been worse had some of the glass gone in my eye.

L. T. H.: Will try and answer your letter soon.

Ann Tenna: Think I owe you one and will write soon.

Keziah Doolittle: Why didn't you and 1492 come down and have a slide?

I heard a woodpecker getting his breakfast this morning. They say the winter has broken up when they come out. I hope so, anyway. Best wishes.

NONESOPRETTY.

TRAIN YOUR VOICE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Why it is that everywhere in Europe the American voice is referred to in tones of reproach? The foreign critics say: "What we are talking about is the dreadful speaking voice of your young girls and even of your middle aged and elderly women."

And if we know at all what we are talking about, we have to admit sorrowfully that this accusation has some truth in it. No one (they tell me) who has traveled abroad can have failed to notice the sweet, low voice of the English women, and when we contrast them with the sharp tones of our own tourists we are heart-sick of the difference. Now a great part of this shrill speech arises from carelessness. If our girls would only take a little more pains to speak in low, sweet tones their one defect would be gone, for it is quite impossible to estimate the power and charm a woman possesses who is blessed with a good speaking voice. Mrs. Browning says that a "woman's function plainly is to talk." It therefore behooves every woman to study to speak in such a way to make her voice worth listening to, and to this end special care and attention should be given to its development.

I am told those who wish to cultivate a full, clear, deep tone should practice most carefully every day musical scales and the several forms of the speech note, which, by the way, is not true musical note, because its pitch varies during its duration, or may have an ascending or descending course in one syllable. Constant practice will improve the most defective voice in clearness and resonance.

Grace H. Did you get home safely with the parrot? Just received your letter; will write soon. Glad your polly doesn't swear.

Idel, Palm Beach, Fla.: Are you receiving the Weekly Courier now? Let me know should it cease.

Louise G.: Thanks for your message. I know you know, as both played in the concerts in Washington.

Rhode Island: I am not wonderful, but every moment I can spare I am looking and studying about something that will interest the readers, for they are always thirsty for knowledge of some description.

Jennie D.: You know when I was talking with you the other night you were mistaken. The pipes were low and she bumped her head.

Nellie H.: You shall have your wish.

Lucy: You say you look for Kitty Lou's letter the first thing when your father brings the paper home, so I thought I would not have you disappointed.

Mrs. E.: Will send paper over.

KITTY LOU.

CANNOT BEAT NEW ENGLAND.

Dear Editor and Social Members—It has been a long time since I have written the Corner. I hope I am not forgotten.

I have been traveling around a great deal in the last two years. I was not in one place long enough to have the Bulletin sent to me until a few months ago. I have been enjoying the Corner letters each week. I would vow each week that I would write. Tonight I broke the ice.

I was in the west and southwest after leaving New England in 1925. Now we are settled in New York state. I didn't care for the west at all. I was very glad when Mr. Stanza said "We will return to the place where rock and stones look like gold nuggets. Say! Was I glad? You would never know how much. Both of us were born in Connecticut. I know it is useless to tell you that it's a grand and glorious feeling to be near enough to the "Wooden nutmeg state" to smell its fragrance and to whistle and hear its echo.

Just now New York is all worried about the seven cent fare. I hope it stays at the five cent rate, because the service is terrible. I have to go into New York city each day at the rush hours, and it really is dangerous unless you have the strength of a giant. The crowd just pushes you hither and yon. Let me tell you an instance that happened to me one morning last week. I was waiting for an express at 14th street. I got in the jam. When the subway door opened, the crowd made one grand rush. I was in the middle and my hand and arm got wedged between the chests of two men and I could not get it loose until we got to the next station. The press calls the subway riders sardines. 'Tis a good name. The I. R. T. wants to break its contract and charge seven cents. The directors should ride each day from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m., six days a week, instead of riding in their nice easy cars. I am sure if they did there would be a change.

I will try and write something more interesting next time. Best wishes to all

SOME USEFUL FACTS.

Dear Social Corner—Each one of Club No. 4 has pledged to write a few words this month so will get busy and send in a few more useful facts which have been tried and true.

What to serve with roast pork—Mashed potatoes, turnips, squash and apple sauce. With boiled ham—Mashed potatoes, spinach and cabbage. With sausage—Boiled potatoes and turnips. When making starch use soapy water. Clothes will have a glossy appearance and not stick to the irons. If ink is overturned take up all that can be absorbed with plotting paper then rub with butter or lard. Wash in warm soapsuds.

To keep a baby in bed, buy a pair of largest hose supporters. Tie wide tape to safety pin and tie the tape securely to head board on both sides. Fasten elastics to top sheet as you would to a stocking.

When a cake of soap is worn nearly thin enough to break stick it to the new cake by putting both in warm water then press firmly together.

I can hear the middle aged members say we know it all. Well, it won't do any harm to repeat for the young housekeepers. One of the Social Cornerites writing about being chased by a bull, made me think about the time I was chased by a cow. I was on my way to school when I saw the cow jump the fence and come toward me with head lowered, so I jumped on the wall which was on one side of the road. I looked back to see what was going on behind me, when the next thing I knew I was in a pile of rocks on the side away from the cow. I cut both knees and was nearly frightened to death. But after a while I got home and did not go to school for a week.

Aries—I am sorry you lost your spoon. Hope you have it by this time. The best way when you are through eating is to put your dishes together, wrap in paper and put in bag. No hunting afterwards. I just couldn't do what I promised. Am not flush. You know what I mean.

Johnnycake—Your letter was just spelndid. I take it you are a member of Club No. 1. Hope to meet you some day.

Children, said the teacher, I am going to give each of your three buttons. The red one represents "life," the white one "liberty" and the blue "happiness. In three days I shall want you to produce those buttons and tell me what they stand for.

At the appointed time she called upon little Tommy as the first to give an answer. I ain't got them all Miss, he answered nervously. Here's "life" and here's "liberty" but mother went and sewed happiness on me pants.

Club No. 4 is branching out. We soon will have to hire Armory hall.

PISCES.

PARENT—TEACHER.

Dear Social Corner Friends- Much attention is being taken of the many honors that Mrs. Lindbergh is receiving for her successful work both as parent and as teacher. When asked for her method of training her child she said, "I always let him make his own decision. My two rules were, frist I explained any matter until he thoroughly understood the different ways he coul do it, and the result of each way. Second, I left the decision of which way he would do entirely for him to decide. If he made a wrong decision, there was no punishment or fault finding for him, he just realized he had not done his best and he was more thoughtful and careful the next time."

Some one has recently said, "Criminals are made not born, and can be built into normal and good citizens under expert handling. The child enters the world with a blank mind and upon its environment depends the way it will grow."

If the home is bad the child will get bad or criminal ideas from the influences in his home.

It is a great and interesting work to help to make these homes right and already much has been begun to bring this about. Many organizations are helping toward this end.

It is a faster and more easily managed condition to do more of this work through the schools. We can compel the right methods of teaching easier than we can directly change all of the parents.

And school children take home the new ideas they hear in school and can influence the mothers to changes that they would probably resent or ignore if suggested by the welfare worker. So the teacher is our best guarantee of better conditions.

Why not help expedite this work by offering a community prize to stimulate still better social and moral work and teaching in our local schools?

The value of a prize is that not only it encourages and inspires those who are eligible to compete for it but it calls out the attention and interest of many others in this form of improvement who would then be helpers too.

The last 25 years have been the mechanical age when the ideas of the few scientists have been developed and put into universal use for the benefit of every one. The next 25 years ought to be known as the educational age, when the principles and methods now known and used by the few are established for the benefit of every child. When home or school will be just a place where every child gets only right ideas and impressions and every child becomes a person capable of doing his best in any condition in which he may be placed.

GRATEFUL FOR REMEMBRANCE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I want to thank the hostesses of Club No. 2 for their kind remembrance of me by sending the nice donation, also a piece of that Washington pie. It was fine. It was a disappointment to me not to be with you. Hope to be with you March 13th, our anniversary. I want to thank all who sent me cards, would like to return the compliment to each one separately, but there are so many that I take this way, and when I see you will try to let you know how much I appreciate the thought. Hope White Dawn is much better, also Earl Blue Bell and that we will be at the next meeting.

Hope: Where have you been? Was glad to hear from you.

Kind wishes for the Corner and for all sick ones.

ENJOYS THE WHOLE CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I would like to become a member of the Social Corner and Club No. 4, as I certainly enjoy every inch of the Social Corner page.

This reconstruction of Pass I. On may interest.

Send It In

If you have a bit of news, Send it in;
Or a joke that will amuse, Send it in.
A story that is true, an incident that's new,
We want to hear from you—Send it in.
Never mind about the style, if the news is worthwhile,
It may help, or cause a smile. Send it in.

Tate: Better shine up the old rusty pen.

Ann Tenna: Will see you again soon. I will take for my penname,

NEITHER IS LIVING

Dear Social Corner: In Taft's letter to the Social Corner Feb. 25, the statement is made "I don't know if she is living now or not," referring to Mrs. Eben Allen. Mr. Allen died in April, 1916. For ten years they had been living in Norwich Town. Mrs. Allen's death occurred Jan. 4, 1923. Both are buried in the Hanover cemetery, on the hillside, their little daughter Ruth beside them. Mr. Allen's sisters now reside in New London.

HAS LEISURE DEVELOPED A BETTER TYPE OF WOMAN?

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members—It has been some time since I wrote a Scoial Corner letter. But I have been to several meetings lately and now think I should do my part by writing.

I had the pleasure of attending the meeting of Club No. 6 at Westerly last week. One of the sisters from here invited four of us to go, as she has many times before, and we certainly had a most enjoyable day, a beautiful ride over and back, a bountiful and tasty dinner, a fine program and, best of all, the pleasant social mingling with the Social Corner sisters.

I was much interested in the letter by Johnnycake. It set one to thinking. I counted 13 industries she mentioned as being carried on there. Some of them made things entirely out of use now, like hoopskirts, runlets, etc. But out of the others have grown the manufacturing plants that have made New England what it is, as this was only one of many more such places scattered all over New England. What a proficient lot of men and women they must have been in those times!

A housewife of those times would have to know how to spin, weave, card, sew, make butter, soap and cook. Also to have a kind of knowledge of medicine she could make from roots and herbs, as it took a long time to get a doctor. No going to the store to buy ready made things, everything had to be made in the home. We are apt to think with pity of the women of those times because they had so much work to do. But no doubt they took pride in their work and had the strength to do it. It developed their mental faculties for in order to be a skillful worker with the hands one must use their brains.

I wonder if leisure has developed a better type of woman than the old type. That would be a good subject for some one to write about next week.

In a recent paper Winter Robin asked regarding treatment for a calla. My mother always had a calla and we had excellent success with it so I am going to tell her just what we did. We had a very large sized pot. In the bottom were placed some stones for drainage, then the pot was filled about a third full of fertilizer, then about two inches of earth was put in and then three large bulbs were set and more earth was crowded down around them. Then we kept it very wet all the time and how those bulbs would grow. Large stocky stems and big leaves and soon buds would swell and then would unfold the beautiful white blooms which well repaid us for our care. Some people enjoy the blossoms from plants but do not like to care for them, but I must say I like to care for them and watch them grow. I have a cactus that was given me by Twice Twenty about five years ago. It blossoms every November, perfectly beautiful bright pink blossoms. Needless to say I think of the giver often when I look at the plant.

I see Club No. 4 has many new members since I left about two years ago, so I wouldn't know who is who any more. I saw one of my friends was on the committee at their last meeting and I wish she would give me an inkling when she writes again so I will know her pen name. I always look to see if there are any letters from Club No. 4 and if there are those are the first letters I read.

Well I will close ere your patience gives out.

MAY B., Club No. 6.

GREETINGS FROM WILD GERANIUM.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I take my pen in hand and bite the end of it. What shall I write about?

You write such interesting letters I hardly know what to write. If it isn't too late I wish you a happy New Year.

Some write of making rugs; it is good winter work isn't it? Have started a plain crocheted one myself. The only disagreeable part is getting the rags ready to crochet.

Wistaria: Am sorry I didn't hear you hall; heard the horn, but supposed some one wanted more road. Did you notice I moved a little nearer the ditch?

Hullidy and Pratical Polly: Hope you are enjoying yourself in Florida.

Just Jill: Am sorry I missed the meeting in the air. Are you planning to go cowslipping this year? Did you observe the pickle?

Mrs. Katzenjam: Where are you and how are the kiddie R. P. and W.? Called on Dutchy not long ago. Do you know who I am now?

Are there two Rutchys I wonder. This one wrote a few years ago from Club No. 1, but haven't noticed any for a long time.

Iona: Still busy I suppose and the mother?

Looking over some old recipe books for something different to cook, came across this:

Killarney Potatoes: Prepare a scant quart raw Irish potatoes, peel and cut into dice. Place in a buttered pan, and pour over a mixture of 1 pint sweet milk, 3 well beaten eggs, a teaspoon salt and good dusting of pepper. Dot with butter and bake until tender; add a little milk if necessary. This is the famous dish served to visitors at the Killarney lakes. Have tried it. It needs to bake nearly two hours.

The better half has just driven in and that means get dinner. Yours,

WILD GERANIUM.

RECALLING NAMES OF FRIENDS OF YEARS GONE BY

Dear Editor, Sisters and Friends of the Social Corner: I read the nice letters which are printed in Saturday's paper and the request that the old members write. I am not a charter member, but the Social Corner was very young when I commenced to write.

I have been sick or would have written before. I had a good place to work but had to give it up and come home. I am now with my daughter in New London. I am getting better, but don't get my strength very fast, but spring is coming and when warm weather comes we shall all be ready to welcome it.

The principal topic now seems to be the names of the neighbors who lived in the neighborhood of the writers in the days of years gone by, so I will add my mite. I was born in the house on the east side of Town street, Lebanon, owned by my grandfather, Lester B. Babcock, and lived there 31 years. In the next house below my great-grandfather, Thomas Babcock, lived. The next one was where my uncle, Justin Babcock, lived, and the next house was where Learned Hebard lived. I remember coming home from school one afternoon and Mr. Hebard stood at his gate and had a spyglass that his son Daniel used in the war. He let me take it to look through and I thought it was a great treat. In the next house lived "Old Lady Robinson," as everyone called her. I used to like to go to her house and visit with her. I remember her telling me that if I was a good girl I would never be sorry. She died at the age of 103.

In the next house lived Dr. Charles Sweet, the natural bonesetter. Then came the boarding house on the corner where his patients were cared for. As long ago as I can remember the boarding house had a sign which read "Dr. Charles Sweet's Remedial Institute." Then turn the road to the right and we came to the schoolhouse, where many happy days have passed. Then came the Congregational church, sometimes called the "Brick church." Then turning the road to the right again and on the corner Jonathan Lyman and his sister, Jane Lyman, lived. He was the registrar of births, marriages and deaths for many years. Then in the next house lived Miss Mary Hubbard Dutton and Miss Julia Mason. Then came where Mary Talcott and her mother, Mrs. Wattles, lived. Now we have come to the Lebanon war office, where many ancient and historical articles are kept on exhibition. Benjamin Brown lived in the next house, then came where Augustus Wetmore lived. He was a shoemaker. Then comes where Benjamin Tucker lived, and in the next one Milo Gillette lived. He was father to Isaac Gillette, the school teacher. I heard him say that his scholars are scattered all over the United States. He was a good teacher, and how he made his scholars learn!

Thurston Tucker lived in the next house, then came the house where Perry Peckham lived. Then there was the place where two old ladies lived. Mrs. Polly Gardner had one front room and Miss Olive Hutchinson had the other. The house is now used for the Baptist parsonage. Then comes the corner house where Capt. Charles Hull lived. On turning the corners to the right, comes the Baptist church, then Augustus Tucker's house, then the parsonage, where Rev. B. S. Morse lived. That used to be the parsonage then. Mr. Morse's daughter Carrie and I used to play together when we were girls, and many a whipping I got for running away to her house. I wish I knew where she is. If this letter should fall into the hands of anyone who knows, I would be pleased to have them tell me through the Social Corner.

Now I have written as far back as I can remember of the friends of long ago who lived on Lebanon green when I was a little girl.

I hope some time to come to your meetings, as I know you all have such nice social times, and after reading the nice letters I said, "It is good to be there."

Best wishes to one and all, I am as ever,

SILVER LOCKS (Nov. 3).

QUESTIONS ASKED BY G. A. C. K.

Dear Social Corner Sisters—I have been very much interested in reading the letters of the Corner lately. Those about Fort Ned and that fine one of Johnnycake's about the several families who used to live in that section were very pleasing to me. My childhood days were lived in Hanover and many a nice drive I have had via the Nipmuck path.

Can some one tell us just what the Indian legend of that trail was?

To one of the Sisters (Tafts, I think), who wrote about Hanover and Mrs. Ethan Allen and asked if Mrs. Eben Allen, Mattie Gordon, was living. I will say she died five years ago, at the Backus hospital. She was a friend of my mother and often visited us, as we were neighbors. She had lived on Lincoln avenue, Norwich, for several years.

Enjoy the stories of our local country in days gone by, hope others will write of other trails. Can some one tell me why the long hill just out of Danielson on Providence road is called Dark Lantern hill. It sure is a steep hill and I should think needed a bright lantern to show the way down for the old horse. Nowadays with all the power and comfort of the closed automobile I fear we miss some of those picturesque side roads or trails of old.

At Pomfret Landing the ruins of an old mill which tells the story to an experienced mechanic that the wheel itself must have been brought from England and carried overland by oxen, probably long, long ago. Also at Beach pond another tells the same story. What energetic people those pioneers of Connecticut were. The ox team of New England did as much for civilization as the covered wagons of the west in their day, I think.

Our meetings have been unusually pleasant lately and I enjoy meeting friends there. Best wishes to all,

G. A. C. K.

WHO KNEW THE WOODCHUCK HILL RESIDENTS?

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends—I have been a member of the Corner for about a year, have attended nearly all the meetings of Club No. 6 and two meetings at Lebanon, all of which I have enjoyed very much.

I have met old friends and made many new ones. It certainly is a pleasure to be able to sit down all day and just visit with your friends. Winter Robin, May B and E. L. M. have suggested several times that I should write a letter to the Corner. I have told them I cannot write anything that would be of interest to anyone and after they read this letter they will know I was right. I have watched with great interest the answers to Winter Robin's letters in which she asked if anyone could tell about Ford Ned. Enjoyed Mr. Peck's letter in The Bulletin, also the letters by Johnnycake, Cretia and Tafts.

All of these fine letters suggest to me that perhaps someone can tell me about the houses and the people that lived in them, at the four corners near Nelson Lyons' place in Woodchuck hill. The house, still standing, was the home of the Williams family, I believe. There was a tannery nearby. Can anyone tell about the old tannery? I have also wondered if there ever was a school house at the four corners.

Several years ago I visited the site of the old tannery and found several old grave stones in the second lot from the highway. Was this a family graveyard and if so, to what family did it belong? As I remember, it seems there were several Revolutionary soldiers buried there.

Another place I would like to ask about is Mt. Misery and Spy Rock. Is it possible to reach these places without going far from the highway?

Just as soon as the roads get so we will not break our necks and the springs on the car, Winter Robin and I are going to start out and explore some of these interesting spots. When I get back I may have something interesting to write about.

I was pleased and surprised when I saw Iola's letter in reply to Winter Robin on the care of calla lilies and to know that she had guessed Winter Robin's identity. I don't believe she can guess mine, so will sign my name,

SOMA.

CLUB No. 1 TO CELEBRATE CORNER'S 18th ANNIVERSARY.

Social Corner Members—Club No. 1 celebrates the 18th anniversary of the Social Corner in Chamber of Commerce rooms, 791 Main street, Willimantic, on March 14. Members from other clubs are invited so we hope for a good, big jolly crowd. Please remember to bring your plate, knife, fork, cup and spoon, also food for the table. Donation day for the Welfare bureau and Salvation Army is also held, being postponed from our usual month of February. Any offering of canned goods, groceries, vegetables or money is acceptable in their work.

CATTY LETTER FORM THIRTY-TWO.

Dear Social Corner Sisters:—The sunshine this morning makes me think of the kindergarten song we used to teach the wee ones about this time of year:

God sends his bright spring sun to melt the ice and snow
To start the green leaf buds
And make the flowers grow.
God sends his love to us
To make our goodness grow;
Let us be sweet like flowers
That in the garden blow.

One lady in our town raises spring blossoms from bulbs each year and has some each Sunday morning at church. Last Sunday they were daffodils. They are so expressive in their brightness. Another neighbor of mine was a great lover of flowers. I remember when I first called upon her I admired a very lovely coleus and she gave me her two best pieces for slips. Now she has gone from us but four of us have the bright foliaged plants and slips have gone elsewhere, too. When I see these it is a sweet memorial of of her spirit.

I want to tell Rhode Island that I am making a hooked rug of rags. The pattern attracted me in a Good Housekeeping of a year or more ago. Two grey squirrels are eating acorns on a branch and there are oak leaves with acorns. It appealed to me and the burlap pattern was not so very expensive. My little folks like to fill in part of it.

Last week our Women's club had Miss Bockley from the Dairies association from artford speak for us. Miss Standen secured her for us and her talk was certainly worth while. It was on Eating for Health, a subject I think every homemaker should be interested in. She stressed not only the use of milk but fruits and vegetables and the use of liver, as it is becoming so popular as a health food. We do not know just why, only that it is. I hope some of you may hear her and be able to talk with her sometime. She usually shows, stereopticon pictures but could not here, but was mighty interesting without them.

A poem that was recently sent to me seems so lovely I want to include it in ending.

Let me grow lovely growing old.
So many fine things do
Laces and ivory and gold.
And silks need not be new,
And there is healing in old trees,
Old streets a glamour hold.
Why may not I, as well as these,
Grow lovely growing old?

COLLARS ON BOYS' BLOUSES

Dear Social Corner Friends: Here I am again so soon. What a cold Sunday we had, but we need the cold or we won't have any ice next summer. A good many have not got their icehouses filled yet.

Sister Ready: Many thanks for address. Just wrote her.

Try Again: No doubt you were in Putnam Feb. 20.

Johnny Cake: Your letter was fine, much interested in it, as I have been over some of it if not all. Not the same names there now. I think I have an aunt that lives near or right at the fork of the road there somewhere. I think one would have some driving over those roads at this time.

Only a Link: Tried your butterscotch pie. The trouble was I didn't get a bite.

Calla Lily: So you look for Eastern Voluntown news, too, do you? I think it's a sure cure for the blues. I think of Kochia every time I read it.

When the collars on the boys' blouses get worn, unsew carefully so not to stretch too much, turn over and sew on again, and you have a new collar.

Best wishes to all members.

THE LOVE OF LIFE

Dear Social Corner Members: The love of life is actually necessary to life. Love life and it will love you. It will help you. It will make you a better and stronger man and woman. People who really seek death usually find it close to hand. Old couples well mated often die within a few days of each other. This has happened here in my own town and proves to us how strong love has been. We have often read where dogs that lose a much loved master often die within a few days from grief, showing us again the devoted love between the master and dog. The love of life not only adds to the joyousness of each day, but it adds to the length of life. Cultivate the love of life, accept willingly your share of happiness. Be grateful for that which may come to you each day. Then you can add to your riches of soul, mind and body.

As February now has passed and March comes once more, spring is near at hand. We all love spring time, love the warm sunshine, the green grass, the flowers, singing of the birds and most of us will say: "Isn't love a grand thing, after all!"

Joan: You, for one, I know will be glad when spring is here, for you will be anxious to be out working among your early flowers.

Peggy Alder: Your mother informs me that you are not enjoying your usual health, which I am very sorry indeed to learn, and as spring advances I hope you will improve.

Gingham Girl: Saw you a short time ago, sitting half way up a ladder while the men folks were fixing the radio wire.

Cretia: Your letter upon Westminster last week was certainly interesting. Now I wonder if you could not write one upon Glasgo, Ct., the time you lived there, 40 years or more ago? Mr. Shay still resides in my town and is in his usual health. He says he remembers you, also your husband.

In closing, best of wishes to all the readers.

CLUB NO. 5 MEETS MARCH 7

Dear Editor and Sisters: Once more I have to remind you, one and all, that next Wednesday is the meeting day of Club No. 5. Hope to see as many present as possible. There are only three more meetings after this one before we have our outdoor picnics. It does not seem to us that the winter is nearly over. There have been many changes since our last summer's picnics. Many of our dear sisters have answered the last call and have drifted across the border line to answer God's call. This life is truly a wonderful life as we view it from the spiritual side. The trials vanish as dew before the sun as we come into closer touch with the heavenly things. May our light so shine that we shall be able to help others along life's pathway here below.

We surely are having some very fine days for this time of the year.

Do not forget to bring the good things to eat as usual. We surely do have wonderful dinners and entertainments. Many thanks to all those who have helped this year so far, for it is the willingness to help that makes our meetings so very enjoyable. We wish success and prosperity to all clubs throughout all the year. All are welcome.

JUST CHAT

To Editor and Members of Social Corner: There are many interesting letters in the Social Corner recently.

Johnny Cake: We enjoyed your letter about Fort Ned. Your personally conducted tour of that region would interest even those who have never been there. Thank you.

I suggest a different way to arrange for a hostess for serving dinnare for Club No. 1. The way it is now, all who serve at one time are thoroughly experienced, all the best serve at once. This leaves the inexperienced without a chance to learn. Some of the members attend many functions and know just how the dinner should be planned. Suppose there is a chief hostess and a first assistant or vice-president then select others not so experienced to assist. Then at the next meeting the first assistant of the last meeting is the chief hostess and she coaches her first assistant to be chief hostess at the next meeting, so all would have a chance to learn the rules or ways of management.

It is quite a problem for any one who has had no experience to plan for such large dinners.

Just a word about the way the Christmas mail was delivered. I think the postal clerks did splendid work to deliver such a heavy mail in so short time. I had quite a remarkable experience. A friend in New York sent me a Christmas letter and directed it to me in Massachusetts. As I have never been in Massachusetts I cannot understand why she did so, but the mail carriers sent it right along into my R. F. D. mail box in Connecticut without a scratch of correction in the address. I am wondering how they did that and not seem to notice the address of the state was wrong.

It is pretty good service to deliver correctly a letter that was incorrectly addressed. Here's a cheer for all connected with the postal service.

BUSY WITH RUGS AND QUILTS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters—It's so long a time since I have written I hardly know how and not being a writer it is a task for me to write. I have been busy braiding rugs and piecing four bedquilts to pass the time away since last October.

I read all the letters. Johnnycake, Friendly Voice and Kitty Lou are such wonderful writers.

Such a nice time as Eveready gave Club No. 2. I hope I shall be able to attend when she is the next hostess.

Effie M—Don't you dare to say anything about housecleaning this cold weather. I received a letter from Ines. She is feeling better and wishes to be remembered to the Social Corner members.

Glad to hear from Theoda. Will try to get to the March meeting. I wanted to be there when Just Jill was the hostess. The weather was so bad I could not get there. I thank all of them that sent me sympathy cards and Christmas cards.

My best wishes to all members of the Corner.

BROWN BREAD.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I am sending in my recipe for brown bread which we like very much.

Brown bread: Two-thirds cup Graham flour, two-thirds cup corn meal, two-thirds cup rye meal, 1 1-2 teaspoons saleratus, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 1-4 cups thick sour milk. I add a few raisins. Steam from 2 to 3 hours. I have been to several meetings of club No. 1 and enjoyed them very much. Would like to join the corner if there is room for one more. Will take for my pen name

FORGOT TO SEND NAME.

Dear Editor—Having attended the Social Corner meetings and enjoyed them very much, would like to become a member of Club No. 4, and for my pen name would take

EMILY LECAN.

(You have neglected to send in your correct name and address. Forward them and you will be enrolled as a Social Corner member.—Social Corner Editor.)

LIKED JOHNNY CAKE'S LETTER.

Social Corner Editor: Was much interested in the article in last week's Corner by "Johnny Cake" in which he describes the country north of Hanover. The sturdy people who lived there a century and more ago and the various industries that flourished there and which have been wiped out by the march of progress.

I missed Mr. Peck's article on Fort Ned and would greatly appreciate it if you would republish this article.

NATIVE OF EASTERN CONN.

(Impossible to republish it but you might send for a copy of the paper. S. C. Editor.)

A DELIGHTFUL TIME

Dear Social Corner Members: I think it is about time I answered the roll call for 1928. I attended the meeting of Club No. 4 at Danielson in G. A. R. hall and had a delightful time meeting many old friends that I have not seen in a long time. One is an old schoolmate, pen name 1926. The responses to the roll call were good and the singing I enjoyed very much, almost like an old-fashioned praise service. Don't I hear some of the sisters saying "That is so, Lindsey."

Best wishes to editor and Corner members.

LINDSEY.

OLD-FASHIONED WALNUT BREAD

Dear Editor and Members: Dudley's Wife wanted the old-fashioned walnut bread in Feb. 11 Social Corner, so I am sending it in again: 1 1-2 cups graham flour, 1 1-2 cups white flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup walnut meats, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 1-2 cups milk. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder together, add the molasses, in which a little soda has been stirred, then add the crushed walnut meats and sufficient milk to make a drop batter. Bake in bread pan 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Joan: I received your card and it was so near my birthday I called it one of them. Thank you for it.

Kitty Lou: Did you receive my gift?

Best wishes to the editor and all the sisters.

MOTHER PRESTON.

MINCE PIE MEAT

Dear Social Corner Members: I know it is the Lenten season, but this can be used in between the Lenten days. Mince meat used between cookies also is very good for a change.

Mince Pie Meat: Two pounds of beef (chuck or from neck), boil until tender, let stand until cold, chop fine, add bowl of apple, also chopped, to every bowl of chopped meat. Salt, little white pepper, cinnamon, mace, very little clove. Wet with grape or apple jelly, rind and juice of two oranges and lemons, 1½ pounds raisins, let stand until it ripens. Any kind of jelly or fruit syrup may be used. Very good.

RECOLLECTIONS AWAKENED

Dear Social Corner: The most excellent letters sent in by Johnny Cake and Cretia aroused in my mind a host of recollections of the days of long ago, being well acquainted with the roads mentioned and most of the places, for I lived in old Westminster many years. My memories don't extend as far back as Cretia's do, though, for when I first knew "Brown's shop," as that building was always called, Burrill Huling and his son James made and repaired team wagons, carts, etc., there, and Charles Neff, whose family lived in the little red house next on the east side, had a blacksmith shop in a part of it. James Ransom painted wagons and carriages in the

WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 2—Friday, the third day of the Westerly sitting of the February term of superior court for Washington county, Justice Sumner on the bench, many cases on the Westerly trial calendar were reached and defaulted.

Court opened at 10:45, when Judge Sumner made a short charge to the jury in the assault case begun Thursday, Rose Simone vs. Santo Caccione, and the jury retired. While the jury was out, the civil side of the calendar was taken up. The jury returned to the courtroom at 11:40 and Foreman Gorton T. Lippitt announced that they returned a verdict for the plaintiff, Mrs. Rose Simone, to recover damages in the sum of $1,400. Previous to this, the spare jurors had been excused until Monday next when criminal matters will be taken up. The court, on entering the verdict, adjourned to 10:45 a. m., Monday.

Following the retirement of the jury, when the case of Charles H. Gavitt vs. Joseph A. Guarino was reached, Attorney Ferguson, for the plaintiff, announced that a settlement had been effected. Stipulation files was for $264.88 for the plaintiff.

AUTO STRIKES MRS. GIRARD WHO DIES FROM INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 2—Mrs. Joseph Girard, about 50, was struck by a passing automobile this afternoon at 2.50 as she alighted from a bus of the Rhode Island Coach lines on the Noose Neck hill state road in front of her home, in Canonchet. She suffered injuries from which death resulted a short time later. The bus was coming toward Westerly and was driven by Eddie Lalo. The driver of the Studebaker coupe which struck Mrs. Girard was Francis R. Sagle of 118 University road, Brookline, Mass., an insurance man from Boston. He was driving toward Providence. The ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps was summoned and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon from Westerly, Corp. James E. Norman from the Hope Valley barracks and Deputy Chief of Police William L. Kay of the Hopkinton police visited the location.

The death of Mrs. Girard occurred before the ambulance could take her to the hospital. The medical examiner, Dr. Edwin J. Knerr of Hopkinton was summoned and permission was given for removing the body to undertaking rooms in Hope Valley. Mrs. Girard, who was married last fall was Winifred Carney, of Pawtucket.

Sagle was arraigned at 8 o'clock this evening before Acting Judge Herbert W. Clark on a charge to manslaughter, preferred by Deputy Chief Kay, of the town of Hopkinton. He entered a plea of not guilty. He was represented by Clifford E. Kingsley of Cranston, R. I., who became his surety in the sum of $2,000 bonds. The case was continued to Friday next at the regular session of the third district court.

Sheriff Frederick T. Mitchell served a summons upon Sagle for damages in the sum of $15,000, the return to be made at South Kingston March 22.

F. R. Sagle, special agent of the American Motorists' Insurance company, 280 Tremont street, Boston, the operator of the big six Studebaker, was proceeding toward Providence, when Mrs. Girard was reported as coming around the head of the bus and stepping directly in front of the approaching automobile. Edward Wholey of the Wholey Boiler company picked up the injured woman to bring her in his car to the Westerly hospital. When near the home of William Rogers in Ashaway the car burned out a bearing, so the woman was taken in there.

Granite Street garage vs. Joseph Lupinazzo was defaulted when the respondent could not be reached. Judgment was entered for $124.91.

In the action Clifton D. Hall vs. John F. McCarthy, Attorney Ferguson announced that neither the respondent nor Mr. Ledwidge, his attorney, could be located. Sheriff Bull called the case and it was defaulted. The plaintiff, Hall, took the stand in proof of claim for a note made Aug. 17, 1926, for $87. Judgment was entered for $92.56.

Everseal Mfg. Co., Inc., vs. Roy F. Quigley, alias, Attorney Flynn for plaintiff's attorney, Mr. Stiness, asked to have marked passed for proof of claim and it was so ordered when there was no appearance.

Grills Auto Supply company vs. Joseph Bookatam. Joseph T. Grills took stand to prove claim for auto tires and service and judgment was entered for $136.13, for which trucks had been attached.

Clifton T. Hall vs. Joseph Eteiman. Plaintiff testified to account of note of Jan. 17, 1926, for $66 and judgment was entered for $69.96, which included interest.

At the request of Attorney George E. McKenna the case of John P. Murphy vs. Flora C. Mooney was continued to the April term of Washington county superior court and set down for trial at Kingston.

Before Judge Oliver H. Williams, in the Third district court Friday morning, Henry Irving Tanner, 25, colored, was arraigned on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charged with breaking and entering the cellar of the home of James Derosco, 32 Oak street, about 10 p. m. Sunday, Feb. 2, and stealing therefrom to the amount of $2. Tanner pleaded not guilty. Judge Williams reduced his bonds of $1,000 to $500 for his appearance before the superior court, as burglary was a bind-over complaint.

Santo Capaibo, employed by the South County Public Service company, and with four small children residing at 28 Tower street, on recommendation of Attorney Flynn, pleaded guilty to possession of intoxicating liquors. The accused denied sale, but said his wife had sold. In passing sentence of $50 and costs, Judge Williams declared that because of his action it was not to be construed that his court was a clearing house for crime.

John Peterson, alias, of Jewett City, was arraigned on complaint of Chief Brown, charged Feb. 29 with operation of an automobile on Elm street, and failure to stop on a red semaphore light at the junction of School street. He pleaded guilty, saying he had not been in Westerly for some time and did not notice the traffic beacon. He was fined $2 and costs.

Caroline B. Pickering vs. Harold Q. Moore, a case heard some weeks ago for possession of household goods at a house in Ayondale, court announced for the plaintiff, for possession and costs.

A friendly suit entered by Attorney Ernest A. Jenkes of Providence was that for a collection of damages, doctor's bills and costs as the result of an automobile accident, Mary Italiano, five years old, pro ami, her father, Giuseppe Italiano, vs. George O. Rodan and George R. Rodan. After hearing Dr. M. H. Scanlon, judgment was entered for $125 for plaintiff, without costs.

Following the opening of bids Thursday evening for the construction of a three-door fire station building adjoining the Pawcatuck courthouse, the building committee went over the three submitted for the electrical work. Grills Electric company of Westerly, whose bid was $1,236, was awarded the contract. Other bidders were Whitall Electric company, $1,336, and Pucci Electric shop, which is doing the electric work on the Westerly central fire station on Union street, $1,819. Members of the Pawcatuck Fire district building committee for the new Pawcatuck fire station present were Chairman Francis J. McMahon, engineer of the district; Clerk Alberti R. Stillman, and members of the board of engineers, Nola Morse, Joseph J. Purtill, Henry A. Stahle, Lawrence C. Purtill, Pierce A. Morrison and Albert G. Martin.

The Westerly Cycle club, George Elmer Leonard, president, held its annual meeting Friday night in its club rooms, corner of Main and Broad streets. Plans for the annual banquet were discussed. The banquet is to be held Thursday night, March 15, and will be followed by an entertainment.

Rev. Henry C. Suter, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Westerly, will occupy the pulpit of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church in Norwich, Sunday morning, taking for his sermon subject, "Why This Waste?"

Walter Reith was in Boston Friday.

Miss Marjorie D. Barber, a teacher in Attleboro, Mass., has spent the vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Hiram W. Barber, in Westerly.

William W. Bromley, of Jewett City was in Westerly Friday.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Mar. 2—Citizens interested in the erection of a Y. M. C. A. building in the town of Westerly met this evening at 8 o'clock in the library assembly hall and perfected plans to be submitted at an organization meeting Thursday evening next. Among those present were Thomas Perry and George H. Utter, who are said to be greatly enthused over the matter. It is understood that Will D. Hoxie, deceased, in his will, left money for starting a Y. M. C. A. building and this fact has led others to further his project.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale of Blackstone Property

James L. Case has sold for Edmund W. Perkins, administrator of the estate of Grace W. Blackstone the property located at No. 56 Broad street consisting of a large and attractively landscaped plot of land together with a large stately house of 13 rooms and garage for two motors. The new owner Mr. Charles J. Bolduc has purchased the property for investment.

Final Announcement for Ross Ponselle

With the expiral date on Ross Ponselle looming immediately ahead, final announcement with regard to the pledges for the 1928-1929 series of concerts at Slater hall under the usual Norwich Free academy auspices, is being made today in another column. Inasmuch as the proposed series is being run on the old familiar plan, it is herewith respectfully urged that all intending subscribers, who may have hitherto deferred action on their pledges for one reason or another, may send them in now to the committee, so that the short time option held on Miss Ponselle may be taken up without delay. In this way only can the course be absolutely made sure for Norwich. Many have responded, but the objective is still quite a bit distant from actual realization.

Accounts of Andres Segovia, one of the other three artists in the series, the world renowned guitarist, and his recent recitals in New York city are just coming to hand from the press and it would seem as if the local committee had made no mistake in putting him on the program not only as a novelty but as a real artist, judging from the universal acclaim on the part of the leading critics of the great New York dailies. For instance the following from Lawrence Gilman of the Herald-Tribune, viz: "He (Segovia) gave one of the most extraordinary and engrossing recitals of music that has ever taken place in a New York concert hall. We make no bones about saying that Segovia is one of the most consummate masters of any instrument now before the public. He made the guitar a thing to be spoken of in the same breath with the cello of a Casals, the violin of Heifetz."

Surely indeed a wonderful tribute to the surpassing artistry of the recitalist!

Merle Alcock, too, is one of the real sensations of the current New York season in the field of grand opera, as from the world's greatest opera house viz: "The New York Metropolitan. To be able to appear on three (3) consecutive opera nights in such operas as "Carmen" with Jeritza, in the "King's Henchman" with Easton and Johnson, in "Rigoletto" with Talley and Chamlee as the leading contralto in all three operas would seem to bespeak volumes for the remarkable young American singer and her artistic singing and to place her in the very forefront of operas leading stars.

Course tickets including all four (4) concerts $6.00 each. Mail pledges to Archibald Mitchell, Norwich, Conn. See details in another column.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Norwich Music Association

Members of the Norwich Music association are certain of an evening of real enjoyment on Monday, the 5th. The program for this March meeting will be presented by local musicians, some of whom are known to the members and others making their first appearance. The program for the evening will be published in full in Monday's paper.

Next Week at United Congregational

The cabinet of the Woman's guild will meet in Miss Pullen's study at three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's guild will be held in the Community house at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Amos A. Browning will tell "The Story of Old Lamps and Candles," showing samples in illustration, and there will be the usual tea and social hour.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening, the union services, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be held at 7.30 in the church auditorium. Dr. Henry Howard, of the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church, in New York city, preaching.

Attractive Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 o'clock in the large Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon impressive moving pictures will be shown.

A three reel feature titled "Shall We Forget" is a powerful argument against militarism. Mother love is the main theme. The misery of war which tears at the heartstrings of a devoted mother, the anguish of a supposed eternal separation followed by a happy reunion and the discovery of a hitherto unknown grandson, sadness in the realization that the military spirit has been passed on by inheritance from father to son. Is it right? Is perpetual sacrifice necessary? Shall we forget? This feature appeals to the thoughtful mind and it makes its own deep impression. In addition to the feature, a reel on "The Spirit of Play" will be shown, and this is not only interesting but educational as well. To this service everybody fourteen years of age admitted without a parent or adult. Children under ten not admitted.

Breed Theatre

The smoking car, the club room, the hotel lounge or the saloon—these used to be the hang-outs of the commercial traveler. Except for the latter, they may be still so, but the traveler himself has changed his aspect.

No longer does he flaunt his latest brand of wild-eyed shirt or flaming necktie; no longer does he exhale an aroma of naughtiness with which to startle the ingenuous hotel waitress in the small town; no longer does he cause the spinsters and the sanctimonious of the village to blush with shame and warn young girls against him. He may have an occasional yarn to spin to his customers, but he doesn't represent the very limit of story-telling.

In a word, from being the "drummer" of old, he is the business-man salesman who has passed through the school of sales psychology and who takes his profession seriously.

The old drummer or the new salesman of the road is entitled to consideration and First National Pictures has given him his meed in "Smile, Brother, Smile," produced by Charles R. Rogers, which comes to the Breed theatre tomorrow night.

Jack Mulhall plays the part of the shipping clerk who gets his chance on the road and he does it to a turn. Dorothy Mackaill also is featured and portrays the devoted telephone girl in the home office who circumvents the villain and brings success to the young salesman.

It is a story filled with human interest, a novel plot is supplied, and a sterling cast, John Francis Dillon directed.

See it by all means! It will give you a new viewpoint on the traveling salesman proposition!

paint shop overhead and lived in the first house on the road leading south from the parsonage. His daughter, who is Persis' mother, has been a dear friend of mine all my life. The Carter place by the church was occupied by "Aunt Polly" Carter, who died when I was still quite young. I remember being at her funeral and will say right here that I think it is a great mistake to take children, and especially nervous and imaginative ones to funerals. It doesn't do them any good and sometimes haunts them with unpleasant memories long after. I know it was so with me. "Aunt Polly's" son, Stephen Carter, beginning as a school teacher, later in life studied for the ministry and occupied the parsonage as one much loved pastor until increasing deafness forced him to resign, and even then his old neighbors and parishioners felt that they couldn't lay their loved ones away to sleep without his presence to say the last words over them. But the first minister I really remember was Mr. Sessions, who came to Westminster from Dedham, Mass. The previous one, Mr. Brooks, is but a dim and shadowy memory. I faintly remember a daughter Gertie and a girl who lived with them called Edwina, but nothing more. But Mr. and Mrs. Sessions and the youngest daughter, Laura, who married the Sunday school superintendent, Albert Corteiyou, I remember very well indeed, and the wedding of Miss Laura was the first church wedding I ever attended, and naturally I thought it was something grand.

After the first Mrs. Sessions died he married Miss Orra Etorer, who took such devoted care of him in his declining years, when he grew deaf and almost blind, that she literally wore herself out and passed on to the better land not long after his departure. There

The Sap's A-Sayin' "Howdy!"

Oh, the sap's a-sayin' "Howdy!" So I guess we'd best begin
A-shinin' up the kettles an' a-bringin' firewood in;
Ain't no use to stand an' argy 'bout another heavy freeze—
Shudders may deceive a groundhog, but you can't fool maple trees!

When th' sap begins a-risin' there's a music you can hear
Tells th' truth beyond conjecture—sugar-makin' time is near!
All th' maples kind o' giggle in a knowin' sort of way,
Proof condusive Old Man Winter is a-cuttin' short his stay.

Folks abidin' in th' country know exactly what I mean—
Says an' nights may have their freezes, but there's thawin' in between.
That old gal we call Dame Nature may perform some funny pranks,
Still you'll find us scrubbin' buckets an' a-cleanin' out th' tanks.

Yes, th' sap's a-sayin' "Howdy!" in th' old familiar style,
Pretty soon 'twill be a-drippin' an' you'll see th' kettles bile.
Then there'll be a lot o' chucklin' from th' happiness it makes—
Can't you hear old Mother saying: "Want some sirup on your cakes?"

—By William Herschell in Indianapolis News.

Judith

Flower of youth, in the ancient frame—
Mail of the mettlesome lip and eye,
Lightly wearing the fateful name
And the rakish beaver of days gone by!
Pink of fashion! Yet this is she
That once, through midnight forest and fen,
Guided the horsemen of "Old Santee,"
And rode to the death with Marion's men.

Rare the picture that decks the wall;
Rare and dainty, in life, below,
My century-later belle of the ball,
Mocking the beauty of long ago.
If now the summons should come to ride,
Through such darkness as brooded then,
How would it please you to serve as guide?
And where, ah, where were Marion's men?

Palm the logic that breeds the fear,
Buds will blossom and pipes will play.
So it was in that early year;
So shall it be till the world is gray.
But the petted darling, if need shall be,
As swift to the saddle will vault again;
And those that follow will ride as free
As ever of old rode Marion's men.

—William Young.

Certificates of "air baptism" are being given in France to encourage people to travel by air. The first of these were given in 1913 by the Aeronautic club of France to its members but air club officials all over France now are suggesting every person on his or her first air trip should receive an interesting and worthwhile souvenir of the voyage as a method of propaganda.

The smallest photograph in the world so tiny as to be invisible to the naked eye was on "exhibition" at the Royal Photographic society in London. In the center of a little piece of glass is a minute circle: in the middle of the circle is an infinitesimal speck, which is hidden to the naked eye. Under a microscope, however, one sees a photo of Niepce, one of the inventors of photography, taken by Professor Goldberg.

A Rutland (Vt.) young woman, going to a bank to deposit a $5 gold piece, lost the money. Hunting at home and through her pockets and purse, she at length returned to the business section nearly an hour after the loss. The coin glittered cheerfully from the top of a snow bank within a few feet of the curb, falling by some chance to attract the eye of several men standing nearer to it than the seeker.

Cigarette lighters, like automobiles, now have a "service station" in Paris. In the Rue de la Paix, an enterprising Anglo-Saxon firm has fixed up a corner of its store to take care of smokers who run out of gas, whose lighters get clogged with soot or otherwise act up. A "trouble" man at a bench gives rapid-fire attention—usually without charge—much to the amazement of the French, who are accustomed to the usual French delay of eight or fifteen days for repairs.

Sixteen princes, dukes and counts of the old German empire have drawn from the German republican coffers in the last three years the sum of 2,239,538 gold marks, or about $560,000, according to a statement issued by the Prussian finance ministry in reply to a question in the diet. These payments, the statement explains, take the place of annuities granted after the revolution to former heads of petty German states. They were payable in paper marks. The sum total, 1,881,570 marks, amounted in the inflation year 1922 to the merest fraction of one American cent.

GENERAL MOTORS WAS THE FEATURE OF AN OTHERWISE COLORLESS MARKET

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Heavy buying of General Motors common, which advanced 2 points to 139 1-3, duplicating the year's high, featured an otherwise dull and colorless stock market today. The demand for motors was inspired by predictions of record-breaking first quarter sales and earnings, estimated in some quarters as high as 25 per cent. above the corresponding period of last year.

The general market drifted rather aimlessly, although a reduction in the call money rate from 4 1-2 to 4 1-4 per cent. with funds available in the outside market as low as 4, tended to stimulate buying for both accounts in the late trading. Early selling apparently was based on the disappointingly small decrease in brokers' loans last week, but good support was forthcoming for most of the standard rails and industrials although U. S. Steel common dipped to a new low level for the year at 137 3-8 and then rallied above 138.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further irregularity in the general business situation, with the total volume running slightly below the corresponding perior of last year. Widely divergent views on the future trend of stock prices have developed among the leading commission houses, but most of them continue to advise caution in the making of new committments which probably explains the recently reduced viume of trading. Today's sales again ran well below 2,000,000 shares.

For the first time in several months, General Motors crossed U. S. Steel common today, the former closing a point higher than steel, 139 1-8.

Bear traders, who have successfully terreted out new weak spots each day this week, picked today on Collins & Aikman, forcing that issue down more than 5 points to a new year's low at 79, as against a recent high of 111 3-4. General Railway Signal, yesterday's target, broke 4 more points today to a new low at 94 but recovered all but a small fraction of its loss. Heaviness also deve oped in American Radiator, American Tobacco B, Baruk Cigars, Case Threshing, Houston Oil, International Business Machines, International Agricultural prior preferred, Midland Steel Products preferred, Mullins Body and Timken.

R. H. Macy soared 23 points to a record high at 213, but lost 15 points of its gain. Abraham & Strauss jumped 8 1-2 points to 104, closing at 102 1-2. Gimbel Bros. common and preferred were heavy, the latter touching a new 1928 low at 90. Lambert ran up 7 points to a new high at 95 3-8 and sharp gains were recorded by American Bosch Magneto, American Snuff, Christie Brown, Electric Storage Battery, Coty, National Tea and Union Carbide.

Rails were inclined to heaviness. Seaboard Air Line issues again sank to new loans, and heaviness developed in Southern Pacific, Frisco common and a few others. Rock Island strengthened on unconfirmed rumors that the annual dividend would be increased next week. Canadian Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio also received good support.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity markets were mixed. Grain futures were slightly firmer while cotton and coffee prices were reactionary. Sugar quotations held steady.

Foreign exchanges moved within extremely narrow and irregular limits, with sterling cables slightly easier around $4.87 23-32.

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—Railroad executives will discuss at a meeting in New York within a week the much talked of proposal of handling the express business of the country by a railroad-owned express company, W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe system revealed today. Mr. Storey said he had received replies from most of the large roads in reference to this subject, and the meeting would consider "whether to go further with it, or to do nothing."

Westinghouse Air Brake earned $2.68 a share on 3,172,110 no par shares in 1927, against $13.28 a share, $50 par, in 1926. Net income declined to $8,520,009 from $10,585,062.

Peerless Motor Car Co. had net loss of $735,734 for 1927, compared with net income of $319,883 in 1926, or $3.55 a share.

F. W. Kelley, president of North American Cement corporation, informs stockholders that gains in volume of business and reduction in unit costs during 1927 were more than neutralized by sharp reductions in selling prices, due largely to foreign cement entering the American market without any equalizing duty. Net income for the year was $227,885 and net sales $5,916,072.

Thirteen new members have been elected to the New York Produce exchange, including nine members of New York Stock exchange firms, banks and general security interests.

MONTVILLE

Relatives and friends in Montville have recently received word of the death of Thomas H. Furber, age 89, which occurred at his home in Marathon, N. Y. Mr. Furber was the father of Melvin Furber, late of Montville; also the grandfather of Mark T. Furber and great-grandfather of Felton and Allan Chapman Furber, also of Montville. During his lifetime Mr. Furber had made two visits with his relatives here and during these periods made many friends locally who will regret to learn of his death. Being a man of an exceptionally fine character, he was just in all his many business dealings always. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday, Feb. 29, at his late home in Marathon.

Fred Simpson, who for several years has been in the employ of the Central Vermont Railway company at the Norwich station, left Thursday for New York city, where he has been transferred and promoted to a position at the New York city pier of this company. Mr. Simpson was pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening when the members of the Montville Pinochle club, who are sorry to lose him, presented a gold piece to him as a token of their esteem, when they met with Mrs. Walter F. Perry at her home.

Mrs. Arthur E. Blaisdell, a member of the Women's club of New London, was present at its February party given in the club rooms on Main street, New London, Tuesday evening. Besides giving several readings, Mrs. Blaisdell proved highly pleasing with her fortune telling.

Mrs. Harriet Edmonds entertained at luncheon on Wednesday of this week Mrs. Arthur E. Blaisdell of Uncasville and Mrs. C. Everett Chapman.

The meeting of the Montville Community club which was to have been held at the home of Mrs. Donald G. Bullard Wednesday has been postponed until the following week. Mrs. Robinson will be with the ladies to instruct them in the art of making hooked rugs.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight O. Kelsey visited Sunday in Hebron with their daughter, Mrs. Jared Terrant, and family of that place.

After spending a week with his grandmother, Mrs. Capitola Burgess, of Palmertown, Richard Shaffer has returned to his home in New London.

The Friendly Indians, a group of the smaller boys of Palmertown, under the direction of Herbert W. Rogers, are doing good work and enjoying many pleasant Saturday afternoons. Their program for last Saturday afternoon included a hike to and from Cochegan Rock with the Rev. Edward L. Nield and Mr. Rogers as guides.

Harry Carter, Jr., is recovering from a recent serious illness.

Walter Staubley has moved his family from their recent home on Gay Hill to the Newton Landphere place.

MISS JANIE L. EDGAR, REALTOR, DIES SUDDENLY FRIDAY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 2—Miss Janie L. Edgar, 65, prominent in the insurance and real estate business in New London died this noon. Miss Edgar was the daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Smith Edgar. She was born in New London and succeeded to the business carried on by her father for many years and made a success of it. She was energetic and pursued her calling with intelligence and energy. She is survived by two nephews, C. B. Edgar of this city and George P. Edgar of New York sons of Miss Edgar's brother, the late George P. Edgar. Miss Edgar died from heart disease at her home, 49 Channing street. She had been failing for a brief time, but her death was not anticipated until a few hours before the end came. Miss Edgar was a member of the First Church of Christ and was active in the work her membership in that church brought to her.

ONE WILLIAMS ST. OWNER OPPOSES STREET CHANGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 2—The board of compensation convened this morning in the council chamber, municipal building, for the purpose of permitting property owners of Williams street to be heard in relation to the city's proposed plan to widen that street, between Rosemary street and Mohegan avenue. But few property owners availed themselves of the opportunity to express themselves on the matter. The only objector to the widening of the highway was Frank Woodworth, who owns property at 428-433. He stated that by the widening of the street a section of the sidewalk in front of his properties would of necessity be taken, that his property would be damaged and that he would be compelled to expend money for the construction of steps leading to these properties. Such construction, he said, would endanger the limbs of users of the steps. He objected strongly to any part of the present sidewalk in front of his two properties being used for the contemplated improvements.

PETER COVINO'S FUNERAL—ITALIAN RESIDENTS ATTEND

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 2—The funeral of Peter Covino, of West Coit street for many years employed as a gardener at the Mitchell estate, Pequot avenue, was held this morning at 8.30 o'clock from Fascista hall, Shaw street. At 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, a throng of mourners assembled to pay a last tribute to a highly respected citizen. The high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. George Clark. As a waiting hymn Edward F. Murray sang, "Some Sweet Day," and the church quartet sang the Gregorian mass. The bearers were Carlo Esposito, Gaspere Pretangelo and Antonio Sigarre, representing the Sizione Fascista and Idolo Monrese, Guiseppe Caporza, Donato Penella and Peter Ioeulio, representing the Societa. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Clark.

Lewis Hollis, 21, of 98 Tenth street employed as a cutter at the plant of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries company, Groton, was painfully injured this morning while at his work. In the manipulating of the cutting device, Hollis' right hand was caught beneath the blade and badly gashed. He was given emergency treatment, after which he was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where several stitches were required to close the wound.

The condition of Patrick Sullivan of 18 Warren street, employed by the revenue department at Boston, who was seriously injured early yesterday morning when the automobile he was driving to New London overturned at Quaker Hill, was reported at Lawrence Memorial hospital this afternoon as being very slightly improved. Whether Sullivan has sustained a fractured skull has not been determined, but will be within a few days. He, however, did suffer a compound fracture of the cheek bone and has numerous lacerations and bruises. Charles Kelly, 56 Wentworth street, a passenger in the auto who received severe bruises to his shoulder and arm, was able to leave the hospital today and went to his home.

Nikata Kotolop has sold a house and lot on Woodbridge street to Angelo and Antonio Drago.

The deed transferring title in the house and lot, corner of Huntington and Federal streets from Mrs. Ida Allyn to Dr. Alfred Labensky, was received for record at the office of the city clerk today.

Mrs. Peter Berry of Hartford, has arrived in New London for the season and is occupying her summer residence on Pequot avenue.

Antonio Milea has sold an undivided one-half interest in the pool room and fixtures at 47 Bank street to C. W. Carvan.

The police signal box, corner of Montauk and Hall avenues, does not function properly and repairs will be made to have the box in proper working order without delay.

Louis M. Schablein, 43 Colman St., made complaint to Patrolman George Laboue last night, charging the driver of an automobile carrying Connecticut markers N-8045 with breach of the peace and requested that the driver be arrested. The complaint was made following an altercation between Schablein and the alleged offending driver. The latter has not been located.

al at New York has communicated effort to ascertain the whereabouts of T. Luce, formerly owner of the American whaler Francis Allyn, who formerly resided in this city. The whaler when sailing from this port was in charge of Captain Fuller. The consulate general stated that he had addressed a letter to Luce here last week, but that it had been returned to him, the party not being known. Because of the fact that the whaling industry at this port was abandoned many years ago, it is believed that Luce has long since died, for he is not known to New London's oldest residents.

H. E. Ritt, 142 North Bank street, was charged in the police court today with violation of a city ordinance in parking his auto on the east side of Bank street. The charge was nolled.

William Murach was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, he having been arrested last night by Patrolman Edward Skoczylas. He was fined $5 but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Taylor Coyle was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace and was discharged. Coyle was arrested on State street last night by Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Edward Riordan.

A fellow with a long record in court for intoxication, was there again today on the same charge, having been arrested on Main street last night by Patrolmen Albert Iverson and Dennis Murphy. He was sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Arnold Avery of Groton; Cynthia Waller, 122 Vauxhall street; Mrs. Norma Brollbard, Hartford; Angelina Colansante, Mystic; Donald Dayetew, United States Coast Guard and Antonio Visciont, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

STRICKEN WHILE ON TRAIN, NEW ROCHELLE MAN EXPIRES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 2—Harold R. Schoonmacher, 55, of New Rochelle, N. Y., died suddenly in New London late this afternoon from an acute attack of heart trouble. Schoonmacher was a passenger on the New Haven railroad train that arrived in New London at 5:28. Between Westerly and New London Schoonmacher experienced a heart attack and collapsed in his seat. Members of the train crew went to his assistance and when the train reached New London a physician who had been summoned administered to the semi-conscious man. He was in an extremely weakened condition and did not respond to treatment and expired in the baggage room while Dr. Frank M. Dunn was administering to him. Schoonmacher had been employed by a pharmaceutical company in Boston, the J. V. Hale Co., and it is believed that he was on his way to New Rochele when stricken. The body was taken to an undertaker's establishment and is being held awaiting relatives advising as to its disposal. Schoonmacher boarded the train apparently in sound condition and nothing appeared strange in his demeanor until after the train had passed Westerly when he swooned. He was taken to the baggage car and made as comfortable as conditions would permit. When the train arrived in New London a physician had been summoned, but while he worked on the patient and before the ambulance arrived, Schoonmacher expired.

That City Manager Holt does not intend to alter his plans as regards one-way traffic on Bank street is evident from the fact that the work of widening the street and the installation of the improved sewer system is being carried on. The work now is well advanced and within a few days it will have been completed as far as laying the sewer is concerned, but the widening of the street will take a long time to complete it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Love and laughter, with two American soldiers and an Arab girl as the principals, are the principal ingredients of "Two Arabian Knights" post-war doughboy comedy-drama which will be seen Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Palace theatre. None of the sordidness of war enters the story, which is concerned with the rollicking experiences of a rich, young private and a hard-boiled first sergeant, fated to be buddies throughout a series of hilarious adventures, although they had been natural enemies.

William Boyd plays the stellar role which is this star's first appearance in a major film since his work in "The Volga Boatman."

With Boyd is Mary Astor, who played poposite John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel" and Douglas Fairbanks in "Don Q." She has appeared since in numerous First National productions. That company loaned her services to Caddo Productions which produced "Two Arabian Knights," under supervision of John W. Considine, Jr.

Louis Wolheim, the original "Captain Flagg" of the stage play "What Price Glory?" is the third principal in "Two Arabian Knights." He is top sergeant Peter McGaffney.

In the film, two American doughboys, escaping from an enemy prison camp in Arab attire, find themselves shunted to Arabia, and helpless to prevent it. The things that happen to them may be funny to the spectator, but they are serious to the soldiers. However, with true American spirit they meet each obstacle lightly, overcome it, and pass on to a worse one. They have nothing but trouble until they meet an Arab girl of high rank. Then they have twice as much trouble.

The rich, young private, played by William Boyd, falls in love with the veiled beauty. So does his partner, the hard-boiled sergeant, played by Louis Wolheim, who created the role of Captain Flagg in "What Price Glory?" on the stage in New York, and who is the instigator of half of the laughs in "Two Arabian Knights." Near-tragedy contrasts with humor when the carefree pair, worried about nothing beyond the next meal, fall into the hands of the Emir, father of the girl and of her fiancee.

Strand Theatre

For real entertainment we can unhesitatingly recommend "The Dark Angel" showing Sunday night only at the Strand. Ronald Colman is at his very best as Hilary Trent, a young and handsome army officer, and the story concerns his love for Vilma Banky as the beautiful Kitty Vane. This is not the usual type of love drama. There is no villain. There is not a dishonorable act by anybody. Is it misunderstanding that tears lovers apart? Is it jealousy? Is it selfishness? You must learn by seeing this mighty drama with Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky as the screen's most wonderful lovers. Society luxuries, magnificent pageants, thrilling chases and horse spills, all in one wonderful picture.

"The Midnight Thieves" is a thrilling society melodrama featuring Herbert Rawlinson and Grace Darmond. You will gasp with surprise and hold your breath in suspense at some of the thrills in this photoplay. In elaborate settings of beautiful mansions, you will see society at its best, charming men and beautiful women bedecked with expensive jewels. If you enjoy a picture full of action and thrills, be sure to see this mystery film that doesn't unfold itself until the end of the delightful story. This is a John Ince production and has a clever all star supporting cast.

Challenge

All music, from classical to jazz, contains in whole or in part the fundamental harmonic structure and three elements of music featured and taught in the Sparks-Shefte School. The undersigned challenges any music teacher or musician to refute the foregoing statement and prove it to be without fact and foundation. A local piano and singing teacher refers to my instruction as "Trash." If it is, then he should have no trouble in refuting my challenge. Try and do it.

THEN ALL-BRAN SAVED HIM FROM CONSTIPATION

A message for people who use laxatives

Mr. Skiles wrote us a voluntary testimonial after Kellogg's ALL-BRAN had saved him from dreadful constipation. Read his tribute:

July 12, 1927

"For years I have been so constipated. After trying every kind of drug possible, I could only get temporary relief. I became discouraged and gave up hopes, when a friend told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I had read so many testimonials I had no faith. I was of the opinion testimonials were put out by friends. I will not only give you the privilege to use my name, but I will go on the witness stand and testify to my statement. I cannot express words great enough to meet with Kellogg's food." —ARTHUR SKILES, 325 N. Keeler Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If constipation is preying upon your health, check it before too late. If you are using habit-forming laxatives, stop it before this harmful practice fastens its grip too tight.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. A 100% bran cereal—delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

BEGINNING TO PLACE STEEL WORK AT POQUETANUCK COVE NEW BRIDGE

The first of the steel work for the new road bridge on the Military highway over Poquetanuck cove was placed Friday when one of the big 104-foot steel girders was laid from the concrete abutment on the northerly shore to the first abutment in the stream. The girder weighs 17 tons, but it was swung over onto the abutments by a powerful crane after it had been run near to position on a narrow temporary track, which has been built for wheeled trucks that are used in the work. Another girder is at the bridge, waiting to be swung into place today (Saturday).

The first girders being placed are those on the westerly side of the bridge and these will be set from shore to shore over the abutments before any of the girders for the easterly side are put into position.

The Merritt-Chapman & Scott corporation of New London, which has the construction contract on the bridge, had the heavy steel girders brought up the Thames river by boat to the railroad bridge at the outlet of Poquetanuck cove. Here a steam crane lifts the girders from the deck of the boat and swings them over the railroad tracks to place them on flat scows which are towed up the cove to the old highway bridge. There a powerful crane lifts the girders clear over the old bridge and swings them over onto the small trucks which run on the temporary track. A gasoline-propelled tractor pulls the trucks with the girders along the track.

When the girders for the easterly side of the new bridge are to be placed, a different method will be followed to get them off the flatboats. These will be run through the old bridge at high tide, which will bring the boats out on the easterly side of the new bridge, and they will then be in position for the crane to lift the girders into position on the abutments for the easterly line of the structure.

SAID TO HAVE BEEN MARRIED IN NORWICH

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 2—(AP)—A tale of family discord that led from the altar in Norwich, Conn., through two midwestern cities to Milwaukee, was related before Judge Oscar Fritz today by Davis Savitz, former rabbi of B'Nai Brith Israel Jewish congregation.

The incompatibility of his wife and himself was so advertised by her, the rabbi testified, that he lost his church position in Evansville, Ind., Joliet, Ill., and in Milwaukee. He has been asked to resign his present position with a Winnipeg, Man., congregation because of the difficulties with his wife, he asserted.

Twice Mrs. Savitz chased the rabbi out of their home, the rabbi testified, and once she threatened to poison their children when he refused to leave his study to care for them. Epithets hurled at him were commonplace, he asserted.

Mrs. Savitz' counsel indicated that letters from a woman correspondent will be introduced.

Nothing could be learned here Friday night to connect Rabbi Savitz and his wife with this city, where they were said to have been married.

BRINGS $1,500 SUIT FOR DAMAGE TO AUTO

Vincenzo De Crezenzo of New London, whose automobile was badly damaged last Tuesday night in an accident near the Uncasville switch of the trolley line, has taken prompt action against the driver and owner of the machine that hit his. He has brought a $1,500 damage suit in the common pleas court against Frank Malinowsky of Uncasville. Malinowsky has already been fined $100 on each of three counts, reckless driving, evading responsibility and driving under the influence, when he was presented in a justice's court in Montville last Wednesday night. Half of the total fine was remitted by the justice.

De Crezenzo's machine was being driven at the time of the acident by Pasquale Capone of Denison avenue, Groton, but De Crezenzo was with the Groton man and was the one to commandeer another machine and chase the Malinowsky machine as far as Derry hill before he caught the fugitive automobile. Capone suffered a broken collar bone in the accident, being caught underneath the car when it turned over on the trolley tracks after the Montville man's machine hit it.

DR. HOWE SPEAKER AT LENTEN NOON SERVICES

The second in the series of Friday noon Lenten services was held this week at the Young Men's Christian association, lunch being served at twelve o'clock.

Rev. Samuel H. Howe, the popular pastor of Park Congregational church, was the speaker. Edmund A. Prentice presided. The service was opened by the singing of the impressive hymn, "Jesus the VeryThought of Thee." Rev. H. H. Conklin of Baltic offered a fervent prayer, and Hugh Kinder, the pianist, rendered in solo very impressively, "Under His Wings."

Dr. Howe read as basis of his thoughtful and touching talk, the story of where the disciples had toiled all night for fish but had caught none, and Jesus sent them back telling them where they would find the fish; he spoke in part as follows: "I know you miss Dr. Danforth who has conducted these Lenten services for several years. Few ministers have the faculty of Dr. Danforth in talking to men. I am also glad that President Marshall is with you this season in five of the series. He has suggested a topic for the series that is exceedingly appropriate in these days, "Taking Jesus Christ Seriously." Neither his disciples then, nor his followers have taken Jesus seriously. They resented, in a way his counsel at times, as in this story of the disciples fishing.

Not until they took him seriously did they succeed in catching the fish, and so we will never have real success until we take him seriously. They could not understand why he wanted to go to Jerusalem to the cross, but he knew why. They could not see why he wanted to go to suffer when they wanted him to reign as an earthly potentate. Jesus sends men back to their failures, that they may there begin again and that they may become victors; that they may wrest success from their failures. Men, you should go back to where you have failed and win your battle of conquest. Emerson said, "a man should conquer some of his weaknesses every day." Jesus took all failures and won the heart of the world with them; he magnificently succeeded with the failures assigned to him. We must see Christianity in Jesus Christ; creeds should not and cannot encompass him. Let us make a new start. Men are not putting out their full strength for Jesus Christ; stay with him and take your orders from him. The Christian life is a great venture; a great adventure; you must venture if you follow Jesus Christ. The early church had the experience; it had to take a great adventure. In Norwich, men should step out as Christians; we need great Christians in our city today. We want them to be outstanding men for Christ and the church and in our city affairs. Many make a convenience of Jesus; they are "week-end people". The auto is a good thing, but it should help the church and not hinder its work. We need a class of men who stand by their church; that should be their first business. Men should not let social affairs interfere with Jesus and his church. I am glad to say to every citizen, take your stand, and when others would take you away from this high place, say to them, I am a religious man; Christ and his church comes first with me. You recall that these disciples caught no fish until they took Jesus into their boat. Men, let us take him into our boat; put a chair in your office for the Christ. Make him your partner in real fashion. Hang the "Golden Rule" on the walls of your business office and follow it closely. By thus taking Jesus Christ seriously, your life and the life of the city will be changed."

Central Baptist Topic for March

"What is Meant by Salvation" will be the topic running through the month of March at the Central Baptist church. The first of the series will occur on Sunday morning in connection with the celebration of the Lord's Supper. Among the topics treated will be "Salvation as Forgiveness", "Salvation as Power" and "Salvation as Hope."

The Junior church topic will be "When Mary Was Afraid." At five Mrs. Pitt will conduct the boys' and girls' chorus. Dr. Pitt is to be present at the B. Y. P. U. service and lead in the discussion of "Checking Up on My Life."

The evening service will be held in the United Congregational church under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. with the churches cooperating. Dr. Samuel Grafilin of New York city will be the speaker, the service beginning at 7:30.

FEBRUARY MADE FIRE RECORD FOR NORWICH

Three fires in February, all within the space of 72 hours, resulted in a fire loss for the month in Norwich several thousand dollars larger than the entire fire loss for the year 1927, which was a little over $45,000. The February loss exceeds that of any single month for a number of years past. There were 21 alarms for the month, eight of them being bell alarms.

The original estimate of $100,000 loss in the three big fires last month will be considerably less than that amount, it is expected, when final and more accurate check-ups are made. The first of the three fires occurred early in the morning of February 18. This was the Eldredge store fire on Water street. At that time the loss to the Eldredge store and the store conducted by Fred T. Crowell was placed at $10,000. This amount has been considerably reduced since that time. About eight hours after the Eldredge store fire, flames destroyed the building owned and occupied by the Norwich Grain Company on Water street with damage to the adjoining building occupied by Bishop and Bidwell and to the old L. A. Gallup building. The loss was estimated at well over $50,000 but this figure will without doubt be cut down considerably.

The third fire within the 72 hour period was that at the Norwich Dollar store which broke out early in the evening of February 20th. The loss to the building was placed at $5,000 and the management of the store placed the loss to stock and fixtures at $20,000.

Over 10,000 feet of hose was laid at the three fires. Three firemen were injured at the grain store fire and several others were compelled to be off duty owing to severe colds due to exposure. The deputy chief's machine was damaged when the top was ripped off and the windshield smashed by a line of hose which got away from firemen who were carrying it to the grain company building while riding on the running board of the machine. Engine Company No. 6 was put out of commission due to a burned bearing at that fire but is now back in commission again. One of the eight bell alarms was a false alarm and two were second alarms pulled in from box 161.

Child Struck By Automobile

Late Thursday afternoon Walter, 10 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Podurgiel of No. 46 Ward St., received bruises and cuts when he was hit by an automobile on West Main street, near Forest street. The machine was operated by William Kumfort, 28, of Bozrah. The child was taken to the hospital. The driver of the machine stated that the boy started to cross the street, then changed his mind and started back to the sidewalk when he was hit.

O. G. Club

The O. G. club met at the home of the Misses Mary and Louis Leone on Jail Hill Thursday evening. After the sewing hour, dancing and singing were enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses. The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Florence Morrill on Fountain street.

There are eight grandchildren; a brother, Robert Bushnell, of Mamaroneck, New York, and a sister, Mrs. William Bentley, of Phoenix, Ariz. His aunt is Mrs. Mary Webb, of the Johnson Home family.

Mr. Bushnell was well known throughout Norwich Town, where he had lived for many years. As a neighbor and friend he was ever thoughtful and generous, and he was prompt to cheer the sick and shut-ins. This was manifested by his frequent visits to his aunt, who is an invalid. In business relations, his efficiency was recognized and appreciated. Many expressions of sympathy have been extended the bereaved family.

Mrs. Andrew Gardner, of West Town street, was hostess Thursday, at the March meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church at her home. The president, Mrs. William Weaver, presided, and read the 46th Psalm. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Gardner. With Mrs. Frederick H. Bushnell as accompanist, two hymns were sung: Near the Cross and If Ever I Love Thee, My Jesus, 'Tis Now. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. A short time was given over to business. There was sewing on patch-work. The Mizpah benediction brought the meeting to a close, after which, Mrs. Gardner, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Fulton, served cake and tea.

CAN YOU WASH FOR 85c?

85c

is the AVERAGE cost of our Rough Dry Family Bundle

A group of women in Home Economics decided to "keep books" on what home washing actually costs. They took the average costs of washing in average homes and this is what their accounts showed:

Deterioration of Equipment	$ .20
Electricity	.10
Water	.05
Gas	.15
Soap, actual cost	.10
Washing powder	.05
Bluing	.02
	$ .57

Our AVERAGE cost for this same type of washing would be 85c.

It cost them MORE to do the work at home than it would have cost them to send it to the laundry—and this does not include their Time and Effort or the hours spent ironing the clothes.

PROBLEM FOR THE COUNCIL OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Little Entente Has Requested the Council to Investigate the Circumstances Incident to the Arrival of 2,000 Machine Guns on the Hungarian-Austrian Frontier—The Incident Has Caused Much Concern to Several Nations—Hungary Has Virtually Been Accused of Violating the Arms Treaty.

GENEVA, March 4—(AP)—Circumstances incident to the arrival of some 2,000 machine guns on the Hungarian-Austrian frontier will be investigated by the council of the league of nations, which opens its March sessions tomorrow, at the request of the little entente.

Those central European powers have appealed to the league to get at the heart of this incident that has caused much concern to several nations and Hungary has been virtually accused in some quarters of importing arms in violation of the treaty of Trianon, which fixes the amount of armaments she may possess.

When a freight train recently reached the frontier town of St. Gotthard Austrian customs officials wrenched open six cars supposed to contain farm implements and came across some nicely packed machine guns. The cars got into the Hungarian side of the frontier and Austria declined to take them back when Hungarian officials said they were not destined for Hungary and that it was all a mistake. According to unverified reports reaching Geneva the machine guns have disappeared and peaceful agricultural implements now repose in the box cars.

The whole thing is somewhat of a mystery and the little entente promptly asked for an investigation when diplomatic exchanges failed to establish everything to the satisfaction of all parties. The machinery set in motion at Geneva is called the "right of investigation," which the council, by virtue of the Paris treaties, has at its command for seeing to it that the armaments of the powers who fought the allies in the World war are not in excess of the amount stipulated by treaties.

Some twenty-five questions figure on the agenda of the council which will be presided over by Francosco Jose Urrutia, The member for Colombia. Important among them is the dispute between Rumania and Hungary concerning the property of Hungarian nationals sequestrated by the Rumanian state by virtue of the Rumanian agrarian law. This property exists in that part of Hungary which was annexed by Rumania as a result of the war and Hungary has protested that the amount of compensation to the land-owners is too small.

The work of financial reconstruction which the league of nations is undertaking in Europe appears on the agenda in the form of requests for stabilization loans for Bulgaria and Portugal. The financial committee of the league has been investigating the financial condition of these two countries and will submit a report to the council. The Bulgarian loan has already received tentative approval.

In the domain of intellectual cooperation, the council will have to give its decision concerning the offer of funds made by the American Council of Education for a fact-finding study of the various European agencies concerned with personal exchanges of professors and students between different countries and facilities to be accorded them for studies abroad.

275 START MARATHON FROM LOS ANGELES TO NEW YORK

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—(AP)—Out of the west today started a band of athletes numbering approximately 275 on the first stretch of the longest marathon in modern history—a trans-continental race from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

In mid-afternoon the starter's gun sent the legion of runners and walkers away on the 3,400 mile grind to New York city for $45,500, to be divided among the first ten athletes to reach the finish. Twenty-five thousand dollars goes to the winner, $10,000 to the runner-up, $5,000 for third place and $2,500 for fourth. The remaining six prizes are $1,000 each for the next six finishers.

The contestants were sent away in groups of 25 and less. There was no nervous pawing of the track, no false starts. Every entrant knew he had plenty of time to run during the next two months or more.

Thousands of spectators milled around Ascot park as the runners circled the track and turned their faces from Los Angeles. The route leading out of the city was choked with cheering crowds.

A huge motor caravan of curious formed in the wake of the runners as they set out for Puente, 16 miles distant, the first listed overnight stop.

No sporting event ever drew a stranger entry list. Old men jogged alongside youngsters. A 16-year-old boy matched steps with a gray-haired man of 63. Nearly every race and color was represented.

GEN. DIAZ MADE HIS WILL THREE HOURS BEFORE DEATH

ROME, March 4—(AP)—The will of General Armando Diaz, disposing of an estate of small intrinsic value but including the honors showered by Italy in gratitude for the World war campaign in which he was her savjour was made by the dying warrior less than three hours before the end, it was disclosed here today.

To his son, Marcello, General Diaz left his sword of honor, his war souvenirs, and his archives and documents on the condition that if his son has no issue the relics shall go to a museum upon his death.

Of the tangible value as enumerated in the will were only the villa in Naples given him by the citizens of his native city and 500 shares of stock in an Italian company. To his widow he left an apartment with its furniture and decorations. The villa, which he had greatly cherished because of the manner in which it was given, he specified should be held in his family in perpetuity, with the provision that if his other children wished to dispose of their interest they must offer it first to Marcello.

GAS PROTECTION FOR 10,000,000 POUND VAULT

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Chemistry stands guard over the new four-story 10,000,000 pound vault of the Equitable Safe Deposit company, and and nocturnal prowlers who hope to enter with the aid of an oxy-acetylene cutting flame probably will be axphyxiated before they have a chance to express their surprise. The vault not only is protected by metal which resists flame, but also is entirely surrounded by a chemical compound which, when subjected to the heat of an attacking torch, throws off dense volumes of smoke and gas said to be so powerful that even a gas mask is useless.

The company, a subsidiary of the Equitable Trust company, opens its new offices in the Equitable Trust building tomorrow. The vault, which in floor space is as large as a small business building, rests on solid rock 50 feet below the street level. Its protective devices largely are in accord with modern practice, but the gas protection is regarded as a radical departure.

TWO FRENC AVIATORS ARE AT THE FORD AIRPORT

DETROIT, March 4.—(AP)—Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Le Brix, French four continental fliers, landed their biplane, the Nungesser-Coli at the Ford airport here at 2.50 p. m., eastern standard time today after a non-stop flight from Sharpsville, Pa.

The fliers, delayed at Sharpsville by motor trouble took off at that point at 11.32 a. m. The flight to Detroit they said, was uneventful although they encountered high winds and extremely cold weather.

Because of a blizzard that prevailed here throughout the morning and early afternoon arrival of the French fliers had not been expected, and upon landing they found only the airport staff on hand.

The fliers, en route home by way of San Francisco, will remain here overnight and continue on to Chicago tomorrow.

Matthews of 117 Farren avenue, New Haven, Miss Butler's companion and driver of the car who was released in bonds of $500 after the accident, was re-arrested today on a charge of operating an automobile in a manner to cause death and was later released in $1,500 bonds. LINDBERGH KEEPING OUT OF THE PUBLIC EYE

Five Men Killed in Crash of Airplane

The Party Was on Pleasure Trip in a Privately Owned Plane—Fell 300 Feet.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 4—(AP)—Five men were killed here today in the crash of a privately owned plane. The dead are: W. W. Bird, builder and pilot of the plane; Chester H. Kidwell of Ocean Beach; Ralph Craig of Coronado; Irvin Thomas of San Diego, and another who had not been identified late today.

Bird, a San Diego contractor keenly interested in aviation, had taken the party on a pleasure trip from a commercial landing field here and was returning when the plane crashed from a height of about 300 feet not far from the field. Employes at the field said Bird seemed to be having trouble when he took off, but had had flown for some time before the machine fell.

The plane was flying to a landing at the airport when it nose dived. Witnesses said Bird apparently swung away from the field to give room to a big Maddux air liner, which was landing and which had the right of way. As the Bird plane swung, its nose suddenly tipped forward and the plane half turned as it shot earthward, landing nose first.

Bird and his four passengers left the Barnett field airport at 11 o'clock this morning. His passengers were recruited from among the men around the field, some of whom had helped him oil and gas the plane.

The passengers were warned by attaches of the Mahoney airport that Bird had been refused a pilot's license from the city air control board on the ground of inexperience and that the plane had been "grounded" or ordered not to fly by the same commission. They insisted, however, air men at the field said, that they would "take a chance."

W. W. Gibson, chairman of the city air control board, and "Red" Harrigan, member of the board, witnessed the crash from the Mahoney airport. They said the ship evidently was not airworthy and that when it was coming into the field it was not flying properly but had the left wing tipped. Gibson and Harrigan said that Bird had taken his machine into the air in violation of the order of the air control boar

I. T. R. STILL KEEPING 2,000 EMERGENCY WORKERS

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Two thousand emergency workers still were being fed and housed by the Interborough Rapid Transit company today, while officials of organized labor were preparing to call a strike in the event the Interborough refuses to accept their terms of arbitration.

Interborough officials refused to discuss the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employe's terms, which Mayor Walker plans to submit to the company tomorrow. The amalgamated has ordered to have the cases of 21 of its members suspended by the company—the crux of the controversy—reviewed either by Mayor Walker of the transit commission.

MUSSOLINI TALKED TO 50 GENERAL OFFICERS

ROME, March 4.—(AP)—That the prestige of any country is strictly limited by the efficiency of its armed forces, was the principal point in a talk Premier Mussolini made to 40 general officers today.

Speaking as minister of war, Mussolini impressed the grizzled leaders of the Italian army, who are here in connection with the funeral of Marshal Diaz, that morale of troops is most essential and that discipline and preparation of both men and material in any eventuality is the duty of officers requiring the highest talents and promotions can be made only on the basis of efficiency through training.

American Buyers at Leipzig Spring Fair

The Lion's Sh[illegible] Estimated $10,000,[illegible] Orders Woul[illegible] Germany.

LE[illegible]rmany, March 4—(AP)—Le[illegible] was filled to suffocat[illegible] a motley crowd from the [illegible] new worlds who came to see [illegible] business at the spring fair [illegible]ch opened today and will last until March 14.

The fair occupies an area of 300,000 square meters which is claimed to be the largest exposition area ever used in the world. Among the 10,170 exhibitors there are six American firms having their own exhibit while 60 others display American-made goods by foreign agents.

The popular types of American automobiles are prominent in the fair, but American toys from New Haven, Conn.; textiles and perfumery from New York city; and machinery from Rochester, N. Y., also are on view.

More than 2,000 American buyers are here to inspect the latest ideas in toys, beads, China, and jewelry. The low-priced chain stores of the United States are well represented among them. One American expert here declared that each American buyer must place orders for at least $50,000 if his trip is to pay for itself, and on this basis Uncle Sam seems likely to leave upwards of $10,000,000 on this side of the ocean, the lion's share of which would fall to Germany.

Enormous crowds continue to pour into the city by hundreds of special trains and by the aviation services. One of the features of the fair this year is the Japanese show which is occurring for the first time. Silks, porcelains, lacquer and foodstuffs are shown by 114 Japanese firms. The Russian hall surmounted by the red soviet flag is another attraction with its exhibition of coal, ores, hides, naptha and other natural products of the soviet territory.

President Hindenburg telegraphed felicitations at the opening of the fair which the Germans hope will consolidate the business with old customers while attracting new under the exposition slogan "Cheaper and better here than elsewhere."

WAS SOUGHT FOR MURDER THAT HE DID NOT COMMIT

ROCKFORD, Ills., March 4—(AP)—Henry T. Olson, 26 year old Rockford automobile mechanic who is under life imprisonment sentence for a crime he did not commit is home today, happy once more.

His story and escape from prison completed one of the most unusual cases in the history of Illinois criminal courts.

On Sept. 6, 1927, two men entered a Rockford filling station, and during the holdup, Floyd Stotler, an oil station attendant was shot and killed. Olson was arrested on circumstantial evidence, identified as the slayer of attendant and after two trials convicted on a charge of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. His attorney appealed and the court granted Olson freedom on $10,000 bonds. That night, Olson and his wife left Rockford.

While the police sought his capture, two youths, George Bliss, 18, and Maurice Mahan, 17, confessed that they, and not Olson had held up the station and that Bliss had shot and killed Stotler.

Then the police sent out a message, "Henry T. Olson come home. You are innocent." The Associated Press carried the story, which was printed in a newspaper at New Orleans, where Olson and his wife read it. They immediate entrained for Rockford arriving last night.

Judge A. D. Fisher, who presided at Olson's two trials said Bliss and Mahan would be arraigned Monday and that indications are they would both plead guilty. After their case is disposed of, Olson will be granted a new trial and the judge said he would direct the jury to return a verdict of acquittal of the charge.

FATHER ADMITTED PUSHING TWO OF HIS YOUNG SONS INTO A CANAL TO DROWN

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., March 4.—(AP)—A confession, as strange as ever was made by a parent, was signed today by George A. Chisholm. In it he admitted pushing his two young sons intothe Industrial canal here Feb. 6. The bodies were recovered, one on Feb. 22 and the other on March 1.

In previous verbal statements Chisholm declared he induced the boys, George, 9, and Edgar, 7, to jump in, telling them they would see their grandmother, who is dead.

Borrowing a pencil, Chisholm, who was arrested when continued absence of the two boys was noticed, without emotion, wrote the story of the tragedy, after an all night grilling. It was witnessed by Chief of Police James Regan and his assistant, J. V. Hines.

The confession related the father's farewell kiss to his sons. It set forth, he told the boys to play cowboy and lassoo each other with wire. This done, he lured them to the brink of the Industrial canal attaching a weight to each. He first pushed Edgar into the cold waters. George, the confession showed, realized in one brief instant, he and his brother were doomed, but his screaming terror was stifled in the icy water as his weighted body followed that of his brother's into the canal.

The document revealed that he had planned the same fate for Robert, twin of George, but for some reason the plans were not carried out.

The motive assigned by Chisholm was the "nagging" of Mrs. Helen Lawrence, with whom he lived. She complained about the boys tracking dirt Chisholm stated. He had told her, the confession continued, he had taken the children to a home from which place they would be adopted.

Chisholm, a World war veteran, separated from his wife four years ago and left the children with his parents in Montreal. Last September he brought them back. Chisholm showed his discharge from the army, indicating that he enlisted in the Canadian expeditonary forces March 23, 1915, and served throughout the war in France, being discharged in 1919.

He said he met Mrs. Lawrence four years ago, shortly before he and his wife, Ivy Reid Chisholm, separated. Mrs. Chisholm is now in Lowestof, Suffolk, England. Letters found indicated Chisholm had recently refused to tell her the whereabouts of the children.

DETAILS OF AN ENCOUNTER WITH NICARAGUAN REBELS

Lieut. O'Day Was Trapped and Cut Off From His Detachment of Marines—Non-Commissioned Officers Are Highly Commended For Their Bravery in the Face of Greatly Superior Numbers—The Fight Started Last Monday at 1.30 in the Afternoon and Continued Until Nightfall Without Interruption—Five Marines Were Killed and Eight Wounded—Loss of the Rebels is Unknown.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 4—(AP)—Additional particulars of the fight between marines and rebel forces in the Darili region last Monday in which five marines were killed and eight wounded show the encounter lasted from 1.30 in the afternoon until nightfall without interruption.

A pack train was following a trail that crossed and recrossed a stream several times before reaching an elevation which, in the opinion of Lieutenant O'Day, commanding the marines, appeared to offer a good spot for ambushing operations. Just as the train was about to ascend the elevation, Lieutenant O'Day observed what looked like a stone wall enclosing a corral. Taking an enlisted man with him, the commander proceeded several hundred yards in advance of his command to inspect the enclosure. The rebels allowed them to proceed in the enclosure without firing, but no sooner were they inside, than they cut off all avenues of escape, immediately opened fire on the pack train and the battle was on.

The first volleys of the rebels scored few hits, but as the afternoon wore on with continuous firing from both camps, three marines fell in action and two others were mortally wounded and died the next day. The non-commissioned officers who assumed command in the absence of O'Day have been highly commended for their bravery in the face of greatly superior numbers. They kept up the fire from well selected positions until darkness and then abandoned further effort, fearful lest they reveal their exact position to the enemy. The rebels, however, kept firing all night from their stronghold.

During the evening Lieutenant O'Day escaped from the rebel enclosure and returned to his command and Captain William K. MacNulty with 80 marines marching eastward on another mission, reached the scene. His escape was probably not detected in the rebel camp for sometime afterward, for so close was the rival camps to each other, that the marines clearly neard the rebels when they called to them in broken English that they were going "to get" their commander.

With the added support of Captain MacNulty's command, the marines stalked the enemy until dawn and then routed them. The number of rebels killed and wounded will never be known as they always remove their casualties immediately. The marines believe, however, that they killed or wounded several men in addition to eight mules which they found after the retreat. The number of rebels engaged was estimated to be around 200.

Lieutenant O'Day and Captain MacNulty commanded the natives that go along with the pack trains to care for the mules. One native picked up the rifle of a marine that fell wounded, took good aim at the rebel who shot him and brought his man down with a single bullet. One large and well groomed rebel that was dragged away by his comrades after he fell, either killed or wounded, was observed to wear several decorations of some kind.

TO RESTORE BIRTHPLACE OF THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP)—Restoration of the birthplace of the Star Spangled Banner, at Fort McHenry on Whetstone Point in the city of Baltimore, to its original condition will be started immediately by Major General B. Frank Cheaham, quartermaster general of the army. Congress has appropriated $81,678 for that purpose.

The Star Spangled Banner still flies from the same spot where Francis Scott Key viewed it in 1814 from the British warship which held him prisoner, and was so inspired by the sight of the flag waving after the bombardment that he wrote the composition now used as the National Anthem. The original staff has fallen long since but successive flag poles have been planted on the exact spot.

Provision for the permanent preservation of Fort McHenry as a national park and perpetual national memorial shrine as the birthplace of the Star Spangled Banner recently was voted by congress.

SHOT YOUNG GIRL DEAD, THEN KILLED HIMSELF

CHICAGO, March 4.—(AP)—How a 14-year old girl was "sold" by her mother to a 30-year old man for $7,500, and her rejection of his attentions, which brought death to both were related in the dying man's statement today.

The man was Steve Tarvosoff, who for years roomed at the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. A. Narusezizic. During that time he fell in love with the girl, Nar Fancy. When she became 14, he said, he bargained with her mother who accepted $7,500 as "full settlement" for the girl.

But Nar Fancy refused him, he said, and he moved to Milwaukee. Last night he returned, after several weeks absence, crept into the girl's room and shot her through the heart. Then he fatally wounded himself.

No notice of appeal was given by defense counsel, but a qualified verdict was requested.

District Attorney Eugene Stanley announced that he would carry Molty to trial, probably in April, on a charge of murdering his sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Moitt.

In making the announcement, the district attorney said he had rejected an offer of defense counsel for Molty to plead guilty without capital punishment to the charge of killing Mrs. Joseph Molty.

The two women were killed with a cane knife last October 27 in the Molty apartment in the old French quarter and their bodies dissected and placed in trunks.

Molty was arrested aboard a boat at Cutoff, La., and returned to New Orleans where he assumed responsibility for the crime.

PASSENGER TRAINS ARE SNOWBOUND IN MICHIGAN

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., March 4—(AP)—A South Shore passenger train en route from Duluth, Minn., to Sault Ste. Marie, is snowbound in a blizzard near Strongs, sixty miles west of here, and a SOO Line passenger train from Chicago and Minneapolis is in a similar predicament at Rexton, 50 miles west of here, according to reports received tonight. The trains have been trapped in drifts since morning, according to the reports, which said there is no food on board.

The reports were received at the local offices of the railroads. All railroad, traction and automobile traffic in this section of the upper Michigan peninsula district is paralyzed as the result of the storm. Winds reaching the velocity of a gale have been blowing for hours piling up huge drifts in travel lanes.

Railroad officials said it would be impossible to clear the tracks, as recent unmelted snows, cleared by plow, have made canyons which in places are higher than the train windows. As each snow came, plows pushed it back to the walls of the cut, and these cuts, approximating tunnels in places, have become so narrow that there is no place in which to put the present drifts which have refilled the canyons.

The trial opens scarcely three months after the killing which occurred Dec. 6 last in the honeymoon bungalow of the young couple at Perry, Ohio, where West brought his bride some 18 months ago.

According to them, the statement said that Mrs. West had been aroused to jealousy when her husband kissed Miss Young in their presence.

The defense contends that West struck his wife first and will seek permission to investigate the bungalow to show that not only West's blood, but his wife's too, was shed.

The' threw the children out of the seats to the floor and it was reported that fourteen were hurt also. It was said that a local girl broke a rib. Many were shaken up. Some of the school children were from Mystic and Poquonoc. A nurse was sent to W. M. I. to see how the pupils were and reported everything all right again.

An airplane coming from Boston going to New York was flying over the village the other afternoon and when near Bun field the gas leaked and the pilot was forced to land in an open field. The man at the wheel made a good landing. People who live near the field came running out to see if anyone was hurt. Some had never seen an airplane. About 75 watched Jerry Downes fix the engine and it took an hour. William Franklin asked the men in the plane how was the weather up there above the clouds "Cold" came the answer, "but we wear heavy clothes". Downes said "What town is this?" and he was told Noank. It was so far away from a gas station that his pal George Moore had to walk 1 1-2 miles to get gasoline. Late in the afternoon the plane was on its way to New York again the crew sending "good bye" to the crowd.

The Daughters of America held a card party in Liberty hall the other evening the largest crowd of the season attending Many from Mystic and Stonington were present and fourteen tables were in play. As the hands of the clock marked 10.45, The whistle blew to stop, playing, as Mrs. Joe Tyler and her helpers went around to collect the score cards. She read off the pinochle scores—Mrs. Mary Robertson had 6690 points, high score, for Miss Sarah Banks low score with 4500 points; Melton McGrath a young fellow who know every card in the pack with his eyes closed had 7000 points. Lyle Chesebro was on his way to the hall when a black cat ran in front of him and he said "I am done for the evening!" He made only 3600 points. The whist card sharps were Mrs. S Tyler of Mystic high price and Mrs. Hemstead had low score; Dr. Hemstead led the men while Bert Reeves held low score. A lunch of sandwiches and coffee was followed by dancing.

A man forgives the enemies he has worsted, but not those who have worsted him.

COLCHESTER

A short musical revue, "A La Carte," was presented at the March assembly of Bacon Academy in the old town hall Friday at 12.30. Miss Ruth Gerstein as Clara had the leading role and was assisted by special dancers and a chorus of 12 young ladies. All were heartily applauded. The show was drawn from the home economics department of the academy and the coaching was by Miss Pearl Tiffany, director of the department. The show was especially written for the department and many of the townspeople attended as guests of the schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong and Mrs. Eva Snow motored to Hartford Wednesday.

Morgan High school of Clinton, which was to have played the Bacon Academy quintet Tuesday evening, did not show up for some reason which has not yet been explained.

Rehearsals have begun for the annual Easter cantata to be given in the First Congregational church on the evening of April 8th. Mrs. William O. Symms will direct.

Wooster lodge, No. 10, F. and A. M., held a regular communication in Masonic hall Friday evening.

DANIELSON

PARKER BUILDING IS GUTTED BY BAD FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 4—Moosup firemen battled today with a blaze that gutted the Leo C. Parker frame building near the railroad station. The fire broke out about 10:30 and had gained good headway by the time the firemen attacked it. It is understood that the blaze originated in the kitchen of the restaurant on the first floor of the building and then made its way through the structure, which was very badly damaged before the fire was under control. Above the restaurant Mr. Parker lived with his family, and also took roomers. It was said this afternoon that the fire loss may prove to be between $4,000 and $5,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire attracted a large crowd, including numbers of motorists who happened to be passing through Moosup. It was after 1 o'clock before the fire was extinguished.

ABINGTON WOMAN LOSES VALUABLE MINK COAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 4—Out of Boston today came a story relative to the loss by Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Abington in the town of Pomfret of a mink fur coat valued in excess of $6,000. It appeared that the coat disappeared on the night of Jan. 26, while Mrs. Murray was a dinner guest at the home of Mrs. Francis L. Higginson on Commonwealth avenue, and those attending were the most select of Boston's social four hundred and in every instance very wealthy. Mrs. Murray was one of the last of the guests to leave at 10:30 and when a maid went for her coat it could not be found and has not since been located. Another mink coat of inferior quality and much too large for Mrs. Murray was left in its place. Mrs. Murray kept the loss of the coat more or less of a secret in the weeks that have elapsed and meanwhile is said to have made visitations to the various guests who were at the Higginson home on the night the coast disappeared, but without finding any clue as to where it might have gone. Yesterday Mrs. Murray reported the loss of her coat to the police of Boston and the matter became public. The coat, it appeared, was remodeled last summer while Mrs. Murray was in Europe by one of the most famous of Parisian furriers. It was originally an automobile robe of a value of $10,000. Mrs. Murray, it is said, had been very careful not to wear the coat when dining at hotels or other public places for fear of losing it, but felt no risk was involved in wearing it to the Higginson home, where only the socially elect are invited. Servants in the Higginson home have been absolved of all responsibility for the loss of the coat, the disappearance of which represents a very peculiar mystery. Dr. and Mrs. Murray who spend much of their time in Europe have a luxurious winter home on Marlborough street in Boston.

This afternoon at 2:35 an alarm from Box 36, corner of Main and Reynolds streets, called out the fire department to control a grass and brush fire that was sweeping over territory to the west of residences on Main street between Stearns and North street. Driven by a high wind, the fire took on a spectacular effect as the flames swept along and all the territory in the section was enshrouded in smoke. Within a few minutes after their arrival the firemen had the situation in hand and at just 3 o'clock the recall was sounded. There was no great damage from the fire, the origin of which was not determined.

Placing of all the homes in Connecticut Village in the market a fortnight ago and the resultant purchase of them from the Connecticut Mills company by individuals likely will result in considerable moving about by tenants during the coming spring season.

All of the houses, with one or two exceptions, are occupied. In some instances, the new purchasers are to occupy them. In other cases where the homes have been purchased for investment, there will be no change in tenants. In some cases houses purchased from the mill company already have been sold again, and this likely will bring other changes in occupants. With a few exceptions the mill company has sold practically the entire village it caused to be constructed. The tenants who have had employment in the mill are far outnumbered by other tenants having employment elsewhere.

Starting the long list of such gatherings that will take place between now and the state and national election next November, the republicans of Killingly are to meet in caucus March 19 to nominate delegates to the republican state convention to be held in Hartford in April. The senatorial district conventions are to be held March 22. Danielson also has a borough caucus just ahead to nominate candidates for the annual borough election to be held during the early days of April. These political activities may arouse general interest as they come along, but just now political matters are getting small consideration from the average citizen of the town.

It was indicated here at the week-end that an effort is to be made for an arrangement that will bring all traffic to a stop in Broad street before making the dangerous Reynolds street crossover. The proposed plan is much like that known as the boulevard system in use in many cities, and involves the painting of the word stop across the street each side of the crossover point. The number of accidents that have occurred at Reynolds and Broad and the scores of narrow escapes from crashes there are the things that bring about the desire for the trial of the new arrangement.

On Saturday, the body of Joseph Choquette was brought from St. Francis' hospital in Hartford in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy to Mr. Choquette's home in North Grosvenordale. The deceased, a native of Canada, and resident here for years, would have been 62 years of age on March 14. He had been at Hartford to undergo a surgical operation and died Friday night.

Mr. Choquette leaves his wife and two sons, Albert and Adrian, respectively 20 and 22 years of age. There are also three sisters, Mrs. Francis Ducharme of Danielson, Mrs. Elia Lague of Springfield and Mrs. E. H. Nelson of Hamden, this state.

Discussions in the press of the number of unemployed in various sections of the country has led to a check-up as to this condition in the town of Killingly. This town has some unemployed people, but no very considerable number. It is a fact that there are some who would like to work, but have been unable to obtain it or to obtain the kinds of work they are fitted to do. This particular winter has found numbers of men engaged with tasks that do not regularly engage their attention, but they have taken them in order to keep busy. There are some more unemployed who do not wish to be otherwise. The town has given aid during the winter to deserving families that have been unfortunate as to being without work, but on the whole, Killingly has been in a full supply of excellent quality.

PUTNAM

ASSIGNMENT OF CASES AT PUTNAM FOR MARCH

Superior court, Windham county, assignment of cases, at Putnam, Judge Edward M. Yeomans: To court, Tuesday, March 6, Chauncey E. Macfarlane vs. Gilbert G. McAlpine, George H. Raymond, executor will of Frank A. Irons, vs. Caroline B. Miles, Chandler & Morse vs. Bowne Bros., Sark Nosodick vs. Mark Sedorichek; Thursday, March 8, Marton Blisnaik et al vs. Pauline Piscitello; Wednesday, March 14, Richard D. Bowne et al vs. Samuel L. Ide et al; to jury—Tuesday, March 20, Charles L. Dawson, appeal from probate will of Annie E. Dawson, Tony Postemski vs. Harold Cunningham, D. A.

The thermometer started to drop Saturday night as the first bit of real March weather made its official debut. The first few days of March were real spring-like days, but with Saturday's change of temperature, winter still made the fact known that it has not become passe yet. Sunday worshippers were seen going to church with their overcoats buttoned up tight in real New England winter fashion, and the galoshes that have been set aside for the past few days were restored to use again.

One of the occurrences that has been rarely seen in Putnam this winter was the freezing of a slight crust of ice over the Quinnebaug river, south of the long bridge on Bridge street. The river has frozen over only a few times this winter.

Many folks have been commenting on the late season for cold weather, but others have remarked, "Let's have March weather in March, and not in April," with which many agree.

The heavy March winds are already starting to bring extra work for the members of the Hook and Ladder company of the Putnam Fire department. Many chimneys that are clogged with soot from the furnaces are an easy prey for the fire hazard, especially during the month of high winds. Saturday, a four-stroke alarm brought the members of the hook and ladder company from the Central fire station at 9:10 a. m., to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of Marceline Montville on Bullock street. The quick work of the firemen kept the blaze confined to the chimney and prevented any serious damage.

In his reports to the common council, Fire Chief Ralph E. Thruston has continually urged Putnam people to use extra caution in regards to keeping their chimneys free from soot. Chief Thruston has stated many times that a chimney fire, although easily and generally extinguished without serious damage, they sometimes get beyond control of the firemen and are the cause of serious losses to the community. The chief in his recent report to the public, of the work of the fire department, recommended a cheap remedy that easily cleans out these soot-infested chimneys and saves the firemen the trouble of having to leave their work to answer the four-stroke alarms.

Dr. W. F. Taylor of Thompson, a well known man in radio research work, is the author of the leading article in the March issue of a nationally known radio magazine. The subject of Dr. Taylor's article is that of a radio set that he has designed himself and that has met the approval of many interested men in the radio field.

Dr. Taylor is the head of the department of physics in the Marot Junior college in Thompson and during his leisure hours he devotes time to radio research. His latest design of a set has become the topic of conversation among the "amateurs" in Putnam.

In the local police station, the court records show that the name "Bouley" is nearly foremost on the list of cards. Friday morning, William Bouley, Sr., was presented before Judge Geissler for a hearing, he having been arrested by Sergeant George Liard Thursday for being intoxicated and causing a disturbance in his neighborhood. The judge ordered Bouley to be placed in charge of Probation Officer Peter Gardner for six months and in the even that he is arrested again he shall be sent to the inebriate home in Norwich.

On Saturday morning, court was in session again. Captain Jarvis of the local police arrested two men, who have been up before the court on many occasions for the same old offense of being drunk and disturbing the peace. The men arrested were Ovid Bouley, Jr., and Joseph Barrier of Putnam. Both pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. Judge Geissler told the defendants that they had many records on file in the police court, and that their continuous offense seemed to be a disease. The judge stated that if they were arrested again within six months he would send them to the inebriate home in Norwich, which would cure them without fail. They were placed in care of Probation Officer Peter Gardner for a term of six months. Both paid a cost of $1.

Friends were more or less surprised to see Maurice Mulor about the town Saturday. For the past few weeks Mr. Mulor had been critically ill, suffering from a major operation which he recently underwent at the Day Kimball hospital. Mr. Mulor returned from the hospital on Friday.

Francis Curran, a student at Holy Cross college, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Killian of Woodstock avenue over the week-end.

The story that was given front page space in a Worcester paper Saturday, stating that the town of North Grosvenordale was without water for some time, caused much discontent among the town officials today.

Friday evening, an eight-inch main in North Grosvenordale burst at about 5 o'clock. Water from the main supply was cut off, but the water was immediately sent to the homes from the town's auxiliary supply. During the night men worked repairing the main. At 7 a. m., the water in the auxiliary supply became exhausted and one side of the village was without water until the main was placed in service again at 7:45 a. m. But during that time no one suffered without water, Agent John Reardon of the Grosvenordale company stated.

Agent Reardon stated that the article printed in the Worcester paper caused much comment and brought insurance men to North Grosvenordale to investigate the would-be casualty.

The sermons during the mission will be delivered by the Redemptrist Fathers of Montreal, Canada. Father Bellerose announced that a mission for the English-speaking members of the parish will be held in May.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Staffordville is to have a new four-room school building which, it is expected, will be built this summer at a cost not to exceed $30,000, according to a vote passed at the town meeting held in Warren Memorial hall Thursday evening. A special committee was appointed at the town meeting last December to investigate the condition of the old schoolhouse and to make recommendations relative to a new building if the members deemed it necessary. The committee members reported that they did not believe it would be wise to lay out any more money on the old building and recommend the erection of a new one. The committee also recommended that the new building be erected on a different site from the present building. There is very little playground in connection with the old building, and its nearness to the public highway constitutes an element of danger to young children attending the school. Another town meeting will be held March 13th, when it is expected that an appropriation will be made and a building committee appointed. According to the plans recommended by the special committee the new building will be one-story, brick, colonial design, with four class rooms and a small auditorium, all on one floor. The members of the committee, which was discharged with thanks after the meeting voted to accept the report, were Benedict Schwanda, Jr., Burt T. Eaton and M. D. O'Connell.

A resolution introduced by R. H. Boutelle to have a committee of four appointed to look into the matter of purchasing the right-of-way of the trolley company for the purpose of having the town take it over for a public highway met with very little favor and the resolution was voted down. A tax of 19 mills on the dollar, due and payable March 20th, was voted. This is the same as the present rate.

A large crowd of sportsmen attended the first annual banquet of the Stafford Fish and Game club at the Stafford Springs house Thursday evening. J. W. Titcomb, fish and game commissioner, of Hartford, was the principal speaker. Members of Rockville and Manchester clubs were present also. Woods' orchestra of Stafford Springs furnished music for the dance which was part of the evening's entertainment.

John Needman of Waterbury is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. DeBorde.

Parley C. Patten has purchased an interest in the Standard Clothing company.

very well off as to opportunities for employment.

Letters and cards coming from Danielson people who are in Florida tell of the wonderful weather they are enjoying down there just now—like late June at home. There is also the interesting comment about flowering plants, fresh new vegetables and other things that New England must wait several months to enjoy. The vacation period wanes for some local people who have been in the south all winter, their plans calling for a return here in late March or early April.

Two plans are offered to shareholders of the Danielson Building and Loan association on the original shares issued when the association was formed just over 12 years ago and which shares come due next month. Under one of these plans the shareholder may have the cash, and under the other the paid-up certificates that will continue to bear interest. A committee of the association is engaged in checking up the shareholders to determine just how each one of them wishes his settlement adjusted. It is understood that the shares of the first series now have a total value of about $50,000.

JEWETT CITY

FINISH OF ICE CROP TO BE STARTED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, March 4—Shortly after the establishment of the Jewett City creamery, 40 years ago, almost every farmer in all the great milk producing section, in the outlying districts of the town became a patron. The one-time Cooley creatier was purchased in considerable numbers, so that three dozen came to Griswold. In order to raise the cream in this system the long cans were entirely submerged in water, which to produce the best results, must be kept ice-cold. More than 20 farmers straightway seeing the need, built their own ice-houses. Some were fortunate in having a pond on the place. Others drew ice by horses, often several miles from distant ponds. Today only a very few local farmers harvest their own ice. In view of the fact that the cream separator has entirely superseded the one-time Cooley system. Many cream and milk producers, with cold cellars, are able to do without ice in the summer months.

Several farmers buy from the dealers in town. Shea Bros. being benefitted by the sharp drop in temperature Saturday night, were not cutting Sunday as was intended. Today (Monday) will see them finishing their harvest with fine 9-inch ice, which began with the first 800 tons only 6 inches thick. Sunday night the three big houses at Dorrville were close to two-thirds filled. Charles B. Palmer and Frank H. Burton filled their houses Saturday with 12-inch ice of fine grade.

E. Chenette owns a house at Blissville, which he has filled from a local pond.

All through this section for the last two months bird lovers have kept suet and grain where their feathered friends could come each day for a winter hand-out. The blue jay is around for his share and the following story from a near-by observer tells how cunning he is: A blue jay finding a suet bag suspended from a limb by a string, apparently studied the matter to determine how he could get at that suet. The tag was so small that he could not balance it. Finally he took the string in his bill, drew it up, placed his foot on it, and so continued to hitch it up and hold it until he brought the bag up to the limb, where he could eat the suet. Blue jay is an intelligent bird.

The Woman's Mission circle of the Baptist church is to meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church parlor. There will be an entertainment given called "Aunt Elizabeth's Tea" under the direction of Mrs. J. P. Post.

The girls' high single, 108, was reached by both Miss Shorey and Miss Perry. The latter also ran up 285 on the total high.

On regular contest nights, enthusiastic galleries come to see and admire the skill of the female bowlers. The score:

HARTFORD MOTORISTS FINED—BOTH HAD BEEN DRINKING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, March 4—George Girard of Hartford was fined $100 and costs of $13.52 by Judge William H. Heald in the borough court Saturday morning after being found guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Edward O'Meara who was in the car operated by Girard was fined $5 and costs for intoxication. Both men were arrested Friday afternoon by state police officers from the local barracks. Some friends of the two men were involved in an accident near Babcock Bridge, on the River road, when the car driven by Girard appeared. State officers appeared about the same time and soon had Girard and O'Meara under arrest.

Mrs. Pearl Kelly who was charged with reckless driving had her case nolled upon payments of costs. Mrs. Kelly was coming from Willimantic when the car which she was driving collided near the Babcock bridge with a car operated by Robert Fitzpatrick. She agreed to settle with Mr. Fitzpatrick for the damage to his car.

Fixtures are arriving daily for the new Stafford Savings bank. The new 10-ton steel door for the vault and the steel lining plates for the security vault were placed in the bank last week. Safe deposit boxes will be included among the fixtures for the new bank.

There is a good deal of interest in the location for the proposed new school house in Staffordville. The committee has recommended to the town that the new school house be located on a site other than that of the old school house. Several sites have been mentioned, including one in the rear of Methodist church belonging to Benjamin Phelps, but Mr. Phelps is adverse to selling the property to the town for school purposes, as he does not wish to have a school so near his residence. A lot owned by Frank E. Belcher and located near the Wales corner has been mentioned as desirable, also a tract east of the Schwanda mill which is rather uneven but which can be graded off without a large outlay is said by many to be as good site. It is understood that the superintendent of schools believes that the last named land is canable of being made into a very desirable location for the new building.

Miss Amelia Palmer has been spending a week vacation at her home here.

Mrs. Henry Johnson, Miss Lucy Lester, Miss Amelia Palmer, Harry Pierce, Mrs. Willis E. Almy and Reginald and Raymond Briggs from this neighborhood attended the play given at North Stonington grange by the Daughters of Veterans of Westerly, "Aunt Jerusha Goes on the Warpath."

The Sewing society met Wednesday at the parsonage. An excellent dinner served consisted of fried ham, creamed potato, peas a la wiggle, with boiled eggs, mashed turnip, cornmeal gems, bread, quince jelly, pumpkin pie, apple pie, chocolate cake, raised doughnuts and coffee. The business of the meeting consisted largely of planning for a Saturday evening dinner, with an elaborate menu.

Robins were seen and heard Feb. 24th.

Goldfinches were seen and heard the 25th of February—a flock of them. Presumably they have come from the south. They have not yet changed their traveling clothes for their lovely summer dress of yellow and black.

Bluebirds have been reported.

Mrs. Jennie Thompson spent ten days recently with her son Irving and his wife in Westerly. She is now at her home here except for frequent days spent with her mother, Mrs. Irving F. Babcock, of the Westerly road, who is in very feeble health. The Babcock family were for more than a hundred years prominent in this neighborhood, occupying the beautiful old homestead known as the Harry Babcock place, now the property of Thomas E. Wheeler. Two descendants only of this family now bear the name. They are sons of the late Charles Babcock of Jewett City, both graduates of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and both construction engineers, engaged in important construction enterprises in foreign countries as well as this country. They are named Charles and Royal.

The losing team at the grange, in this case the men, served an excellent oyster supper to all at the last meeting. Harry Lewis was chef, Raymond Briggs was official dishwasher. A dance followed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer and son Marvin entertained a small party at cards recently.

James Miner takes care of peeling the ties at Dean's mill.

MONTVILLE

The Ladies' Social union of the Montville Centre Congregational church was entertained by Mrs. Frank Schofield at her home Wednesday afternoon, this being the first meeting of the society since the annual fair and supper held in December. There were seven members in attendance and the afternoon was spent with the reading of various reports, sewing and refreshments served by the hostess. A feature of the occasion was a huge birthday cake in honor of the 17th birthday anniversary of the union. Those attending were Mrs. Ella Chapel, Mrs. Ellen Fox, Mrs. William Maynard, Mrs. Elmer Tefft, Sr., Mrs. Angie Vickery, Miss Jessie Schofield and the hostess, Mrs. Frank Schofield.

The grand officers of the Order of Eastern Star of Connecticut, visited the Saybrook chapter at its regular meeting last week. It is of local interest to note that Mrs. Charles Hope of Uncasville, being one of the grand officers, was a member of this visiting body of officers. Other members attending from Oweneco chapter were Mrs. Charles Hope, Mrs. A. W. Geaner, Mrs. J. Y. Miller, Mrs. Charles E. Ramage and Mrs. Hubert G. Dart.

A special all day session of members and friends of the Ladies' Aid society of the Uncasville Methodist Episcopal church was held at the home of Mrs. C. C. Hewitt at Uncasville Thursday with 44 in attendance. Luncheon was served during the day by the following hostesses: Mrs. C. C. Hewitt, Mrs. H. G. Segelken, Mrs. J. Y. Miller, Mrs. William Spiers, Mrs. Earle Howe and Mrs. William Brown, consisting of meat loaf, salard, pickles, pie, cake and coffee. The hostesses were those ladies whose birthday anniversaries fall in the month of March.

About 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, while ascending Gay hill in Palmertown, a Ford truck said to be owned and driven by John Johnson completely overturned after striking a ditch in front of the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth McArdle. Other than a slight shaking up, the two occupants of the truck escaped injury, the truck was loaded with furniture and lumber and was only slightly damaged. After several hours of hard labor the men succeeded in clearing away the obstruction before dark.

The board of relief for the town of Montville have recently completed their work for this season.

Miss Doris Phillips has returned to her grammar school studies at the Palmer Memorial school, having improved sufficiently from a recent injury.

Miss S. W. Wood was the guest of her sister, Miss Julia H. Wood of Williams street, Norwich, Friday.

Mrs. Albert W. Avery spent Tuesday in Hartford on business relative to the League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Meddy Gero visited in Norwich Friday.

TOLLAND

An all-day sewing missionary meeting was held Thursday in the church parlors. The hostess was Mrs. Samuel Simpson. Dinner was served at noon.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Federated church served a supper Friday, March 2. The hostesses were Mrs. Samuel Simpson, Mrs. William Ayers, Jr., and Mrs. Emery M. Clough.

Miss Margaret Barton, a senior at Willimantic Normal school, spent a week vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Barton.

Mrs. C. Burnell Olds and daughter Genevieve of Japan, but at present of Hartford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Simpson.

Mrs. Ernest Leroy Dimmock is doing well and came home Wednesday, Feb. 29, from Rockville hospital with her young son, William Franklin Dimmock.

Andre Jensen and Soren Buck of Bristol were week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Crandall.

Mrs. Samuel Simpson gave a tea Saturday afternoon in honor of her classmate from Oberlin college, Mrs. C. Burnell Olds.

Mrs. Burnell is on a year's furlough from Kobe, Japan, where she and her husband are stationed. She gave a most interesting account of club work among the Japanese. Mrs. Olds is president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union of Kobe.

STAFFORDVILLE

George B. Howard and Edith Mae Mathews were married at the home of Rev. and Mrs. William D. Woodward, at 121 Hollister street, in Manchester last Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The bride's former pastor, Mr. Woodward performed the ceremony. The bride was attired in grey satin, with blue silk crepe and sapphire trimmings. Mr. and Mrs. Howard left immediately for New York; they will also visit friends in Putnam and Willimantic, before they return to their home in Staffordville.

Success comes to the man who makes up his mind to do a thing—then does it.

Winter Trees

"Thine age shall be clearer than the noonday."—Job XI:17.

Eyes that find beauty everywhere
Mind only being the power which sees,
Note loveliness intricate that dwells
'Mid the bared limbs of Winter Trees—
Fine tracery of weird branches spread,
Highs against the background of the sky,
Delicate slim twigs and slender threads,
Laced—as by needles knitting spry.

Then, too, when gemmed with crystal ice
Tossed from the jewel-box of storm,
Or decked with robes of purest snow
In ermine clad to greet the morn.—
The dead trees also beauteous stand,
Each naked branch in silver dressed—
Superb, irradiant, glows the land
When Winter vies with Summer's best.

Such beauty marks the wintry age
Of many a soul advanced in years,
Whose virtues gleam, and quite assuage
The fears lest naught worth seen, appears:—
Summer indeed has past and gone,
Life's boughs once garbed in leafage gay
Are sere and bare—now clothed upon
Each filmy sprig's a lovelier spray.

Age envies not fresh leaves of youth,
In ripened beauty gleams her past.
Branches adorned with tested truth
Display a loveliness to last:—
Virtues 'gainst life's background reveal
The lace-work of love deeds, once done,
Which leaves of summer then concealed,
Now fallen, show Life's Victory won.

—By Rev. George E. Phipps

Shepherding

Who is more tender than a shepherd is,
The intimacy of weathers in his face?
A fold, a serviceable staff is his:
Out in the park or some like country place.
Have I not seen one, in a golden air,
On golden road, driving his flock before,
A figure tall, hereditary, spare,
And longed to follow to that kindly door?
It must be that some rich, forgotten thing
Chokes at the heart at sight of these who pass;
Lost dreams gather about us in the grass;
And when this happens, for a moment we fling
Our gold down, as it were but hoarded glass,
And run back to our ancient shepherding.

—Lizette Woodworth Reese.

Johnnie—But, teacher, you asked me to start the composition with something new and unusual.—Christian Science Monitor.

"I don't want you to think so, either," replied the youth enigmatically.—Portland Express.

"Not much interest hereabouts," said the native. "If it wasn't for our newly naturalized citizens it wouldn't be worth while opening the voting booths."—Exchange.

The teacher was giving a lesson to his class of young hopefuls, his subject being the circulation of the blood.

"Now suppose," said he, "I stand on my head—the blood will all flow to my head, won't it?"

"Yes."

Germans have found that prussic acid has proved an effective exterminator of the brass bug, an exceptionally destructive beetle, which is able to bore through metal. Army post regulations require that such animals be observed in the veterinary hospital 14 days for possible rabies. When Lieut. Rooks went to get the black cat he found a family of 10 kittens with her, and the child could not identify the offending kitten. So all the kits were taken to the hospital, where the fee is 25 cents a head a day.

PROTECT BUS PATRONS

When a woman was killed near Hope Valley, R. I., last week by a motor vehicle she had just alighted from a motor bus and going in front of it stepped into the path of the oncoming machine. The operator of the auto was arrested and charged with manslaughter, although it does not appear from the report that he knew of the presence of the woman or that there was anything in the accident which showed the lack of care on the part of one any more than the other.

This sad affair directs attention, however, to the situation which exists in regard to electric cars and the increasing need of having the same apply to motor busses. In many states it is provided that autos cannot pass a trolley car that is taking on or discharging passengers. This doesn't prevent some from doing it but for the most part it is respected. The purpose is to give protection to that portion of the public that is about to use or has just left a public conveyance.

To a large extent motor busses have replaced trolleys. They are rendering the same kind of a service whether as a replacement vehicle or providing additional transportation facilities into new sections. There is the advantage with the bus that it can, and invariably does pull up to the curb, or the side of the road, in discharging its passengers. This permits the patrons to alight out of the traffic lane and puts upon them no small obligation in hotfooting it across the street from in front or in back of the bus. Nevertheless if it is desirable that protection should be given to the public by requiring vehicular traffic to stop when trolleys are stopped, there seems to be ground for extending that same kind of protection to the same public that is now getting its transportation service from the bus lines.

This is a matter which is bound to come in for increased attention on the part of legislators if it hasn't already been given. Motor bus service is increasing and more and more are being carried in such public conveyances. The need will still prevail for protecting those traveling by trolley but bus travelers are not in a very different class, particularly on roads outside of cities. But even with such a law the need of self protection could not be completely disregarded.

KEEP THE CAR FIT

While Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel finds it desirable for auto owners to get new cars whenever possible, "it is of much more importance for the car owner to keep safety appliances properly adjusted and maintained. The manufacturer cannot guarantee against unreasonable use and lack of proper care."

That is a fact which must be fully appreciated by any and all who have anything to do with automobiles, and yet it is one of the things which is seriously neglected. If more careful attention were given to the equipment, instead of being disposed to drive it until it drops in its tracks, there would be less accidents. The car that doesn't stop when it should has probably not got brakes that work the way automobile brakes should. They have been disregarded because the few necessary minutes could not be found and because the driver figured it really didn't matter anyway.

The car that is not in proper mechanical condition is a menace not only to those who ride therein but to all other users of the highway. If it drops to pieces, turns over, suddenly shoots across the road or otherwise becomes unmanageable anyone who happens to be in the immediate vicinity may easily become involved through no fault of their own. The rattletrap is a danger to the road. It is well that all possible discouragement be given to it.

The appearance of a car should always get secondary consideration to the mechanical condition. The neglected appearance may attract unfavorable comment but it endangers others in no way provided it is mechanically fit.

AMERICAN FOREST WEEK

In state as well as federal government, recognition is being given to the need of conserving the forests and establishing more. Many states can boast of valuable tracts of timberland which they have acquired and are protecting. These are being used for various demonstration purposes and as fast as possible additional territory is being acquired as an example to the individual. There are good examples of what can be done in other lines of endeavor and there is very good reason why there should be more of them in regard to growing trees.

For the educational value that it is expected will follow, the president has designated April 22-28 as American forest week. This additional means of focussing attention upon forestry problems is bound to be beneficial for while there is great need of conserving our timber resources, of engaging in reforestation and of developing waste land for forestry purposes there are also certain other points which need to be borne in mind. One of these is the great menace from fire.

Every year there are thousands of acres of valuable timberland burned over. In the majority of the instances the fires were unnecessary. Lightning plays its part in the setting of woodland fires but it is for the most part the acts of the visitors, either intentional or otherwise.

Stress may well be laid upon the part which the many tourists can play in the prevention of forest fires. Each year sees a greater number of motor parties going through wooded regions. This is so because many tourists delight in visiting such sections, and in other instances because the destination of the motorists takes them through such country. Too many are disposed to pay no attention to the fire hazards. They complete their smokes and toss the firebrands out of the car to fall in dry underbrush and before they are out of sight a good sized fire may be underway. That is the way many of them start, but there's no telling where they will end or how much work will be involved in checking them. Likewise it means a financial loss to the owners. The ease with which such might be prevented should be sufficiently impressive to greatly reduce the number. If American Forest week will but center a bit of attention upon that very point it will accomplish much.

MAKE IT A GOOD FINISH

Chicago has been getting some undesirable publicity because of the crime in that city. Not solely because of that but because of the effect which it may have upon other criminal activities there is gratification over the capture of the gang that recently held up a train on the outskirts of the city and obtained loot to the amount of $133,000.

In this particular instance the police appear to have been hot on the trail of the robbers and not only to have obtained a large part of the stolen money but to have gotten their men and valuable confessions, which connect them with other activities of a similar character.

How carefully the holdup had been staged is revealed in the careful rehearsals and in the division of the loot so that in case of capture there would be sufficient funds to provide the best possible legal defense. The feeling cannot be avoided that a fine thing has been done by the Chicago authorities in the arrest of this gang and it is to be hoped that equally prompt and effective results will be obtained in bringing about their conviction.

Just how much of that sickening sentimentality will be displayed in behalf of the accused no one knows. If enough funds haven't been secreted to provide a big array of legal talent, the kind that put the sob sisters and the hero makers to work, there will probably be enough who are solicitous for the rights of such holdup men to see that they are properly equipped for their legal battle and their fight to escape the penalty for their crime.

Of course it would be unfortunate if they should be convicted and penalized severely, but for the protection of the public that is what is needed every time such a case is brought to the attention of the courts. With the Chicago authorities doing such a fine job with the net it is to be hoped the court will do its part in completing it.

RADIO WAITS

Congress has done a lot of blundering and there's no use to expect that it will suddenly reform. Even when the dangers in the proposed course are outlined they often go unheeded, and just now from all parts of the country interest is being disclosed in the manner in which it reacts to the radio station.

If we can give any credence to the statements of O. H. Caldwell of the radio commission matters will go from bad to worse if the present proposals regarding radio are carried out. He deplores the amendment which has been adopted in committee calling for equal distribution of radio and speaking as one who has had at least some experience in trying to straighten out the tangle he puts the committee in the position of being the too many cooks who spoil the broth. It is attempting to do something which sounds good, but which if put into effect would work a great injustice. That is the difference between theory and actual practice.

But while the commissioner is offering criticisms concerning proposals it is perfectly evident to the country that congress has dawdled in regard to radio for months, has failed to confirm members of the commission, has failed to furnish it the necessary funds and there now remains only 11 days in which action can be taken before the existence of the commission terminates.

It was admittedly a complicated and difficult job which the commission undertook when it was named, but since it tackled the work it has got no small part of its handicaps from the very body that created it. In the meantime radio and the listeners, the public, suffer.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Fuel will be saved if the furnace is shaken only twice a day.

Badly creased velvet may be "panned" by steaming and ironing in one direction.

It is better not to use milk when setting bread sponge over night.

Fresh bread will not crumble if the knife is heated before slicing it.

Add the white of an eggs if cream will not whip. Have both very cold.

Cooked prunes are good stuffed with cheese and served on lettuce with mayonnaise.

When stewing fruit, use a pinch of carbonate of soda and only half the usual quantity of sugar will be needed.

A paste of powdered French chalk and water, applied and left on until dry, often will remove grease spots from a rug.

When using milk in soup, add for each cup of liquid (both milk and juice and pulp of vegetables) a half tablespoon of flour and a tablespoon of fat.

You can get an unusual polish on mirrors if you use a soft cloth dampened in cold tea.

To reopen a sealed envelope lay a wet cloth or paper over the flap and press with a warm iron.

To coat a white frosting atop a cake with chocolate, melt cooking chocolate and spread quickly while soft. Do not sweeten it.

Creamed potatoes have more flavor and look more appetizing if chopped parsley is added to the white sauce.

Very attractive garnishings on the broiled wish platter are slices of lemon with half their surface covered with minced parsley and the other half with paprika.

When frying doughnuts, have a dish of boiling water on the stove beside your kettle of fat, and as you take the doughnuts out of the fat immerse they quickly in the water. They will not be greasy.

POLISHING STEEL

To polish steel mix equal parts of sweet oil and turpentine with sufficient emery powder to form a thick cream. Apply with a soft cloth and polish with a leather.

A LITTLE CHANGE.

When making a rice pudding, and wishing a little change, eliminate the raisins. After baking spread top with any kind of jam about one inch thick. Cover this with beaten egg whites and place in oven to brown.

WHICH LEMON?

When a recipe calls for the juice of one lemon, it is safer to use three tablespoons of juice, as this fruit varies greatly in the amount of juice to each lemon.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A very delicate cream is helpful in preventing and erasing crow's feet, as these aggravating creases are called.

To reduce eat butter, cream, pastries, candy, salad oils, cakes and all things containing quantities of sugar sparingly, or better, not at all.

Cracked ice can be chopped small enough to put in a thermos bottle and prove a great comfort to the feverish invalid during a restless night.

Clean glasses mean a great deal to the person with poor eyesight, especialy if that person does work requiring accurate vision. A small bottle containing half ammonia and half water is a convenience, as a drop or two on a clean cloth will make the glasses shine.

WHEN OLDER CHILDREN WANT SOMETHING TO DO

Use the numbers from large wall calendars. Easy number combinations from five up to 100 (all ending in cipher or five) are pasted on a board of any desired dimensions. Long finishing nails are driven in the center of each number. The number 100 is placed very nearly in the center of the board, and to make the game still more interesting a few red numbers are placed here and there. Each player is supplied with six rubber jar rings, and standing at a certain distance aims to ring as many black numbers a possible. Dark numbers add to the score and red numbers deduct, the player reached the goal (1000 points) first wins the game.

ENVELOPE LININGS.

The beautifully colored linings of envelopes so much in vogue may be used to decorate boxes for boudoir or handkerchiefs. One woman covered well shaped, strong boxes with small, irregular pieces of the brilliant linings, in a crazy-quilt effect, lining the inside with the plain gold and the gold and white figured papers. Water glass may be used for glue. This suggestion might be a way to keep the children happily occupied these winter days.

HOW TO BATTLE MOTHS.

Moths can be kept away by sprinkling liquid camphor under the carpets, turpentine in the corners of the wardrobe. Tobacco dust, such as used by florists is also good for moths, or split cedar cigar boxes packed with clothes will keep them away.

WARMED-OVER BISCUITS.

The best way to warm over biscuits and have them just as good as when fresh is to put them in a pan and set the pan in another pan containing water. Heat for a few minutes in a hot oven.

PUT COOKIES IN CROCK.

Put cookies or doughnuts in a crock with the skin of an orange or lemon. It gives them a very delicate flavor.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The vogue for blue extends into spring. A turquoise blue crepe blouse, with a stock collar, completes a black faille ensemble.

The skirt of a French walking suit in fine black rep has its skirt scalloped around the bottom and the cuffs of the coat matching.

A hydrangea blue velvet evening cape, with shirred yoke and collar, is lined with orchid satin that has a stripe of silver in it.

Daffodil yellow crips moire fashions a princess line frock that takes, for novelty, a huge smashing bow with train on each hip.

New underwear takes godets and flounces for fullness. An ibis crepe de chine sethas deep flounces of accordian pleated georgette, lace edged.

A fascinating new frock for dinner or dance, made of gold colored moire, boasts of a huge bow of the same material at one hip. It is delightfully crisp looking.

An original pajama suit consists of wide trousers of gray-blue satin and a coat of blue and silver velvet, striped horizontally.

New hats to take to southern resorts are very large leghorns trimmed very simply with a band of ribbon around the crown.

The latest slippers are made of satin in all the high shades, with a smal buckle placed upon the outside of the shoe instead of the usual place.

Nothing could be gayer than a dance dress of white taffeta which has a long skirt lined half-way with brilliant red taffeta. Small red flowers accent the shoulder.

Negligees for spring focus on unusual sleave treatments. Gold lace mediaeval sleeves hang gracefully from a red and gold brocaded negligee.

If the white and black extremes are abandoned, the autumn season places the seal of approval on the sand shades, the pinkish beiges, dove gray and blue.

Stunning for spring is a purple cashmere corduroy sports coat for wear over an ombre shaded lavender flat crepe jumper with tiny purple corded trimmings.

NEW SWEATERS FROM FRANCE

Distractingly becoming are the new sweaters from France. They are worn with either tweed or silk skirts, and come in the lovellest tones of beige and gray. A beige and white sweater is unique because the solid color comes at the top. This is also true of the gray and white ones.

PURPLE RICHNESS

A beige cheviot spring coat features a voluminous silhouette achieved by its flare from the shoulder. It is trimmed with cocoa colored collar inserts and matching ones on big patch pockets and deep cuffs.

SPORTSY TWEED

A salt and pepper tweed suit introduces a cape of almost full length that has snugly fitted shoulders and a tailored standing collar.

SILK UMBRELLAS

The tiny individual umbrella is quite the thing for April rains. Multicolored stripes and other patterns make them very cheery.

LAUNDRY HINTS

When washing a white silk blouse or jumper to which you want to give a little stiffness, add a few lumps of sugar to the rinsing water, roll tightly in a clean towel and iron while still damp.

If a little salt is added to the blue water when clothes are being blued it will help to distribute the color evenly and prevent blotches.

A wringer should always be unscrewed after use in order to take the weight off the rollers. Two little wedges of wood can be placed between and so allow the air to pass through.

Chocolate or cocoa stains can generally be removed from clothes if they are first washed in cold water, then have plenty of boiling water poured over them.

Stains on white silk can usually be removed by soaking with gasoline and then rubbing in lump magnesia. As much should be rubbed in as the gasoline will absorb.

CHILD'S CLOTHES BAR

A child's clothes bar is a useful thing for the home laundress. When laundering one or two small pieces, place on the bar before the register and they dry quickly. The handkerchiefs may always be dried on it in winter, and it may be placed in the open window when things need airing. When not in use it may be folded and occupy little room.

STOCKING PROTECTION

That the problem of stocking protection during wet weather is considered important is demonstrated by the very determined and earnest efforts that have been made by manufacturers this winter. A good many ideas have been launched with varying success. Yet another novelty has made an appearance in the shape of stocking galoshes. They are really a pair of stockings made in thin transparent waterproof in the prevailing flesh-colored tint. But the are minus heels and toes, which means that there is merely a band over the instep to keep them in position. They are worn inside the shoes and are virtually invisible.

TO KEEP BULBS FRESH

When tulips, narcissus and other bulbs are used as cut flowers in the house, says Nature Magazine, they will keep fresh much longer if the cut ends are dipped in boiling water. Another way is to dissolve charcoal and camphor in the water.

USE BUTTER

If possible use butter in the scrambled eggs and omelet. The flavor is better and the eggs will not stick as much as if margarine was used.

A BUTTON JAR

A wide-mouthed glass jar is an excellent container for buttons. One can view the contents from the outside and a great deal of searching is avoided when looking for a particular style of button.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A women's political party has been formed in Belgrade.

A woman witness in an English court when asked who lived in the house besides herself replied: "Nobody—only my husband."

Miss Anne Wynne Thackeray, a relative of the famous novelist, William Makepiece Thackeray, has been elected to the city council of Oxford, England.

The comnig year will make the centenary of the appearance of the first periodical for women in America, the Ladies' Magazine, published in Boston.

At 90 years of age, Mrs. Victor L. Pendleton of Warreton, N. C., is still teaching Sunday school class in the church where she began teaching 60 years ago.

Women students at the Massachusetts Agricultural college this year won four out of five first awards in the annual market and poultry exhibit and contest of students majoring in poultry.

Bacon Dish.

Line muffin tins with strips of raw bacon, put in a narrow line of mashed potatoes, break an egg in each dish, dot with butter and broil until done—some dish!

Roasting a Turkey.

When roasting a turkey do not add water to the pan until the flour with which the turkey has been brushed begins to brown. Then add water to baste the turkey.

RECIPES.

Butterscotch Pie: One large tablespoon butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 1-4 cups milk (sweet), 1 rounded tablespoon flour, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla, pinch of salt. Cream the butter and sugar; mix the flour to a smooth paste with the milk; beat the egg yolks and combine. Cook to a custard in a double boiler. Bake the pie shell first and when it and the custard have cooled pour the custard into the shell. Make a meringue of the whites of the two eggs and brown under the broiler or near the top of the oven, watching constantly.

Prune relish: Fruit relishes, especially those that are spiced or slightly tart, are excellent to serve with roast mutton or lamb, and are also very palatable when the cold sliced meat is served. Equal parts of raisins and prunes may be used in the following recipe if preferred:

Boil together one cup of prunes cut in small pieces, one and one-half cup of water, three tablespoons of sugar, and one-half a teaspoon of ground cinnamon until the prunes are soft, then add two tablespoons of currant jelly and the juice of half an orange while still hot, then let stand until cold.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rebekah, Jacob and Esau

Mr. Editor: In Genesis 27.14 we read: And he went and fetched and brought them to his mother, and his mother made savoury meat, such as his father loved. And Rebekah took goodly raiment of her eldest Esua, which were with her in the house and put them upon Jacob, her younger son. And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck. And she gave the savoury meat and the bread which she had prepared into the hand of her son Jacob.

This indicates that a woman was the foremost agent in the whole transaction.

Mr. Pitcher's Reply

Mr. Editor: I have read the letter published in your paper in which my name was mentioned several times, and with your permission I would like to answer the several "explanations" as made by the ex-councilman (who was councilman from May 15, 1911 to May 15, 1915) in said letter.

I will answer them as they appear in his letter. First: "Mr. Pitcher is so worked up because neither he nor his son are doing the city work." In answer to that statement, I would like to have any of the Waters' administration show that we have ever asked or applied for the work. On the other hand I am very glad that we are not employed, and I have refused to do any work whatsoever for any member of the council but I have been employed by employes of all departments in the city, even by the present street commissioner.

Second: He fails to tell the reason why Smith avenue sewer would be an aerial sewer if continued, to drain the brook he mentions.

Third: He fails to tell why the estimate for changing Franklin street brook into Chestnut street overran, and no part of this work was paid for by the city.

Fourth: In regard to money paid for labor and material to P. F. Sweeney and Thos. J. Donovan which he mentions: no other taxpayer of this city ever had a chance at it. Right here all my previous questions have related simply to individuals and not to contractors. There is not a taxpayer in Norwich even to myself, that would object to the expenditure of money if we were getting 100 cents worth for the dollar.

In regard to the fences that ought to receive attention, I will say there have been two plumbers in my office and they both stated that they would be willing to take down all iron and wooden fences in the city which the public works department have the care of, and replace the same with brass pipe and fittings for a sum a great deal less than $11,000.

Fifth: In regard to the three houses which he claims were built by a former street commissioner while in office, I will say that I worked on the three houses which I suppose he means were for George E. Fellows and Lewis R. Church and I was paid by Mr. Church for all my work, and not by the public works committee, and Chandler and Palmer were city engineers at that time.

Sixth: In closing, he says he would like to ask me "when is an asphalt road called a tarvia road?" In answer to that question I will say: When it is laid in Norwich, Conn., under the present administration and can be repaired with mud scraped out of the gutter. There are two bad holes in the street at present in front of my property, which were repaired with mud and one of them is over two inches below the surface of the road.

Now Joe, I have never asked you for the accounts of the city of Norwich, as I obtained all the figures which I have submitted in my letters or will submit to the public from the council journals which the city fathers gave the taxpayers for their information and I supposed they must compare with the city books.

The ex-councilman who wrote this letter referred to has received $240 a month for about a year from the present administration, so I do not blame him for throwing mud at me, and trying to defend the present administration and his letter does not explain anything.

Furthermore, I would like to ask the ex-councilman how it is that I am doing work for people in New Haven at the present time and have done work for people that he has sent to me on several occasions, and have done the state work for 41 years under four different states attorneys, if we are so incompetent?

The "Say So" About Prohibition

Mr. Editor: You certainly headed an article from Toronto, Ont., in Wednesday's Bulletin correctly when you put it: "'Says' Drunkenness Has Increased Under Prohibition". Because anyone says so does not prove it to be so.

Attorney General Price of Canada must have been quoting figures from the wet propaganda in refuting the contention that government sale of liquor had increased motor accidents. He refers to the United States as having "the most appalling record in the world"? Why not? Where are most of the motor cars made in the world? Where are most of the motor cars owned in the world? Why, then, should there not be more accidents? One dare not think how many times this number would be multiplied were there no prohibition. Quoting: "He said that crime in the United States was rampant and drunkenness had increased tremendously under prohibition. He read despatches and statistics from the United States * * * to support his claim that prohibition was a failure." He does not say from what source such "despatches and statistics" came. Wet propaganda again!

I well remember drunkenness and all that followed in its trail as witnessed in my childhood and youth. Today only those blinded by prejudice or love of intoxicating drink can fail to see the real decrease in drunkenness and its consequent decrease in suffering caused through it.

We would call the attention of Attorney General Price to the truth.

In Connecticut since 1917 (the last full year of license) the death rate has decreased one-fourth.

The number of students graduating from high school has doubled.

The number of depositors in savings banks increased one-half.

Total savings increased three-fourths.

The number of automobile owners has increased three times.

What about the many homes now owned by the working people?

For the state of Connecticut alone, one of the two states that so disgracefully voted against prohibition, here is the record:

Drunkenness, 1917, 7,314; 1926, 3,054, decrease 46 per cent.

Breach of peace and assault, 1917, 2,617; 1926, 1,233, decrease 53 per cent.

Vagrancy 1917, 882; 1926, 151, decrease 83 per cent.

Alcoholic insanity committed to Middletown year ending June 30, 1917, 71, 1926 44, decrease 38 per cent.

Theft in the eight largest cities, decrease 34 to 93 per cent.

The figures as given do not take into consideration the increase of population over the year 1917.

We need to cut out this article and pocket it for use when we meet the foes of our country, the would-be destroyers of our Constitution, the followers of Al Smith and Nicholas M. Butler.

"RELIGION AND THE JOYOUS LIFE"

"Joy Through Self-Expression"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "That they may have my joy" (John 17:13).

Read: John 17:1-13.

MEDITATION: A popular gospel today is joy through self-expression. This gospel rests on secure foundations. Joy comes only through self-expression. It attends the release of human energy. There is physical activity in which youth rejoices; there is the higher joy of mental activity which the student knows; there is the still higher joy that attends the exercise of one's spiritual energies. When we let ourselves go in sympathy, in kindness, in forgiveness, we feel a thrill that comes in no other way. We have a sense of satisfaction and well-being. As love flows out, joy flows in. In the shadow of the cross Jesus speaks of "my joy." He felt the solemn, incomparable thrill of utter self-giving.

PRAYER: O God we pray Thee that we may exercise this day the noblest capacities that Thou has implanted within us. Give us courage and strength to put into daily practice our best thought and dispositions and the things we most sincerely believe. Amen.

INCOME TAX TIPS

With a certain proviso, compensation paid by a state or "political subdivision thereof," such as a county or city, to its officers and employees is not taxable income. The proviso is that the wages of such officers and employees must be rendered in connection with the "essential governmental functions of the state or political subdivision" as distinguished from its proprietary functions. The salaries of the governor of a state, mayor of a city, councilman, board of aldermen, public-school teachers, and policemen and firemen are not taxable. But the compensation received by employees of waterworks owned and operated by a municipality or of a municipally owned and operated street railway is taxable, for the reason that they are engaged in the activities of a state which are not governmental.

Fees for special service to a state are taxable, as, for example, compensation pair architects and builders for planning and erecting a state capitol or other state or municipal tax law, is one whose services are continuous and not occasional or temporary.

Former Norwich Leaders

John W. Stedman.

From Norwich Bulletin, Feb. 11, 1896

A special despatch to The Bulletin Monday evening from Hartford announced the death there of John W. Stedman, treasurer of the State Savings Bank, and for many years a respected and influential citizen of Norwich.

He was born in Enfield in this state in 1820, and at the age of 12 as a fatherless lad went to Hartford, where he learned the trade of a printer and remained for eleven years. In 1844 he came to Norwich and purchased the Norwich Aurora, which he ably conducted for twenty-four years, when in 1868 he started The Norwich Daily Advertiser, being the president of the joint stock company and making great personal sacrifices for its support. The Advertiser ended its career in 1875, and The Aurora continued to be published until 1878, when the company discontinued the paper and went out of business. Mr. Stedman for thirteen years published the Norwich directory which bears his name, and which is today published in an enlarged form by Price, Lee & Co., of New Haven.

He was held in high esteem by his party, and his manly character gave his honorable standing in all the walks of life.

In 1852 he received the appointment of bank commissioner from Gov. Seymour, and in the same year was elected to the office by the legislature. He was a delegate to the national convention of his party at Baltimore that year, when Gen. Pierce was nominated postmaster of Norwich in 1853 and held the office for two terms, having no opposition for the second term.

He was a member of the board of education for many years and was honored with its presidency, and was for several years a member of the Norwich City council.

In 1873 he was made a member of the special commission for the investigation of the savings banks of the state, which resulted in reforms which materially strengthened those institutions. In 1874, he was appointed insurance commissioner, a position which he filled with honor for two terms. Before the expiration of his term of office he was chosen president of the State Savings bank in Hartford, a place he has acceptably filled for the past twelve or fourteen years.

He was one of the petitioners to have the handsome suburb known as Laurel Hill added to the city, and with the late Hon. Henry Bill was instrumental in its development. During his long residence here he was active in the promotion of every public enterprise of advantage to the city.

He was a member of the Universalist church in Norwich, was a liberal supporter of it during his abode here and was prominent in its councils and active in whatever promoted its interests.

He was a high Mason and belonged to all local Masonic bodies, and was alive to the principles of that fraternity which in his life he honored.

He was held in high esteem in Norwich, and it was with the deepest regret that his friends witnessed his removal to Hartford. He has been identified with so many things in the history of this city that the regard of the old citizens for him has never waned, and he is still thought of as one to "The manor born."

He had been ill for some time, and his death was not unexpected. He would have been 76 years old on the 20th of April, 1896.

YOUR HEALTH

Ulcer of the Stomach

By L. Winfield Kohn, M. D., New York, Member Gorgas Memorial.

A sore, similar in appearance to a cold sore often seen on the lip, may develop within the lining of the stomach or within the adjoining small bowel (duodenum). This is a stomach ulcer. It is very likely to follow in the wake of other diseases such as pneumonia, typhoid, tonsilitis and influenza. It may also be caused by alcoholic liquors or ice cold non-alcoholic drinks, and by the use of excessive spices and other irritative foods.

Stomach ulcer generally comes on slowly and insidiously. The condition may become worse as time goes on or it may improve only to return more violently at a later date.

Pain in the pit of the stomach is most often the outstanding complaint. It may be associated with such other symptoms as heartburn, belching, nausea, vomiting, regurgitation or even vomiting of blood. As a rule the distress comes on after eating, anywhere from a few minutes to hours after the food is taken, and may last from minutes to hours. At times it becomes most severe only during the night. Patients will often gain relief from the use of bicarbonate of soda, but this is only temporary.

It is important that a correct diagnosis be made and that proper early treatment be instituted. All ulcer cases are not precisely the same. On the contrary, they differ in type and degree. Some cases may be treated in the office and others must be put to bed. The treatment in all cases should require a long period of time and observation of the case should embrace years. Neglect in this direction will endanger the lives of ulcer sufferers.

The treatment will vary a great deal, depending upon the nature of the individual case. The forms of treatment are many. Mental and physical rest, as well as diet and medication, are a few of the more important. The final result, however, in most cases will depend upon the spirit of co-operation exemplified by the patient toward the doctor.

Stories That Recall Others

Sensible Observation.

A woman and her small son were riding on the car about 6 o'clock. The boy was tired and impatient and after a while said to his mother:

"Mother, everyone in town is trying to go home on this car. Is it the last one"

Cousins.

The folder advertising the cruise read: "Give the number in the party, with names, relationships, etc."

Henry had never made reservations before and this puzzled him. He wrote: "John and I will travel together with you. Am not sure of our exact relationship."

Later he wired: "John's uncle and my father were second or third cousins. Must I bring further proof of our relationship?"

JOCKEY WEO RODE IN FIRST DERBY STILL ACTIVE IN WORLD OF TURF

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 4—(AP)—Fast approaching man's allotted span of three score and ten years, William Walker, negro horseman, who rode in the first Kentucky derby, remains active today in the world of turf.

Walker retired from the saddle in 1884, his last race being on Bob Cook in the American Derby. Since then he has devoted his time to training horses and has been affiliated with many of the leading stables of the country. John E. Madden now has had him a number of years as trainer in an advisory capacity.

When H. P. McGrath's Aristides triumphed in the first Kentucky Derby, May 17, 1875, a diminutive 15-year old negro jockey rode Bob Wooley and finished fourth. Walker was the jockey. The next year, when the race went to Vagrant, Walker brought Bombay into fourth position. In the third running of the great race, Walker won with Dan Swigert's Baden Baden. Since then he has witnessed every Kentucky Derby. He rode his first race at the age of 11 and there has never been a break in his connection with the turf.

Many changes have come during this time. Walker recalls that his fee for winning the Derby with Baden Baden was exactly $50 and later, when he rode Ten Broeck to victory in a memorable race with Mollie McCarthy, he received nothing beyond the customary riding fee from the owner. At the time, he was being paid a monthly salary by Dan Swigert, his contract employer.

The sport world was aghast a short time later, Walker relates, when Edward Corrigan paid Isaac Murphy an annual retainer of $2,500 to ride for him.

Of the horses he has ridden, the negro declares King Alfonso was the fastest, while Ten Broeck was the best over a distance of ground. The latter was at his best when four years old, Walker says, but was six at the time he beat Mollie McCarthy and was retired after this famous victory.

NATIONALLY KNOWN GAMBLER WAS BEATEN TO DEATH

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—Believed to have been the victim of robbers, John Henry Spencer, 38, who police say was a nationally known gambler and a familiar figure at race tracks, died at the Long Island College hospital today from a fractured skull.

He was found lying in the gutter by a Brooklyn patrolman. Police expressed the opinion that he had been lured into an automobile, beaten, robbed, and thrown into the street by men who knew he frequently carried large sums of money.

Spencer's police record disclosed that he was first arrested in 1912 and sentenced to six months for carrying a concealed weapon and in 1915 he was arrested and fined $50 in Springfield, Mass., as a common gambler.

Railroad Business.

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—With Montreal in the International league this year railroad mileage will be greater. On top of that three clubs train farther away than usual—Rochester at Monroe, La., Montreal at Jackson, Miss., and Jersey City at Meridian, Miss.

Dandruff, authorities say, rarely starts before fourteen years of age. At that time the hair, like the rest of the body, is taking a sudden spurt and demands extra nourishment. Dandruff germs easily gain a hold in a neglected scalp. Antiseptic tar soap banishes germs, tones, stimulates. Makes hair and scalp healthy. ARMY TRANSPORT THOMAS IS MAKING LAST TRIP

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP)—With a record as a troop-ship probably never exceeded for length of service, the army transport Thomas is en route from Manila to her last trip on the trans-Pacific run, if not in the army's service.

A more modern vessel is to replace her after 30 years of service during which she has earned the enviable record of never having lost a life due to any accident or fault in navigation.

Her career in the army began in 1898 after she was purchased as the Minnewaska from the Atlantic Transport line has been as eventful as any steamer ploughing the high seas. On her passenger lists have appeared almost all of the United States' military leaders since the Spanish-American war. To her credit are numerous rescues but foremost was that when the passengers and crew of the steamship, City of Honolulu were taken off their burning vessel in mid-ocean in 1923 and landed safely at Los Angeles

NORTH MAIN ST. CONFECTIONERY STORE YIELDS 6 CASES OF BOTTLED GOODS

The place at 48 North Main street posing as a confectionery store yielded six cases of bottle goods, alleged to be intoxicating liquor, when state policemen and local officers raided it Saturday night between 10 and 10:30 o'clock.

Gus Chiola, 21, giving his address as Worcester, was arrested as proprietor and is charged with violation of the liquor law in keeping liquor with intent to sell. Three men found in the place, two of whom were very much under the influence of liquor, were arrested on the charge of intoxication. These were Michael Kelly, 52, and Arnold Headon, 41, of this city, and Thomas Lovell, 29, of Minneapolis. Some of the case of bottled goods were said to have been found in the main part of the store and the rest in the cellar. Besides the cases, there were several glasses and a pitcher, among the articles taken from the place as evidence by the officers.

The arrests were made by State Policemen Webber and Whitmarsh, with Officer Quinn, and the cases and other articles with the prisoners were brought to police headquarters in the motor patrol wagon.

This is the fourth alleged liquor place against which the police have made a move since the first of the month.

WARNS AGAINST SIN IN THOUGHTFUL LENTEN SERMON

Using as his text the words, "Friend whereto art thou come?" which Jesus spoke to Judas as the latter was about to betray Him with a kiss, Rev. Conran Kane of the Passionist monastery at West Springfield, Mass., preached a thoughtful lenten sermon Sunday at the vesper service at 7.30 at St. Patrick's church. He asked his congregation to think upon the heart-rending anguish this betrayal had upon the heart of Jesus and pointed out how the flame of avarice in this disciple, who was the custodian of the fund possessed by the little band of the twelve who followed Jesus, extinguished the love which he felt for the Master. Yet Jesus made heroic effort to reclaim the heart of Judas, but the heart of that disciple was not touched but was black with treachery and treason. Threat and warning and kindness were all of no avail.

Why did Jesus spend so much time in trying to reach the obdurate heart of Judas. Because He is the Son of God who did not deem it too much to die on the cross. Jesus knows the true value of a human soul and thus goes to the fullest extent to reach the heart of this apostle. Judas had the choice, but he refused grace after grace. His overmastering passion was avarice, which he permitted to grow and predominate in his life. With Judas it was avarice which controlled him. With us it may be avarice, envy, covetousness, inordinate desire for unlawful pleasures, or carelessness about religious duties. We must be on our guard against letting any sin gain the upper hand. Sin comes not overnight, it comes by constant acts and must be overcome by constant watchfulness. Give Jesus, said the preacher in conclusion, the kiss of love and loyalty and embrace Him so that you may be faithful to Him forever.

The musical part of the service, under the direction of Henry J. LaFontaine, organist, was of especial interest as the old Italian Mercadante Vespers were sung, the first time this has been given wholly with all the solo parts, the two Psalms, Ad Domine and Dixit Dominus. The soloists were Miss Sadie A. Driscoll, soprano; Horace P. Corning, baritone; Walter LaFontaine, tenor. Laudate Dominum was rendered by Mrs. Bernard Coyle and the male quartette for the offertory and Tantum Ergo was John Kelly, William Shannon, Walter LaFontaine and Henry LaFontaine. The excellent rendition of the music throughout indicated the careful preparation which had been made for this part of the service.

ENGAGEMENT IS ANNOUNCED AT BIRTHDAY BANQUET

The home of Morris Sussman of 38 Grove street was the scene of a joyous celebration last Tuesday evening, at a meeting of the board of directors of the Norwich Hebrew Benevolent association, after which a banquet was served by the hostess, Mrs. Sussman, assisted by Miss Helen Sussman.

The banquet was tendered to the directors to celebrate a double event, the birthday of Morris Sussman and the engagement of Miss Frances Sussman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sussman, to John Ellonsky of New London, who is a Bank street merchant of New London. The couple will be married shortly.

During the meeting the usual business matters of the Norwich Hebrew Benevolent association were considered by the directors, and the president, Abner Schwartz, appointed a committee to make known the objects and the work of the association so that the membership could be increased by adding desirable members.

After the business meeting, the directors and those present adjourned to the banquet table. During the banquet a beautiful dinner set was presented to Mr. Sussman, who has been vice-president of the association since its organization. The presentation speech was made by Abraham Ableman, the well-known Main street merchant. Addresses of congratulation were made by Rabbi Stamm, Abner Schwartz and A. H. Mannes. Other speakers of the evening were Louis Wechsler and Solomon Wechsler of Jewett City and Plainfield, and the song leader was Alexander Pasnik. Mr. Pasnik aroused considerable enthusiasm with a song which he composed and which he sung with those present. The name of the song is La Chaiam, a Hebrew melody. A duet was sung by the young couple, Miss Frances Sussman and John Ellonsky, with Miss Frances Sussman at the piano. It was a very pleasant evening and will leave to those present pleasant memories which will last.

The fire department received a telephone call at 11:58 o'clock Sunday morning for a fire on the city dump in the rear of Falls avenue, one of five calls over the week-end. The blaze was in a pile of old lumber and rubbish and had eaten its way to within a short distance of a number of sheds. Squad A, which responded, used three gallons of chemical and laid 500 feet of hose with which to extinguish the blaze. The land is owned by the city of Norwich.

At 1:54 o'clock Sunday afternoon a call was received for a grass fire on land owned by Mrs. Jane Henderson in the rear of 565 Boswell avenue. Several five-gallon water tanks were put into service by members of Engine 2 and Squad A, which responded. These tanks are operated by pumps.

Some damage resulted from the fire on the roof of the house at 27 Greene avenue, where Squad A and Engines 3 and 5 were called at 5:54 o'clock Saturday afternoon. TO PROMOTE PRIVATELY OWNED MERCHANT MARINE

WASHINGTON, March 4—(AP)—Declaring that government operation of ships during the past seven years has cost American taxpayers more than $250,000,000, Chairman White of the house merchant marine committee in an article in the Nation's Business Magazine, urges the inauguration of a policy of long-term and adequate mail contracts as a means of aiding the development of a privately owned merchant marine.

The broader application of the mail contracts, awarded by the post office department for foreign mail carrying, would result in the transfer to private ownership of lines now operated by the federal government at a loss, he declared. At the same time, he added, such a plan would insure the permanency and healthy expansion of other existing lines now privately operated.

GAVE HIMSELF UP AS MURDERED OF HIS WIFE

SCRANTON, Pa., March 4—(AP)—Walking into the parsonage of the Asbury M. E. church tonight, just prior to the evening service, Russell McGarrah, a bond salesman of this city, gave himself up to his pastor, Rev. W. J. Nicholson, as the murderer of his wife, Dorothy McGarrah, who lives in the Green Ridge section of the city, killed his wife by cutting her throat with a bread knife late this afternoon.

McGarrah later told authorities that he and his wife had been to church this morning and that upon their return he had noticed a piece of rope on the kitchen table. "I knew then that she meant to strangle me to death while I was taking my Sunday afternoon nap," he told the police "so I decided to beat her to it. I waited my chance this afternoon and while she was at the kitchen table grabbed a knife and cut her throat."

FATALLY WOUNDED BY AN UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 4.—(AP)—Jerry Daniels, 43, former owner of the Evelyn Nesbit night club on Pacific avenue, this city was fatally wounded by an unknown assailant at the Corn Exchange, a resort at North Carolina and Arctic avenues here tonight.

A call for the city ambulance with the terse command that a man had been shot brought police. When they arrived they found Daniels lying on the floor, the proprietor of the resort and all customers having vanished with the shooting.

Daniels was wounded in the head and abdomen. He was still living when the ambulance reached the hospital but died in less than an hour. The motive for the shooting could not be learned. It was said he was on the second floor of the resort with a woman companion. One of four men on the floor below is said to have dashed upstairs and following an argument with Daniels shot him. The four then made their escape in an automobile.

POSTMAN LEARNS AGE OF WOMEN MOTOR DRIVERS

Fortunately the letter-carrier is a good friend of the family. What with hiding under the doormat certain letters addressed to Sister; and concealing behind the window-blind certain letters for Brother, and taking care not to deliver certain bills when he knows Father is at home, his trustworthiness has been pretty well proved.

But now an even more delicate matter has been entrusted to him. He knows the age of every woman member of the family who drives a car.

It's the fault of those window-front envelopes such as bills arrive in, which show name and address through a section of transparent paper. Drivers' licenses are mailed out in the same kind of envelope, and directly under the name and address of the driver is a line which reads:

Described as follows: Age 34, sex female, height 5 feet 3.

The trouble is that this tell-tale line also shows through the transparent section of the envelopes, and thus the letter-carrier is in on another secret.

Merrill, dairy specialist of the state agricultural extension service, H. O. Daniels, Middlesex county director of the association, Prof. A. W. Machester, farm management demonstrator of the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college, State Dairy and Food Commissioner Thomas Holt, Miss Dorothy Buckley, nutrition specialist of the Connecticut Dairy and Food council and Harold Kelsey, president of the Middlesex County 4-H Club Fair association.

ICE BOAT WITH MOTOR AND AIRPLANE PROPELLOR

A new sort of ice boat made its appearance on Gardner lake Sunday, one which did not depend upon a sailpower for its propelling force, but had a rigging upon runners upon which was mounted a motorcycle engine which furnished the power for an airplane propellor.

This made a craft with which high speed was obtained and much sport was enjoyed on the lake by those who were running it.

DUWELLS SELECTED FOR SITE OF E. CONN. STATE TITLE ELIMINATIONS

With the Duwell A. A. named as one of the clubs to stage the eliminations to determine the amateur boxing championship of eastern Connecticut, previous to the state tournament at New Haven on April 12, the boxing show to be staged at the armory Tuesday, March 13th, will be a sort of a tune up affair for the next show when the eliminations will begin. At the March 13th show the fans will see some of the boys who later will battle for the right to represent this section of the state at New Haven when the titles are passed out.

Title Bouts In New Haven.

According to present A. A. U. plans, all territory between Middletown and the Rhode Island line is to be listed as Eastern Connecticut. A list of boxers from this territory will be arranged and the A. A. U. clubs in the listed territory will stage a series of shows to determine who will face the scrapper from the other sections of the state at the title bouts in New Haven.

Although the Eastern Connecticut tourney will not get under way until the latter part of March, a chance to look over the prospective material will be afforded local fandom at the coming Duwell show. With the amateur boxing craze at its height in this end of the state, boxers are cropping up in every city and village. In addition to the "big time" team booked to appear here next week a real representative Eastern Connecticut field will be on hand.

Duwells Plan Strong Team.

Anxious to get in on the title affairs to be staged at New Haven, the Duwells are out to build up a formidable team and will welcome any of the local or Eastern Connecticut boys who desire to wear their colors. At the present time all the honors are being held by boxers in other sections of the state and it is the intention of the local club to round Eastern Connecticut into the limelight at any cost. The Duwell gym and shower room, as good as will be found anywhere in this section of the state are at the disposal of any prospective boxers. Entry blanks for the coming bouts may be obtained by addressing "Sports," Duwell A. A.

"BULLET" BLACK MAY NOT LEAD DARTMOUTH NEXT FALL

HANOVER, N. H., March 4—(AP)—Dartmouth will not know for two weeks at least whether Captain-elect Richard Black, of the 1928 football team, who underwent an operation yesterday, will be able to play next fall, it was announced here today. Dr. John P. Rowler who assisted Dr. W. R. MacAusland of Boston in removing cartilage from Black's left knee joint, said that until Black is out of the hospital and has an opportunity to exercise his knee joint, it will be impossible to estimate the success of the operation.

Black experienced a comfortable night last night but will not be permitted to receive visitors for a few days. The operation was made necessary as a result of complications arising from a sprained ligament which Black received in the game with Allegheny, the third on the Dartmouth schedule, last fall.

ACADEMY HAS THREE MORE GAMES THIS WEEK

The Academy faces three more tough assignments the coming week. Tomorrow night the locals are at the Plainfield Community house to meet Plainfield High in a game postponed from last Tuesday night. Friday night Rockville High comes here and Saturday evening Crosby High of Waterbury is also met here.

Les Pingree is expected back in shape for these tilts and with him in there firing away in his usual form the locals can be expected to furnish real opposition. Pingree, after being out for nearly a month by ineligibility, returned and played one game only to be forced out again in the Windham encounter Friday with a wrenched ankle. His absence from the lineup Saturday hurt the local's chances quite a bit.

CRESCENTS MEET WEBSTER Y. M. A. TOMORROW NIGHT

The Bay State boys are coming back determined to even things but the Crescents are not taking anything for granted and have a strong team lined up.

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin of Los Angeles, the new idol of the fistic world, fired the gun that started 30 noted cyclists tonight in the 44th international six day bicycle race in Madison Square garden. More than 10,000 spectators watched the field in its getaway at 9 o'clock on the dizzy grind around the pine saucer.

The 15 teams included most of the world's greatest riders. Reggie McNamara, the iron man, was paired with Charley Winter and this combination along with the teams of Spencer-Walthour, Georgetti-Debaets, Brocco-Petri and Faudet-Marcillac was considered the strongest.

The other teams are: Walker-Hill, Belloni-Beckman, Benezatto - Lande, Goosens-Wynsdau, Horan - Garrison, Gaffney-Croley, Kochler - Merkner, Maes-Haegendoncks, Letourner-Brocado and Zucchetti-Boogman.

BATTLING LEVINSKY BACK IN N. Y. FOR FIGHT TONIGHT

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—There will be a lull in the boxing activities at Madison Square Garden this week as the six-day bicycle race holds forth.

Chief among the boxing clashes in the metropolis will be the return of Battling Levinsky, Philadelphia heavyweight, against Earl Blue, St. Paul boxer in a headline six rounder at the new Broadway arena in Brooklyn tomorrow night.

Levinsky's last fight in this section was against Gene Tunney at the old garden in 1922, Tunney gaining the verdict and thereby acquiring the title of American light heavyweight champion.

PIRATES HIT STIFF WORK ON MONDAY

PASOS ROBLES, Calif., March 4.—(AP)—Donie Bush was so well satisfied with the condition of his Pittsburgh Pirates that he followed his usual training camp custom today of no Sunday morning workouts.

The team trotted out ont the field this afternoon to limber up preparatory to high pressure training which will start on Monday. Base running and sliding will feature the practice tomorrow. An innovation this year will be a practice game every other day, beginning Tuesday. Bush promises that training on the days when games are not played will be so intensive that players will regard the games as recreation.

The Pros presented but Benson, Normandin and Dissenger of the regulars and this, coupled with the fact that amateur rules were used, hurt the Community Housers considerably.

Y. M. H. A. JUNIORS WANT GAMES WITH LEADING TEAMS

The Y. M. H. A. Juniors are still looking for games with fast junior teams in eastern Connecticut and vicinity. For arrangements answer through the paper.

N. F. A. NOW HAS 23 BASEBALL GAMES

The Academy baseball team, at least the batterymen, get their first taste of real action today at the Y gym when Coach Earle E. Brigham will summon his pitchers and catchers for a short workout. The number will be limited because of the size of the gym and only the more promising candidates will cavot indoors.

Several of the players worked during last week at the Y, mostly with calistenics, tossing the medicine ball around, etc., so that now with a little more strenuous work things should not come very hard.

It was announced Sunday night by Coach Brigham that Deep River, which always produces a fast little team, has been added to the schedule for the state champions, this making 23 games that the Red and White will face the coming season. This game will be played here Friday, April 20 and its addition to the schedule now makes 17 home games and six on foreign soil. Deep River last year ran up a good record. Linder, its star pitcher, who is still available, turning in a no-hit no-run game.

The batterymen will probably stay indoors for a week or so, when with the first sign of continued mild weather, they will take to the campus where a much larger turnout is expected.

PLAINFIELD TO HAVE BUSY BASKETBALL TIME THIS WEEK

The Plainfield Community House will be a busy place the latter part of this week with three games on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slated. Wednesday the Pros play their usual tilt with an opponent yet unnamed; Thursday the Academy and Plainfield High meet on this floor and Friday the Danielson Town team and the Taftville Crescents clash in the third game of their series.

"BILL" WICKS RECORD RUN FOR THIS WEEK

The run of "Bill" Wicks in March 1910, from New London to Norwich, a distance of 13 miles in 1 hour and 23 minutes, 8 seconds, is this week's feature in Sport Glimpses. It will be published Tuesday in The Bulletin.

'BOUT SPORTS

It now appears that Naugatuck High, is really getting some well deserved recognition after being sort of out of the picture in state athletics for some time. By out of the picture we don't mean as regards records for Eddie Foley's boys have always been among the best, but not very well known. Up in that little community in the western part of the state this club has been able to hold its own with the best of them for some time now but never quite reached the top. Down at the Penn. tourney Saturday the sons of old Naugy did, however, beat Catholic high of Philadelphia for the high school title.

As is customary, every year about this time, the air in eastern Connecticut, especially around Taftville and Danielson, is thick with rumors. The third game of the basketball series between these two communities is to be played Friday night at the Plainfield Community house. Each has one decision in this series, gained on the other fellow's floor and as the clubs hit the home stretch for the third game interest runs high hereabouts. Danielson presented a powerful lineup in beating Taftville last week, having two from the Purple Collegians of Worcester and two from the Bristol Endees so that it will be only natural for Taftville to retaliate. Indeed, rumor has it that the Crescents will.

The Academy is facing probably the stiffest schedule ever outlined for a high school in Connecticut in the coming baseball season. The addition of Deep River, one of the good little teams of the state, provides local fans with 17 home games, which no doubt comes as a real pleasing announcement to Norwich fandom, which seems to take great delight in watching the Red and White go through its paces on the diamond.

ROOKIES BEGINNING TO FEEL ANXIOUS AT CAMPS

ATLANTA, March 4.—(AP)—A vision of the "paring knife" that trims the below grade rookies from the more promising of the youngsters is beginning to shape itself into the customary old picture as major league training camp days roll by and managers get their scrutinizing eyes focused.

Although it is still too early for the majority of recruits to feel either anxious or secure as to the summer's job, all fully realize that many now coming beneath the spring sun must be lopped off soon.

Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns, training at West Palm Beach, has been loud in his praise of three youngsters. Guy Sturdy, hard-hitting first baseman secured from Tulsa of the Western league and Ottis Brannon and Ralph Kress, young infielders, obtained from the same circuit.

George Haas, outfielder obtained from Atlanta of the Southern association, and Joe Hassler, infielder of the Eastern league, are making Connie Mack equally as happy at Fort Myers, Fla., training grounds of the Athletics.

Several young pitchers, too, have been taking a leading role in spring work, including Pete Traynor, from the American association with the Red Sox; Arthur Delaney, from the Pacific Coast league, and William Dunlap from the Eastern league, both with the Braves; Lloyd Brown and Clarence Griffin of the Southern association, now with the Senators; Jim Robinson and Carroll Danforth, Brooklyn finds from the Texas league, and others.

The Red Sox, training at Bradenton, also have taken a liking to Doug Taitt, speedy young infielder purchased from Nashville of the Southern association. Miller Huggins believes that Allen Cook of Durham, N. C., in the Piedmont league and Sam Dyre of Knoxville in the Sally, are potential hitters to place with the slugging squad.

A couple of young catchers, Wise and Lapez, both of Florida, are attracting the attention of the Robins.

The ten clubs training in Florida were idle today, taking a needed day's rest. The exhibition schedule gets under way Wednesday with the Cardinals meeting the Red Sox at Bradenton, and the Phillies and Athletics locking up at Fort Myers.

At Augusta, the Giants also had a day of rest.

SCHAAF BREAKS SCORING MARK OF COLLEGE LOOP

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Led by the dazzling performances of Joey Schaaf, the University of Pennsylvania quintet continued its triumphant march towards the intercollegiate basketball league bunting today with Princeton practically the only threatening contender remaining in the race which concludes next Saturday.

Schaaf, Penn's star sophomore guard, has gone over the top of the high scoring standard for the league attained by Sammy Pite of Yale in 1924. Sixteen points scored by Schaaf in last night's victory of 34 to 28 over Columbia boosted his total to 104 markers against 99 which was the high total set by Pite four years ago.

A victory for the Quakers on Wednesday night against Yale would clinch the championship for Penn in the event the Tiger met defeat at the hands of Columbia on the same evening. Triumphs for both Penn and Princeton on Wednesday or a defeat for Penn and a victory for the Tiger would send the teams into a battle for the title against each other on Saturday night at Philadelphia.

JACK DEMPSEY AGAIN SAYS HE IS THROUGH

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 4.—(AP)—The positive declaration that he was "through" and would not meet Champion Gene Tunney in a third ring battle was made today by Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion.

"Although Tex Rickard apparently is in sore need of an opponent for Tunney, whom he has guaranteeded a large sum for a match early this summer, I will not be the one to go back and fight him, I'm through," Dempsey said.

The former champian made the declaration as he sat in the clubhouse of the Tijuana club at Tijuna, Mexico, awaiting the bugle call for the eighth renewal of the Tijuana derby.

ACADEMY DROPS STUBBORNLY FOUGHT GAME TO STONINGTON HIGH, 20 TO 12

The Academy made a good job of it in holding Stonington Saturday night at the Y gym but when it came to scoring the locals still were several bits off. The Red and White gave Stonington a pretty battle all the way but superior shooting ability of the visitors gave them a hard-earned decision.

The locals put up a defense that Stonington found pretty hard to negotiate but the down-staters made most of their shots count. The majority of times that Stonington did break through she converted into scores.

On the other hand, the Academy dissolved Stonington's defense with quite a bit of regularity but only to miss easy ones time and again.

Rough Game

It was a rough, mauling affair with the players flat on their backs on the floor a good part of the time. The score didn't mount with any reckless abandon at any time but although there was little real action the affair was interesting for the majority of the time because of the closeness of the score.

The Academy had the lead first on Viau's foul but lost it to Bryer's field goal, soon after which Viau threw in one from the floor and gave the Red and White the lead again. Stonington forged ahead very shortly, however, and stayed there for the remainder of the game. At the end of the first quarter O'Brien's men had a 7 to 3 lead.

The teams continued their pace in the second quarter with each scoring but three points, the half leaving the count at 10-6. But a field goal by Stonington was the only score in the third quarter and that came in the dying moments. Stonington had an 8-6 edge in scoring in the final quarter.

Buck LaCroix showed the best game for the Academy while Joe Viau also played a hard game and led the Red and White in scoring with six points. Bryer led both teams in scoring with nine points.

Stonington Not Impressive

Stonington looked nothing like a team that could inflict a 47-13 defeat on the Academy such as they did down in Stonington a week or so ago. It was probably the local's bulldog defense that made them look bad at times but, save for nice work along the shooting line, Stonington looked not one whit better than the locals. Her defense, surely was not to be compared with the Academy's but all that is beside the story, for, after after, it takes points to win a basketball game.

Les Pingree, who wrenched his ankle Friday night in the Windham game at Willimantic, was not in uniform and it was stated Sunday night that it is not at all certain that he will be ready by this week to again don the local colors. The rest of the squad emerged from the fray unscathed, however.

Emps Lose Tight One

In the preliminary the Emps dropped a hard-fought affair to the Stonington high seconds by 14 to 11. It was but the local team's third defeat of the season the other two coming at the hands of the New Britain Phantoms. The Emps were way off on their shooting too, missing many chances to run up scores.

FIELD EVENTS HELPED CORNELL GREATLY TO TITLE

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—Brawn rather than speed is responsible for Cornell's return to intercollegiate track and field championship heights after a lapse of six years.

Analysis of the seventh annual I. C. A. A. A. A., championship meet reveals that the big red team's victory in a three cornered contest with Georgetown and Yale came chiefly through the performance of its weight men. Five husky Cornell athletes tallied seventeen of their winning team's total of 21 points in two events, the shot put and weight throw, the latter furnishing the vehicle for Jack Moakley's men to take, first, second, third and fifth places.

WINDHAM HAS TWO MORE GAMES BEFORE TOURNEY

Windham high of Willimantic, now practically certain of being eastern Connecticut's only representative in the Yale tourney, has but two more games, both this week, before preparing for their trip to New Haven. Rockville plays at the Thread City Wednesday and South Manchester, Windham's arch rival, closes the season Friday night with a game at the State Armory court.

J. B. MARTINS LOSE TO COTTRELLS OF WESTERLY

The J. B. Martin soccer team lost to the A. F. C. Cottrell eleven of Westerly Sunday at J. B. Martin park by a score of 3 to 2. A good-sized crowd saw a nice exhibition with the Martins running up a 2 to 0 lead, only to falter in the second half.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Plainfield Pros could not beat New Britain this time but there was a big reason for the Community Housers had but one regular on place in the lineup.

Danielson, likewise, presented a makeshift lineup for their opening Saturday home game and lost, to the Hartford Knights of Lithuania.

Another local club, the Academy, played the majority of the game with Les Pingree and Jim Kelly out and lost. Pingree didn't appear at all because of a wrenched ankle while Kelly was removed from the fray before the half, not to return.

The Y Emps lost but their third game of the season Saturday night, the other defeats being at the hands of the New Britain Phantoms.

The Academy is still losing and the season fast draws to a close.

The New Britain Phantoms, who defeated the Y Emps here early in the season, continued their winning streak by beating Farmington Saturday night, 31 to 21.

The Emps will attempt to book this team for another game here toward the close of the month.

HAHN NOW CERTAIN TO BE BIG U. S. OLYMPIC HOPE

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Lloyd Hahn's world's record half mile run of 1:51 2-5 on the intercollegiate track last night has demonstrated conclusively that the sturdy Nebraskan is America's main hope for a double victory in the 800 and 1,500 meter runs at the Olympics this summer.

Not since Mel Sheppard turned the trick 20 years ago at London has any American come home first in these two events. Hahn will be up against the stiffest kind of competition at Amsterdam but his performances within the past week have focused fresh attention on his chances of Olympic triumph.

Hahn's sensational half mile came only three nights after he had run Ray Conger and Dr. Otto Peltzer into the boards in a 4:13 mile at the Knights of Columbus meet. Had he run the mile on the lightning fast intercollegiate track where he clipped three and one-fifth seconds from the 24-year old indoor 880-yard record, Hahn, experts believe, would have negotiated the distance in around 4:10.

Hahn not only blasted the indoor half mile record but surpassed the outdoor world's record of 1:51 3-5 set by Dr. Peltzer, who was a witness to the American's great performance last night. Two years ago Hahn himself was credited with a half a mile in 1:51 1-2 on the anchor leg of a relay race at the national championships at Philadelphia.

Dr. Peltzer was even more enthusiastic than Hahn after last night's race. Warm in his praise of his American rival, the German champion expressed the hope that they might cut the record down to 1.50 if conditions were favorable in the Olympic 800-meter championship.

Dr. Peltzer also came forward in support of Hahn's contention that it will take about three weeks of preparation abroad to reach top form after the trip to Amsterdam. The American Olympic committee already has turned thumbs down on this suggestion, ni favor of taking the whole team over in a body, arriving a week before the Olympics start, but there is likely to be fresh agitation now to make an exception for Hahn and other outstanding stars.

"It will be impossible for Hahn to be at his best unless he has sufficient time to get accustomed to new climate and conditions in Holland," said Dr. Peltzer. "He is a wonderful runner and it would be unfortunate to handicap him for the Olympics. I think he should have three or four weeks to get into shape on the other side."

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 4—(AP)—Francis T. Hunter, second ranking United States tennis player, defeated Johnny Hennessey No. 5 ranking player in five sets in the finals of the annual South Florida tennis championship here today.

Hunter was forced to extend himself to win from the tall Indiana player, who fought until he was exhausted. Hunter took the first set 6-2, but Hennessey forced him to go 8-6 to win the second. Hennessey won the third set, 7-5, and the fourth 6-3. Hunter took the first three games of the last set but Hennessey finally forged ahead five games to four. Then Hunter took the last three games, but not before two of them had gone to duece, winning the set at 7-5.

HAHN PLANS WORLD TOUR AFTER OLYMPIC GAMES

FALLS CITY, Neb., March 4 —(AP)—Lloyd Hahn, middle distance ace who has announced his intention of quitting the track after the Olympics and retiring to a farm, may wind up his running career with a trip around the world starting at the finish line at Amsterdam next summer, he told friends on a recent visit to his home here.

Hahn's racing campaigns already have carried him across the United States many times and to England, Holland, New Zealand and Australia.

Hahn, who holds four world's records, is approaching 30, but believes he is in a better physical condition than a decade ago. He does not want to turn professional and is eager to begin the business of making money by assuming active management of his farms here.

DODGING WORK MADE HORSE GREAT JUMPER

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—Billy Barton, American-bred contender in England's classic Grand National steeplechase March 30, learned to jump some seven years ago by clearing high fences around the Aqueduct race track in efforts to run away from his trainers.

The horse became adept at clearing the high barriers to escape being compelled to run a mile or so with a jockey on his back. As a flat racer he was erratic and temperamental, but when finally sold for $2,000 to Howard Bruce of Baltimore and used as a hunting horse he steadied down and proved perfectly tractable as well as fast and skillful over the obstacles.

GOLF ON ICE TRIED BY WISCONSIN PAIR

ASHLAND, Wis., March 4—(AP)—Even a Wisconsin winter failed to cool the golfing ardor of Robert Boisen and James Dixon, who have rigged up a course on the ice of Chequamegon Bay.

They play with a red ball. The "greens" are fast, and with the broad expanse of Lake Superior ice ahead some long distance slams from the tee are made.

There are no bunkers, traps or water hazards on the icy course and it is a golfer's paradise if one is hardy enough not to mind the cold.

New Jap Net Star.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4—(AP)—Japan has bolstered its Davis cup team for the coming campaign, in which it is expected to furnish chief American zone opposition to the United States, by the addition of Tamio Abe, who recently arrived here.

Abe, whose father, Professor Isoo Abe, is known as the father of baseball in Japan, was beaten only once last year and is expected to add considerable strength to the team which Harada, Toba and Ota, veterans who played in America last season. He is 26 years old and was graduated from the philosophical college of Waseda university last year.

HYATT, PITT COURT STAR, SPORTS WELCH'S NUMBER

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 4 —(AP)—The University of Pittsburgh's athletic lucky number is 10, it would seem, for Gibby Welch, All-American back carried that numeral on his jersey and now Charley Hyatt, about as great a sensation in basketball, sports a big number "10" on his shirt.

Welch kept Pitt in the running throughout a football season minus a defeat in regularly scheduled games. Hyatt, by his brilliant work at forward is one of five reasons for the great record of the Panther basketball quintet which has defeated the best teams of the east and middle west.

SHARKEY AND RISKO DUE ON SCENE WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey of Boston and Johnny Risko of Cleveland are due in the city on Wednesday to polish off long training campaigns for a 15-round battle in the heavyweight series here a week from tomorrow night.

Tex Rickard's seemingly will-o'-the-wisp cease to produce a suitable opponent for Champion Gene Tunney by the process of elimination has taken some edge off the March 12 battle.

However, an impressive victory for either Sharkey or Risko is expected to propel the winner into a title struggle without the necessity of a final elimination against Tom Heeney, conqueror of Jack Delaney.

TWO OTHER BOYS FROM THIS SECTION WON R. I. TITLES

Walter Main, 160, and John Russo, 147, both of Westerly, were others besides Al Koziol of Norwich, who won R. I. state titles at Providence last Friday night. They were victorious in their respective divisions and will also go to Boston for the New England championships.

BASKETBALL TOURNEY SLATED FOR "Y"

The first annual basketball invitation tournament for the eastern Connecticut Intermediate title will be sponsored through the courtesy of the local Y. M. C. A. At present 12 teams have signified their intention of entering the tourney and by March 17, the last date allowed for entrance, about 20 teams are expected to have filed entrance blanks, which are obtainable at the Y. M. C. A. from P. Leslie Conklin.

This will be the first attempt of a tournament of this kind in Norwich and much interest has been aroused thus far. Among the teams entered to date are Y Emps of Norwich and the following out of town teams, Woodstock, Putnam and Danielson Hi-Y clubs, Danielson Comrades, Moosup Pioneers, Baltic Independents, Willimantic Employed Boys, Stafford Springs Dixies, Fitchville Rovers, Stonington All-Stars and Mystic Stars.

The following have had invitations sent to them and are yet to be heard from: New London Employed Boys, New London Orioles, Groton and Old Lyme Comrades, Noank Pioneers, Taftville Whirlwinds, Lebanon 4-H club and Wheeler school of North Stonington. It is almost certain that the majority of these teams will accept the invitation.

Play is expected to start March 24.

BUSINESS IS MAKING LITTLE HEADWAY; UNEMPLOYMENT IS CAUSING CONCERN

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—American business appeared to make some headway last week, but most observers were hesitant about making predictions of the future course. The fact that this is a presidential year was stressed as a reason for business uncertainty, while some disappointment was voiced that February's showing had not been as good as expected.

Unemployment in various industrial centers continued to arouse concern, but this was in par alleviated by hope for an early spring and consequent expansion of out-of-door activities within a short time. Optimism has been expressed by some commentators regarding the outlook for building and structural operations this year, while several states have enormous road-building programs under way which will absorb a percentage of the idle labor.

The steel trade was again the pacesetter, but even there irregularities made their appearance. Pig iron production was stepped up again, but buying appeared to be surrounded by an atmosphere of caution.

The motor industry made moderate strides forward, production in February being reported well ahead of that of the same month last year, although rather less than had been anticipated. Detroit employment, a fairly reliable barometer of the industry, showed another moderate gain over the preceding week.

The petroleum industry was quiet, featured by mergers and rumors of mergers.

The soft coal trade continued unsettled and weak, with reports of probable closing down of mines in some sections for an extended period.

There was some slowing up of orders for lumber for quick shipment, but production continued brisk and increases were reported in buying for future delivery. Textiles were again featured by curtailment of cotton goods manufacture, while the movement of woolens and silks became somewhat more irregular. Rayon was the most active of any of the fabrics.

Changes in commodity prices were about evenly balanced, declines being recorded by wheat, corn and copper and lead, against advances in oats, barley, cotton, tin, zinc and rubber. Crop prospects were reported as good.

Little improvement was noted in car loadings, which were well under the figures for corresponding weeks of last week.

Credit conditions were little changed, although an underlying ease was indicated by sale of a $52,000,000 issue of New York City Corporate stock at the lower yield rate in twenty years. Bank clearings in the principal financial centers increased moderately over those of the preceding week, which was broken by a holiday, but declined about two per cent from the figure of the corresponding period of 1927.

The Hive Becomes a Nursery.

Be it girl or be it boy,
The parents' hearts are filled with joy.
—Old Mother Nature.

Whitefoot the Wood Mouse had been right about the bees. There had come a very warm day, as will sometimes happen in the middle of winter. Now, bees are such busy folk that they cannot bear to be idle a moment. So, during the warmest part of this day very many of them had to go outside the hive to see if perchance spring really had come. They were not very lively, but they were lively enough to have stung to death either Whitefoot or Mrs. Whitefoot had they found them in the hive. But Whitefoot and Mrs. Whitefoot remained quiet, hidden in their nest, and when late in the afternoon the air became cooler the bees all returned and hung in a great mass in the top of the hive. Then it was safe for Whitefoot and Mrs. Whitefoot to go out.

After that the days were once more cold and the bees remained quiet. Whitefoot and Mrs. Whitefoot were out every night, sleeping during the middle of the day. They certainly did enjoy their home. Yes, sir, they certainly did enjoy their home in that beehive. They were fat with good eating. And they didn't lose any of that fat through worry. You see, there was nothing to worry about.

So the winter passed and there were signs that sweet Mistress Spring would soon arrive. Whitefoot knew that then they would have to move. Yes, sir, he knew that then they would have to move. There would be no living in that hive when once the bees were thoroughly awake. He was about to suggest to Mrs. Whitefoot that they must be thinking about moving when on returning to the nest one night he found a surprise which for the time being put all thought of moving out of his head. Guess what that surprise was. You cannot? Then I'll tell you. Whitefoot's nest had become a nursery! In it were five babies.

"Aren't they darlings?" whispered Mrs. Whitefoot.

Of course, Whitefoot said they were. But, down in his heart, he had to admit that he would have liked them much better had they had their eyes open and had they had pretty little fur coats, instead of no coats at all. Not for the world would he have told Mrs. Whitefoot that he thought they were the homeliest babies in the world; but that is just what he did think.

Now when a home built just for two has five added to it, even though they be tiny, that home becomes crowded. Whitefoot soon felt out of place. Not only was he uncomfortably crowded there, but he had the feeling that Mrs.

"Aren't they darlings?" whispered Mrs. Whitefoot.

Whitefoot much preferred his room to his company. He was right about it, too. She began to hint broadly that this was no longer a bedroom, but a nursery.

"Just as if I didn't know it," mumbled Whitefoot. "Just as if I didn't know it! I can't step without having a baby under foot. I think I'll move back to that little house in the Old Orchard. There I can at least sleep in peace."

So Whitefoot moved back to the little house in the apple tree on the edge of the Old Orchard, and Mrs. Whitefoot didn't once protest. No, sir, she didn't once protest. The fact is she was too busy to think about Whitefoot. When you have five children, five always hungry, growing children, to feed and care for and bring up in the way they should go there is little time to think of others.

My, how those babies did grow! It wasn't long before they had their eyes open. It wasn't long before each had a nice little fur coat. Whitefoot thought they were much better looking then. In fact, he began to be proud of them. You see, he came over every night to visit them. But he didn't take any care of them. He left that to their mother. So, not having to care for them, he didn't worry about them. But Mrs. Whitefoot did. You see, living in the hive all the time she was aware that day by day there was a growing uneasiness among the bees, and she had a dreadful fear that some time when she wasn't around one of those babies would go exploring and perhaps be stung to death.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

"The Grey Devil" now showing at the Strand theatre is a speedy story of the ranges, and has for its star the famous Jack Perrin with Starlight, the wonder horse, and Rex the movie collie. In the supporting cast are Lorraine Eaton and Milburn Morante. There is a thrill in every foot this picture, which is marked from beginning to end by rough riding, straight shooting and hard hitting, punctuated by screamingly funny comedy interludes.

Hearts throbs and heartly laughter are guaranteed ingredients of every Colleen Moore picture, it would be seen, with "Ella Cinders" as corroborately evidence. The story tells of a village girl lured to Hollywood by a fake beauty contest, with the promoters faring nicely financially at the hands of gullible public. Miss Moore is aided in creating veritable riots of fun by a most capable group, with Lloyed Hughes introducing the serious and sentimantal moments as the pseudo iceman hero of the play.

We also show an interesting scenic entitled "Barefoot Boy."

Palace Theatre.

Two Arabian Knights, with William Boyd, Mary Astor and Louis Wolheim in a post-war comedy film, will be the feature at the Palace theatre today and tomorrow. Directed by Lewis Milestone, from Donald McGibney's McClure magazine story, the film was produced under supervision of John W. Considine, Jr.

Telling the adventures of Private W. Daingerfield Phelps, and Sergeant Peter McGaffney, following their escape from a prison camp in Arabia, Two Arabian Knights, thumbs its nose at the serious spectacle of war. Its screen play was written by James T. O'Donohoe, scenarist of the film, What Price Glory? and Wallace Smith.

Where the war ends, the story of Two Arabian Knights begins. In no sense derived from Omar Khayyam's tales, the title is explained by the fact that the American buck private and top sergeant are knighted by an Emir in Arabia for no good reason. The private is less concerned with a knighthood than with the Emir's daughter, Anis Bin Adham, who is really Mary Astor. It is said that Two Arabian Knights employs divers avenues of laughter, ranging from the hysteria-arousing sequences of the doughboys' escape through electrified barb wire surrounding a prison camp, to the spectacle of Louis Wolheim in his red flannels. Lewis Milestone, the 28-year-old director of the comedy, was assigned the post by John W. Considing, Jr., because of his work as director of The Caveman, Thom as Meighan's The New Klondike and his co-direction of Harold Lloyd's The Kid Brother.

George Marion, Jr., wrote the titles for Two Arabian Knights, and William Cameron Menzies, who designed the sets for The Thief of Bagdad, which was inspired by Omar Khayyam, is responsible for the settings.

NEW LONDON RESTAURANT OWNER KEPT HOME BREW FOR HIS CUSTOMERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 4—Rocco Gentilella, former Bank street restaurant proprietor, was arrested Saturday night charged with violation of the liquor law and will be in the police court Monday morning. He was able to furnish a surety on his bond of $1,000 and was not compelled to await trial by being locked up in a cell. Gentilella has been conducting a so-called restaurant, corner of Atlantic and Potter streets, but which police declare was a blind for the sale of hooch. Gentilella was behind the lunch bar about 9:30 o'clock and was watched by Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Dennis Murphy as was the conduct of men who entered and departed from the building. The officers soon became satisfied that Gentilella was dispensing liquor and when he went to another part of the building, the officers rushed into the place and going behind the counter found a pitcher containing liquor of the home-made brand. Gentilella was arrested and the liquor was taken to police headquarters as evidence of violation of the law.

PARKER, FINED AT NORWICH, HAS MORE COMING TO HIM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 4—Robert J. Parker, a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Fanning, state pier, who was fined $100 on each count of driving while under the influence of liquor and evasion of responsibility in the Norwich city court Saturday, will have more trouble to face when he is liberated from jail. He is wanted in this city for failure to pay $110.23 into the city treasury as the result of his conviction in the New London court last month. Parker was arrested here on the night of Feb. 13 charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and the next day he was fined $100 and costs in the police court. Parker assured the court that he would pay his fine and costs the following Monday, but he failed to do so, but again gave the court assurance of the payment of the money March 1, when he would receive his pay from the government. This promise also failed, so that when Parker was arrested in Norwich for the same offence he committed in this city, a mittimus was ordered drawn that Parker might be committed to jail if he did not make the payment. It then developed that Parker Friday had been declared a deserter for he had absented himself from the destroyer without leave for several days. Parker was arrested in Taftville by State Officer Arthur Whitmarsh Friday night, after the automobile he was driving collided with a Connecticut company trolley car, in charge of Motorman Joseph Rutherford, at Occum. After the accident, Parker drove away for his engine was not damaged, but the auto was found in Taftville by Officer Brown and Parker was arrested, together with William W. Tillett, another sailor, who was charged with intoxication. Tillett was fined $10 and costs Saturday.

COUCH-PALMER WEDDING AT WESTOMERE SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 4—Leonard Huguenor Couch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee Couch, 1715 Delaware avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., and Miss Georgeanna Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Palmer of "Westomere" Pequot avenue, were married at the residence of the bride's parents Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. Dr. Henry Howard, pastor of the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church, New York, in the presence of about 200 relatives and friends of the two families. The ceremony was performed in the marble loggia, which was screened with southern smilax and Easter lilies. J. Reid Johnson, brother-in-law of the bride was best man. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Priscilla Palmer, as maid of honor. The other attendants were Mrs. J. Reid Johnson, also a sister of the bride, Miss Isabel Smith, of Columbus, Ohio; Miss Jane Hayes, New York and Misses Marguerite Fisher, Elizabeth Lee Chappell and Grace K. Arms, of New London. The bride wore a draped gown of white moire with long pointed sleeves, with veil, in coronet effect, was of rose point lace caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The dress of the maid of honor was of delicate lavender, shading to deep purple. The frocks of the other attendants were designed with long bodices and long pointed sleeves of ecru thread lace, with tulle skirts shading from palest pastel to deep tints. Picture hats of leghorn, with ribbons of velvet of the same hue were worn. Mrs. Johnson and Miss Smith wore blue; Miss Fisher and Miss Hayes, coral and Miss Chappell and Miss Arms green. Each carried a bouquet of contrasting color. The ushers were John Mason Reed, Donald Dold and Frederick Whalen of Buffalo, James A. Boyd, New York and William H. Reeves and Jeremiah Dillon of New London. The house decorations were ascension lilies, narcissi and freesia. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Couch left at night on a honeymoon trip which will include a visit to Havana. Upon their return they will reside at Buffalo.

The Eastern Dairies, Inc., of Springfield, Mass., have sold their two New London ice cream plants to the General Ice Cream corporation, of Schenectady, N. Y. The deeds transferring title in the properties were received for record at the office of the city clerk Saturday. The plants are located on Pequot avenue, and on Winthrop street, corner of Mill street.

Raymond Green, married and residing at 61 Blackhall street, will be in the police court Monday morning charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of Mrs. Anna Sweeny, residing in the same house with Green. Mrs. Green made complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin Friday, that she and Green had engaged in a controversy and that during the quarrel Green struck her several blows upon the face and head. Green was ordered to present himself in court Saturday, but he failed to do so and a warrant for his arrest was issued. Green is employed at the Robert Gair company at Montville and Sergeant John Cavanaugh and State Police Officer Donald Brown went to the plant and arrested Green. He was released upon furnishing a bond of $300. Green said that he did not go to court Saturday as ordered for he consulted with his counsel and the latter advised him that the matter had been adjusted and that there was no need for Green's attendance in court.

Waldo E. Clark, superintendent of the state pier, has returned to New London after having spent a week in Washington where he had conferences with government officials relative to the proposed trans-oceanic four day line making this port its terminus.

James C. Platt, 68, of West Mystic, employed as a cotton mill worker, died Saturday at Home Memorial hospital after a brief illness. He was born in Philadelphia, the son of John H. and Margaret J. Platt and prior to residing in West Mystic, was a resident of New Bedford.

Amile Smith, 34, of 50 Goshen street and an employe of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died Saturday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he had been a patient but a short time. He is survived by his wife and six children.

Mrs. William Loveland and twin daughters, of Old Saybrook; Rachel Young, Truman street; Jean Turpish, 525 Main street and Mrs. Eliza Manning, 235 Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

The body of Harold R. Schoonmacher, assistant manager of the J. V. Hale company, Boston, surgical instrument manufacturers, who died from a heart attack at the Union station Friday after having been taken from a train on which he was a passenger, has been forwarded to Mr. Schoonmacher's residence at New Rochelle, N. Y.

Another black and tan resort, the type of house of immorality where blacks and whites consort, was broken up, it is believed Friday night. The house at 30 Potter street, conducted by Marian Lewis, alias Watson, colored, was raided. On Saturday the proprietress was sent to jail and the female frequenters fined and sentenced to jail, but the jail sentences were suspended, provided the women leave the city. The Lewis woman, who has been arrested several times on charges of conducting houses of ill fame, besides being fined $100 was sentenced to jail for 30 days. The women frequenters, Gladys O'Brien, Thelma Todd and Elsie Moore were fined $25 and costs and each was sentenced to jail for 10 days. Jacob Kliever and James F. Malone, United States Coast Guard and white, also charged with frequenting, escaped penalty for they were discharged. The Lewis house was raided a short time after Kliever and Malone had been seen to enter the place and after one of the women had solicited the sailors on the street.

A Ford sedan, carrying Connecticut markers, N-6834 which had been parked on Green street two days, was taken to a garage to await its owner claiming it.

Mrs. Elizabeth Walter, 37 Gorton street, made complaint to the police Saturday night, that a robe was stolen from her automobile while the car was parked on Huntington street, near Church street.

A still alarm called out the Northwest Hose company, Saturday afternoon, to subdue a serious grass fire in the rear of the Jennings school, Williams street. Before the fire was extinguished a section of the fence of property of Lucius E. Whiton was damaged.

GROTON BOY AND BICYCLE PLUNGE FROM MUNICIPAL PIER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 4—John Orkney, 11, of 120 Mitchel street, Groton, on Saturday fell into the Thames river and but for the presence of fishermen at the pier from which the youth fell the boy would undoubtedly have drowned. The boy went to the municipal pier about 12:30 o'clock and was riding his bicycle. He rode about the pier several times and finally rode to the end where, in the cycle being turned round, the pedal came in contact with one of the stringers. The collision caused Orkney to be thrown from the wheel and instead of landing on the dock both boy and cycle were thrown into the river. The youth succeeded in grabbing one of the numerous piles and there he clung, while crying lustily for assistance. The boy's yells were heard by the crew of the fishing boat, Isabelle Q., moored at the pier and the fishermen went to the boy's rescue. A line was thrown to the youth and he was pulled upon the dock, partially exhausted. The boy was taken to the fishing boat where a warm fire provided heat in the cabin and he was rolled in blankets that he would not suffer any after effects from his experience. One of the fishermen attached a small anchor to a rope and used it for a grapple, resulting in a short time in the recovery of the boy's bicycle.

Jack Davis, United States Coast Guard, state pier, was arrested tonight charged with reckless driving and driving without having a license. He was locked up and will be in the police court Monday morning. Davis was driving about the city on his motorcycle this evening and at the corner of State and Huntington streets, the cycle crashed against the traffic beacon, damaging both the machine and the beacon, but the driver escaped injury.

The weekly meeting of the city council will take place tomorrow night in the municipal building and while there is a possible chance of the resignation of City Manager William A. Holt, which was tendered at the special meeting of the council being taken from the table, such action is not considered probable. Councilor Edward L. Streeter, Jr., is absent from the city, being a patient at a sanatorium and he will not be present to vote on the question; it is not likely that any vote on the acceptance of the resignation will be taken until Councilor Streeter returns to New London, which will not be before the latter part of this month or early in April. The meeting tomorrow night, however, it is expected, will bring about discussion of the matter of continuing the one-way traffic on Bank street in a northerly direction, but as that order rests entirely with the city manager, any argument along those lines will not change the situation. Hence it is reasonable to believe that traffic will continue as at present. City Manager Holt has made it known that he does not intend to change his stand and change the course of traffic and as the council is powerless to change it, the issue remains entirely up to the city manager. The work of widening Bank street, between State and Tilley streets, is continuing daily, another indication that City Manager Holt does not intend to change his ruling.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

To a Dragonfly

Sparkling, dashing Dragonfly,
Flashing through the air so high,
On your wings resplendent,
Stopping, oh so swiftly, low
Where the water-lilies grow,
On their call attendant!

I am sure for them you bear
Messages from upper air,
Where the birds are singing;
I believe you take aloft
Many a lily-whisper soft,
Gentle answer bringing.

I'll not harm your beauty bright
If anear me you alight,
In your armor flashing;
Hail! Farewell! Oh, splendid one,
Shining in the summer sun,
Like a meteor dashing!

—Minnie Leona Upton.

ON THE THRESHOLD

We are standing on the threshold, we are in the open door,
We are treading on a borderland we have never trod before;
Another year is opening, and another year is gone.
We have passed the darkness of the night; we are in the early morn;
We have left the fields behind us o'er which we scattered seed;
We pass into the future, which none of us can read.
The corn among the weeds, the stones, the surface mold,
May yield a partial harvest; we hope for sixty-fold.
Then hasten to fresh labor, to reap and thresh and sow;
Then bid the New Year welcome, and let the Old Year go.
Then gather all your vigor; press forward in the fight;
And let this be your motto: "For God and for the Right."

—Lucy Larcom.

EMANCIPATION.

Buffalo, camel, dog, and llama,
Horse and ox and ass,
Ghosts of the myriad Little Brothers,
Watch the motors pass.
"Heart of fire, foot of rubber,
Body of brass and steel;
Dead things that live," say the Little Brothers,
"Dead things that cannot feel."

"Man our master long enslaved us
With harness, whip and goad;
Our blood and sweat," say the Little Brothers,
"Mark his upward road.
Years past counting we have labored
For his good, and his alone;
Comes now relief," say the Little Brothers,
"Man makes slaves of his own."

"Only with agony has he paid us,
With hunger, blows and cold;
Our work time past, we Little Brothers
Starved when we were old.
Now may our children's children find their Place in the kindly sun.
Bless the machines," say the Little Brothers,
"Our age-old pain is done."

—Charles Edward Roe.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The ostrich is a very interesting bird. Some live to be 40 years old in captivity and there have been cases where the ostrich, in his native haunts, has lived to be 70 years old. A keeper of an ostrich farm in California is authority for the following interesting facts concerning this large bird:

Ostriches live to be about forty years old in captivity, but many years older—sometimes as much as seventy in their native desert homes. The male bird selects his own mate, and she becomes his close companion for life. When either dies, the other remains true to his or her memory the remaining years.

The female birds lay from ten to fifteen eggs during the laying season and no more are laid until the following year. At nesting-time the male bird scoops a hole in the bare ground, about a foot deep and three feet across. When the female bird has laid her quota of eggs she covers them in daytime and the male bird sits on them at night. It takes six weeks for the eggs to hatch and, although this is usually done in incubators with captive birds, and the little chicks are raised by hand, if let alone the pair of birds will carefully tend the eggs before hatching and tenderly care for the young birds afterward. The mother bird carefully helps the little ones out of their tough covering, when the proper time has arrived, by pressing her breast against the shells. The little birds then run with their parents, and if the mother bird should die or be killed the male will "mother" them faithfully.

The ostrich does not lay until she is about four and a half years old. The size of an ostrich egg is familiar to most people, but comparatively few have seen the newly-hatched chicks. When first out of the shell they are about equal in size to a half-grown hen, and after that grow at the rate of about a foot a month for the first two or three months. When a year old the young ostrich has attained its full height, but it does not attain its full weight for about two years.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

George Washington

Dear Uncle Jed:—In school for George Washington's birthday we wrote an essay. Mine is as follows.

George Washington was strong self sacrificing, determined, and Commander-in-Chief during the Revolutionary war, as he led the fight for freedom. He was the first president of the U. S. and the father of our country. We are Americans because he was a truly great one.

Washington's father died when George was twelve years old. George was his fifth child, the first by his second wife. He was born on Feb. 22, 1732, at Bridge Creek, Westmoreland County, Va., which is now known as Wakefield. The family moved to Mount Vernon when George was three years old. About four years later the homestead burned and they moved to the banks of the Rappahannock river, across from the city of Fredericksburg, Va. Here George spent his childhood. He learned to "read, write and cipher" at a small school kept by Mr. Hobby the sexton of the church. After his father died he went to live with his brother, Augustine, at Bridge's Creek, and attended a better school. A little later he returned to his mother and studied at another school in Fredericksburg.

George became a surveyor. Lord Fairfax wished to build a mansion on his estate, but wanted to know just where his lands extended, and the best site to select. He gave George Washington the task, and after five weeks he returned with a diary of each day's experiences, several maps and a complete survey of Lord Fairfax's estate. In 1751 his brother, Lawrence, developed tuberculosis; and died the following year. George then inherited the entire estate, Mount Vernon, which was his home for forty years.

In Jan. 1759, he married Mrs. Martha Curtis a widow and the mother of two children "Jack" and "Patsey" as he always called them. For three months after they lived at the "White House" while George Washington attended the House of Burgesses at Williamburg. In the early summer they went to live at Mount Vernon, Washington's beautiful estate on the Potomac river. He purchased nearby farms and increased it to 9,000 acres. He became one of the largest landowners in the Colonies. At the time of his death he owned 51,000 acres. Although he owned many slaves he wanted them to be "well cared for." In his will he stated: "Upon the decease of my wife it is my will and desire that all the slaves which I hold in my own right shall receive their freedom."

There are many anecdotes told about Washington. One is told that the steward set before him one day a dish of fish.

"What fish is this?" he asked.

"A shad, sir, a very fine shad," answered the steward.

"What was the price?"

"Three dollars."

"Take it away, sir! take it away!" shouted Washington. "It will never be said that my table sets such an example of luxury and extravagance."

Washington was a member of the Virginia house of burgesses for fifteen years from 1758 to 1773. This was when the Colonists were so tried by British aggression. At first Washington did not take an extreme stand. When fighting and bloodshed followed the passing of Port Bill in Boston he said "I will raise 1,000 man, enlist them at my own expense, and march, myself at the head, to the relief of Boston."

The colonists realized that an army must be organized against the British, and the first continental congress was held in Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1774. Washington was one of Virginia's delegates.

A second continental congress was held at Philadelphia, May 10, 1775. Washington answered the call to attend with these words: "It is my full intention to devote my life and my fortune to this cause." Before the Congress met, Paul Revere had "spread the alarm" and the war had begun.

Only three years were left for him after his presidency at the home he loved so well for he died Dec. 14, 1799.

My Kitty.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I hope that you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story about my kitty.

On New Year's day my father went to the store to buy something. When he came back he had a big bag. My little sister, Rosy, thought he had some candy and said: "Pa, give me some candy?" My father said: "You can have it all." When my little sister opened the bag she saw a little cat. Then she gave him some warm milk. Then we named him Teddy. vEery day he's getting bigger and fatter.

The American Flag

Dear Uncle Jed: The American flag means liberty and justice for everybody. It is honored by all citizens on the land and on the sea. For it the soldiers of our army and the sailors of our navy are willing to fight and even die.

The colors of the flag tell the story of the nation's freedom. Red is for bravery, white is for purity and blue is for justice.

The stripes tell the number of the original states of the United States, and the stars tell the number of states now in the union.

All Americans love the Stars and Stripes. Let us all respect the flag and be true to it.

Disappointed in Hunting.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy it. One bright, warm, sunshiny day my boy friend came over to my house to see if I would go hunting with him. I was delighted to go so I took my little hunting dog; his name is Ponto, grabbed my Bb gun and soon we were off. After we walked many miles, tired and hungry, as we were also being disappointed because we did not catch any game. So we went home, hoping next time we will have better luck.

A Mountainous Country.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing about Abyssinia. Abyssinia is mountainous and plateau country. It is in the eastern part of Africa. It is bounded on the north by Eritera and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, on the west by the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, on the south by Kenia and Italian Somaliland and on the east by British Somaliland and French Somale. Addis Ababa is the capital.

The rainfall of this region helps to cause the floods of the Nile river.

Agriculture and the raising of cattle, sheep, goats and mules are the chief industries. Large forests grow in Abyssinia. There are many large trees that are cut into lumber. Some iron is mined and made into knives and tools.

A Flemish Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed:—This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake circle and hope, you will like my story.

Pastrache was a big Flemish dog. Before he was fully grown he was bought by a tinware peddler, who made him draw a cart full of pots and pans and other wares.

One day, after two years of agony the dog was wearily dragging his heavy load along in the blazing sun, when for the first time in his life he staggered, foamed at the mouth and fell. His master gave him the only medicine he ever administered to him, kicks, and oaths and blows with a club and finally left him beside the road to die.

After a time there came along a little old man named Jehan, bent and lame and very feeble. He looked at the dog, found that he was still alive, and carried the sufferer home. The old man tended him with so much care that sickness gave way to health, and Pastoache finally stood up again on his four stout legs. He seemed surprised to hear no curses and to fell no blows from his new master.

At length Jehan allowed the dog to draw the cart, and never did a dog go more joyfully to play than this animal went to his daily task.

Dear Uncle Jed:—Longfellow was born in Portland, Maine, February 27, 1807. He was educated at Bowoin College. He went to Europe and spent four years in travel and study. He remained at Bowdoin five years. After another year of study abroad he took up the work of professor of Modern languages and literature at Harvard college. He had been writing prose for ten years when in 1839 he issued a small volume of poetry, "Voices of the Night." After that till the end of his life he wrote, freely in verse, translating also, especially Dante. In 1854 he gave up his professorship but continued to live in the famous house in Cambridge. There he wrote "Evangeline" "Hiawatha", "The Courtship of Miles Standish," and his many well known short poems. He died March 24, 1882.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"Smile, Brother, Smile," will lead you to as enjoyable an evening as you have spent in many moons.

That's the title of the First National Picture which opened an engagement of three days at the Breed theatre last evening, and it is everything that the intriguing title implies.

Strangely enough, it is a story about a traveling salesman, and how, in spite of his prosais calling, he manages to find more romance and adventure in a short space of time than usually comes to the average person in an eternity.

It is delightful light comedy, splendidly played by Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill, and the supporting cast, without a dull moment from the time Jack is discovered as a humble shipping clerk to the final fadeout, when all the various problems of the plot have been adequately ironed out. Miss Mackaill as the pert telephone operator contributes a characterization to the picture, equalled only by Mulhall's expert handling of his semi-farcicle role.

T. Roy Barnes as a salesman of the "wise-cracking" variety has an important role, and Philo McCullough contributes another of the gentel "heavy" cahracterizations for which he is noted. Charles Clary, E. J. Ratcliffe, Brooks Benedict, Yola d'Avril and others have prominent roles.

"Smile, Brother, Smile," was directed by John Francis Dillon and produced for First National Pictures by Charles R. Rogers. The picture is based on an original story by Al Boasberg.

NEW YORK PASTOR OPENS SERIES OF FIVE SPECIAL UNION MEETINGS

Dr. Samuel Graffiin of New York city, one of the leading Y. M. C. A. speakers in America, was the preacher Sunday evening at the opening service of a series of five union meetings being held this week at the United Congregational church. The services are held under the joint auspices of the Young Men's Christian association and the churches of Norwich. There was a very large congregation at the Sunday evening service which was presided over by Herbert B. Cary, acting president of the association. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church and Edwin Hill, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. participated in the service, which opened at 7.45 o'clock. Members of numerous churches throughout the city and town were numbered in the large congregation.

After the usual devotional period, Mr. Cary extended a hearty welcome to those present. He stated that this is the 5th annual series of union services held by the Y. M. C. A. and local churches and stated that the services are made possible through a generous bequest left for this purpose by Miss M. Louise Sturtevant. Mr. Cary introduced as the speaker for the opening service Dr. Samuel Graffiin of New York city.

Dr. Graffiin took as the topic of his sermon Respectable Religion. He said that the only thing that matters is real honest respectable religion. He also illustrated his point by recounting conversations he has had with many prominent men during his extensive travels throughout the country.

The speaker made a plea for honesty and uprightness. It is an awful thing for you to know you are a counterfeit he said. Speaking of selfishness he said; Take all the great sinners and we do not find unselfish men. The great sinners are selfish. God could not respect Cain because he was selfish and surly. Before you can be honest with anyone else you have got to be honest with yourself. It must be an unselfish religion to be a respectable religion.

We have got to reach the point that many ministers have reached, when they have turned down large and flattering salaries to remain with the parishes that needed them. The things that are worthwhile, that are big, are the unselfish things. The respectable religion must be pure, it must be transparent, holy and unselfish.

During his sermon Dr. Graffiin spoke very highly of Dr. Henry Howard, pastor of the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church of New York, who is to be the speaker at the services this (Monday) evening, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. He classed Dr. Howard as one of the foremost speakers in New York.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Abbott.

President Liked Dr. Howard

The following incident of Dr. Howard's appearance recently in Washington was related the following day in the Washington Post;

"Dr. Howard had been invited to occupy the pulpit of the First Congregational church of Washington, D. C., the pastor, Dr. Noble Pierce, having advised him in advance that the president of the United States was a member of the church and always attended the morning service. In the evening, when Dr. Howard arrived at the church, he found the pastor, Dr. Pierce, laboring under great excitement, caused by the fact that a telephone communication from the White House had advised him that the president was very anxious to attend the evening service as well and also wished to have Dr. Howard as his guest at the White House immediately after the evening service. The news, of course, spread rapidly and by the time the presidential party arrived, traffic was blocked for a great distance around the church, making it necessary for the church services to be held up for over 15 minutes in order to permit President Coolidge and his party to enter the building. At the close of the service Dr. Howard was the guest of the president at the White House and remained in conference with him until after midnight. It was during this visit that the famous pastor from New York was requested by the president to make a trip to Amherst college and speak before the student body there the president's son being a freshmen at that time. Several weeks later, President Coolidge sent his private car to New York and had Dr. Howard taken to Amherst, Mass., where he addressed the student body, giving them a series of three inspirational lectures."

REV. FR. MULLIN, WAR CHAPLAIN, DIED 50 YEARS AGO SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Clune and some other elder members of St. Patrick's parish recalled that Sunday was the 50th anniversary of the death of the Rev. Daniel Mullin. Father Mullin was a chaplain in the Civil war. At the close of the war the young priest was appointed by the bishop of the diocese of Hartford pastor of the old St. Mary's church, Greeneville.

At that era St. Mary's was the only Roman Catholic church in this section, being the parish church of the town of Norwich and its suburbs. As the congregation increased in numbers Father Mullin realized the need of a larger and more central house of worship, so a site for a church building was purchased on Church street. This was not satisfactory and after a time the present church site on Broadway was bought by the parish. A church was begun—the imposing and ornate granite structure, planned by Father Mullin, who did not live to witness its completion. The work was continued by Rev. Fathers Shahan and P. M. Kennedy and in the pastorate of the late Rev. Hugh Treanor the half million dollar property—church, school, convent and rectory—was solemnly consecrated to the service of God, completely free from debt. Improving and beautifying the parish plant, through careful and constant regard for its upkeep, was the work of succeeding pastors, the late Rev. John H. Broderick and the present rector, Rt. Rev. Magr. Michael Henry May.

The magnificent new St. Mary's church in the Greeneville district is now an independent parish, as are also Taftville, Baltic, and Norwich Town, while Occum, Montville and Fitchville have their own churches and a fine new church is nearing completion at Hanover.

FINE IMPOSED FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

Robert J. Parker, 33, U. S. Coast Guard, was fined $200 and costs in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor. His bill amounts to $210.46. He was arrested Friday night after the machine he was driving collided with a trolley car at Occum. W. Tillett, 31, also of the coast guard service, who was riding with Parker, was fined $10 and costs on an intoxication charge. State Police Officer Whitmarsh made the arrests.

Parker is wanted by the coast guard authorities for desertion and fraudulent enlistment and by the New London police for failure to pay a fine of $100 imposed on him in the New London police court for operating while under the influence of liquor. It is understood that Parker was presented in the city court at New London February 4th and was given two weeks time in which to raise the money to pay the fine, which he failed to do.

He is being held here and will be presented in court again this (Monday) morning it is understood.

MILD WINTER SEASON HELP HIGHWAY PROGRAM

Connecticut's highway department has both profited and lost because of the extremely mild and open weather prevailing this winter, according to a statement made by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. Although the statement may seem somewhat paradoxical, it is nevertheless true, for while the department has been able to make considerable progress with its spring and summer road building because of the mild weather, it has nevertheless had additional maintenance costs placed upon it by the continual reoccurrence of frosts and thaws and their resultant damage to highway pavements.

As far as the motoring public is concerned, however, the "profit" from the open winter will far outweigh the "loss." As soon as it became obvious that mild weather could be expected, Commissioner Macdonald took steps to let contracts for the spring and summer work far in advance of the customary time in order that contractors might proceed with their preliminary work of grading and of preparing generally for the construction season. This plan has worked especially well, for practically all of the grading work has been completed at this time and contractors are ready to proceed as soon as it can be determined with reasonable certainty that the frost is definitely out of the ground.

Commissioner Macdonald estimates that the completion of this work will enable the department to finish all of its summer reconstruction at least two months in advance of the usual date. In other words, reconstruction jobs which might ordinarily be finished in September this year should be completed in July. Thus the customary detouring and one-way traffic will be over before the annual August rush of traffic takes place and motorists will be able to use Connecticut highways without inconvenience at the height of the motoring season.

Moreover, the fact that contractors are able to proceed with the preliminaries on summer work at this time creates better employment conditions, affording jobs for laborers normally out of work at this time of year. Commissioner Macdonald this week communicated with all contractors having department work at the present time, urging an early resumption of activities both because of the clement weather and because adequate and proper labor is available.

The lack of cold weather or rather the continual alternating between cold and warm weather, has its disadvantage, too. Thus far, the frost has been in and out of the ground five times and from present indications will be in and out at least twice more. Connecticut has had five "springs" already and is due for more. The cracking and crumbling of pavements which usually occurs but once when the frost leaves the ground in the spring has occurred five times this winter and has necessitated considerable additional maintenance work. Moreover, the lack of snow has not reduced maintenance costs to any great extent, for it has been necessary to retain all snow removal crews as a matter of precaution whether or not snowfalls occur. Many of the men in these crews have been used on other work, but the number of employes cannot be cut down until after the danger of snow is gone.

MAN INJURED WHEN TRAIN STRUCK AUTOMOBILE

WINDSOR, Conn., March 4—(AP)—John H. Ramsay, at one time general foreman of the Windsor plant of the General Electric company and now connected with the Lynn, Mass., plant of the same company, was seriously injured here today when his automobile was struck by a south-bound express at the railroad station.

Ramsay was thrown from the car by the force of the impact and the machine was reduced to a tangled mass of metal and wood. The train crew was not aware of the accident.

The injured man was taken to Hartford hospital.

Summit Street Grass Fire.

At 10.55 o'clock Saturday morning the fire department answered a telephone call for a grass fire at the rear of No. 23 Summit street on land owned by the city. Children playing with matches were respnsible for the blaze which was extinguished without damage.

DESPONDENT, TAKES LIFE WITH REVOLVER BULLET

Clarence O. Bennett, 47, of No. 25 Rogers avenue, committed suicide sometime Thursday by sending a bullet into his head from a .32-cal. revolver in the garage at No. 330 Laurel Hill avenue, conducted by J. A. Stott. The pistol was one he had borrowed from Dog Warden Chester J. Bushnell. The body was found Saturday morning about 10 o'clock and Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve after conducting an investigation pronounced death due to suicide. Undertaker C. A Gager was given charge of the body.

It is believed that despondency over his failure to secure employment was the cause of his act. He left his home Thursday afternoon to look for work at the Norwich state hospital and nothing was seen of him from that time until the body was found in the garage.

Mr. Bennett was laid off at the Richmond Foundry plant in December and since then had done odd jobs for Mr Stott, who furnished him a key to the garage, but Bennett had not visited the garage for several days before his death. Mrs. Bennett had reported to Mr. Stott that her husband was missing and Saturday morning the latter went to the garage to look for him. Mr. Stott looked through both rooms of the garage, one of which is used for dead storage for automobiles. The body was found on the back seat of a touring car.

The police were notified and Officer Patrick Murphy was detailed to conduct an investigation, and the medical examiner was notified. The revolver was found clutched in Mr. Bennett's right hand. It was learned that he borrowed the gun from Chester J. Bushnell of Laurel Hill, stating that he wanted to do some shooting. There were two empty shells in the chamber but only one bullet hole was found in the man's body. Mr. Bennett for years had been employed as a moulder at the radiator plant. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bessie A. Bennett; a son, Roland Bennett, and a daughter, Miss Claire Bennett. REV. ANDREW F. HARTY DIES IN A NEW HAVEN HOSPITAL

In the Norwich Catholic churches Sunday the congregations were asked to pray for the repose of the soul of Rev. Andrew F. Harty, pastor of St. Joseph's church, New Haven, who died Saturday night on the operating table at St. Raphael's hospital. He was taken suddenly ill after dinner Friday night and was removed to the hospital Saturday night.

Father Harty was born in Torrington April 20, 1855, and received his early education in the public schools there. Later he attended St. Charles' academy, in Baltimore and St. Joseph's seminary, Troy, N. Y. He was ordained to the priethood in 1885.

For several years he was secretary to Bishop Lawrence S. McMahon, and served as curate at St. Joseph's cathedral. He likewise served under his brother Monsignor William A. Harty, vicar-general of the diocese. He was an assistant pastor at Sacred Heart church in Bridgeport before being named pastor of the church in Chester, Conn.

In 1907, he was assigned to St. Joseph's church, New Haven as pastor to succeed Rev. Michael Daley, who built the edifice. Then began a campaign to reduce the church debt. Less than three years ago the efforts of Father Harty had resulted in paying the entire parish debt.

Rev. Father Harty was a frequent visitor in Norwich, being a long-time friend of Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, of St. Patrick's church. For the past 33 years in Colchester, Rockville and Norwich, he has finished the forty hours devotion each year for Monsignor May in the latter's pastorates.

PAUL DRISCOLL HAS PART AT HONORS TO AM. CLAUDEL

Washington papers have devoted much space to accounts of a brilliant reception given the French ambassador, Paul Claudel who was the guest of honor at the debut of the Mask and Bauble club of Georgetown college.

The evening was a tribute from Georgetown to Ambassador Claudel's distinction primarily in the field of literature and the drama. In Gaston hall, after an address of welcome, a student recited in French one of the ambassador's own poems, "L'Enfant Jesus de Prague." There was music and two plays, one being "The Golden Doom," a symbolic drama by the noted English playwright, Lord Dusany. In this, a Norwich student, Paul Driscoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Edward Driscoll had a part and was pictured in The Star with the members of the cast. The program was prepared by Prof. Gustav J. Dumas, S. J. moderator of the club.

RABBI SAVITZ WAS TOO FRIENDLY WITH WOMEN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 4—(AP)—Because of what Judge Oscar M. Fritz termed his "mysterious, unfortunate and undue friendliness" with some of his women acquaintances, Rabbi David Savitz, until a few months ago rabbi of the congregation B'ne Israel, of Milwaukee, lost his divorce suit Friday against his wife, Helen.

Judge Fritz ruled that the wife is not guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment because acts of hers of which the rabbi complained were provoked by his own improper conduct.

The judge's decision was given from the bench at the conclusion of the testimony which had been featured by introduction in evidence of several letters couched in endearing terms and alleged to have been written to the rabbi by a Mrs. Grace Munchalfen of Joliet, Ill.

Rabbi Savitz, who is now rabbi of a congregation in Winnipeg, Manitoba, was directed to pay alimony of $18 a week for the support of his wife and their two children. Custody of the children, Sylvia, 7, and Allen 4, was awarded to the wife, whom he married at Norwich, Conn.

The marriage of David S. Savitz, who claimed residence in Roxbury, Mass., and Anna Bloom, then residing at 36 Pearl street, daughter of John Bloom, is shown by the town clerk records to have taken place in this city on Washington's birthday, 1926, the ceremony being performed by Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, assisted by Rabbi Gordon of Boston.

At the time he was married, Mr. Savitz was a traveling salesman for a Boston firm, but he was well educated in Hebrew, having attended the Rabbinacal college in New York, after receiving his preliminary education in Malden high school, Dorchester preparatory school and Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were food for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

RULING ON THE CANADIAN BORDER IMMIGRATION LAW

New York Circuit Court of Appeals Decides That Canadian Residents Holding or Seeking Employment in the United States May Cross the Border Daily Without Respect to Immigration Laws—The Decision Affects Thousands of Canadians Who Work in the United States—Decision Will Be Appealed by the Government to the Federal Courts.

NEW YORK, March 5—(AP)—Canadian residents holding or seeking employment in the United States may cross the international boundary daily without respect to immigration laws, the United States circuit court of appeals unanimously ruled today.

The decision affects thousands of Canadians who cross the international boundary daily to work in industrial centers on the United States side of the border.

The decision was based on the Jay treaty of 1794 between the United States and Great Britain which was interpreted as granting residents on either side of the border the right to cross and recross daily to transact business without the usual immigrations restrictions.

The government had contended that the word "business" in the treaty referred only to trading and merchandising. The court's opinion, however, writing by Presiding Judge Manton in the case of Mary Cook and Antonio Danelon, foreign born residents of Niagara Falls, Canada, who were detained by authorities when they attempted to enter Buffalo to work for the day, said "business is a very comprehensive term and embodies everything by which a person can be employed."

"They were both permitted by law to enter the United States temporarily for their respective businesses, one to work and the other seeking employment," the court said. "At no time did they intend to remain permanently or seek to migrate here.

"The treaty effective at the time of their crossing and re-crossing gave them, as British subjects, privileges accorded under the explanatory note of article 3, of the treaty of 1794, which included that of crossing and recrossing for the purpose of business and commerce, and such they were engaged in. The writ should have been sustained and their discharge granted."

A writ of habeas corpus sued out for the petitioners was denied by District Judge John R. Hazel in Buffalo. Judge Hazel said the new border crossing regulations, effective December 2, which prohibited foreign born residents of Canada from crossing the border for employment unless they have quota immigration visas were not inconsistent with the immigration rules or with the Jay treaty.

GOVERNMENT TO APPEAL TO THE FEDERAL COURTS

WASHINGTON, March 5—(AP)—Immigration law regulations hampering foreign born Canadian residents in crossing into the United States will not be changed because of today's decision by the New York circuit court of appeals questioning their legality, Carl Robe White, assistant secretary of labor announced, and the decision itself will be immediately appealed by the government to the federal courts.

Mr. White said that if the court's decision classifying Mary Cook and Anton Danelon, respectively English and Italian born Canadian residents, as non-immigrants, and free from obligation for obtaining passports for traversing the boundary, should be sustained, the entire federal border regulation system, as it now stands, would have to be modified.

"The government will appeal the case, and I have no doubt but that in the final adjudication the immigration regulations will be up-held," Mr. White said. "It is my understanding that the court rested its finding on the provisions of the Jay treaty between the United States and Great Britain, adopted in settlement of the Revolutionary war. The same ground has been urged by Seneca Indians for assuming the right to cross and recross the border without immigration over-sight, and there was an original court decision which sustained their claims.

"Nevertheless, the labor department holds that the Jay treaty is no longer valid, partly because England itself repudiated the treaty in the war of 1812, and partly because of other well settled policies of government in the matter of obligations.

"Our solicitor who is our departmental legal advisor, holds that the law and the regulations are proper, and until the highest courts have ruled otherwise, we shall be obliged to determine and apply the law as we understand it. The regulations will stand meanwhile."

Edward B. Stinson, aeroplane designer and manufacturer, and George Haldeman, co-pilot with Ruth Elder in an unsuccessful attempt to fly across the Atlantic ocean, plan to take off from the ice of Lake St. Clair today in an attempt to break the world's endurance record.

Prompt court action to enforce its order directing the Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky corporation to cease its block-booking of motion pictures was indicated yesterday by the federal trade commission after the corporation served notice that it would not comply with the edict.

Bainbridge Colby Sued by His Wife

Seeks to Recover $16,500 She Claims Is Due Her Under a Separation Agreement.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Bainbridge Colby filed suit against her husband, Bainbridge Colby in the court today to recover $16,500 she claims is due her under a separation agreement. Her husband agreed September 10, 1923, to pay her $1,500 a month, but he has made no payments since May 1, 1927, Mrs. Colby charges in her complaint.

A few days ago Mr. Colby was denied a divorce in Paris.

A purported copy of the separation agreement, contained in Mrs. Colby's complaint, provided that the obligation to pay or receive alimony should cease in case either violated any portion of the following:

"Neither of the parties will require the other to maintain a common domicile. Neither party will discuss the other by comment or in writing or otherwise. Each party agrees to refrain from molesting or in any way interfering, by word or otherwise, with the other."

ALIVE, THOUGH PRONOUNCED DEAD TEN TIMES IN TEN DAYS

GLENDALE, Calif., March 5.—(AP)—After having been pronounced dead ten times within as many days, a baby five weeks old will live, said her physician today. Three blood transfusions by the mother and continuous use of a pulmotor brought the baby "back to life."

Ten times the little daughter of Mrs. G. E. Olmstead ceased breathing, her heart stopped beating and her eyes glazed. Apparently she was dead.

A fire department pulmotor first revived the child February 25. A physician diagnosed the case as plural pneumonia and organized neighbors into pulmotor squads.

The baby began breathing naturally today and took food.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Workers announced today that a strike vote will be taken tomorrow among the employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit company if the Interborough rejected the union's plan to arbitrate the suspension by the company of a score of Amalgamated members.

Mayor James J. Walker submitted the arbitration offer to the borough, whose offices said that no reply would be made before tomorrow. The union meeting tomorrow at which the strike question is to come up was described by union officials as a regular meeting.

The union's plan calls for the appointment of either Mayor Walker or the transit commission as arbiter.

ELECTION SUSTAINS THE POLISH GOVERNMENT

WARSAW, March 5—(AP)—The government of General Pilsukdski was upheld in last Sunday's voting. Unofficial but practically complete returns available tonight gave the government list 95 seats with seven more from western Poland on local lists supporting the government.

The national democratic party, which had 100 seats in the former diet, is credited with only 29 now. The communists, possessesing two seats in the outgoing diet, won six outright as well as finding several additional in local lists or in some of the Ukrainian radical peasant groups.

Official returns probably will be announced Wednesday.

USING CUSTOMS STAMPS TO SMUGGLE LIQUOR

NEW YORK, March 5—(AP)—Discovery of a new ruse to smuggle liquor into the country, by stealing customs stamps, from the trunks of innocent travelers and pasting them on trunks filled with liquor was claimed by customs inspectors today.

Inspectors at the pier where the North German Lloyd liner Columbus docked, said they found the ship's baggage master, William Miller, pasting stamps on three trunks, later found to contain liquor. The stamps, inspectors said, had been stolen from baggage at the other end of the pier.

The incident follows a recent statement by Representative La Guardia, of New York, that there was a constant traffic in cancelled customs stamps.

FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING PROVIDENCE POLICEMAN

PROVIDENCE, March 5.—(AP)—Nathan L. Brown, 22 year old Negro, was found guilty of murder in the first degree in superior court here today by a jury which heard testimony in his trial on an indictment charging him with shooting Sergeant William A. Flynn of the Providence police flying squad at Brown's home February 11.

Brown is also under indictment for killing at the same time Patrolman James H. O'Brien, a member of the squad.

The two men were shot in the back by the Negro when they went to his house on a raid in which they obtained a small quantity of moonshine.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR TO INVESTIGATE UNEMPLOYMENT

Senate Has Directed Secretary Davis to Gather "Accurate and All-Inclusive Statistics of Employment and Unemployment" and Report to the Senate—Preamble Asserts That Such Statistics Are Essential to the Intelligent Conduct of Private and Public Enterprises.

WASHINGTON, March 5—(AP)—By the direction of the senate, Secretary Davis of the labor department is to investigate and report on unemployment throughout the country.

The survey will apply also to part-time employment, and will be made with a view to settling on a method by which frequent periodic reports of both situations might be made available. The result in each instance will be reported to the senate, under the resolution of Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, adopted by that body today without a record vote.

Facing the senate in his maiden speech, the New Yorker held the floor more than an hour in support of his resolution and in a detailed assaut on administration expressions as to prosperity. He was then joined by Senator Walsh, Massachusetts and Copeland, New York, both democrats, who decried existing economic conditions and blamed "maladministration of government."

During the discussion, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho and Senator Copeland got into an exchange that had to do with prosperity and prohibition as campaign slogans.

Copeland had said that the republican party was conducting a campaign on the one slogan, 'Prosperity.'

"But there's more than one slogan," returned Borah.

"What is it?"

"It deals with an amendment to the constitution."

Copeland then asked the Idahoan if he believed the eighteenth amendment responsible for unemployment, and Borah said he thought prohibition had diminished unemployment.

The preamble to the resolution declares that "accurate and all-inclusive statistics of employment and unemployment" are necessary at frequent intervals, because they are "essential to the intelligent conduct of private and public business enterprises, to the proper timing for inauguration of public works by the federal government and the encouragement of similar undertakings by the states."

"It is apparent that the United States is now suffering from a decided growth of unemployment," the preamble continues, "and no nation-wide statistics of unemployment in the United States are anywhere available."

Part-time employment is to be contained in the labor department survey by virtue of an amendment to the Wagner resolution sponsored by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, who criticized various government branches for accelerating unemployment by discharging employes. He seconded Wagner's lengthy indictment of the situation, belittling the Smoot charge that "politics" was behind the outbursts on the democratic side.

Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, attributed talk of excessive unemployment to the imminence of presidential campaigns and denied that any undue increase of unemployment had taken place. His stand precipitated sharp interchanges from both sides of the floor and Senator Curtis, Kansas, republican floor leader, warned that a vote would be deferred unless the discussion avoided partisan politics. The Wagner resolution then was approved forthwith.

DECISION IN THE VELMA WEST MURDER CASE TODAY

COURTHOUSE, Painesville, Ohio, March 5—(AP)—Velma West who killed her husband, Thomas Edward West with a claw hammer in their home at Perry, Ohio, last December, will learn tomorrow whether she is to stand trial for her life or accept a prison term upon a plea of guilty.

The possibility that the case will be disposed of without public inquiry into the complex personality of the 21 year old defendant, was admitted tonight by attorneys for both sides.

While Defense Attorney Francis W. Poulson refused to commit himself in detail, he did admit that a plea was being considered, and reliable information indicated that the plea, if agreeable to Prosecutor Seth Paulin, will be guilty of second degree murder.

If Velma is thus relieved of the necessity of standing trial, she will go to prison for life, but not without hope of parole as would be the case if a jury found her guilty of first degree murder, the crime with which she is now charged.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION IN ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5—(AP)—Prohibition will meet its supreme test in the determination by present and future generations whether it is in full harmony with modern social demands and economic law, and not whether it fits in with plans of professional politicians, Earnest H. Cherrington, chairman of the education department of the Anti-Saloon league, declared here tonight.

Delivering his second address of the day at the league's southeastern states prohibition convention he said that although it is "vitally important that the wets' attempt to place an enemy of the eighteenth amendment in the white house be defeated; it is even more important to realize that the next generation as well as the next election must be considered."

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE IS RETURNING TO WASHINGTON

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 5—(AP)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who came to Northampton a week ago to visit her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, who is a patient at the Dickinson hospital here, will return to Washington tomorrow night, a member of the white house party disclosed tonight. Mrs. Goodhue has been at the hospital since December 11, when she suffered an attack of influenza.

Mrs. Coolidge, it was said, came to her home city for a brief rest as well as to be with her mother. She was said to have been greatly encouraged by the condition of the aged patient.

Moore, former American ambassador to Spain and former publisher of the Pittsburgh Leader, will re-enter the newspaper publishing business with two tabloids—the New York Daily Mirror and the Boston Advertiser—purchase of the papers from the Hearst organization was completed today.

Mr. Moore announced the purchase in the presence of Victor Watson, managing editor of the Mirror. Mr. Moore said he may add to his news enterprises with the tabloid as the field of development. Baltimore may be one of the cities in which he may purchase a paper, it was intimated.

VIRULENT EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA IN JAPAN

TOKYO, March 5—(AP)—All the medical resources of Japan's capital are engaged in a life and death battle with an influenza epidemic which already has killed nearly 2,000 persons and has attacked the country's rulers.

Despite the best efforts of the city's physicians, half a million persons have been stricken and the sick are dying at the rate of 53 a day.

The emperor himself is suffering with cold and fever but his majesty's chief anxiety is for his younger daughter, Princess Hisa, six months old. The imperial infant tonight was officially declared ill with pneumnola and in a critical state.

Premier Tanaka is also sick, suffering from the prevalent symptoms.

TO PLEAD INSANITY FOR DROWNING HIS SONS

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., March 5—(AP)—Insanity will be George Allen Chisholm's plea when he faces trial for the murder of his sons, George, Jr., 9, and Edgar, six, whom he drowned in the Indiana harbor ship canal.

Arraigned today on two charges of murder, Chisholm was ordered held to the grand jury. He appeared in municipal court, after appearing as the only witness at coroner's inquests here and in East Chicago, Ind., so weak from loss of sleep and weeping that he had to be supported between two officers.

Called to the witness stand at the inquest here into the death of little George, Chisholm fainted and slumped to the floor. Revived he tried to recite anew the grewsome details of a previous written confession—how he tricked the youngsters into playing cowboy and lassoing themselves with loops of wire which prevented death struggles when he enticed them to the canal and pushed them in.

His attorney, Joe Conroy of Hammond, halted him, declaring the trembling, fear-ridden man need not give statements which might incriminate him.

RAIDERS ON FRONTIERS OF BRITISH MANDATES

LONDON, March 5—(AP)—Great Britain is facing another Sudan.

Abdul Aziz Ibn Saud, sultan of Nejd and self-stayled king of the hedjaz, who since 1921 has brought the Wahabi dynasty from exile to a dominant position in Arabia, has added rifles, ammunition, food and probably men to the moral support which he had previously been giving desert raiders on the frontiers of the British mandates in Irak, Koweit and Transjordania.

Thus the intermittent warfare on the northern borders of the great Arabian desert has suddenly turned from fights with robber bands into a proposition of having Tommy Atkins face the whole might of the Wahabis.

Three small British warships in Koweit Bay at the head of the Persian Gulf, a British air force in Irak, and scattered outposts are confronted with the task of holding in check the most powerful combination of tribes in all Arabia. These fighters of the desert are filled with reforming zeal and a contempt for death comparable only with the fanaticism of the Madhists of the Sudan.

FAIL TO ADJUST BRITISH COTTON TRADE DIFFICULTIES

MANCHESTER, England, March 5—(AP)—For the third time in as many weeks, an attempt to bring together the cotton employers and workers into a joint investigation of trade conditions, failed today.

The workers were all prepared to adopt a suggestion made by the employers on Feb. 20 that the inquiry be held with 13 representatives on each side. But they demanded an independent chairman for this body and that it make a full investigation into costs of production and distribution.

The employers refused these provisos and the conference broke up.

The situation was complicated by reports that masters in the American section are talking about taking a ballot with a view to resumption of short time. The workers find it difficult to reconcile this idea with the masters recent demands for increased hours coupled with a 12 1-2 per cent wage reduction.

CHARGED WITH DESIGN TO CONTROL COTTON MARKETS

WASHINGTON, March 5—(AP)—A combination of two cotton brokerage firms was pictured today before a house judiciary sub-committee by Arthur R. Marsh, former president of the New York Cotton exchange, as attempting to control the cotton markets of the country.

The two firms Marsh named were Anderson, Clayton and company, of Houston, Tex., and George H. McFadden and Brother, of Philadelphia. He alleged that they concentrated on the New York exchange a reserve supply of what he said to be inferior cotton, ranging from 185,000 to 200,000 bales, and then sold it to traders who, when unable to sell it to spinners, had to place their other holdings on the market.

The posters are to be 14 inches in width and 22 inches in length, and must be the actual work of the pupil.

The general and sub-committees for the big opening are hard at work on the hundreds of details involved in staging the event and a series of meetings will be held during the week, beginning with a meeting of the finance committee, Nelson A. Daniels, chairman, at the chamber of conference room tonight.

Elaborate preparations are being made for a reception by Willimantic lodge, No. 1911, B. P. O. Elks, in honor of four local men who are leaders of state organizations the present year. The notables are John B. Edgarton, district deputy grand exalted ruler of Connecticut east for the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; James P. A civil action has been brought by the United Music company of this city, through Attorney John Harvey, against the Yankie Grain & Products company, doing business in this city under the name of the Boston Grain company, to recover the sum of $438.36. It is alleged that on or about Feb. 7, 1927, the plaintiff concern sold a player piano to J. L. Rivers of Lebanon under a conditional bill of sale and that on or about March, 1926, the grain company took possession of the instrument on a court judgment against Rivers. It is set forth that at that time Rivers still owed the plaintiff company $438.36, and demand was made on the defendant Oct. 27, 1927, for this amount, without result. Deputy Sheriff Bilah has attached a bank account in the name of the defendant to the amount of $300 and the case is returnable in the Windham county superior court in April.

Of interest to local people and to several in Norwich is the arrest, Sunday, of John Faircloth, of Rockville, formerly of Manchester and this city. Mark Holmes, a Manchester undertaker, complained to the police that Faircloth had obtained money from him under false pretenses. Faircloth went to Holmes' undertaking parlors Christmas Monday and said that he wanted the body of his son, who was dead in Worcester, Mass., shipped to Manchester. Faircloth pleaded having but little money, in fact, just a few dollars, and he talked Mr. Holmes into lending him $15. Mr. Holmes said that he had later found out that Faircloth's son was residing in Bloomfield and was far from being a subject for an undertaker. Faircloth was in a mix-up in Norwich some weeks ago when he and a partner put up a fake story of a hold-up at the foot of Franklin Hill.

The need for a methodical revaluation of taxable property in the city, which has long been felt to be an urgent one, has been taken up by the chamber of commerce as one of the projects of the year and it is expected that serious thought of procedure will be given at the next regular meeting of the directors. It is likely that a committee will be appointed to conduct an exhaustive study of what is needed here, what has been done in other cities and the results. This information would be reported to the local government authorities and if found advisable the chamber would support a revaluation.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane C. Jones was held at 3 o'clock this afternoon with services conducted at the late home, 161 Pleasant street, by Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were, George C. Moon, Robert E. Mitchell, William S. Johnstone and John A. Bowman. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & VanZandt.

As all of the public schools of the town and city reopened this morning after the first of the week's vacations at the end of each eight-week period, it was evident that the new system would prove satisfactory. The next recess of one week will start on April 30 and under the present plan the usual spring vacation at Easter time will be omitted.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association will be held at the chamber of commerce rooms next Thursday evening. There will be a banquet and an entertainment to which friends have been invited. The subscription of $100 by the association to the chamber of commerce, which was pledged during the drive, will be formally turned over at this meeting. Business men and women of the city are invited and large delegations from other towns are expected.

NOANK

The post basketball team was sent from Fort Wright making the trip by steamer, which landed the soldiers at New London, then in a yellow cab stopped at the town hall in the fishing village and played the fighting Crescents Saturday evening before a crowd of 100 excited fans. The soldiers had white suits with red letters which spelled "Fort Wright", and then came the half moon boys with their black and red colors and a canoe across the jerseys. Sergeant Brady started his team off with a long shot and then the fans were calling "come on Crescents!" The soldiers did not see the ball for several seconds and on a cross-forward play, Lefty Patterson sank one and then two more. Then some new pass work fooled Uncle Sam's men, but 6 ft. 2 in. center, the southern blondy, Lee, was showing that he knew a thing about the indoor game and was making some hard shots and many times brought cheers from the fans. The first half ended with the Crescents in front, 36 to 16. Coach Billie Crane sent Lightning Bill Phillips of Pennsylvania in for the second half after having a bad cold for a week. During the rest of the time Brady of the soldiers gave an exhibition of a Fort Wright war dance that gave the fans a big laugh. Dash Patterson got an overhead shot and Speed Lee had his eye on the hoop and was the only player for the soldiers to have his eye with him. At no time in the battle was Fort Wright ahead of the Crescents. Capt. Lefty said "Let's go!" and stepping on the gas, had the boys in the white suits holding on for wind, for it was a real Crescent night in the old town. Coach Bennett said the hall was too small and his ball tossers were not used to it. When the sunset cannon went off and the white smoke cleared the fighting Crescents put down in the score book the largest score of the season, Crescents 71, Fort Wright 43, making the series a tie. The final game will be played at Fort Wright. A Patterson made 28 points, Lefty Patterson 19 points for Noank. Blondy Lee for Fort Wright sank 15 field goals for 30 points. Referee Fitzpatrick, timer, Bracci and scorer, Ballestrini.

Fishing boat Baby, with the Noank yacht club flag and flying Old Glory from the mast, leaving under its own power, with Capt. R. Brock at the wheel and Mate A. Brock, cleared Sunday morning for Port Jefferson, L. I., to join the young fishing fleet. All the whistles and fog horns from the boats along the way were blowing and people were waving to the crew as the boat was going out of the harbor. Even "Our Lindy" did not get more of a salute than the craft got from this small town. It takes ten hours to make the trip. The Baby is the fastest boat in the fishing fleet around the docks of the village. Mate Eddie Mahoney wrote to Capt. R. Brock telling him that plenty of flat fish is in the water at Port Jefferson. Mahoney's boat Julia got 17 barrels of fish in one day. Prices are high at Fulton market, so tell all the rest of the Noank fishing fleet to come up to Long Island, he wrote.

New Hair Style Rage in New York

"Whenever you go in New York now, you are sure to hear girls talking about the new way thousands of them are doing their hair to keep it in place and make it soft, lustrous and beautiful," says Miss Theresa Kloss, 7130 72nd Place, Glendale, New York City. "I have hardly any time to give my hair. So this new style just suits me. All you do is put a few dashes of Danderine on your brush every time you use it. The first few application got rid of all my dandruff, and every time it gives a new sparkle and life to my hair that makes everyone admire it. It keeps your hair in place, too, just like you arrange it."

Every application of Danderine refreshes your scalp and invigorates your hair. It removes the oily film and makes every strand gleam with new lustre, dandruff disappears when you use Danderine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer. It's neither sticky nor oily. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. A fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl.

WALTER R. FISKE DIES SUDDENLY WHILE AT WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 5—Walter R. Fiske, 58, a carpenter employed by the Quinebaug mills, died suddenly at the plant this morning a few hours after he had commenced his week's work. Mr. Fiske slumped down while he was engaged with some other employes in doing work just outside of one part of the mill. He was assisted into the mill and made as comfortable as possible until Dr. Nathaniel Hibbard could be summoned to aid him. Mr. Fiske lived until Dr. Hibbard arrived and gave him treatment, but his condition was so very serious that he survived only a few minutes after the arrival of the physician. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. P. Wood and removed to the home on Buck street.

Mr. Fiske was a native of the town of Killingly and had spent his life here. He was a son of Erastus and Mary J. Dexter Fiske and was born September 5, 1874. His education was obtained in the schools of Killingly. Through the greater number of the active years of his life he was engaged as a carpenter and had been in the employ of the Quinebaug company for a long time. He leaves his wife, two sons, Albert and Harold, a brother, Charles, who is in the south, and two sisters, Mrs. Carl Jennings and Mrs. Ida O'Neil, both of Danielson. Mr. Fiske was a member of Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows and also a member of Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans, of Danielson.

Before her marriage Mrs. Fiske was Miss Evelina Slater.

HEALTH OFFICER TAKES MANY PUPILS FROM SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 5—Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools explained this afternoon that the action of school authorities might not be misconstrued, that children are being sent home from school to prevent the spread of mumps, chickenpox and common colds, as is required by state law, and not in any manner to be harsh or discriminatory against the pupils. An added reason for the precautions being taken to prevent the spread of communicable diseases is that the quarantine established at numbers of homes by Dr. W. H. Judson as health officer has, in some instances been disregarded.

When the grammar school opened here this morning after a week's vacation a checkup by teachers showed it advisable that 26 pupils in this school be sent to Dr. Judson for examination as to their condition. Of this number, the doctor permitted only five to return to their studies. A checkup of the attendance at the high school and in junior high resulted in 16 additional pupils being sent to see Dr. Judson and of this number all but five were ordered to go to their homes.

This is regarded as indicative that children are being allowed to go to school from homes in which there is illness or in which children have been exposed to illness, possibly in other homes. The law requires that teachers in charge of pupils who have been exposed to a communicable disease, or presumably exposed, shall report the fact to the school principal, who in turn will report to the health officer. In all such instances such pupils are to be sent home or separated from other children until they can be examined. When sent home, they cannot be readmitted to school without written permission of the health officer.

Supt. Parker stressed the fact this afternoon that no attempt to be arbitrary is intended in dealing with an epidemic situation. The object is the general good of all. He said he believes it is much better to have some of the pupils at home than to have them in school exposing an entire building full of students. As so many communicable diseases begin with what appears to be no more than a common cold, children so afflicted are being included among those temporarily excluded from school. Mr. Parker feels that the public should know the attitude of school officials in their effort to clear up a situation that has been more or less difficult for sometime past.

This morning at 10:30 there was a service at St. James' church, Rev. F. X. Demers, M. S., officiating for Joseph Choquette of North Grosvenordale. Burial was in St. James' cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Demers. The bearers were F. X. Lemieux, Pierre Turgeon, Joseph Belanger and Henri Allerie. Prior to the service here there was a high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church in Grosvenordale, Rev. L. C. Mathieu being the celebrant. Many relatives and friends attended the service. The bearers were Philip Cordier, Ulric Cordier, Royal Blanchette and Joseph Blanchette. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Killingly high school's basketball season will come to end Tuesday evening of this week with the team of Charman Tech of New London furnishing the opposition. Killingly high's team has done well this season. It took a nerve-racking overtime game last Friday evening from Putnam high at the gymnasium here and also has a victory over Plainfield. One of its outstanding victories of the season was over the Pomfret school team. In closing a season during which it has been coached by William Schofield, former Connecticut Aggie star and now member of the K. H. S. faculty, the Killingly team faces a hard contest and the game should be an exciting one.

At two o'clock thi safternoon at the home on Maple street funeral services for William H. Clewley were conducted by Rev. Leonard R. Richards of St. Alban's church. Numbers of friends from Brooklyn, where Mr. Clewley lived for about a score of years, attended the service. Burial was in Old Trinity churchyard, Church street, Brooklyn, where rest numbers of the early and distinguished settlers of that section of the county. The bearers were H. G. Beecher, Marshall J. Frink, S. Irving Frink, Judge Oscar P. Atwood, Willis Kenyon, all of Brooklyn, and William bearers. A. F. Wood was in charge of P. Perkins of Danielson were the the arrangements.

Dedication of candle sticks given St. Alban's church by Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Musgrave in memory of Judge and Mrs. Milton A. Shumway was a feature of the Sunday morning service at St. Alban's church. Making reference to the gifts during the course of his sermon, the rector, Rev. L. R. Richards, explained how the use of candles at services were symbolical of life and life and as to the special times at which candles are used in the church.

Young America is not being denied advance spring season pastiming in Danielson, as witness the throngs of youngsters playing marbles and flying kites these early, blustry March days. Marbles seem to have the particular call just now, the gamesters playing in sunny nooks and, at times, with mittens on.

Next Monday is the 40th anniversary of the great blizzard of March 12, 1888, and it still rates as the greatest of all winter storms that have occurred since that time. Memory of it makes many a man hesitate to agree that winter is over until after that date has passed.

Mrs. Alfred Pluze has returned from Stamford, where she has been spending the greater part of the winter with relatives.

Mrs. Paul Dubuc is ill and under the care of a physician at her home at the corner of Water and Cottage streets.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy were guests yesterday at Hartford of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Comiskey and Miss Nellie Sullivan.

Boston papers related today that a modern Raffles—a woman of about 30 and with appearance of culture and wealth, is being sought by the police of that city in connection with the disappearance of a $6,000 mink fur coat, the property of Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Pomfret, from the home of Francis Lee Higginson, where Mrs. Murray was a dinner guest.

Some dealers, taking advantage of the continued cold weather, are continuing to cut ice and stack it, assuring a full supply for Danielson throughout the year.

Tuesday of this week Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's, is to move to Pomfret, where he is now rector of Christ church.

It is forecasted that those who would fish the trout streams hereabouts prior to the opening of the season on April 1, had better watch their steps, for the streams will be under the watchful eyes of game officials.

Today it was explained that Rene Peloquin, local amateur boxer, did not appear in last week's bouts at Willimantic because of a cracked rib, an injury received in a bout a few days ago at the Duwell club in Norwich. Boxers from the Peloquin stable here are scheduled for three appearances this week—Tuesday in Norwich, Thursday in Willimantic, Friday in Putnam.

The Danielson Towners play the deciding game of the basketball series with the Taftville Crescents at the Community house in Plainfield Friday evening, and a big delegation of rooters will go down with them.

At this morning's session of the town court the only business had to do with the entering of a nolle in two minor cases that have been pending.

There is no immediate prospect it was said today of carrying out a plan under which Railroad street would be improved jointly at the expense of the state, the town and the New Haven road. The project has been under consideration for some time and involves a plan to eliminate the Hutchins street grade crossing.

Monday evening of next week, March 12, brings the annual inspection of the Service battery at the state armory.

COLUMBIA

BATHING SUIT PARADERS TO BE FINED THIS SUMMER

Town meeting was held Saturday afternoon at the town hall, with an attendance that taxed the seating capacity of the hall, there being great interest in the proposition in regard to roads, as presented by the selectmen and the state road commissioner. After discussion it was voted to apply for state aid in the construction of two sections of road as follows:

One commencing 1-2 mile north of Columbia Green and continuing to the Andover town line. Of this section the town is to pay its apportionment of 1-8 of the first mile, the state agreeing to complete the section entirely at its expense.

The second section beginning 1-2 mile south of the Green and extending two miles toward Lebanon. Columbia to pay 1-8 of the first mile, and the state to pay the remaining 7-8 plus the entire cost of the second mile. It is understood that the town will have to finance the entire cost of the first mile south of the Green until such time as the state aid funds will become available, which amount accrues at the rate of about $7,000 per year.

It was voted to add $100 to the budget as presented last fall to care for bridge repairs which have become necessary since then. The voters then proceeded to lay a 12-mill tax for the year's expenses.

A clause in the warning, "to see if the town would rescind the vote taken at its last meeting to change the number of the school committee from 6 to 3," was passed over without discussion. The report of the special committee appointed last fall to recommend some remedy for the annual summer parade through the Green of persons scantily attired in bathing suits was presented. The committee recommended that such persons be liable to arrest and a fine of $5. The report was accepted and action recommended by the town.

Aubrey Winter, Dennis Brosseau and Raymond Lyman went to Danielson Sunday afternoon to attend a district meeting of the American Legion, of which they are members.

Thieves who made their way into Putnam high school a week ago and ransacked rooms in the building and stole a small amount of money, have so far eluded the police authorities. Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police has been working on the case, but so far investigation has been unsuccessful. Captain Jarvis has been working on some fingerprints that were left on the glass in one of the rooms.

A few months ago a break was made in the Israel Putnam school, and a few valuables weres removed from their positions in the building. The police have reason to believe that it is the work of local "corporals" who did it for a thrill.

The heavy March winds that have been the cause of the dusty business section and probably the cause of the heavy number of chimney fires during the past week have kept many property owners busy working on the roofs cleaning out their soot infested smoke outlets. In Monday's edition of The Bulletin, there was a story of how the chimney fires sometimes are more dangerous than they appear to be. It appeared that a resident of the Grove street section of the city had read the item and had taken Fire Chief Thruston's advice, and freed his chimney from the soot. If a few more residents of the city would follow the chief's advice, the fire department would, probably have less work to do in the line of extinguishing chimney fires.

What action will be taken by the council is not known.

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

BODY ODOR...why we can't tell when we offend

BODY odor always betrays—but seldom warns its victim.

You know yourself that though you notice instantly the faintest hint of odor in others—the guilty ones usually remain unaware of giving offense.

Why? Simply because once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it. Very often, this misleads even fastidious people into thinking they are safe—while actually they do offend.

Isn't it just as possible, then, that at times we, too, may offend others—without knowing it?

Body odor plays no favorites

No one is safe from body odor. To live, we must perspire. And in cooler weather—with activities indoors, in warm, stuffy rooms—body odor is more prevalent than ever.

On coolest days, our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours.

This body moisture, whether visible or invisible, is always odorous. And no one escapes it. All of us—no matter what our position or occupation in life—may offend unless we take precautions.

No need to risk embarrassment

Yet there is a simple way to be sure we're safe from body odor. Just wash and bathe often with the delightful toilet soap that millions enjoy—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.

The same mild and abundant antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores.

For complexions, too, this gentle Lifebuoy lather is marvelously beneficial. It keeps skins clear and satin-smooth.

Body odor more noticeable at this time of the year—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coolest weather. 1Qt.

Now, a purifying toilet soap. Its bland antiseptic lather keeps you safe from body odor.

In millions of homes, Lifebuoy is used for every toilet purpose.

You'll like its clean scent

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies; yet which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

SHADED HIGHWAYS

Some day Connecticut will have a well shaded system of highways throughout the state, for in addition to road construction the legislature has provided for the setting out of trees and shrubs along the newly constructed roads. In years to come such efforts will command much appreciation.

This idea of tree planting is one that has been tried out in certain cities with excellent results. It could be carried out in many more of them with equally pleasing effect for there is value in attractive, shaded streets and there isn't much that does more to contribute such a desirable effect than trees. If it were the practice to replace all those that are removed during the year, and add to the number at the same time it would mean not only the maintenance of a real asset but a constant addition thereto.

But while the state is giving its attention to the beautification of the new roads, and some cities are carrying out a similar policy in regard to their streets, it is also possible for similar improvement to be given to those other highways which are in good condition and much used if towns would give some attention to such a matter. Perhaps the ordinary road work is in many instances about all that can be expected from some of the large, sparsely settled, country towns. The fact is that if that is given all the attention it needs it is probable that little thought would be given by the users to the setting out of more trees, and yet there are many opportunities for the planting of trees near villages and small communities that would produce a remarkable improvement and it could be done in short time and at little expense.

In time it is to be expected that the state's efforts will reach out to all corners and become more and more effective each year, but the opportunity for supplemental work by the cities and towns ought not to be lost sight of while the other work is progressing. A little bit of well directed interest is about all that is needed in many instances to get highly pleasing results.

A LESSON FOR OTHERS

Just how it happened is not known, but a Taunton woman was burned to death as the result of some sort of an accident, the belief being that it happened while she was filling a kerosene lamp.

In the ordinary course of events kerosene is not highly dangerous unless it is brought in contact with fire. Whether in this instance the lamp that was being filled was lighted at the time, whether it exploded or was upset in such a manner as to throw the oil on the stove and the woman's clothing is equally uncertain. It is known that the act resulted in setting the clothing afire with fatal results, and once more directs attention to the penalty which is bound to be experienced unless due safeguards are taken.

Such a fatality is too frequently the result when individuals undertake to hurry a fire by pouring kerosene on it. There's no question about the response that can be expected from the fire. It works perfectly as far as that is concerned but the great trouble is that it is very apt to lead to serious consequences through explosions or the setting afire of clothing and buildings.

For many people the days of kerosene lamps are gone, along with those of the tallow candles, but to many who are without the electric light, and even to some who have modern lighting equipment, the kerosene lamp is invaluable.

In its use there is nevertheless need for the exercise of a full measure of care. It must be regarded as a danger in order to have all the necessary precautions observed in its use. It is far preferable that there should be shown a little too much care than any lack of it for the consequences are serious. It is bad enough when a fire results only in the damage of property, but it is always much worse when it means the ending of human life.

Reflections as to what might have been done is valueless as far as the dead are concerned, but they present a powerful lesson to the living if they are only heeded.

NEW YORK'S KNAPP CASE

New York has been considerably interested for the past several months in the facts brought to light in connection with the hearing of the charges against ex-Secretary of State Knapp, and the subsequent report of the investigator in which she and several others were recommended for prosecution. According to the investigator named by the governor there was no other recommendation possible. The revelations were of such a character, despite the refusal of the secretary to testify, that it was not possible to regard the affair as accidental or the result of bad advice or inexperience. Naturally New York expected to see something done in keeping with the report. It believed that even those against whom the charges were made should have their day in court in order that they might have a chance to clear themselves if such could be done.

But from present indications it doesn't look as if anything further would develop. The commissioner made his report to the governor and it was made public. When the governor acted upon it he recommended to the district attorney the prosecution of Mrs. Knapp, but not that of those who were recommended with her for prosecution by the investigator. Now the intimation is that the district attorney will not undertake a prosecution of Mrs. Knapp. That indicates the ending of the matter with the investigator's report.

Of course New York wants to know why, and it may insist upon it. It may be concerned as to just where the blame lies for proceeding no further. It has seemed ever since the governo disregarded part of the recommendations of the investigator that he threw a monkey wrench into the machinery by disrespecting the advice of the one who got the facts and knew the situation, in all instances except one, and then accepted the advice concerning the one and called for a prosecution that would only partially cover the affair. If the governor had the authority to thus absolve part of the accused, it may be entirely within the province of the district attorney to complete the job. Certainly the governor started the ball arolling and if one part of the report can be disregarded by him the same attitude may be displayed about the remainder of it.

GOLD STAR TRIPS

According to a bill which has been adopted in the lower house of congress gold star mothers and war widows who have not remarried would be eligible to make a trip abroad at the expense of the government any time within the next three years following the first of next July.

Just how many would be eligible is not known. It is estimated that there are 3,000 gold star mothers and a smaller number of widows, but it would be the plan to pay for the transportation and the expenses for a two weeks' stay in Europe. One estimate is that if these expenses should come to $500 for each individual and there were 5,000 of them the expense to the government would amount to $2,500,000. That is something to be guided by, but there's no certainty what the bill would be.

In the first place it is not known how many would go even if there were 5,000 eligible. Many unquestionably would, but others would not even though it involved no expense. What are regarded as advantages by some are looked at in a different light by others.

Nevertheless the house has acted in a manner which indicates its thorough approval of the idea. What the senate will do with it remains among the uncertainties at the present time, and even those who might be eligible under such a provision are not yet called upon to decide. Without a doubt the steamship lines and European cities are looking with keen interest for the final disposition of that piece of proposed legislation. To say that many of the beneficiaries under it are likewise displaying an interest would probably be within bounds.

TWO GREAT NEEDS

There are not many states but what have their problems because of the grade crossings. As the result to a bus being struck by a train and six killed in that state the Indianapolis (Ind.) News sensibly points out that "Two things may be done with reference to dangerous grade crossings. The public may show due caution or the crossing may be eliminated."

It is perfectly apparent that most of the crossing fatalities are absolutely needless. The crossing in Indiana is apparently a blind one. Sight is blocked in one direction by a building and many deaths have occurred at that point which would justify the demand for an automatic signal which would warn the highway users of the approach of a train. Then it would be expected that the motorists would care sufficiently for their lives to show that "due caution" referred to.

It is unfortunate that so many pay so little attention to the signs that dot the highways indicating the approach to a railroad crossing. From the number of accidents it would appear that many of them are completely ignored, that even the danger signals at the crossings themselves are disregarded. This is clearly indicated when machines crash through lowered gates, when flagmen are run down and when motors are driven into the sides of trains.

The crying need for blind crossings is automatic signals that will indicate when a train is coming, but that is no greater than a display of care on the part of the individual driver that will put safety before chance taking. Due respect for the danger at a grade crossing would prevent the large loss of lives at such points.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, March 5—A measure of great importance to New England textile industries will soon be reported out of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, by Congressman Merritt, a member of that committee. Its purpose is to establish a fund for research work of benefit to textile industries, especially in the manufacture of American dyes. During the war a commission was created to act in co-operation with the government for the control and purchase of German dyes, as a part of the reparation project. It was intended to sell the dyes at the low price of German-made goods, but that was found to work against American dye industry, so the price put on the German goods was the same as on American-made dyes. This resulted in leaving in the hands of the government the sum of approximately $1,500,000. The commission was under agreement not to profit by the purchase but the surplus to be used for public benefit. Now it is proposed that this sum shall be used for textile research, as it was accumulated through use of dyes by textile industries. The proposed plan is to establish a textile foundation for research work. The committee is still working on the bill, but expects to bring it before congress at an early date.

The house naval affairs committee this week accepted two important amendments offered by Congressman Fletcher Hale, a member of the committee. The first was to add two submarine salvage ships to the naval construction bill; the second was even more important, and gives the president authority to suspend naval construction only in the event of an international agreement for the further limitation of naval armament to which the United States is a signatory. As written in the original bill, the president would be authorized to suspend such construction on the calling of such conference, without waiting for its outcome.

If a test for vice-presidential candidacies can be based on knowledge of the Constitution, Col. John Q. Tilson need not fear the entrance of Governor Fuller of Massachusetts into a contest, should both names go before the convention. Tilson is one of the best informed men in congress on the Constitution, constitutional law and parliamentary law and requirement. Apparently, Governor Fuller has not given those matters much attention and needs coaching, and Washington political leaders are aiming many derisive arrows at his recent recommendation that the national ticket be Hoover and Lindbergh. Lindbergh is not eligible, as the Constitution requires a president to be not less than 35 years of age, and a vice-president must be qualified to succeed the president in case of death or disability, so automatically Lindbergh is not in the running, even if the ambitious governor of Massachusetts doesn't know it.

In addition to the enthusiastic endorsement made this week by C. Bascome Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge and one of the wisest and most influential of southern republicans, the vice-presidential candidacy of Colonel Tilson got another big boom. One of the largest districts in Tennessee came out with a statement urging Mr. Tilson for vice-presidential candidate. The statement closed with these words: "We have faith in the ability and leadership of Hon. John Q. Tilson, a native of Tennessee, and wish to place ourselves on record as endorsing his candidacy for the vice-presidency."

President pro tempore of the senate, George H. Moses, and House Leader John Q. Tilson of Connecticut are warm personal friends, but are both counted as possible vice-presidential candidates. So considerable fun has been had at their expense, all owing to a misinterpretation of a New Haven reporter. It seems that when Senator Moses was in New Haven recently, delivering a course of lectures at Yale, he was interviewed by a reporter, who immediately learned that Mr. Moses stood firm for Hoover as a presidential candidate. The reporter, perhaps not knowing Mr. Moses was a much talked of candidate for the vice-presidency, remarked, "Well, we have a fine ticket in mind down here. It is Hoover and Tilson." Whereupon Senator Moses smiled and said politely, "that is a very good combination." But picture the amazement of Senator Moses, when the following day he read in that paper: "Senator Moses endorses the vice-presidential candidacy of Tilson and predicts a rousing victory for the ticket, Hoover and Tilson." And now Tilson is smiling broadly over the inadvertent boom Moses gave him, and Moses is using derisive language to his warm friend, Tilson, and demanding that Tilson even up by going to New Hampshire and shouting loudly for a Moses candidacy, with equal force. The fact is, Colonel Tilson has openly become a receptive candidate, while Senator Moses has never announced whether or not he prefers the vice-presidency to the senatorship.

Nearly every state in the Union has its state society here. The Connecticut State society, sponsored by Dr. Charles H. Morgranston of New Haven, has enrolled many Connecticut people residing here and will hold its first meeting in the near future. It has arranged for standards of the American flag and the state flag to be used at its meetings.

Vice-President and Mrs. Dawes were the honor guests for whom Senator and Mrs. Bingham entertained Saturday evening.

Colonel Tilson was a guest last Sunday of President Coolidge on a week-end trip on the Mayflower. Colonel Tilson was the only guest outside the "White House family" on the over-Sunday trip down the Potomac.

Senator Bingham, whose committee assignments include military affairs, appropriation, territories, education and labor, library, and printing, being chairman of the latter, has, with Colonel Tilson, put before congress one of the most important bills of the session. It is for a board composed of five senators and five members of the house to formulate some plan under which the exact duty and responsibility of aircraft on the coast defense will be determined. Both Mr. Bingham and Colonel Tilson believe that unless the duties of army and navy responsibility are made definite, the time will come when delay and embarrassment will result. They also believe that the question can better be adjusted by congress than by officials of the two branches of defense.

Congressman Tilson is much gratified that his bill for a gold medal to Colonel Lindbergh was passed in the house without a dissenting vote, something very rare in these days of factional disagreements.

The congressional gold medal bill passed the house just previous to the award of $25,000 from the Wilson fund and the award of the Wilson medal, also the right to accept foreign decorations, thus making it a lucky day for Lindbergh in more senses than one.

The Fenn bill for reapportionment passed the house this week. Under it, Connecticut will gain a member of congress.

Commissioner Doran has ordered an investigation into bootlegging activities in the mining camps of western Pennsylvania.

TRIALS OF A FIRST BREAKFAST

The brief but beautiful honeymoon of Ted and Mary Lane Lewis was over. It was Monday morning and cuckoo was making his timely remarks about getting up. Mary roused herself. Seven o'clock! What an unearthly hour to have to get up for the day! Yet—and she looked across at Ted—it was fun to be Ted's wife, to get up early for him, to get his breakfast and send him off with a kiss and a smile.

Strangely thrilled, she jumped out of bed and disappeared. The cuckoo made a terse remark about the passing time. Seven-thirty!

"Ted, honey, time to get up," she called. Ted grunted a sleepy response.

"I'm going to get our breakfast," she went on enthusiastically, "and it will be all ready when you are. So, hurry!"

Mary spent considerable time setting the table, passing fondly over the fresh napery, the gleaming silver, the sparkling crystal—all new for the first breakfast in their little home.

Only after the table was set did Mary begin thinking about the breakfast menu. There'd be coffee, of course. Eggs? Ted loved scrambled eggs. Her eyebrows puckered speculatively. She had never scrambled an egg—still—and she smiled brightly—she could do anything for Ted!

Ted was singing in the bathtub. Suddenly he paused to sniff the air, then burst into song anew, joyously anticipating all that the odors from the kitchen promised.

There was a note of anxiety in the cuckoo's eight o'clock chatter. Ted appeared in the kitchen doorway fifteen minutes later, hungry enough to eat a whale.

"Breakfast soon ready, sweetheart?" he asked.

"Um—" was the noncommittal reply. "Say," she burst out suddenly, "how do you scramble eggs?"

"Eggs? Why—ah—" Ted faltered. Then remembering the days when mother used to scramble eggs, he finished brightly, "Why you use a skillet and just break the eggs right in it—you know—kind of mash 'em all up together."

At eight-forty Ted stuck his head once again in the kitchen doorway, murmuring apologetically:

"Sorry, honey, but it's getting late."

"Well—" there was a queer glint in Mary's eyes, "you can begin on your fruit. Here—take these prunes in and—"

"Prunes!" Ted echoed in dismay.

"It's prunes or nothing," was the tart reply. "I haven't time to clean the strawberries."

"All right, honey," Ted gulped, carrying his dish of prunes into the dining room.

Just as the cuckoo was warning Ted in terms of nine o'clock, Mary appeared, flushed and disheveled, bearing an offering of burned toast, and an ominous-looking dish of so-called scrambled eggs.

"Coffee's kind of strong," observed Ted with a grimace. No answer.

"Ye gods!" guiping, "did you scramble all the egg shells in this mess, too?" Silence! A bite of burned toast, another sip of coffee, and Ted threw down his napkin.

"This is awful!" he burst out as he rose from the table. "You keep a fellow waiting for almost two hours for his breakfast and then feed him prunes, burned toast and egg shells. Why a child could do better than that! Haven't you any—any—brains?"

"No," cried Mary. "If I had I'd never married you!" And with a superb gesture of withering contempt, she sailed from the room. Two minutes later the front door banged savagely.

In her room, before the mirror Mary faced a tear-stained image "Idiott," she spoke sternly, "even a saint would have rebelled against that breakfast. It was awful!" she glared accusingly at the girl in front of her. "You are going to learn how to toast toast and scramble egg before another morning——" Just then the telephone rang.

"Sweetheart," came the voice at the other end of the wire. "Forgive me. I was a beast. And for punishment you must give me burned toast and egg shells every morning."

"Every morning?" asked Mary, gently.

"Well—every morning this week." At which point the cuckoo remarked pleasantly.

"Ten o'clock."—Exchange.

Tuesday

"The Joy of Noble Strife"

SCRIPTURE: Memory verse: "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord" (Matthew 25:23).

Read: Matthew 25:14-23.

MEDITATION: The joy that Jesus speaks of here was the joy of the faithful. With their several differing talents they had done the best they could. One of the virtues that Jesus commends most highly is fidelity and well-meant effort. Men are not made to sit on the sidelines and watch the game go on, but to take their part in the game. There is a thrill of satisfaction that comes from taking one's full part in the battle of life. There are no happier people than those who are doing what they can in their places to make this a better world. Religion summons men to forget their self-seeking and to join with God and each other in helping to bring in a better day. Joy is God's pay for good work.

PRAYER: Grant, O Lord, that this day we may take our full share in the world's good work. Help us to be faithful in those useful things which are least interesting to us. Let us not shrink from the difficult but accept it as a challenge to our souls. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Prevention and Treatment of Cancer

By Lillian K. P. Farrar, M. D., New York, Member Gorgas Memorial.

The word cancer is perhaps the word most widely feared in the English language. To the patient it is a word of despair; to the loving husband, wife, son or daughter it brings horror and pity for the loved victim. Is it right to produce a cancerphobia by telling of the dangers of this dread disease, or should we gloss over its terrors? What mother is there who would not wish to know of the diseases of childhood if she might thereby protect her little ones? If we can prevent—if we can alleviate—the sufferings of those who are stricken with cancer, should we not give the knowledge widely to humanity that anyone may come in time to be treated?

The Gorgas Memorial is a tribute to one who devoted his life to preventive medicine, and it is only fitting that the Memorial should help to give the knowledge to the world that, while physicians do not yet know the immediate cause of cancer, they do know that by timely treatment or operation diseased tissue may be cured and cancer prevented, or that radium properly applied will check cancer and in certain cases cause it to disappear entirely.

Arresting the disease in its incipiency gives the best prognosis for recovery and especially is this true for women who have borne children and who have unrepaired injuries of the discharge, either watery or blood-birth canal or who have a persistent tinged. The alteratio in menstruation that occurs at any time during or after the menstrual life should be reported at once to a physician. Cancer is not a disease exclusively of the aged. Unfortunately, it occurs also in the very young, and often with more virulence than in those much older.

Seek the cause for menstrual irregularity especially for the slight spotting that occurs between periods in menstrual life or that comes after the change of life. Heed the small nodule that has come to the breast. Go for an examination after a confinement and have any injury in the cervical canal repaired. Remember the earlier the trouble is found the better the chance for a favorable response to operation or radium. Periodical health examinations constitute the best preventive medicine for the dread disease. The birthday examination is the best present one could give or receive and the best guarantee for a happy birthday next year.

Stories That Recall Others

A Flyer

Donald, age five, was playing with his Airedale dog in the yard one day when a neighbor passed and asked:

"What kind of a dog have you, Donald?"

"An airplane dog," came the quick reply.

She Knew It

One night Martha was awakened by the noise of the fire apparatus. She sat up in bed and saw the firemen attach a hose to a hydrant down the street. Jumping to a wrong conclusion, she reached over and vigorously shook her "kid" sister by the shoulder.

"Sis, sis, wake up! There's a fire," she said.

Sister jerked the blankets over her head and said sleepily: "Aw, I know it; I read it in the paper."

CHILD TRAINING

BE SURE THEY UNDERSTAND

Willis and Lenora Bailey

"I couldn't know what you meant, mother," wailed little four-year-old Billy who had just been punished for not obeying a direct command which he had misunderstood.

Of course, the young mother did not know she had been misunderstood when she administered the punishment. She was young. Billy was her adopted child and she was so fond of him and yet so conscientious she feared she might spoil him. She insisted on immediate obedience for she was eager to keep him absolutely unspoiled.

The language of these parents, both college graduates, is far above the head of the child they have taken from the orphanage. They realize it now and are rapidly simplifying their words to suit the little mind they are helping to develop. Naturally, they are each day increasing his tiny vocabulary and are in no danger of falling into the atrocious habit of "baby talk."

"What did she mean?" How often you hear that question when children are playing together and are interrupted by an order or request of some teacher or parent. Listening for a reply we often discover that not one in the group really understood what was intended except in an indefinite way.

There are many instances of foster parents and relatives who are bringing up children making the mistake above mentioned. The adopted child, particularly, has often been accustomed to hearing a different type of vocabulary, and it is not to be wondered at that he often fails to interpret correctly what is said to him. Wendell, four years old, said that he and his aunt with whom he lives get along nicely only he "don't can always know what she wants" him to do.

I wonder if parents, too, do not at times make the same mistake—that of punishing a child for doing a thing he thinks he has been told to do. It is so easy for adults to misunderstand each other; how much more easy for children to fail to understand our wishes from our words. I saw a mother punish her son for closing a door when she had asked him not to do so, and I am sure the child honestly thought he did exactly what he had been requested to do. The request, simple as it was, had been made in an obscure manner.

There is a decided duty here for all of us who are mothers—real and foster—to study ourselves and our language from the child's point of view. It will free us from carelessness in thinking and in expressing our thoughts. Most children are so sensitive that one punishment for a wrongly interpreted request or command may undermine days of careful training. It may sow seeds of distrust, in the little mind, that will cause serious results in the future.

Mothers:

Don't have those worries that almost any baby's mother can easily avoid having! Castoria, an old-fashioned but time-honored preparation soon ends those cross or fretful spells. Simple, safe, but works like magic. The helpful influence of Castoria makes itself felt throughout baby's tiny system. It helps make pale babies rosy-cheeked, and seems to give strength and life to frail, sickly babies. It regulates baby's little bowels—relieves colic, constipation, diarrhea—gives him good appetite and digestion. And how it relieves congestion when a baby catches cold! Never give baby paregoric or any other opiate. A few drops of Castoria are just as soothing and no harm is done. Even castor oil can not compete with Castoria; and Castoria is vastly better for a baby's system. Castoria is purely vegetable, harmless, pleasant-tasting. You can use it as often as baby is "upset" or fretful. Only one thing to be careful about—see that you get the genuine—the bottle which bears Fletcher's name. It isn't expensive. Doctors have recommended Fletcher's Castoria for over fifty years and millions of mothers swear by it. With each bottle you get "Care and Feeding of Babies," the book any mother or prospective mother will find worth its weight in gold.

GIVES REASONS FOR RECOMMENDING AGENCY FOR PROPERTY RE-VALUATION

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce made public on Monday a statement explaining why they had been led to the conclusion to recommend to the people of Norwich the method and the agency by which the re-valuation of the property of the town for the grand list could best be done.

The statement follows:

In determining the best method to be used to procure a revaluation of the property of the town, the chamber has had in mind the difficulties in the present system, and has attempted to arrive at the solution which will do most to correct not any one of them alone but all of them.

It is obvious that there are three methods of valuation, any one of which the town may adopt. The first is a revaluation by regular board of assessors alone. The second is a revaluation by the assessors with the advice of a committee of local people. The third is a revaluation by the assessors under the advice and in cooperation with an expert in taxation matters.

We believe that the first of these methods, namely, a revaluation by the assessors alone is out of the question. Whereever this has been tried, it has failed to accomplish any very satisfactory results. The statute law of this state directs that a general reassessment of property shall be made in each town at least once in every ten years. Such a re-assessment was made in Middletown by the regularly appointed assessors in 1920 and in spite of this reassessment, conditions remained as they were with all of the inequalities. The trouble is not, of course, that the assessors willingly prefer one taxpayer over another but because they having been in office for some time and having had their ideas molded by the old assessments, have come to have very fixed ideas about the relative values of property which may or may not be right and they have no adequate system for the collection and tabulation of data which will enable them to compare respective properties and thereby arrive at a reasonably correct conclusion as to the fair market value of each. The assessors have, no doubt, done their work to the best of their ability with the system under which they work. They have not succeeded in producing a grand list which seems to be satisfactory and we do not believe that any very radical improvement is to be expected if the work of revaluation is left to the assessors alone.

As regards the second method suggested above, namely, a revaluation made practically by a committee of local citizens; we believe that for two reasons at least such a method would be unsatisfactory. In the first place such a committee would, to a large extent, be working under the same handicaps as the assessors have been working. Such a committee, if appointed, would be able to guess at revaluation but their guesses would be colored to a large extent by the present assessed values in just the same way as the estimates of the local assessors. There are innumerable elements which enter into the determination of the value of any particular piece of property. The value of land is determined not only by the character of the street upon which it is located, but its position on that street, on the size of the lot, the grade of the lot and various other elements. The value of a building is determined by its size, class, construction, the use to which it is put, whether or not it is subject to lease for a low rental, and the innumerable other elements. We doubt very much whether a local committee either without compensation, or for a comparatively small compensation, would work out any system in the first place, which would collect the necessary data, or in the second place, would be able to compute from such data the fair market value.

In the second place, we believe that it would be impossible to persuade representative men to serve upon such a committee. It is far from being desirable to assess your neighbor's property, particularly if you are called upon to assess it at a much higher figure than it has been assessed in the past.

In view of the consideration already stated, the committee is practically forced to the conclusion that the only method by which a satisfactory revaluation can be obtained is by procuring experts in taxation matters to advise with the local assessors. Our investigation shows that there are several kinds of experts who would be available.

The advantages of this method are: That such people start with a clean slate and are not in any way controlled by the former assessment. They approach the question of reassessment with an open mind and by the use of a system of collecting data and by processes of reasoning which is generally considered among experts to be correct. It is no easy task to consider all of the elements involved in the ascertainment of a fair market value of any given piece of property and to make sure that the assessment of each piece of property is fair as compared with the assessment of the other property in town. Such a result can be reached only by applying the same tests to all property uniformly, and that, by an expert of many years of experience in such matters. It is decidedly a task for an expert and ought not to be undertaken by any man or group of men who have not given the matter specialized study.

Such experts as we have in mind can with all reasonable accuracy, arrive at the fair market value of all kinds of property in all locations and after they have arrived at a conclusion, they are in a position to back up their opinion with facts and figures. In other words, their method is not one of guess or off-hand opinion but one which will stand the test of careful scrutiny.

There were six such propositions considered by the board of directors.

1. A New York city concern.
2. An individual in Hartford.
3. A local committee.
4. A New Britain concern.
5. A Middletown concern.
6. The Mfg. Appraisal Co.

As indicated above proposition No. 3, a local committee, was eliminated for the reasons stated.

Number 2: While the board felt that the man involved was qualified and capable it did not feel that he should be recommended for this job because: 1. Of his business connections in the state tax office; 2. If he started the job and if anything happened to him it might seriously impair the progress and efficiency of the work.

The New York city concern was eliminated because their methods did not meet the needs of the situation adequately. Furthermore, it was felt that this work should be done by appraisers familiar with Connecticut laws and conditions, court opinions and statutes and who is familiar with the methods of doing things in Connecticut.

The board eliminated the Middletown company because their bid was too high and felt that their experience was very limited. The only place they had worked in were Middletown and Portland.

This left the New Britain concern and the Manufacturers' Appraisal company for final consideration.

Upon careful investigation in towns when these companies had operated it was felt by the board that the New Britain concern was the best qualified to appraise property outside of the manufacturing plants. This they do not attempt to do. We felt that in order to have a complete job done, it should include manufacturing plants. Furthermore, the New Britain people would not agree to instruct anyone in their methods or system.

The directors were unanimous in their opinion; that the Manufacturers' Appraisal company was best equipped to make an appraisal, they have an organization of over 200 men. They are sound financially. They have been in business since 1900 and Mr. Lamb, their representative is a very high type of gentleman and has the best of recommendations from folks who know him.

He had already met in conferences many of the manufacturers, merchants and private individuals and explained the methods and plans under which his company operates.

His proposals were carefully reviewed by legal talent employed by the chamber and by the town.

His plans met with the approval of the board of assessors, and no other plan could be adopted unless it first met with their sanction as under the law the town cannot employ him or anyone else to reassess the property, that is the assessors job, but the town can employ a concern to assist the assessors.

The proposals submitted by the chamber of commerce represented a unanimous opinion of the board of directors. They were approved by legal talent. They were acceptable to the board of assessors, they met the approval of State Tax Commissioner Blodgett and we trust they will prove acceptable and practical to the citizens and officials of the town.

STATE HIGHWAY SYSTEM UPKEEP COST $4,335,820

Maintenance of Connecticut's highway system during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927 cost the state $4,335,820, according to figures announced Monday by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. This item included the overhead, equipment and materials of the maintenance division used in keeping highways in good state of repair. In this item also is included a considerable amount of extraordinary work, that is work not generally included under general maintenance and repairs. This involves extensions and enlarging of water-courses and bituminous resurfacing. The net disbursements of the department for the year were $10,962,310.

Included in the department's disbursements for the year were $497,723 for the construction of state aid roads and $1,757,821 for the construction of trunk line roads. These amounts included 14.78 miles of state aid road and 2.36 miles of trunk line roads completed and accepted and also a considerable mileage of roads of both types in various stages of operation. For reconstruction the state expended $4,232,070, which included 91.79 miles of trunk line and 11.36 miles of state aid road; but the gross expenditure also represents money paid to contractors on roads in process of construction. This latter amount also includes expenditures of the state highway tree warden, and damages and the operation of the operation of the boundary line division.

Bridges built during the year cost $774,976, while maintenance of state aid bridges cost $15,659 and of trunk line bridges cost $47,618. Maintenance of draw bridges cost the state $90,440, while the Warehouse Point bridge cost $2,410. Operation of Connecticut river ferries totaled $20,852.

The department's overhead for the year was $562,616.92. Cost of the Guilford sluice, federal aid construction, dangerous trunk line eliminations, and administration brought the total expenditures of the highway department to $12,783,981. Refunds from street railways, federal aid, cement sacks, and towns and other sources, aggregated $1,821,671, making the net disbursements for the fiscal year $10,962,310.

FRED STONE WILL FLY TO EAST LYME RANCH

Fred Stone is seeking new worlds to conquer, according to a letter recently received at his Star ranch in East Lyme by Mrs. William C. Slate (Tillie Baldwin), manager of the ranch and owner of the Star Ranch Riding club, in which the famous stage comedian informs her that he has bought an airplane.

According to the letter, Mr. Stone has been studying the operations of a plane for some time. Now he can pilot one satisfactorily and contemplates flying to the ranch in East Lyme in April.

He stated that lots of motion is lost using trains and he intends to do most of his traveling by air within a short time. Pursuant to instructions, Mrs. Slate will plan immediately for the laying down of a landing field on the big ranch, which will also contain a runway.

There are 48 riding horses at the ranch now and work is now going on for the spring and summer schedule.

A luncheon will be held at noon, following which the fire fighters will journey to the submarine base on a tour of inspection.

The object of the meeting is to impress upon the fire fighters the acute situation which has developed in forest fire hazards this spring in view of the light snowfall during the winter. It is also expected that Commissioner Hawes will encourage further organization of volunteer forest fighting units in the various outlying communities where the danger is greatest.

BODY OF WHITAKER BOY FOUND IN RIVER

The body of a boy, believed to be that of Allen, the ten-year-old son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Whitaker of Corning road, was recovered from the Thames river late Monday afternoon. It was noticed wedged among some rocks at the southerly end of Dawley's lumber yard on the new dock and was removed to an undertaker's room after it had been seen by Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve.

The body of the other boy, Herbert, aged 3, who was drowned at the same time as the whole family lost their lives on the night of Jan. 23 when the Whitaker automobile went off Preston bridge into the Shetucket river has not yet been recovered.

The body found Monday was more than a mile away from where the automobile plunged from the bridge into the Shetucket river. Three boys, William Bradford of 35 Rogers avenue, John and Warren Hotchkis of 20 Laurel Hill avenue, discovered the body caught among the rocks and immediately notified police headquarters by telephone. Chief George Linton sent Sergeant Myron Morgan and Officer Barney Keenan down to the dock to guard the body until the arrival of the medical examiner.

FREIGHT OFF THE TRACKS NEAR GROTON TOWER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 5—The through freight, No. 084, to Boston, was partly derailed tonight at 10:15 o'clock about 50 feet from the Groton tower in the town of Groton. Three cars and the engine left the iron and were thrown over onto their sides, blocking traffic. They are expected to be replaced early tomorrow morning. No one was injured.

A Negro man and woman, both drunk, were picked up in the streets here tonight following a heated argument between the pair. Both were locked up unable to give their names or addresses. It is understood that the man is employed on a barge in the harbor.

At the city court session Monday morning Gus Chioda, alleged proprietor of a confectionery store at No. 43 North Main street, was presented on a charge of violation of the liquor law. The case was continued until Wednesday morning at the request of the accused's counsel. Three men who were in the store when it was raided Saturday night by the state police, were presented on intoxication charges. Two were fined $5 and costs and the case against the third went over to Wednesday morning.

SENTENCES ARE GIVEN TO LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS

When Stanley Walenda of No. 559 North Main street was presented in the city court Monday morning on a charge of violation of the liquor law, he entered a plea of not guilty. Walenda claimed that he gave State Policeman John Smith and a liquor aide working with the state police each a drink, but did not sell it to them. Evidence was introduced to the contrary as it was shown that the state police secured an actual sale and found a quantity of liquor hidden beneath the floor in a bed room. Walenda was sent to jail for 30 days.

Mrs. Mary Seindonski of Aqueduct street pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law and was fined $200 and costs and given 30 days in jail, the jail sentence being suspended for one year.

NEW YORK PASTOR BEGAN SERMON SERIES

Rev. Dr. Henry Howard, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church of New York city, began on Monday evening at the United Congregational church a series of lenten addresses which he is to deliver this week under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association. After the opening exercises which were conducted by Rev Dr David A Pitt of the Central Baptist church, General Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. introduced the speaker.

Rev Dr. Howard read the story of the crucifixion as the preface to his address which was upon "Christ Crucified as the Power of God." He pointed out that we do not associate death with power. Death is the moment of the most-damaged defeat. Most of our conceptions of power are derived from manifestations of physical force, but God is more than a physical force and the work he wanted done in the world was not physical. He wanted to reach the kingdoms of the affection and the will and it is the moral force let loose through the cross of Christ upon which he is relying for this.

The speaker said he wished to lay down four propositions, viz: The supreme expression of power in the universe is moral force. The supreme expression of moral force is love. The supreme expression of love is sacrifice. The supreme expression of sacrifice is death. The cross of Christ stands as the concentration of divine love and thence that loves issues in one deep, full stream to overtake the wants and sorrows of mankind So He says, Behold I stand at the door and knock. Let Him in and He will fill and flood and fertilize the inner life until the outer shall become as fair as the garden of the Lord.

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS PLAY THIRD GAMES OF SERIES WITH WEBSTER TONIGHT

Crescents	Webster
Brown, lf	H. Ivasan
Normandin, rf	rf, Kuywski
Harris, c	c, Bamber
Leonard, lg	lg, Wozwicki
Murphy, rg	rg, Blezniak

The Taftville Crescents and St. Joseph's Y. M. C. A. quintet of Webster, Mass., meet tonight at Parish hall, Taftville, in the third game of their series. The Crescents were beaten at Webster in the first game while the Indians were turned at Parish hall three weeks ago.

Both teams have established fine records for the season. The Crescents, now in the middle of their Danielson series, have beaten many of the best around these parts while the Bay Staters come with victories over Millville Town Team, Boston Whirlwinds, Warren Town team and other fast clubs. The last game between these teams was pronounced one of the best ever seen on the local court and indications are that this one will produce just as much rivalry for both teams as seriously going after this "rubber" game.

MANDELL-M'LARNIN BOUT LOOMS FOR MAY 17 AT N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 5—(AP)—Spirited bidding for a lightweight title match between Sammy Mandell, the champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, the Irish lad who bowled over Sid Terris in a single round, apparently ended today in a victory for Tex Rickard over Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter.

Eddie Kane, manager of the titleholder, will return to Chicago tomorrow bearing with him a "satisfactory" offer for Mandell to fight McLarnin in the Polo grounds here on May 17. Rickard said he would announce Mandell's decision within a week.

In the meantime, Rickard said, Kane will endeavor to convince Mullen that there is no chance of the Chicago promoter gaining McLarnin's services for a bout in Chicago. The latest sensation from the Pacific coast is bound by contract to fight for Rickard, while Mullen has an agreement with Mandel for a title fight with McLarnin in the midwest in June. Kane assured Rickard that his contract with Mullen was not binding unless McLarnin was secured as his opponent.

Although Rickard would not reveal the amount necessary to lure Mandell from Mullen, he said there was no difficulty in reaching an agreement as to terms. Rickard expects the match to draw a gate in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Mullen Has Hopes

CHICAGO, March 5—(AP)—A contract calling for the services of Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, in a match to defend his title on June 21 convinces Promoter Jim Mullen that Mandell will not sign with Tex Rickard for a title match in New York prior to that date.

"I still think I will get the Mandell-McLarnin match for Chicago," Mullen said. "We can match New York's gate receipts here and Mandell has assured me he would much prefer to defend his crown in Chicago."

SHARKEY TIPS 193 1-2 AFTER BUSY TRAINING SESSION

BOSTON, March 5.—(AP)— Switching sparring partners at every round in order to keep them fresh as possible, Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight title contender, today opened his final week of preparation for the elimination battle with Johnny Risko in New York, next Monday by stepping through six rounds of actual boxing and the same number against light and heavy bags.

Working against Tom Kirby, Lou Bogash and Jack Gagnon, Sharkey paid special attention to timing and the development of a straight smashing left. He weighed 193 1-2 pounds after the workout and expects to scale about the same weight at ring time.

By order of the New York boxing commission, he will wind up his training in New York, leaving here late next Wednesday and completing his preparation on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Beyond expressing the customary confidence in himself he declines to talk much about the forthcoming battle.

His followers predict success on the strength of a shift in his New York training quarters back to the gymnasium in which he prepared for Wills, McTigue and Maloney. Training in Lou Stillman's fistic emporium never has been followed by a defeat and the Sharkey camp takes the shift as an omen.

OVER DOZEN CANDIDATES REPORT FOR TRY OUT FOR ACADEMY BATTERY BERTHS

The Academy batterymen had a short but brisk workout for their first session Monday afternoon at the Y gym. About a dozen boys responded to the call and the afternoon was spent mostly in tossing the ball around easily.

Several members of the squad had been out last week at tossing the medicine ball around, etc., so that they are fairly well advanced in their conditioning.

Lloyd Jarvis and Capt. Mace Goldblatt were among those reporting, while Johnny Greene was unable to be present but is expected today. Others present were Joe Sadinsky, Pepin, Fontaine and Koziol of the catchers, and Joe (Boots) Greene, Louie Greene, Abugul and Riordan of the flingers. Sadinsky, Fontaine and the two Greenes were candidates last year but none were letternen, so that for the workout Monday, Jarvis and Goldblatt were the only lettermen present.

"Mike" Arico, and Kendall, infielders, who are about to try out for the first time for an Academy baseball team were also present Monday and got in a bit of work. Arico is only a freshman while Kendall is a transfer.

Workouts are planned daily, except Wednesday and Saturday, for the pitchers and catchers. The rest of the candidates will probably not get a chance at the indoor end of it because of space limitations but with any kind of weather, it should not be many days before the team will be caroling on the campus. The drills at the Y last three-quarters of an hour, from 1.45 to 2.30 o'clock.

TONY LAZZERI SIGNS WITH YANKS; HOLDOUT LIST SLIM

NEW YORK, March 5—(AP)—The ranks of the 1928 major league baseball holdouts, after a bold start, have dwindled to about the size of a corporal's guard.

Tony Lazzeri, the all-around star of the world's championship infield, is the latest to come to terms. He came to terms today with Manager Miller Huggins at St. Petersburg. As a result the Yankee fold now lacks only one regular, Wait Hoyt, the star right-handed twirler is reported to be holding out for a bonus of $3,000 as a reward for winning twenty games.

Flint Rhem, speed-ball flinger of the St. Louis Cardinals, has come to terms after a prolonged debate but two other pitching aces, Vic Aldridge of the Giants and Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn, still are unsigned, the case of Vance is not regarded as serious. He is in camp and reported ready to accept terms. Aldridge, however, has so far refused to report in spite of a series of ultimatums from Manager John McGraw.

Luke Urban, the Boston Braves' college catcher, has reached a salary agreement but the Cincinnati Reds still have a few to hear from, including Carl Mays, Wally Pipp, Pete Donohue and Rube Bressler.

BAT LEVINSKY GETS DECISION OVER EARL BLUE

NEW YORK, March 5—(AP)—Battling Levinsky, Philadelphia heavyweight, gained a judges' decision over Earl Blue of St. Paul in the feature six-round bout at the new Broadway arena in Brooklyn tonight. Levinsky who is 37 years old, had an easy time in disposing of Blue, Six years ago Gene Tunney won the American light heavyweight title from Levinsky.

Levinsky weighed 182 1-2, Blue 176.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 5—(AP)—Wyman Ford recruit pitcher has been unconditionally released by the Detroit American league baseball team. He is the first player released by the Tigers this season.

PLAINFIELD PROS TO PLAY BRISTOL ENDEES WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 5 — The Plainfield Pros have the Bristol Endees for the opposition Wednesday night at the Plainfield community house in what promises to be one of the best games of the year. This team beat the Community Housers twice early in the season by close scores, 19 to 17 and 28 to 27, so that in this next edition of their struggles plenty of fur should fly.

The Pros will be strengthened by the addition of Kasper of the Purple Collegians, who will team up with Mondi Normandin at the forwards, Whitey Bernot will be at center and Dessinger and Benson at the guards. Steffy Siavinitsky, who had been playing a fine game at center for the Pros will probably be lost to the team for the rest of the season because of an injury. Hap Madden and Brusso will be held in reserve Wednesday night.

For Bristol Jimmy Malcolm and Kesky Feldman, who played with Danielson last week against Taftville will travel at the forwards with Moore in reserve, with Crowley or Donahue at center and Jim Manning, Leonard and Waterman at the guards.

The Plainfield Buddies will meet the Stonington All-Stars in the preliminary.

AL BEAUREGARD WINS ON KNOCKOUT AT BOSTON

BOSTON, March 5.—(AP)—Roberto Roberti, gian Italian heavyweight, outpunched Jack Humbeck, of Belgium in a 10 round bout here tonight. Roberti weighed 220 pounds and Humbeck 200. Roberti's long right inflicted severe punishment throughout but umbeck kept trying.

Jack Warren, of New York, defeated Nando Tassi, Italian light heavyweight in the eighth round semi-final. Ted Sandwina, of Germany, defeated Larry Creighton, of Africa, in six rounds.

Al Beauregard, of Taftville, knocked out Micky Connolly, of New York, in the second round of a scheduled six round preliminary.

CUBS HELD INDOORS BY ALL-DAY RAIN

AVALON, Cal., March 5—(AP)—Pilot Joe McCarthy was disappointed today, an all-day rain having washed away both the morning and afternoon workouts in which the Chicago Cubs' leader intended to correct a few flaws found in the work of his charges in practice games Saturday and yesterday.

The continued downpour confined the Cubs to indoor exercises. It appeared likely that the rain also would put a damper on a practice game McCarthy had in mind for tomorow.

TABERSKI IN VICTORY OVER HARRY WOOD

CHICAGO, March 5—(AP)—Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., the defending champion, opened the national pocket billiard tournament tonight with a 125 to 38 victory over Harry Wood of Duluth, Minn. The game ran only nine innings, Taberski having big runs of 55 and 47, while Wood's best cluster was 11.

BILL WICKS BREAKS THE RECORD

This week's feature of the "Old-Timer's" series deals with the record-shattering run of "Bill" Wicks, state hospital baseball captain, from New London to Norwich. He made it in 1 hour, 22 minutes and 8 seconds for the 13 miles. It followed closely on the heels of two previous record-breaking jaunts between the "sister cities" by E. Clifford Hilton and Tom Tuckey.

This story is taken from the account in The Bulletin on March 31, 1910.

Capt. "Bill" Wicks of the state hospital baseball team took the local followers of the running game off their feet Saturday, when he hung up the magnificent time of 1 hour, 23 minutes, 8 seconds for the New London to Norwich road records, beating out by 20 minutes, 52 seconds the mark of E. Clifford Hilton set last Christmas and by 2 minutes, 52 seconds the mark of Tom Tuckey set a few weeks ago. These three great endurance men promise a great afternoon of sport when they meet next Saturday at Bachem park in a 15-mile race to settle the question of supremacy. It was Hilton, the plucky little Englishman who pried the lid off the running game with his mid-winter effort.

Sam Austin Pacemaker.

Finishing in this city at the Y. M. C. A. building at 4.23.08, paced by Sam Austin for the final dash, Wicks received a continuous ovation from Thames square through Main street and Broadway to the finish line. Thames square was packed with people who opened up a lane for the runner and the automobile containing the officials, and the same was true at the Norwich Savings society corner and up Broadway. But for Officers Henderson and Irish, the runner would have had difficulty in getting through, but they cleared the path effectively for the coming champion. Forgetting that the pacemaking auto was coming, Policeman Irish stepped out into the track after Wicks had bone by, but Driver Mitchell clamped on the brakes, skilfully bringing the machine to a stop with nothing to spare between the radiator and the policeman.

When the time was given out that made the study hospital man the champion distance runner of the county for this course the crowd split the air with cheers for Wicks, who was hustled off to the Wauregan house where he and Austin took a bath and were soon on the streets. Wicks finished with signs of leg-weariness in the last mile and a half, but his grit was good and kept him plugging along to his star peerformance.

The runner was given the word exactly at 3.05 p. m., at New London Y. M. C. A., after having been put in condition for the grind by Samuel A. Johnson of New York, who recently went over the same route in 1.45. John L. Mitchell of this city, having kindly volunteered the use of his automobile to make the race and carry the officials, took a picture of the start and theen trailed in after Wicks, who was speeding down State street and along Main street, northward. According to the arrangement made by Sporting Editor Whitney of The Bulletin, the following officials made up the automobile party: Alyn L. Brown, referee; Roy Evans, Martin Keough and Sporting Editor Whitney, judges and timers.

Three watches took the time as Wicks reeled off the miles and the distance was measured by the cyclometer of the auto. This settled the question of the distance which has been a matter of dispute up to this time, and it was found to be 13 miles instead of 14. The following shows the comparative times made by the runners, Wicks, Tuckey and Hilton, in the late record-breaking runs:

Allyn place corner, Wicks, 8m; Tuckey, —; Hilton, 11m.

Waterford school, Wicks, 17m; Tuckey, —; Hilton 24m.

Foot Quaker Hill, Wicks, 21m; Tuckey —; Hilton 31m.

Allyn place, cor. Wicks 8m, Hilton 11m; Waterford school Wicks 17m, Hilton 24m; Foot Quaker hill, Wicks 21m, Hilton 31m; Jerome farm, Wicks 30 1-2 m; Hilton 41m; Montville car station, Wicks 37m; Tuckey 33m, Hilton 48m; Fitch's cor., Wicks 46 1-2m, Hilton 1h; Mohegan church, Wicks 56 1-2m; Hilton 1.18; Trading Cove bridge, Wicks 1h 5m; Hilton 1.33, Thames square, Wicks 1.30; Hilton 1.40; Norwich Y. M. C. A., Wicks 1.23-08; Hilton 1.44.

Overhead conditions were good and the roads were in fair shape for the runner, but fierce in spots for the machine which could not dodge the mud and ruts. Wicks took rather short steps for such a big man, but got along as a space-devouring stride and stepped off the first five miles in 31 minutes, 26 seconds. In this stretch the miles were made as follows 5.26, 6.38, 6.22, 6.25, 6.35.

In the second five miles he made somewhat slower time, encountering the hills between Montville and Mohegan church in the eighth and ninth miles, which were his two slowest, being done in 6.45 and 7.10. The times from the sixth to the tenth miles 6.38, 6.43, 6.45, 7.10 and 6.17 1-2, making 33 minutes, 33 1-2 seconds for the second five miles and one hour, 4 minutes, 59 1-2 seconds for 10 miles. For the even hour Wicks covered 9 3-10 miles.

Still Strong at Ten Miles

After the tenth mile Wicks was still going strong. Letting himself out on some of the downgrades, he put the next two behind him in 6.21 1-2 and 6.20. For about the last two miles he was paced in by Sam Austin who was waiting by the road just this side of the Trading Cove Bridge. At Trading Cove two boys with bicycles met the runner and accompanied him back, while in Thamesville Sherwood B. Potter and S. P. Coffey in an automobile, with several Norwich men in teams, were added to the retinue that followed him to the finish.

Sam Austin took to the running board of the machine when Central wharf was reached, but took to the ground again in front of Porteous and Mitchell's, helping to spur Wicks on to 5.27 for the final stretch, which was scant mile, showing on the cyclometer between 12 9-10 and 13 miles.

Throughout the long grind, Wicks kept to a jog, never slowing down to a walk, although he eased up a little on the hardest hills.

Johnson who helped get him ready for the run, took the car up from New London, and was in at the finish, while a group of Tuckey's friends was assembled at the Montville station to see him pass. Others were also on the finish line and promptly announced their willingness to back their man to meet him. Tuckey reeled off a training run between Norwich and Montville on Saturday afternoon.

Had Tryout With Fall River Nine

William H. Wicks, the new champion, is a native of Boston, and is 27 years old. He is about 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches tall and weighs 146 pounds. Most of his life has been spent around this neighborhood, as he was raised on a Preston farm. With his long, black hair and swarthy complexion he looks not unlike a countryman of Derando, although he said Sunday night that looks were sometimes deceiving. He captained the State hospital baseball team last season and has also played ball on New York state nines as well as having a tryout with Fall River when Bill Austin was on that team. This is the first running he has ever done for a record.

GIRLS ENTER LOCAL PUGILISTIC ARENA

They are in politics, all the professions, and nearly all branches of sports but it is only within the past week that the women have invaded the local pugilistic ranks. The general public has been wholly unaware that a number of the local girl athletes have been training for a career in the ring. Such is the case, however, and now there are three young women who feel that they are qualified to show their pugilistic wares in a local ring. They feel some embarrassed at the novelty of the thing and if they appear will wear masks at the first performance.

Boxing among women is nothing new and for many years there have been women boxing teams in France.

The difficulty at the present time is to secure opponents in the weights of the three girls. The girls are in the 105, 127 and 137 pounds classes, which is the flyweight, featherweight and lightweight division. If feminine opponents can be found at least two bouts will be put on at the Pastime A. C. show at Olympic hall on Friday evening, March 16th.

As everyone knows women can put up a wonderful battle when the occasion demands it and if these feminine boxing bouts are staged they certainly should be well worth seeing. The three, who have issued the challenges to the local girls wish their names to be kept secret for the present, but will announce them as soon as opponents are found. If there are any young women who feel that they would like to embark on a pugilistic career please communicate with James Quinn or John Burns, matchmakers of the Pastime A. C., at the Moose home.

TOWN COUNCIL THANKED BY AMERICAN LEGION POST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 5—Twice during this morning's meeting the town council went into executive session, once at the request of Elihu Chesebrough, of the board of highway commissioners whom the council had invited to meet with them for the discussion of the matter of rebuilding Granite street, lasting nearly an hour and the second at the request of Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton which closed meeting lasted all through the noon hour.

Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge presented the damage claim against the town of Richard Joseph Rooney, for recompense when he alleged that his wife died as the result of a bicycle rider on the sidewalk striking and knocking her down on Granite street.

Solicitor Ferguson advised the council that it had no legal responsibility. Mr. Ledwidge declared if the discussion did not come before the council, then it would come before another tribunal.

A letter was received from Adj. Capt. Harry Russell Burdick, of Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion of Westerly, thanking the council for its help in placing an amount to $1500 in the budget for the post to assist in erecting a World war memorial. On motion of Councilman Trainer a vote was passed authorizing the immediate payment of the check to the legion post for memorial purposes.

The council passed an amendment of the zoning law permitting this extension of a commercial area in the present business district. On the council room wall hung a new large map of the town prepared by Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi, on which in colors were delineated the present commercial, business and residential areas and the farming lands not under some building code requirements. The newly enlarged Westerly fire district lines were shown together with the fire district at Watch Hill and Pleasant View.

Sheffield Green of Dunn's Corners was voted a forest fire warden and his assistants named C. Palmer Chapman for Watch Hill area, Westerly Fire Chief George E. Egger and G. H. Williams for the White Rock section.

Attorney M. Walter Flynn appeared in behalf of a petition of James Rossi, Westerly pugilist, and former Lorraine truck driver, for a pole room at 41 Pierce street. Without the endorsement of Police Chief Brown, the council did not grant the same but voted a previously filed petition with Police Chief Brown's approval of Frank Capplizzano, at 55 Pierce street.

Fred S. Binns and Albert S. Young were voted police constables.

After Russell Lee Slocum had been re-appointed special dog officer on his verbal application, the council discussed the growing menace of rabies in dogs which was prevalent in Connecticut and in Wickford, R. I. The council voted "No person owning or harboring a dog of whatever age or size shall allow same to be at large in or upon any of the public ways of the town between the 5th day of March and the 5th day of May unless the dog shall be so muzzled as to prevent the dog from biting or otherwise injuring any person or animal." The penalty under the town ordinance for each violation is not less than $2 or more than $5.

The council voted to meet as a board of canvassers at 5 p. m., Thursday to prepare voting lists to be used in the special Westerly financial town meeting Tuesday evening, March 13th to consider town government department changes.

The Whitefoot Family Moves.

A mother's love will stop at naught,
Although with danger it be fraught.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Whitefoot was getting more and more worried. That nursery there in one of Farmer Brown's beehives was getting to be a lively place in more ways than one. Those five babies of hers were growing very fast and they were very lively small folk. This would have been bad enough at best, for five babies can always manage to get into plenty of mischief. But, to make matters worse, the rightful owners of that hive, who had slept most of the winter, were beginning to stir about. You see, the weather was growing warmer, for gentle Sister South Wind blew almost every day.

Whitefoot continued to visit his family nights, for he slept during the day. At night Honey Bee and her companions were quiet. So when Whitefoot visited the hive he was inclined to think that Mrs. Whitefoot was more worried than was necessary.

"Is that house where you are living now big enough for the whole family?" asked Mrs. Whitefoot.

"Y-yes," replied Whitefoot reluctantly. "I suppose it is."

"Then I think we'll move just as soon as these youngsters are big enough," replied Mrs. Whitefoot.

"It is a long way to take so many young children," said Whitefoot.

"I can't help it," replied Mrs. Whitefoot. "These bees were going in and out of this hive all of today, and these youngsters were possessed to poke their heads out and see what all that humming was about. I was nearly worried to death all day long. I just can't stand any more of it. This was a very good winter home, but it is plain to me that it is high time we were out of it. I shall not have another easy moment until we are."

"Oho!" he exclaimed, "someone else has been living in this hive."

"Of course," said Whitefoot, "if you can get the children moved over to the old stone wall you would be safe from everybody but Shadow the Weasel. He probably isn't around now anyway. Then you could move them by degrees up to that little house where I am living now."

"I think I shall move tomorrow night," said Mrs. Whitefoot very decidedly.

But Mrs. Whitefoot moved before the next night. In fact, she moved the next morning. And she moved very unexpectedly. You see, she received a terrible fright. Without any warning at all that hive was opened. It was opened by Farmer Brown's boy, who was inspecting the hives to see how the bees had come through the winter. He discovered Mrs. Whitefoot's nest at once.

"Oho!" he exclaimed. "So someone else has been living in this hive," and he started to pull out the nest.

Mrs. Whitefoot could stand no more. With five babies clinging to her, or rather with four clinging to her and one in her mouth, she jumped out of that nest to the ground and started for the old stone wall. It was a long journey for such a small person carrying such a load. Farmer Brown's Boy watched her in round-eyed surprise for a few moments. "Well, well, well!" he exclaimed. "That is what I call carrying the family load. Poor little mother! She is frightened half to death, but she isn't going to leave one of those children behind."

GENERAL MOTORS FEATURED MARKET WITH SALES OF ALMOST 660,000 SHARES

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—General Motors corporation common was again the sensational feature of the stock market today, climbing nearly 4 points to a new high record at 148 on total sales of just under 660,000 shares, the second largest daily turn-over of a single stock in the history of the exchange. On December 21, 1916, the day of the so-called "leak" in President Wilson's peace message, 866,000 shares of U. S. Steel common changed hands in a declining market. Profit-taking forced the price down to 146 1-2 at the close. The general market swung upward in sympathy, with such old-time leaders as U. S. Steel common, American Can, Radio and Paramount Famous Players again in the forefront of the advance. The total volume of business fell just short of 3,000,000 shares.

The spectacular rise in General Motors was accelerated by the urgent retreat of a trapped short interest, which is reported to have been built up to huge proportions since the announcement of the new Ford models, on the theory that Ford competition would materially reduce sales and earnings. Fresh buying also has been attracted to the stock by the establishment of new production records by three manufacturing subsidiaries in February, and by official predictions of record-breaking first quarter earnings. The concurrent strength of Willys-Overland common and preferred, which also reached new high records, was accompanied by rumors of Willys absorption by General Motors, but these lacked confirmation. Other motors moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Except for the lowering of the call money renewal rate from 4 1-2 to 4 1-4 per cent., with reports of outside loans as low as 4 per cent. there was little in the way of fresh news developments to influence the price movement. U. S. Steel common, after a slow start, climbed more than 3 points to 143 3-8 and then eased slightly on realizing. Colorado Fuel, Gulf States and Sloss Sheffield also advanced 2 points or so, but Youngstown Sheet & Tube dipped to a new low at $8 1-4, or nearly 20 points below the year's high.

Sharp advances took place in some of the high priced specialties. Dupont 9 points and reacted 2, Midland Steel Products preferred advanced 6 and lost 1. Heavy buying of Paramount Famous Players based on reports of expanding earnings, carried that stock above 120 for the first time since 1926. Pressed Steel Car advanced more than 4 points to duplicate the year's high at 26 7-8. Net gains of 3 points or more also were recorded by Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, Atlas Powder, American Zinc & Lead preferred, Hershey Chocolate, Freeport Texas, International Harvester, R. H. Macy, Mackay Companies, Montana Power and Reynolds Tobacco B.

Rails moved up with the industrials, but the advances were not as large. Canadian Pacific closed 2 1-4 points higher at 207 1-4 and net gains of a point or more were recorded by New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson and several others.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading, with sterling cables quoted around $4.87 7-8.

All the leading commodity markets pointed upward. Wheat futures advanced nearly 2 cents a bushel on reports of smaller shipments from the Argentine and crop damage in the west. Cotton rallied 60 cents to $1.10 bale on buying influenced by the failure of expected rainfall in the southwest. Coffee rallied 15 to 25 points and the raw sugar futures market displayed a slightly firmer undertone.

SUIT IS WITHDRAWN IN OLD LYME CASE

Withdrawal without costs has been filed at the office of the clerk of the superior court in the suit of Mary K. Champlain against Ferdinand Winzler, both of Old Lyme. The suit was brought in February on the common counts on a claim for $6,000, dated Jan. 19, 1928. Attachments in the suit were made against four sedan automobiles, a Lincoln, a Cadillac, and two Hudsons, a Ford truck, a Ford racer, three Reo busses, seven "antique" automobiles, and a quantity of machines, tires, automobile parts and accessories.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

No wonder they're so good!

Drive a LaSALLE or CADILLAC during LaSalle Anniversary Week and Cadillac Spring Showing

La Salle Anniversary Week and Cadillac Spring Showing, closing March 10th, afford you an excellent opportunity to become better acquainted with these finest of fine cars.

Motor-car owners—everywhere—are taking advantage of this week to experience for themselves the satisfied thoughts which a Cadillac-built car engenders.

With the result that they are awakening to the realization that nothing can take the place of the zestful, restful miles and the easeful hours, days, weeks and months of La Salle and Cadillac—for the only worth-while things in motoring and the things which alone spell value.

In this Spring Showing of La Salle and Cadillac cars you will find the most attractive, most extensive and most complete line of fine cars ever shown by any manufacturer. It includes a wide variety of custom-built bodies by Fisher and Fisher-Fleetwood representing the very finest examples of the body builders' art.

And these La Salles and Cadillacs reveal not alone the vogue of today in motor car design, apparel and performance but of a tomorrow so far in advance of current practice that they will be the symbol of good taste in motoring for years to come.

Boudoir Pillows Scarfs to Match

Here is an opportunity to introduce new color harmony in your bedroom with dainty Stamped Shirred Pastel Voile Boudoir Pillows and Scarfs to match.

Both the Pillows and Scarfs are ready made and already finished with dainty five-needle shirring and need the merest touches of lustrous embroidery and a bit of Silk Chantilly Lace to complete.

Each soft Pillow has two sizes of Scarfs to match—one for the dresser, size 13x45 inches and the others for the Chiff-robe, size 13x36 inches. These dainty Pillows and Scarfs are available in all the wanted boudoir shades, including—

IN MEMORIAM

In the loving memory of our Dear Mother,
Annie M. Counihan,
Who passed away March 4, 1924

Four lonesome years have passed,
Deep in our hearts lies a picture,
Of a dear mother at rest.
In memory's frame we shall keep it.
Because she was one of the best.
'Till memory fades and life departs,
"Mother," you will live forever in our hearts.

Lebanon Women Voters' Supper

Lebanon League of Women Voters gave a supper Friday evening at the Congregational church, the menu comprising baked beans, brown bread, salad, rolls, pickles, pie and coffee. Following the supper, two plays were given at the high school. A goodly sum was realized and the league is grateful to all who took part in the evening's entertainment.

POETRY

Leap Years

Bachelors, beware!
Cupid takes the air.
With a solemn note
In his puckish throat,
Cupid's call is clear!
Leap Year! Leap Year!

When cathedral bells
Call the infidels,
And the righteous, too,
Minor strains run through
Every note we hear!
Leap Year! Leap Year!

Venus calls to Mars,
Singing through the stars,
And with warming mirth
Sunbeams dance to Earth,
Whistling in her ear:
Leap Year! Leap Year!

Wind against the pane,
Hail and snow and rain,
Thunder in the sky;
Moon, aloof and high,
Whisper far and near:
Leap Year! Leap Year!

Bachelors, look out!
There's a witch about;
On a broom she rides,
Rounding up the brides!
You are doomed, I fear!
Leap Year! Leap Year!

Trillium

Where the landlocked wind-storm rages,
Rushing thro' the wild ravine,
Where the gathered dust of ages
Is renewed in tenderest green,
Where the passionate pulse of power
Beats along its strong career,
You may find a three-cleft flower
In the spring-time of the year.

Winter winds thro' mountain passes
Break athwart the frosty night;
Spring among the seething grasses
Stirs a newer pulse of light;
Sweet and strange the April weather,—
Generous she of heart and hand,
Sun and storm she brings together,
Strong to conquer and command.

Now about the rugged places
And along the ruined way,
Light and free in sudden graces
Come the careless feet of May,—
Born in tempest, wrought in power,
Stirred by sudden hope and fear,
You may find a mystic flower
In the spring-time of the year!

—By Dora Read Goodale.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Laverne—Does your husband talk in his sleep?

Alice—No, but I wish he would. He only smiles.—Detroit News.

"Are you buying a new fur coat this winter?"

"No. You see, I just finished buying the one I began buying last winter." Christian Science Monitor.

"Jones is always bragging about his kid."

"What has he done now?"

"He set the house afire with Jones's cigar-lighter."—Open Road.

"Do you drink?" asked the prosecuting counsel.

"That's my business," answered the indignant witness.

"Any other?" asked the counsel.—Montreal Star.

Fozzleton—"Meechum is down with nervous prostration."

Bozzleton—"Why, he was all right the day before yesterday."

Fozzleton—"Yes, but yesterday he went shopping with his wife."—New Bedford Standard.

I heard a man complain once in my church of the "end-seat hogs," says Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher. I thought it over, and decided that an "end-seat hog" is the fellow who gets the seat you want.—Christian Register.

A commercial traveler, staying at a small hotel, wished to catch an early morning train, and asked the proprietress for the loan of an alarm clock. She produced the clock and remarked:

"We don't often use it, sir, and sometimes it sticks a bit, but if it doesn't go off just touch the little hammer and it'll ring all right."—Pepper and Salt.

Many persons returning to their homes after the flood waters had receded in Vermont found unusual "gifts." In one house a cow was found, alive and contentedly reposing on a sofa in a second-story room, and in the dilapidated library in another dwelling stood a small, white marble statue of the Venus de Milo, unharmed and as beautiful as ever, but it had never been there before and no one knew where it came from.

An aluminum alloy automobile chassis, which reduces the weight of cars almost by half, is being experimented with by French makers. A frame that weighs only 350 pounds was exhibited recently to the Academy of Sciences. This chassis, it was said, was for a six-cylinder car that would weigh, complete, only 1,760 pounds. With a normal steel construction, such a car would weigh 3,300 pounds. The light chassis was cast in one piece, eliminating bolts and rivets. The metal is similar to that used in certain types of alloy pistons.

Many are the towns in Georgia with queer names. There is Agnes, Lula and Helen; there is a Stop, a Linger and a Cumsio; and Jimps, Poor Robin, Canoe, Cash, Kuyk, Dot, Ty Ty, Joy, Nickajack, Shin Bone and Asbestos, and many more, but the prize for brevity belongs to a little settlement in Gilmer county, which was a long time ago named Al. Whether it is a typographical error for Al or whether the residents ever heard of the common and convenient little cross-word puzzle definition for a three-toed sloth, the record does not say.—Boston Globe.

Winston Churchill, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, is superstitious. This was revealed in the course of a speech on trade at Wanstead when Churchill interrupted himself to knock on wood as he said, "I don't want to prophesy, but I think that on the whole, you will find that things are going to get better." The chancellor is also superstitious, according to his intimate friends, about the number 13. It is said that at one time he had a number of articles which all bore a number 13. He had them all altered. He also objects to sitting down with 13 at the table, always trying to contrive to get another guest when this emergency arises.

The liquor was seized as evidence against Gentilella.

DAUGHTER SUICIDES WHILE MOTHER IS AT WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 5—Lying on the floor of her home, 48 Hempstead street, dead from her own act, was the sight which confronted Mrs. Bridget Donohue, late this afternoon, when she returned home and found the lifeless body of her daughter, Elizabeth, 28, who had sought death by inhalation of gas. The body showed that death had occurred many hours before the grief-stricken mother made the discovery. Death was undoubtedly brought about through a nervous breakdown that had shattered Miss Donohue's health, for such a condition occurred some time ago. Since then the young woman's acts had repeatedly displayed unmistakable signs of an unbalanced brain.

Miss Donohue and her mother resided together and this morning the daughter accompanied the mother to the latter's place of employment in Faire Harbour place. Returning home, it is evident that the young woman contemplated self-destruction, for after removing her outer attire, Miss Donohue turned on the cock of an illuminating gas jet over the head of the bed in her sleeping room. The flow of the poisonous fumes caused the room to gradually fill with gas and in a short time the young woman was rendered unconscious. No one entered the house until the mother returned from her work about 5 o'clock. When Mrs. Donohue discovered her daughter's body lying on the floor by the bed she summoned neighbors and it being apparent that the young woman was dead, the police were notified. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith went to the house and notified Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman. After a brief investigation that official permitted the body to be removed to an undertaking establishment.

Miss Donohue showed positive symptoms of a deranged mind several weeks ago when she created a scene on State street, which resulted in her arrest but not her prosecution, as none of those offended by her acts desired to proceed against her. The young woman was near State street and as women pedestrians passed her, Miss Donohue would either spit at them or make ugly faces, besides thrusting a pin into those who walked near her or else she would kick them. Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy arrested the young woman, but because of her unquestionable mental condition, she was not presented in court to answer for her conduct.

COUNCIL SUPPORTS HOLT WHO WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 5—In the council meeting tonight, Mayor May lost out in his opposition to the city manager. At the special meeting last Monday the city council requested the city manager to change his plans as to traffic on Bank street, where improvements are being made, and to divert traffic from north to south. The city manager has conferred with the traffic officers, the fire marshal and the management of the trolley road and all have advised sending traffic north, making it a one-way street. The city manager declined to comply with the request of the city council and has kept traffic moving north.

At the meeting tonight, Councilor Scott brought the matter up and intimated that the action on the petition of Bank street merchants did not get the consideration it should have had. He said that the petition should have been received and referred to committee. Mayor May objected to these remarks and said the action was right. He said it was a question of whether the city manager and appointee of the council was to dictate to that body. Councilor Whiton poured oil upon the troubled waters, saying that the petition was hurriedly read and was not given the consideration it should have received. He said the orderly way of procedure was to have referred it to committee, and called the action of last Monday snap judgment. He said such a matter should not have been hurriedly acted upon. He declared that Secretary Gariepy of the chamber of commerce, who advocated the petition, was not acting for that body as a representative and had no authority to speak for it. He said the matter had now gotten the matured judgment of the public and that judgment was that the matter was too hastily acted upon. He declared that people were asked to sign the petition without realizing the importance of their act.

Councilor Scott then spoke for the city manager, saying that he had done right in ignoring the request of the council and he honored him for it. Scott felt that the petition was railroaded through. He declared that merchants of Bank street who signed the petition could have met the city manager in regard to it, but failed to. Then he said the mayor got busy and personally solicited signers. The mayor denied this absolutely, saying that there were weak-kneed persons who, rather than face the music, would prefer to withdraw their signatures from a petition.

On a vote to rescind the action of the city council requesting the city manager to reverse traffic, the vote was 6 to 1, the mayor alone voting against it. Councilor Whiton then moved a vote of confidence in the city manager and a request to withdraw his resignation. The vote on that was 6 to 1, Mayor May voting against it. The city manager did withdraw his resignation, saying that he was pleased with the action of the council in expressing its confidence in him. He said that now the thing to do was for all to work together for the prosperity of the city, which prosperity was just around the corner.

The funeral of Amile Smith was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church, a high mass of requiem being sung by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were G. Mingo, J. Lake, G. Hunt, B. Lake, H. Lawrence and C. Burnett. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of James C. Platt, of West Mystic was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles F. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The body was forwarded to New Bedford, Mass., for burial this afternoon.

Funeral services for Robert Charles Merritt, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the parents, 101 Monument street, Groton. Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Mrs. Harriet I. Rose, 78, wife of Frank M. Rose, died Sunday at her residence in Waterford, after a lingering illness from heart disease. Besides her husband Mrs. Rose is survived by a son, Frank B. Rose, of Pequot avenue. Mrs. Rose was born in Waterford and had always resided there.

William L. Beebe, 74, formerly of Niantic, died Sunday at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, where he had been a resident but a month. He is survived by two sons, William C. Beebe, of Niantic and Benjamin M. Beebe, of New York; three daughters, Mrs. Ernest F. Decker, of Riverview avenue, this city, Misses Thelma and Lois Beebe, of Niantic and a sister, Mrs. Medora Cole of this city. Mr. Beebe was born in East Lyme, Sept. 7, 1853.

Raymond Green, 61 Blackhall street, was charged with breach of the peace, in the city court today. His case was continued to April 22. Green was arrested Saturday after Mrs. Anna Sweezy, residing in the same house with Green, made complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin that during an altercation she had with Green the latter beat her, striking her several blows on the face and head.

The continued case of Frank Perry, of Waterford, charged with breach of the peace, was disposed of by nolle. Perry was arrested several weeks ago when Mrs. Louis Pelletier claimed that Perry had attacked and struck her.

The continued case of Louis Saferda, of Central Falls, R. I., charged with reckless driving, was again continued, this time to April 1. Saferda was in New London several months ago attending a Syrian celebration at Ocean beach. When he and his companions in an automobile were driving along Ocean avenue the car collided with another car and continued to the side of the road where it crashed against a telephone pole and overturned. Two of the passengers were seriously injured and received hospital treatment for several weeks.

The continued case of Joseph Amorel, charged with indecent exposure, was ended today by a nolle being entered. Amorel was arrested several months ago suspected of being the man who had seized women in secluded sections of the city. He was bound over to the superior court for trial and that tribunal discharged him. Amorel was again arrested charged with exposing himself to Mrs. Stella Rybecki, Harrison street. The case was continued to today and is now disposed of.

John Ferrarra, United States coast guard, state pier, will be in the police court tomorrow charged with reckless driving and driving without a license. Ferrarra was ordered into court today by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin, Sunday night when the officer detected Ferrarra driving a motorcycle in a reckless manner on State street. It then developed that Ferrarra did not have a license. He also said his name was "Jack Davis" and he failed to present himself in court as ordered. It was then disclosed that Davis was a fictitious name and that Ferrarra was his correct name. A warrant for his arrest was issued and assured Ferrarra's court presentation tomorrow.

George D. Roberts, of Winsted, and Miss Dorothy M. Goss, formerly of New London, but now of Westbrook, were married Sunday by Rev. Chester H. Howe, at the residence of the pastor of the First Baptist church, Cleveland street. Henry Brooks, of Wakefield, Mass., was best man and Miss Helen Goss, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Floyd H. Harris, United States coast guard, state pier, was presented in the Groton town court today, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The case was continued until next Monday. Fuller Phenston, also a coast guardsman, was charged with intoxication and his case, too, was continued a week. It was Prosecuting Attorney Harry Brogan's first service as prosecutor since his recent appointment to succeed Warren B. Burrows, named two weeks ago a federal judge, and roses decorated the prosecutor's desk, the gift of several intimate friends. One other case, that of a young girl having strayed from the straight and narrow path, was disposed of by the girl being placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The girl, although but 12, had sent obscene valentines to married women. Several cases of youthful and unruly boys also occupied the attention of the court.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Centenary of the birth of Johnson N. Camden, who served eight years as U. S. senator from West Virginia.

Today is the day when the voters of the little communities in Vermont come together for their annual town meetings.

The first concrete move in the 1928 national political campaign will be made today in South Dakota, where the state conventions, or "proposal meetings," are to be held.

In celebration of the Jules Verne centenary a globe-encircling race by representatives of six European newspapers, which will follow the route of Phineas Fogg in Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days," will start today from Paris.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

St. Mary's Players

The cast of Nothing But the Truth is being rapidly rounded into form. This year's play has eleven characters—five men and six women. The women have it on the men for numbers. This fact ought to interest many. All have plenty to do. As in most plays, some of the cast have more to do than others. But this is a well balanced show, cleverly worked out. After you have seen it you will agree that much of what went on in the play occurs in life, and so this ought to interest you the more to witness it.

Breed Theatre

Romance is just around the corner in everyday life. No matter how humdrum your existence may seem, adventure and thrills are near by, just as O. Henry found them, in the most commonplace situations.

This is again proved in First National's epic of the traveling man, "Smile, Brother, Smile," which closes tonight at the Breed.

It is the story of a shipping clerk who became a traveling man. His career is threatened by the sales manager, who is disloyal to his firm, and the undoing of this executive is brought about largely by the wit and cleverness of a telephone girl, played by Miss Mackaill.

There is entertainment in every foot of the celluloid, and it is just such a story as might happen to any one of the thousands of knights of the grip who are the mainsprings of the business world.

Comedy touches lighten the story, and clever Jack Mulhall was never seen to better advantage than as the shipping clerk who make good on the road.

He is ably supported by a carefully chosen cast, and beautiful Miss Mackaill is charming and lovely as the telephone girl.

One great drawback to the popularity of the inevitable is its refusal to making concessions.

Olympic Rink

Saturday evening Manager Hendrick gave his patrons a big surprise by having Ernest Youngst, manager of the Meriden roller rink, and Linn Conger, manager of the Rialto roller rink, Torrington, give a fancy and trick exhibition of roller skating. The audience showed their appreciation by applause of the graceful and difficult tricks on the rollers from start to finish. Manager Hendrick is always on the lookout for something new to entertain his many patrons. Tonight the Mohicans will battle the West Siders in the fourth game of the City Polo league. The game promises to be a hard fought one as it is the first game between these two teams. Thursday night there will be a one-mile race between John Savage on roller skates and Young Star on the bicycle. This race ought to bring out a crowd, as it is the first one of the kind put on in this city.

Palace Theatre

A pistol duel at four paces, with a girl watching, a dagger poised at her heart, ready to end her life if her sweetheart is killed, forms one of the high dramatic points in "Two Arabian Knights," which will be seen for the last times today at the Palace theatre.

It is a practical impossibility to miss in a duel at this distance, but the American soldier and the Arab officer who are the principals both live through it. How? By an original twist of the situation that is better seen than described.

"Two Arabian Knights," despite this exciting incident and others like it, is not a heavy drama. It is a comedy-drama, packed with swift moving and laughable situations, depicting the adventures of two American soldiers at the close of the war. In escaping from a German prison camp in Arab attire they find their disguise leads them into so many unusual circumstances that they often wish they were back in the comparative safety of the camp.

William Boyd plays the principal part. Mary Astor is cast opposite him, and the character part, of equal importance to the two leads, is in the hands of Louis Wolheim, stage star and original Captain Flagg of "What Price Glory?" when it was first presented in New York.

Tomorrow a double feature program will be presented at the Palace. Shirley Mason and Ralph Graves are starred in "Rich Men's Sons," a drama of romance and adventure among society's favorites, in which gilded youth finds itself redeemed in love and labor.

Tom Tyler and his pals will be seen in the co-feature, "Tom's Gang." It's an amazingly new idea in western pictures, appealing to the heart of child and grown-up alike, a story that will long be remembered.

Twenty-five dollars in gold and ten valuable and useful presents will be given away absolutely free.

Strand Theatre

They named him "The Gray Devil" and put a price on his head. And then a gang of conscienceless crooks sought to mask their wrongs by laying the blame on him. See Jack Perrin, together with Starlight, the wonder horse, and Rex, the movie collie, in "The Gray Devil," showing for the last time at the Strand. It is a story of a man and a girl—a horse and a dog; a story of intrigue and romance that will furnish the beholder many a thrill.

A piano scarf transformed by the deft fingers of Colleen Moore into a ballroom cape is the medium through which the star, portraying a modern Cinderella, is enabled to make a picture that has afforded such enormous enjoyment to her following of fans and Lloyd Hughes as the handsome iceman is an ideal leading man for the talented star. This interesting romance tells of a country girl's efforts to get a foothold in the movies, how she leaves the dishpan for the Klieg light's glare, and how she makes good.

"Barefoot Boy" is an interesting Scenic which you will enjoy.

COUNCIL MAKES MOVE TO KNOW MORE OF WHAT MONEY OF CITY IS SPENT FOR

When Alderman Harold C. Dahl offered a motion at the March meeting of the court of common council, that hereafter the various city departments present more clearly itemized bills for incorporation in the proceedings of the council meetings as printed in the council journal, he started a spirited controversy between several members of the council as to the necessity of such action being taken. The contention of the alderman was that the bills as printed in the journal should be itemized in such a manner as to show clearly just what the money was used for, rather than simply listing the name of the person or firm with the amount of the bill. The alderman pointed out several bills listed in the journal that did not specify just what the money was used for. During the controversy it was brought out that all city department bills are itemized, and that anyone who wants to see any bill can do so. After the matter had been discussed at some length the council finally adopted Alderman Dahl's motion.

New Police Ordinance Proposed

An ordinance concerning the appointment of policemen, providing that no person less than 21 years or more than 30 years of age shall hereafter be appointed to the police department as a supernumerary officer and repealing the police appointment ordinance in force at the present time, was submitted to the council by Alderman Gregson. The council voted that the ordinance be published, according to law, and that it be acted on at the next council meeting.

Should the new ordinance be adopted it will open the way for the appointment of Eugene Calkins, now a supernumerary officer, to the regular force. The present ordinance specifies that no person over 35 years of age shall be named to the regular force, and as Mr. Calkins, who is the first man on the supernumerary list, is 36 years of age, the ordinance bars him from appointment to regular police officer. The new ordinance not only opens the way for Mr. Calkins' appointment, but also for the appointment of any others on the supernumerary list who are over 35 years old.

The meeting was called to order shortly before 8:20 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, and the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to custom.

Petitions Received

Petitions were received and acted upon as follows:

From Catherine E. Pratt, asking the removal of a tree in front of No. 20 Durfey street. Referred to the public works committee with power.

From John S. Huggard, et al., asking for a bug light on Hillside avenue. Referred to the police committee with power.

From Nicholas Scarlato, asking the removal of a tree at No. 228 Broad street. Referred to the public works department with power.

From Lillian Rogers, et al., asking for an electric light on Pratt street, to be located between numbers 29 and 63 Pratt street. Referred to the police committee with power.

From George E. Pitcher, asking for a city ordinance barring any persons, owing the city any money, from election to public office and from allowing their names to be used as a candidate for any elective office. The petition read as follows:

"At the request of several taxpayers of the said city, the undersigned taxpayer, hereby petitions your honorable body to draw and pass an ordinance so that no one owing the city or town of Norwich shall be eligible to any elective office within said city.

"And also include in said ordinance, a penalty to him or her for allowing their names to be used as a candidate for any elective office in said city, when said candidate, or any member of their household shall be in debt to the city or town of Norwich, whatsoever.

"I would suggest that the penalty, for allowing his or her name to be used as a candidate, in violation to the intent of said ordinance shall be punishable by a fine and jail sentence—jail sentence not to be suspended."

Councilman Spellman moved that the petition be received by the council and it was so ordered.

From Abraham Curland and about 200 others, asking for a city ordinance fixing 38 as the age limit for appointments to either the supernumerary or ordinary police force, and stating that the petitioners believe the present ordinance unfair regarding the 35-year age limit.

Alderman Sweeney moved that the petition be received and placed on file and the motion was adopted. Mayor Waters stated that a new ordinance would be presented later in the evening and that he believed it would no doubt satisfy the petitioners.

Petitions Granted

The monthly reports of the city treasurer and street commissioner were received and accepted after which the police committee reported that the following petitions, referred to them, had been granted:

From John Bowker, for an electric light on Roosevelt avenue; from C. J. Downes, to change a bug light to an arc light on Prospect street, at the rear of St. Mary's Memorial church; from A. Werman & Son for a light on Thames street, opposite the entrance to their yard.

Alderman Gregson submitted a new ordinance concerning the appointment of policemen, as follows:

Be it ordained by the court of common council of the City of Norwich:

Section 1—No person less than 21 years of age or more than 30 years of age or less than five feet seven inches in height shall hereafter be designated and appointed to the police department of the city as a supernumerary policeman nor shall any person not of sound physique or not in good health be hereafter appointed or designated a supernumerary policeman of said police department.

Section 2—No person who has not served at least six months as a supernumerary policeman of said police department or who is not of sound physique or not in good health shall hereafter be appointed or designated an ordinary policeman of said police department.

Section 3—An ordinance of the City of Norwich concerning the appointment of policemen, adopted by the court of common council, May 7, 1923, is hereby repealed.

The council accepted the proposed ordinance, and it was ordered published according to law, action to be taken on it at the next council meeting.

$150 to Settle Claim

The council adopted a resolution requesting the city treasurer to pay to V. P. A. Quinn, attorney for Joseph Sadoway, $150, in full settlement of Mr. Sadoway's claim against the city as the result of a fall he sustained on Mechanic street and for which he has brought suit against the city in the superior court.

Notice of a claim against the city by Frederick K. Noyes was received and referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel. The claim is the result of a fall which Mr. Noyes sustained on Broadway, Feb. 5, due to a defective sidewalk. His ankle was broken in the fall.

A claim from F. L. Maples was also referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel. Mr. Maples claims that 20 bushels of potatoes, valued at $30, were spoiled when a stopped-up sewer flooded his cellar, in which the potatoes were stored.

Councilman C. A. Hagberg said he thought the council should have a report, before the end of the fiscal year, as to all claims referred to the finance committee and not acted on by that committee. He offered a motion that such a report be made by the finance committee at the May meeting of the council and the motion prevailed.

For Itemized Bills

A spirited controversy over clearer itemizing of department bills printed in the council journal followed. Alderman Dahl said that in the council journal, all departments, with the exception of the fire department, have not itemized their bills very clearly. He said he thought the departments should itemize their bills more clearly, and offered a motion to that effect.

Councilman Spellman said the alderman's idea was all right but that there are a great many invoices that would have to be printed in the journal. Alderman Henry Gebrath of the public works committee, took issue with Alderman Dahl's proposal. From the list of public works department bills, as printed in the journal, he read, "Ring Bros., rent and supplies." "Doesn't that show what they furnished?" he asked. Another item read by the alderman was "L. E. Millea, insurance." The alderman said that that showed that the money was for insurance. "I think the alderman is going too far," said Alderman Gebrath.

Councilman C. A. Hagberg said he didn't think the alderman was going too far. Where is the harm in listing a repair item, as, "repairing a fence on Laurel Hill, $500"? he asked.

"Why pick on the public works department?" asked Alderman Gebrath.

"I don't think he is picking on the public works department," said Mayor Waters. "Your motion is to have the bills more clearly itemized, isn't it?" asked the mayor of Alderman Dahl, and the latter said it was.

"Are not all the department bills itemized?" asked Alderman Sweeney. "They are," said the mayor.

"What he wants is to have the itemized bills printed in the journal?" asked Alderman Sweeney.

"Anyone who wants to see any bill can do so. I think he (Alderman Dahl) is going too far," said Alderman Gebrath.

"According to the alderman, it seems as though he doesn't want these bills itemized for some reason or other," said Alderman Dahl. "The council ought to know what the bills are for," he continued.

"Doesn't the committee know what they are for?" asked Alderman Gebrath.

"Yes," said Alderman Dahl, "but does the council know?"

Councilman Thompson referred to the city as being head over heels in debt. He said he thought the reason Alderman Dahl brought up the question is to get an idea of what the money is being spent for.

After more or less additional discussion of the matter, in which several members of the council participated, the motion was put to question and was adopted.

Department Bills Received

Department bills were received and accepted, as follows: Finance, $103,152.84; fire department, $7,213.59; police, $5,978.81; recreation commission, $438.03; cemetery department, $348.33; water department, $2,748.07; gas and electric department, $96,820.97; public works department, $6,930.02; Deep River reservoir bills, $749.25.

The council adjourned at 9 o'clock.

Earle Mathewson of Providence street has returned from spending a short time with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Mathewson and family in Hopedale, Mass.

Mrs. Arthur Varley and Miss Dorothy Varley of Portland, and Milton E. Lane of Wethersfield have been recent guests of friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Young of North Third avenue have been recent visitors in Boston, Mass.

Rev. Frederick B. Bunker of Wilton, Conn., was the preacher at the Sunday morning service of the Taftville Congregational church. The anthem after the offertory was "I Will Extol Thee," sung by the members of the choir under the direction of Miss Nellie S. Howie. In the evening there was the regular weekly meeting of the members of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry, at which it was announced that on next Sunday evening the local meeting would be omitted to allow the members to attend the meeting in Norwich which is to be addressed by Miss Margaret Slattery. Last Sunday, Mr. Bunker's son, Wilfred H. Bunker, a student at the Union Theological seminary in New York was the preacher at the church.

On Friday evening the members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society held one of their series of lenten card parties at their rooms on Providence street, with all the tables taken. The first prize for ladies went to Miss Katherine Fontaine; the second to Miss Viola Sullivan and the consolation to Miss Helen Breault. Edward Lambert was awarded the first prize for gentlemen; Antonio Caron the second and the consolation went to Harry Collins. The committee which had charge of the successful affair included Mrs. Andrew Frohmader, chairman; Miss Mayme Murphy, Miss Elizabeth Ward, Miss Agnes Murphy and Miss Mary Nolan.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree and their little son Harold, Jr., of Goodyear spent Sunday with Mr. Pingree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree and family of North C street.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Kean of Woonsocket, R. I., former Taftville residents have been week-end visitors at the home of local friends.

Mrs. Marshall Russi of Merchants avenue has returned from Voluntown where she has been spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Briggs.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patrylo and Stephen Patrylo of Voluntown were Sunday visitors with friends in the village.

Harold E. Linderson of Providence street was a week end visitor at Pine Tree cottage at North Stonington.

Some of the young people of the Taftville Congregational church are planning an illustrated lecture on the "Birds and Flowers of Connecticut" to be given by Rev. Frederick B. Bunker of Wilton, Conn. Rev. Mr. Bunker who is to occupy the pulpit at the church for several Sundays has stereoticon slides covering a great many subjects which he uses in his lectures throughout the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Porter Staebner who have been recent guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Atkins of South Second avenue are to move soon from Derby to make their home in Mansfield.

Work is progressing at a rapid rate on the new business building being erected by John Thoma on Norwich avenue for Martin Krauss. The building will have a store on the lower floor and a commodious apartment on the second.

A huge flock of English starlings which visits the village every little while put in its appearance Monday, the flock having grown considerably since it was here last. When they alighted in the village yards, the ground was literally black with them. They devour everything edible that they can steal and are a nuisance generally. They were introduced into this country only a few years ago with the hope that they might be the means of exterminating the English sparrow, and while the sparrow has to some extent disappeared, the new arrivals have become as great a pest as their predecessors ever were.

The teachers of the Taftville Congregational church school are planning a playlet which they plan to present in the near future for the benefit of the new boiler fund of the church.

WOULD CHANGE DATE FOR PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURAL

Constitutional Amendment Proposed in the House to Change Date of Inauguration From March 4 to January 24—For Four Successive Years the Senate Has Passed a Resolution to That Effect—Amendment is Attached to a Measure That Would Abolish Short Sessions of Congress—Representative Merritt Opposed the Amendment.

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—The house took counsel with itself today on the advisability of accepting the Norris-White amendment to the constitution proposing to abolish "lame duck" or short sessions of congress and to change the presidential inaugural date from March 4 to January 24.

The amendment also would provide for succession to the presidency by the vice-president-elect in event of the death of the former and empower congress to provide for the succession in case of the death of both.

The debate drew to the house floor one of the largest attendances of the session and endorsements of the amendment by both Representatives Garrett of Tennessee, the democratic leader, and Burton, of Ohio one of the powers in republican congressional ranks, were heard by considerably more than a quorum of the membership.

For four successive years the senate has passed a similar resolution, but today was the first time that the question has been called up in the house. The senate in approving the resolution early this session did so with a two-thirds vote, which also will be necessary in the house. Ratification by three fourths of the state legislatures then would be necessary.

Presidential approval is not required.

Abolition of the "lame duck" session would be obtained by providing that congress convene January 4, after the pending November elections.

This session, coming in odd numbered years, could run for 12 months and in even numbered years, under the resolution there would be a four-month session ending May 4.

At present the long sessions come in the even numbered years and the short, or "lame duck" sessions, in the odd numbered years following the November elections.

Representative Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, announced he would seek approval of a provision to increase from two to four years the term of house members. Under his proposal, he said, half of the house membership would be elected every two years somewhat similar to the three-year rotation in the senate.

Several members, including Jeffers of Alabama, Norton, of Nebraska, and Lozier, of Missouri, opposed inclusion of a specific date for adjournment of the four months session contending this should be left to congress to determine, while Representative Merritt, republican, Connecticut opposed the amendment as a whole. He declared there was no movement among the American people for such a change in government and that "lame duck" sessions had never caused the country any material harm.

After upwards of a score of members had spoken the house deferred until Thursday further consideration of the amendment, tomorrow previously having been set aside for other legislation. Leaders hope to reach a vote late Thursday although approximately an hour and thirty minutes remains for general debate plus the time that will be required to discuss amendments.

MERRITT AGAINST HASTY REVISION OF CONSTITUTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, March 6—Congressman Schyler Merritt delivered in the house today one of the most effective arguments against hasty revision of the constitution through amendments, that has been heard.

Mr. Merritt said, briefly summarized that the prohibition and suffrage amendments had apparently shut out from view what he regarded as the most important of the last three amendments, namely, the election of senators by the direct vote of the people.

"The result has shown that it is impossible for a man without great wealth, or who is not backed by great wealth to conduct a primary campaign in any of the large states. More than that, the scandals that have occupied the attention of the country in connection with the direct election of senators have been connected with the direct primary," said Mr. Merritt.

Mr. Merritt referred to these facts as "illustrating the danger of changes which alter or tend to alter the form of our government, which was founded by men of great wisdom."

Mr. Merritt believes the constitution provided for states rights and against hasty legislation. He referred to the "dangers and troubles that have come from the alterations already made in the constitution" urging that before other changes are made actual evidence of existing evils and harm has come to the nation." Mr. Merritt thus led up to the proposed change in the sessions of congress and the inauguration of president. "It is better to wait until the agitations of elections are over, and I believe the newly elected congress should not meet until some months after the members have been elected." Mr. Merritt gave strong grounds for his opinion and closed by saying the country had come to no harm by the present congressional session, as under the constitution.

MISSING FINGERS LED TO CAPTURE OF MAIL ROBBER

PORTLAND, Me., March 6—(AP)—Four fingers missing from his hand was the clue which landed Richard Cuddaba, alias Henry Shelling, 40, of Syracuse, N. Y., alleged mail robber, into the clutches of Detective Richard J. Nugent, of the Portland police, here today.

A postoffice circular gave the information that Cuddaba, wanted by postoffic inspectors as a member of a gang alleged to have robbed a railroad station in Michigan of a number of mail sacks had four missing digits.

He at first denied his identity when Nugent confronted him with a gun. He later admitted, however, that he was Cuddaba when papers bearing that name were found in his possession. Blank prison parole papers of a Michigan prison were also found in his pocket, police said.

COMMITTEE AGAINST THE ABOLITION OF SUBS

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—By a margin of one vote the house foreign affairs committee refused today to approve the Frothingham resolution to place congress on record, as favoring the abolition of submarines by international agreement. Six members voted against the proposal, five for it, and ten were not recorded.

Leading the fight against the resolution, Chairman Porter declared that the submarine in many instances was the sole weapon of defense for smaller nations against large ones. He added that the proposal would be "more than an empty gesture," because in asking small nations to abolish the undersea craft "we are strengthening our own defense by weakening theirs."

WOMAN KILLED WHEN AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNED

MACON, Ga., March 6—(AP)—Mrs. J. A. Fountain, wife of Dr. J. A. Fountain, prominent physician, was killed and Miss Grace Faxon, Boston author, was seriously injured when the automobile in which they were riding overturned and caught fire near Forsyth, Ga., today.

George P. Rankin, Jr., of Macon, who was driving the car, escaped with slight injuries. The party was en route to Atlanta.

Witnesses said the automobile skidded on a sharp curve while going at a high rate of speed, crashed into a wagon and overturned.

Physicians said Mrs. Fountain died as a result of a broken neck and back, while Miss Faxon was said to be suffering from a fractured pelvis.

Dr. Fountain was in New Orleans attending the session of the American College of Physicians.

Miss Faxon has been editor of the Normal Instructor, a magazine for school teachers.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Fountain was Miss Susan Stallings of Americus, Ga., a cousin of Lawrence Stallings, the author and playwright. She formerly was said to have appeared on the New York stage and had studied dramatic art there.

HAPGOOD AND HIS WIFE UNABLE TO OBTAIN BAIL

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 6—(AP)—Unable to secure bail in $1,000 each, Powers Hapgood of New York, representative of the American Civil Liberties union and his wife, former Mary Donovan of Boston, were still occupying cells at the Luzerne county jail tonight. Though their efforts to secure a bondsman have been futile, the prisoners are in good spirits and do not seem at all apprehensive over the outcome of their trial in charges of inciting to riot and disorderly conduct at the April term of criminal court.

Hapgood in an interview today declared that the cause he is working for is a just one and that he will continue his efforts in its behalf. He predicted further turmoil and gunplay in the Pittston district unless the contract system in mines of the Pennsylvania Coal Company is abolished, but declared "it will not be our friends who will do the shooting."

VOTE ON TRACTION STRIKE IN NEW YORK POSTPONED

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—Refusal of the company to arbitrate its differences with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes was met today by an eleventh hour effort to avert a threatened strike of Interborough Rapid Transit employes when William D. Mahon, president of the union, moved to postpone action until Saturday.

A strike vote had been scheduled to be taken at a meeting of the union tonight. After a telephone conversation with Mayor Walker, Mr. Mahon announced that the executive committee of the union had decided to defer action until after another conference had been held with the mayor when he returns from Washington Saturday.

The union is demanding the reinstatement fo 21 of its members who were suspended, the union leaders claim, because of their affiliation with that organization. In its rejection of the arbitration proposal transmitted from the union to the company through Mayor Walker, company officials said they would not accept suggestions of procedure from a union which it did not recognize as representing any of its employes.

Meanwhile the transit commission announced emergency transportation plans worked out in consultation with the heads of other carrier systems for use in event the strike should materialize. The company today also continued its emergency preparations by starting training at various terminals of several hundred men whom it had recruited to take the place of those who may leave its services.

NO FURTHER PROSECUTION OF FURNITURE ALLIANCE

CHICAGO, March 6—(AP)—The likelihood of further federal prosecution of the National Furniture Alliance under the Sherman anti-trust act seemed unlikely after fifty member concerns pleaded nolo contendre and were fined $500 to $3,500.

Of the more than 200 furniture manufacturing establishments indicted two years ago, more than 100 pleaded guilty and fines aggregating $500,000 were levied.

Nolo contendere subjects the defendant to judgment without an admission of guilt.

Counsel for the defendants in accepting nolo contendere pleas declared they did so only to avoid further financial strain. Some had been forced into bankruptcy as a result of the litigation, and others preferred to accept fines without admitting guilty than further endanger their credit and resources.

The firms and their fines included the Halland Lyon Furniture Company, Waverly, N. Y., $500; Marsman, Hall & Company, Inc., Leominster, Mass., $500; George J. Michelson Furniture Company, Rochester, N. Y., $750; Tillotson Furniture Corporation, Jamestown, N. Y., $750.

INDICATIONS INCREASE OF "HOLY WAR" IN ARABIA

LONDON, March 6—(AP)—The "holy war" in Arabia came nearer to reality tonight when an Exchange Telegraph agency dispatch from Jerusalem brought unofficial word that Ibn Saud, king of the Hedjaz and Sulton of Nejd had made a formal declaration of hostilities against the three British mandates that border his desert realm from the Red Sea to the head of the Persian gulf.

Official quarters are silent here but allow an inference that active steps are being taken to meet the situation. English newspapers openly discuss the problem of defence against this menace of the Wahabi tribes.

The situation was created when the Arabian desert king, formerly a friend of Great Britain, decided to cast his lot with the war-like groups which long have been raiding their northern neighbors. Ibn Saud, with typical Mohammedan tactics at once put the movement on a religious plane.

He is, however, directing his wrath at "renegade and unfaithful" sects against whom he will lead "true Moslems."

CLEMENT NOT IMPLICATED IN MISS BROWN MURDER

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—As quickly as he had appeared in the picture by his unannounced surrender to the police, Louis Clement Van Norden, alias "Dr. Louis Clement" was cleared today of connection with the slaying of Miss Margaret Brown, governess.

The police appeared satisfied that Clement had worked in Manhattan all of the day on which the woman was killed and could not have been in New Jersey where her burning body was found. Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, another governess, declared that Clement was not the man with whom she had seen her friend.

There still remained the charge of grand larceny for the theft of a diamond pendant from his estranged wife, Mrs. Theresa Van Norden. Clement will be given a hearing on that charge on Thursday.

He had been sought for days by the police for questioning concerning Miss Brown who was left on a lonely road last February 20, stunned by blows and her gasoline-soaked clothing in flames.

REBELS CAPTURED BY MARINES IN NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua March 6—(AP)—President Diaz was advised today by the chief of police at Bluefields that American marines yesterday captured four men near False Bluff, with one machine gun, fifty rifles, and 50,000 rounds of ammunition. False Bluff is ten miles north of Bluefields.

The scouting airplanes observed no movements of any bands during their flights today, although the marine forces are being strengthened to the north of Matagalpa, where there is a considerable foreign population.

KARL RADER CAPTURED IN AN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

HAMBURG, Germany, March 6—(AP)—The Hamburg Fremdenblatt has received information that Karl Radek who was first expelled from the central communist committee of Russia and later exiled with Leon Trotzky as an "incorrigible," has been captured in an attempt to escape to Germany. M. Radek was sent to Ust-Sysolsk, a small town in the far north. He had made his way to Smolensk, only a few miles from the Polish border, when the political police overtook him.

Tilson and Garrett Touch on Radio Political News

Tilson Touched Both on Prohibition and the Possibility of the Nomination of Al Smith.

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—After many an argument on the house floor, the two party leaders—Tilson, of Connecticut, and Garrett, of Tennessee—took to the radio tonight to air their differences on public and political questions.

Tilson, the republican field marshal, predicted the democrats, at a loss for an issue in the coming presidential campaign, would revive the tariff question, and "as usual, the republicans will win because they deserve to win."

Garrett, who is in charge of democratic maneuvers in the house, came back with the assertion that congress was accomplishing next to nothing, and the republican majority was to blame.

The two party chiefs shared a half-hour program sent on to the air through 22 radio stations by the National Broadcasting company. It was one of the fortnightly debates arranged by the National League of Women Voters.

Devoting himself mainly to the campaign, Tilson touched on both the prohibition question and the possibility of Governor Smith of New York becoming the democratic standard bearer. Garrett centered his fire on the republican leadership in congress and wound up with the observation that the "present outlook is that this session is to pass into history as well night a blank page."

Tilson reviewed the accomplishments of the republican party in the last seven years, emphasizing the reduction of the public debt, institution of the budget system and revision of the tariff. Veering to the coming campaign, he said there was no issue "about which the public generally feels more deeply or talks more vehemently than prohibition." Declaring there is a sharp division on this subject in both parties, he added:

"It is almost a certainty that neither party will make adherence or opposition to the cause of prohibition the test of party loyalty, or that either party will disregard other issues and, by accepting support only upon this ground, alienate all those former members of the party who do not agree on this program."

Then Tilson turned to the religious question, with this observation:

"It is contended by many that if Governor Smith is nominated at Houston a religious issue will enter into the campaign, which is, of course, the most difficult and disturbing of all issues to deal with. Doubtless there are bigots among both Catholics and Protestants whose political judgment might be warped by the fact that a candidate professes one religion rather than another, but it is hard to believe that with all our professions of religious liberty and tolerance the American people will permit such an issue to be controlling on either side."

In the end, Mr. Tilson predicted, the democrats will fall back on their advocacy "of destroying the protective tariff and lowering duties to a tariff-for-revenue-only basis."

"The American people," he added, "are not ready to turn their backs upon the principle of protection to American industry and labor, nor are they ready, in the light of recent past experience to again entrust the reins of government to democratic control."

SENATE COMMITTEE TO OPEN COAL FIELDS INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—Having received from its subcommittee a graphic verbal report on conditions in the western Pennsylvania bituminous fields, the senate interstate commerce committee tomorrow will begin an investigation into the situation in that district and also in the eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia districts.

The first witness will be John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who will make the chief presentation on behalf of the union miners who have been out of work for nearly a year because of their charge that the mine operators violated the Jacksonville wage agreement.

LOWDEN ENDORSED BY SOUTH DAKOTA REPUBLICANS

PIERRE, S. D., March 6—(AP)—Frank O. Lowren, former governor of Illinois, was unanimously indorsed for the republican presidential nomination by the South Dakota state convention of that party here today.

Lowden's name was the only one placed before the convention for the presidential indorsement. Peter Norbeck, United States senator from South Dakota was proposed for vice president as Lowden's running mate.

French Spy Given Life Imprisonment

Jules Cesar Joseph Laperre Remains Defiant Against His Accusers—Thanked Attorney.

PARIS, March 6—(AP)—Branded as a traitor and sentenced to life imprisonment in a fortress, Jules Cesar Joseph Laperre remained defiant toward his accusers to the end of today's court proceedings.

He abandoned this attitude only when his wife, who swooned yesterday when called to testify, came into court ready to tell her story. But the judge would not receive her as a witness and Laperre waved her away with a gesture that expressed the only kindly feeling he showed during the trial.

Not even the scathing denunciation of M. Gazier, the public prosecutor, moved the prisoner.

"I want no one's blood but would ask for your life without hesitation if the law permitted," the attorney shouted at Laperre. "Hundreds were executed during the war for trifles, compared with the atrocities you have committed."

(The French law permits no death penalty for military crimes except when the country is at war.)

After the jury reported, Laperre leaned from the prisoners' dock and thanked his own attorney.

"This sentence will please my friends in Belgium," he said.

LEVINE MADE FLIGHT TO HAVANA IN 14 HOURS

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP)—The Bellanca plane, Columbia, which once flew from the United States to Germany, arrived here on a non-stop flight from New York at 1.36 o'clock this afternoon. The plane carried Charles A. Levine, the same as on her German flight, and Miss Mabel Boll, with Wilmer Stultz as pilot.

It was a speedy flight over the 1,400 mile air trail, which was covered in 14 hours almost to the minute.

Instead of the large crowds, which the aviators apparently looked for, there was only a small gathering—a few friends of Miss Boll, a few newspapermen, a few photographers. But they made a happy party at the landing field, Camp Columbia.

As the plane glided to the ground, Miss Boll, who is sometimes known as "The Queen of Diamonds," and who spent most of the time last year trying to arrange for a flight across the Atlantic, was seen leaning out of the machine, fresh and smiling after her long journey.

Levine himself appeared as though a good rest would benefit him, and he soon went off to the hotel to enjoy it. There will be some entertainments in honor of the flyers, but no fixed program has been arranged as yet.

AGAINST CONFIRMATION OF ESCH REAPPOINTMENT

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—The long-standing row over the Lake Cargo Coal case reached a definite point today when opponents of the reappointment of John J. Esch, of Wisconsin, as a member of the interstate commerce commission, obtained an unfavorable committee report on his confirmation.

The vote was ten to seven, party lines being broken on both sides. Accompanying the unfavorable report to the senate, to be made in the next few days, will be a minority report by Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, urging confirmation.

While Esch first came under fire during the long hearings before the interstate commerce committee because of his change of vote in the two lake coal cases, the attack finally broadened to include the whole question of the commission's policy under the Hoch-Smith resolution, which provides for readjustment of freight rates.

TEACHER YOUNG SENTENCED TO FOUR MONTHS FOR BIGAMY

PORTLAND, Me., March 6—(AP)—James L. Young, Darien, Conn., high school teacher who pleaded guilty today to bigamy in a Bridgeport superior court and sentenced to serve four months in jail, was known as an athlete of prominence at Bates college, Lewiston, from which he graduated in 1925. He served in the navy during the World war.

His marriage at Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 28, 1921, to Helena A. Brennick, of Rumford, Me., was the culmination of a romance of high school days. The marriage was kept secret for six years, and was so closely guarded that until announcement was received in Rumford of Young's wedding at Darien, Nov. 22, 1927, to Winnifred G. Benschoten, of Bowling Green, Ohio, even the girl's parents in Rumford had not suspected it.

FURTHER REVELATIONS OF PURPOSES OF THE K. K. K. MADE IN DEPOSITIONS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 6.—(AP)—Further revelations of how the Ku Klux Klan is alleged to have sought complete political power in Indiana and elsewhere, were given here today in depositions before Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom, who is seeking to oust the order from the state.

The witnesses were Samuel H. Bemenderfer of Muncie, formerly an official who declared the klan "a gigantic swindle" and an order whose officers in many states were controlled by the "Roman Catholic political machine;" Orion Norcross, Muncie, also a former officer; Thomas W. Swift of Indianapolis, and E. R. Stilson, of Anderson, whose regalia manufacturing company made the robes worn by the members of the secret order.

Bemenderfer declared he quit the klan in 1924 and organized the Knights of American Protestants, of which he is the national president, after he found evidence of misappropriation of funds and "that not only questionable tactics were being used in practically all states, but that in practically all states state officers were controlled by the Roman Catholic political machine."

Distribution of klan political slates; leaflets "exposing" the alleged fourth oath of the Knights of Columbus, a gigantic plan whereby D. C. Stephenson, grand dragon, could direct the organization's political activities by a telephone from Indianapolis; statements as to membership and distribution of klectokens, or initiation fees, were outlined by the witnesses. Much testimony was similar to that given by Hugh F. (Pat) Emmons, of South Bend, a few weeks ago. The witnesses testified that the klan interested itself mostly in politics. The testimony was completed late today and the attorney general did not indicate whether further depositions would be taken.

"We found that the klan's finances in Illinois were placed in a Catholic bank and that the organization's attorneys were Catholics," Bemenderfer declared. "The grand dragon of St. Louis was a Catholic," he asserted. He explained that the investigation was made in 1923.

Bemenderfer said the committee had learned that a man named Savage, located in Washington, D. C., an dhead of the klan's imperial investigation committee, also was a Catholic.

Bemenderfer said Delaware Klan No. or national treasury a total of $127,000 4 collected either for the local state during the time he was klaiff. He said $300 was spent for Christmas baskets and that was the only money he ever knew of being spent for benevolent or charitable purposes.

FRENCH ARBITRATION PACT RATIFIED BY THE SENATE

Treaty With Declaration Against War Was Approved With Little Discussion and Without a Roll Call—The Agreement Provides For Submission to Arbitration of Any Dispute That Does Not Involve a Purely Domestic Question, the Interests of a Third Power, the Monroe Doctrine or the Obligations of France Under the Covenant of the League of Nations.

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—The French arbitration treaty with its declaration against war was ratified today by the senate with little discussion and without a roll call.

Senate approval of the treaty marks completion of the first step in the administration project for modernization of all existing arbitration treaties and re-enforcement of the machinery for peaceful settlement of international disputes. Under the agreement reached with the senate committee, negotiation of a protocol understanding with France to make it plain that the Bryan conciliation pact remains operative and unmodified by the new arbitration agreement has already been initiated.

By its terms the new treaty, which replaces the Root arbitration treaty with France that expired on February 27, provides for submission to arbitration of any dispute between France and the United States that does not involve a purely domestic question, the interests of a third power, the Monroe Doctrine or the obligation of France under the covenant of the league of nations.

This language is a complete change from that of the Root treaty which excepted from arbitration questions involving the national honor of vital interests of either party, the new language is regarded by state department officials as materially strengthening the peaceful settlement agreement, and narrowing the field of excepted subjects of dispute.

Another new feature of the treaty is its preamble declaration against resort to war and its expression of the hope that a day wil come when all countries will renounce war as an agency of national policy. This language grew out of exchanges between Premier Briand and Secretary Kellogg in regard to the possibilities of a separate treaty for denunciation of war between the two countries. That project, amplified by Secretary Kellogg to contemplate a six power multi-lateral anti-war treaty to be signed by Great Britain, Italy, Germany, and Japan as well as France and the United States, has been given consideration at Geneva within the last few days by the European premiers and spokesmen.

SUPPLIES FOR MARINES IN NORTHERN NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Nic., March 6—(AP)—Guns, ammunition and food for the marine detachments in the mountains of notrehrn Nicaragua went forward steadily today from this base. There was talk of transferring the headquarters of the regiment commanded by Col. R. R. Wallace from this city to Matagalpa.

A pack train of eighty mules took the road for Matagalpa, the big American animals causing as much excitement among the native small boys as a herd of elephants would create in an American town. The native mules are about a third the size of the marines' animals and the appearance of an American pack train is always a signal for an outpouring of youngsters.

Some mountain artillery also went north today.

THREE AMERICAN WOMEN ARE ON TRIAL IN TURKEY

BROUSSA, Turkey, March 6—(AP)—Three American women, involved in the historic battle between cross and crescent, are on trial in Turkey's ancient capital for the violation of the rules of the ministry of education through the alleged discussion of religion in a mission school.

Within sight of the minarets of 150 Mohammedan Mosques lying at the foot of Mount Olympus, a Turkish court is hearing the charges against Miss Edith Sanderson, Miss Lucille Day and Miss Jennie Jilson, who are accused of teachings which resulted in the conversion of Mohammedan girls to the faith of the man of Galilee.

LINDBERGH CONCEALED IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—The capital tonight apparently had swallowed up Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who landed unheralded at Bolling field at 6:30 o'clock this morning, was hustled in an army automobile to an unknown destination, and went into seclusion.

The suddenness of his reappearance after a round trip to Scott field, Bellville, Ill., in 20 hours, caught the city unawares. A few officers, emergency crew mechanics and the chauffeur who drove him were the only ones who saw Lindbergh, to the knowledge of newspaper men and photographers, who scoured the city and the flying field. He is believed to have spent the day sleeping, but officials at the Racquet club, where he spent Saturday night, denied having seen him.

PROHIBITIONISTS PURPOSE TO PICK THE PRESIDENT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6—(AP)—Al Smith is the "froth that the democratic party will blow into nothingness when it gathers at Houston," F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, told the southeastern states prohibition convention here tonight.

"Dry southern democrats like yourselves," declared, "must decide whether he was right or wrong when, at the Vanderbilt hotel dinner in New York a few years ago, he declared the democratic party is a saloon party and everybody knows it is and it ought to come out and say so.

"To date the definitely expressed attitude of the leading candidates is as follows:

"On the democratic side, Reed, Ritchie and Smith are wet. McAdoo, Donahey, Meredith, Young, George Hull, Walsh, Wooten and a number of others are dry. On the republican side, Butler is wet. Curtis, Watson and Willis have given ringing declarations for the dry cause. Hoover has answered Borah's questions only in part. He has not stated his attitude on the beer and wine program, nor the question of the state determining the alcoholic content. Dawes has not stated his position. Lowden has said that he agrees with the message given by Coolidge, but has not yet stated his attitude on the direct issues."

McBride urged a "dry and active congress for needed legislation."

THE STATE COSTS EACH RESIDENT $15.71 PER YEAR

HARTFORD, March 6—(AP)—Operation and maintenance of the state of Connecticut cost $15.71 for each person in the state during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927, according to figures compiled from the comptroller's report for 1927. Total expenditures during the period amounted to $30,671,858, of which $26,021,787 was for operation of state departments and institutions, and maintenance of highways. The per capita cost was based on an estimated population in Connecticut of 1,656,000.

The per capita cost in the 1927 fiscal year showed an increase of $1.13 over that of the previous year, when total expenditures amounted to $27,966,018. Operation and maintenance in 1926 cost $23,065,301, making the per capita cost $14.53. In 1925, $21,903,642 was spent for operation and maintenance, and the cost for each person was $14.41. The total expenditures in that fiscal year totalled $27,128,312.

GOV. RITCHIE OF MARYLAND CHAMPIONS STATES' RIGHTS

PHILADELPHIA, March 6—(AP)—Governor Ritchie of Maryland said here tonight that his plea for the political rehabilitation of the states is not because of any abstract or legalistic theories of government, but because almost every modern relationship which concerns the people intimately demands it.

The Maryland governor spoke before the Philadelphia Electric company section of the National Electric Light association and through radio stations as far away as Lawrence, Kansas, and Dallas, Texas.

In opening his address, Governor Ritchie said that in speaking for states' rights, he has found that he has been "variously regarded—sometimes as an office-seeker after a slogan, sometimes as a political mossback who hasn't heard of the Civil war, sometimes as one who would hold lightly the Constitution I was taught to revere."

Enumerating many activities in which he said the federal government has interfered in the rights of states, Governor Ritchie declared that he believed that the cardinal rule of government in its relationship to business should be to prevent abuse.

MRS. KNAPP WILL NOT BE CRIMINALLY PROSECUTED

ALBANY, N. Y., March 6—(AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, and first woman to hold an elective office in the New York state government, will not be criminally prosecuted for any of her acts in connection with her administration of the 1925 state census.

On the ground that there was insufficient evidence to obtain a conviction on recommended charges of forgery, the making of false audits and certifications, illegal removal of state records, and grand larceny, District Attorney Charles J. Herrick, of Albany county, to whom the case was turned over by Governor Smith on Feb. 1, tonight announced his decision not to press the case.

H. C. LATHROP COMPLETES 50 YRS. OF BANKING SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 6—The fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the Windham National bank was observed quietly today by H. Clinton Lathrop, president of the institution. In rounding out a half century of service to the establishment, President Lathrop was interrupted many times in his routine work at his office by a flood of congratulations. Greetings came in the form of cards or were personally extended by his host of friends, banking colleagues and business and civic organizations including the chamber of commerce. Beautiful floral tributes adorned his desk. The Windham National bank is the second oldest in Windham county and was organized 96 years ago at Windham Center, and located in the building now occupied by the Windham Center library. Mr. Lathrop entered the bank on March 6, 1878 and "for the sake of education and an opportunity" worked for an entire year without pay. The institution reorganized in 1879 and following the industrial trend, removed to Willimantic and occupied the front part of the Willimantic Savings Institute building. Following the failure of the First National bank and the Dime Savings bank which had been located in the United Bank building, the Windham National bank purchased the structure and has since occupied it. The building was badly gutted by fire in December 1925. From out of the ruins arose the remodeled banking quarters which compare favorably with any in this section of the state. John Baldwin, the first president of the bank served from 1832 to 1850. He was succeeded by Henry S Walcott, 1850-1872. Thomas Ramsdell was third president, serving from 1872 to 1886. Guilford Smith became president in 1886 and served until his death in February, 1923, at which time Mr. Lathrop was chosen to the position.

Mr. Lathrop was but 18 years of age when he entered the bank. Thomas Ramsdell was president and Samuel Bingham, treasurer. In 1886 when the bank was reorganized and Mr. Smith became president, Mr. Lathrop was promoted to cashier. He became vice-president in January, 1920 and president in February 1923. His first financial statement of the bank's condition made in 1886 showed that the bank had deposits amounting to about $100,000 and the rather diminutive surplus of $1,600. With credit to its policies of integrity and honesty it may be stated that the 1927 statement showed total deposits of $3,855,394.52, a surplus of $250,000 and profits of $100,000. In addition to that held by President Lathrop, there are several other enviable records of long and faithful service to the institution. Vice-President Edgar E. Bass has been with the bank since 1888, Cashier Herbert D. Pollard since May 1, 1895, Assistant Cashier Buchanan since 1900. There are now 21 employes including the officers named and Harold S. Maine, teller, who has been connected with the institution for 22 years.

The board of directors comprises: Mr. Lathrop, E. E. Bass, William A. King, William D. Grant, Louis A. Kingsbury, George F. Taylor, Arthur I. Bill, Herbert D. Pollard and Dr. Owen O'Neil.

In terms of service President Lathrop is the second oldest banking man in the city, being outranked by Noah D. Webster, treasurer of the Willimantic Savings institute, who had been connected with the banking business for 58 years on January 10, 1928. Mr. Lathrop comes of very old New England stock and the name of Lathrop is prominent among early settlers. He was born in Norwich Town 1860, the son of Dr. Dewitt Clinton and Charlotte Gray Lathrop. It is a noted fact that Mr. Lathrop's only daughter, Charlotte, now Mrs. Eden C. Cook of Windham Center, was the first female in the Lathrop lineage for over a century. Mr. Lathrop maintains an active interest in the chamber of commerce, the Windham Men's Community club, the Windham town school committee of which he has been a member for the past 13 years and in the Windham Center Congregational church.

KILLINGLY BUDGET OF EXPENSES IS $172,277

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 6—For the current fiscal year, ending July 31 next, $172,277 will be required to meet the running expenses of the town of Killingly, it is indicated by budget figures made available today. To raise this sum a tax of 24 1-2 mills must be levied, this being half a mill less than was required in 1927.

The selectmen's net budget this year amounts to $75,889. For current expenses of the schools $55,225 is required. Also in the school budget is an item of $6,162 for interest on school bonds and $5,000 for payment on the school bonds, which are being reduced at the rate of $5,000 per year. Thus the total money required for schools is $96,387.50.

The selectmen's estimates include $6,500 for the town farm, $10,450 for outside poor and $4,000 for state hospital patients in the care of the town. The cost of repairing town roads for the year is placed at $16,000. Oiling streets and roads is to cost $5,500, and there is a $7,852.90 item of expense to be met for flood damage done to highways last November. Selectmen's services and transportation are estimated at $1,900. Selectmen's office, clerk and supplies are figured at $1,000. Other budget items are $900 for the property tax collector and $300 for the personal tax collector. Printing cost is estimated at $700.

In the list of regular appropriations is $400 for the public library, $425 for Memorial day, $175 for Armistice day, $500 for the Day Kimball hospital, $100 for the care of old cemeteries, $500 for the health officer's services and for supplies. The town hall, for repairs, fuel and maintenance, is to cost $3,000. A state tax this year is $4,360.74, a military tax $992.27 and a county tax $2,916.62. Interest on notes and bonds exclusive of school bonds, calls for $12,000. Payments on bonds other than school bonds requires $7,000 more. The town court expense is $1,000, insurance $1,400, grading L'Homme street extension $1,700. Those are the major items in the budget.

Estimated credits include a prospective revenue of $2,800 from town farm produce and labor. Interest on overdue taxes will bring in $900 more. Town hall rents aggregate $2,200 and $1,000 will come to the town through assessments levied on property holders for oiling streets. From the state, for net bank stock tax, $3,000 revenue is expected. Dog money from the state, in hand, amounts to $1,266.76. Personal taxes collected to date amount to $7,703, making total credits of $24,106.50.

The net grand list is shown by budget figures to be $7,040,804.

A detail of the budget as it will be presented to the voters at the adjourned annual town meeting next Monday evening will appear on this page Thursday morning.

Early this morning the body of Mrs. Florence Picard, 32, of Wauregan, was brought from St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, where she died during the night, to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russell, in Wauregan, in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Picard died following a surgical operation. In addition to her parents she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Norman Shippee and Mrs. Rose Bedard, both of Wauregan, and two brothers, Lionel of Wauregan and George Russell of Plainfield. Another sister died a few weeks ago at a hospital in Norwich.

The 175 people that attended last evening's meeting of Killingly grange were representative of granges in various parts of eastern Connecticut. They came from Norwich and Canterbury, from Putnam, Plainfield, South Killingly, Brooklyn, Moosup Valley and other places, and local grangers said today the meeting was one of the finest held here for a long time. The program of musical numbers and other features, including a sketch was furnished by members of Canterbury grange and Norwich grange. Mrs. F. S. Kennedy of Dayville was chairman of the committee that furnished the refreshments. Ellison's orchestra played for dancing indulged in during the latter part of the evening.

Interesting, indeed, was the reaction here today of cotton manufacturing employes upon reading the unusual news of a strike over wages at Gastonia, N. C. The situation was interpreted here, conversations would indicate, as marking the beginning of the end of such low wages as have prevailed in southern cotton mills and of an effort to get wage scales down there nearer those paid in northern cotton mills. While this may be only a fond hope, it seemingly has left that impression among mill workers here, and they are a bit jubilant about it.

Supt. W. E. Parker's explanation as to keeping children out of school in cases where they are ill or have been exposed to illness was accepted here today in the gracious spirit in which it was made. It is generally sensed that it is better to have some of the children out of school than eventually to have practically all of them out, at one time or another. Strict enforcement of the quarantine regulations will clear up a trying situation, it is believed, within a comparatively short time.

Paul Gareau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gareau of Potter street, has enlisted in the naval service and is stationed at Newport, R. I. The young man only recently returned from Marshall, Mo., where he took a course at an aviation school and had so far qualified in the operation of planes as to make solo flights before his return here. He is a graduate of Killingly high school. There is the likelihood that he will be assigned to the naval flying service.

State Officer Elton Nolan of the Danielson barracks is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and has undergone a surgical operation.

M. L. Bailey, who died at Norwich today, was a brother of Mrs. Charles S. Bill of Academy street, and for a number of years was a resident of Goodyear.

When Mrs. Annie Marble Russell of Worcester addresses the members of the Killingly Woman's club in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church Wednesday afternoon her subject will be Antedotes to Cynicism in Current Life and Literature.

This evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gallup, a surprise party for their son, Lindner, who is leaving here Friday for a trip to California, was given in his honor by a number of his friends. Various diversions aided in making the evening a very happy one. Refreshments were served.

This morning the temperature was down to 14 degrees above zero at sunrise, the prevailing wind making the cold particularly hard to endure.

Gaston A. Maindon, as a member of the court of burgesses, will submit to that body for its approval a certain type of slow or stop light to be suspended over the intersection of Broad and Reynolds streets. The design is entirely different than any heretofore suggested for the location.

Here's good news for the fishermen who are so anxiously awaiting the coming of April 1—and the open season. Trout in numbers and of good size are already running in the brooks in territory hereabouts.

Carpenters were at work today tearing out interior fittings of the two-story frame building that is to be torn down at the corner of Main and Academy streets to make way for the new Brooklyn Savings bank. The building and the one adjoining it will be off the site in a little more than three weeks.

Investigation does not disclose that there is any truth in a story going the rounds in town that nuns who recently canvassed here for funds for work they are carrying on in a southern state had been arrested as impostors. The story appears to be a pure fake.

John M. Dowe has caused to be published some new maps of Danielson, the first maps of the borough and adjoining territory brought out here for years.

On the property of the Snake Meadow club, southeast of here, brush is being cut away preparatory to building another dam back of which several acres are to be flooded to form another trout pond.

Howard A. Worthy of Salem, Mass., was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Grading now being done on the Brooklyn-Danielson highway indicates to motorists passing over the route where changes are to be made from the route of the present state highway, and there are several such changes in the four miles to be reconstructed.

At tonight's meeting of the chamber of commerce the new secretary, William S. Hunter, of Goodyear, discharged the duties of that office for the first time at a meeting.

A strange freak of the recent steadily cold weather and steady high winds is the manner in which it has entirely cut away the ice on Quinebaug lake and Alexander's lake where cutting has been going on, despite the fact that the temperatures were below the freezing point. The wind is held accountable. It matters little, however, as an ample supply of ice for Danielson is stored. The Quinebaug Lake Ice company has a year's supply of 10 and 11 inch ice.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM FIRM AWARDED JUDGMENT OF $186.89

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 6—The civil session of the Windham county superior court opened at 10:45 a. m. Tuesday morning with Judge Edward M. Yeomans on the bench. There was only one case tried at this hearing, the others being held over for re-assignment for another session of the court. The case brought up Tuesday morning was that of Chandler and Morse, a Putnam hardware company, against Bowne brothers, who are engaged in farming in West Woodstock. The firm of Chandler and Morse, were represented by Attorney Ernest C. Morse, while Attorney Buckley of Southbridge defended the farm men. Chandler and Morse were asking for a judgment for the payment of a bill for a potato digger, an implement which was purchased from them in 1924 by Bowne brothers and which they had failed to remit payment for.

Mr. Bowne testified that the machine had failed to function properly after it was purchased and that Chandler and Morse had failed to adjust the mechanical parts so they would work. Warren Ames, manager of the Chandler and Morse firm testified that he had taken a man from the concern that manufactured the machine to the Bowne brothers farm to demonstrate the potatoe digger, but the farmers refused to harness their horses to the digger to try it out in the field. After a short recess the case was continued. Several witnesses for both sides testified. Judge Yeomans finally awarded the case to Chandler and Morse and gave judgment of $186.89 in their favor, to be paid by Bowne brothers.

The court was ordered adjourned until Friday 9, when the short calendar term of cases will be heard.

MRS. W. R. BARBER IS ELECTED TO SCHOOL BOARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 5—The town school committee held the regular meeting in the law offices of Attorney M. H. Geissler on Main street, Monday evening. The building has been completely renovated and the officers and members of the military company have resumed their regular work in close order drills and other military instruction that has been omitted from the weekly programme since the company moved from the old armory on Livery street a few weeks ago.

The large hall is very becoming for its part in the training of the peacetime soldiers and affords the much needed room that was not to be found at the old building. Monday evening fifty-two regular enlisted men and three officers answered roll. Captain McGarry stated that this was the best record that the company has made in weeks. Monday's drill was confined to the preparation of the federal inspection that the company is to have on March 19, and to pistol instruction.

JEWETT CITY

SHEA HAD TO USE A BOAT TO HARVEST HIS ICE CROP

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, March 6—Shea Bros. have cut all the ice available on their field at Dorrville pond. All kinds of conditions have been against the work. Bridges have had to be built out to the thick ice which was not thick enough at that. Monday, the biting wind hampered the work. A new stunt was accomplished which adds ten to twelve inch ice to the houses. The ice was found to be that thick back of the Wheeler property. An attempt was made to haul the cakes by ropes up the pond, but the cakes persisted in hauling the men into the water instead as the wind blew them off shore.

A boat was secured, James Shea got into it, stuck his pike into the first of a line of sixty cakes, the next sixty were manned and so on until two hundred and forty cakes were ready with George Geer seated on his pike, so as not to take any chances at losing the tow at the end. The whole fleet was pulled by long ropes from the bank up to the ice house. This strenuous feat added the best ice harvested, and was accomplished several times. Five days of hard work has not filled the houses. Chenette's houses here and in Bilissville are only partly filled.

FIGHTING MOSQUITOES

Every year there is a great wail about mosquitoes. Some seasons are worse than others but there are few when humanity doesn't complain over the annoyance from the pest.

How to fight them has long been a problem. It has always been easy to maintain that they were blown from one state to another. That was one way of trying to put the burden of correction upon the other commonwealth, but while there are localities which provided bigger and better breeding places for the mosquitoes each state probably has enough of them to set about the correction of its own conditions.

That is what Connecticut is going to put into operation this spring when in another month it will start to ditch about 1300 acres of salt marsh in the vicinity of New Haven at an expense that will total $25,000.

In the districts of Queens and Richmond in New York state trench warfare against the mosquito has already been started this year with the cleaning of ditches which were dug last year and the extension of the ditch system for the draining of stagnant pools and marshes.

This is making a real fight. It is possible to slap and screen without having any effect upon the breeding places. Just as long as they are allowed to remain favorable to the breeding of mosquitoes there will be hordes of them produced for the disturbance of the comfort and health of humanity. Strike at those breeding places and remove them and the source of the trouble will be eliminated. When that is accomplished there will be fewer mosquitoes and the expense which has been resorted to will have been justified.

It is quite evident, as the New York work indicates, that the job is not a slight or a one-year one. There is in fact so much to be done that it almost seems discouraging, but importance is attached to making the start and then it will be necessary to follow up the good work from year to year. Until the breeding places are located and destroyed there can be little hope of overcoming the mosquitoes.

GETTING REAPPORTIONMENT

Even though congress votes favorably upon the bill which has been presented calling for reapportionment in connection with membership in the house, it will have no effect upon the election in November. It would not take effect until after the next census in 1930.

Under the Constitution a reapportionment is called for after each census. None has followed the 1920 census. None has followed the 1920 census. Action upon any of the measures that have been presented. Opposition has arisen from the fact that states which would be unfavorably affected have failed to give their consent, and yet it cannot be expected that all states would gain in representation every ten years in view of the manner in which population shifts about.

In connection with reapportionment there is also a strong feeling that there should be no more members added to the house. It is believed that there are enough already, if not too many. The steady additions have resulted in a body that is getting unwieldy, and the desire is to prevent it from getting any worse. This can be overcome by keeping the number of members at the present number, 435, and distributing them so that the states which have shown decided growth will get additional representation to which they are entitled, and those which have not grown, or have grown slowly, will remain as they are or have fewer representatives?

Congress has been criticized because it has not done anything concerning reapportionment during the present decade. It is also being criticized because of some of the proposals that have been made, and even the present proposal has come under fire from the states where there would be a reduction in representation. It is thus apparent that the reapportionment job is not the easiest one that might be undertaken. Just because a plan is presented doesn't mean that it will be adopted for there are various angles from which the members look at the situation and they can be expected to vote in accordance with their perspective. It is, however, one of the things which has been neglected long enough and the present congress should act.

YIELDING TO WRIGHT

Whether the original Wright plane will be placed in the Smithsonian institution is still up in the air. It has been under debate for a considerable period of time and only recently it seemed by the decision of Mr. Wright that the machine would be sent to England because it was impossible for Mr. Wright and the institution to come to an understanding in regard to the statement relative to the Langley machine already in the institution.

Mr. Wright in announcing his decision declared it was subject to recall. Whether that will result depends upon whether an understnading can be reached between Mr. Wright and the institution. Overtures looking to such a result have been made by Dr. Abbott the new secretary of the institution who has indicated what change he is willing to make in the label on the Langley machine and what label he is willing to place on the Wright machine.

It all hinges on which machine is credited with being the first to fly and carry a man. There is no question but what the Wright plane was the first to actually do so, but in labeling the Langley machine as the original, restored, the label declares that "in the opinion of many competent to judge" it was the first heavier than air machine capable of free, sustained flight under its own power, carrying a man. Added were the facts that while it slightly antedated the Wright plane the latter was the first to actually accomplish sustained flight under its own power, carrying a man.

Thus it would appear that there is only a technical difference, but a difference which Mr. Wright thinks does not meet the situation as it should. Dr. Abbott is willing to restrict the Langley label to "The original Langley machine of 1903, restored." He has made a proposition which he doesn't declare is final but unless there is something which does not meet with the approval of Mr. Wright it would appear to overcome the objection that has been raised. Evidently it is a case where negotiations are underway which should result in the retention of the Wright plane in this country, an outcome which it has always been contended was possible.

AUGMENTING PANAMA

Whenever the question is raised in regard to the enlargement of the Panama canal, there is certain to be opposition from more than one direction. This is indicated by the reaction in congress to the recommendation which has been made by Colonel Bunau-Varilla, the eminent French engineer, that the Panama canal be made a sea level strait.

There is no escaping the fact that the Panama canal has attracted business far beyond expectations. It is passing more vessels every year and making an excellent financial showing. It is in fact doing so well that there can be no surprise over the talk about enlargement or the construction of a second canal. It may not be necessary for next year or the one after but if the canal continues to show an increase in the years to come as it has in the last decade its capacity will not be sufficient to meet requirements. Before that time actually arrives it will be necessary to determine what course is going to be pursued when the next move is made.

There always had been a strong sentiment for the building of the Nicaraguan canal. The government has made the preliminary provisions by acquiring the right and it is always possible to look upon two routes as much more favorable than one. Likewise if a considerable sum must be employed for increasing the capacity of Panama canal it might as well be put into the building of a second canal which would mean reducing the distance between the two coasts and probably provide a canal which could be more easily defended.

When the suggestion of the French engineer, who was at the head of the French company that abandoned its efforts to build the Panama canal, is met by the statement that no one knows what it would cost to make a sea level strait it becomes evident that it would be a very costly proposition, and even such a waterway has its handicaps and objections.

EGYPT DECLINES TREATY

From present indications there is no prospect for an early adjustment of the differences which have prevailed between Great Britain and Egypt. Presumably some temporary arrangement will be reached whereby the situation will continue much as it has but the turning down of the proposed treaty by Egypt indicates that Great Britain must make greater concessions or Egypt will have to continue under its present sovereignty with restrictions.

The treaty which the Egyptian cabinet has refused to approve, having resigned rather than accept it. It had been tentatively accepted by the Egyptian premier, but when he found that it failed to get the support of the Egyptian chamber of deputies he tendered his resignation.

Great Britain is interested in Egypt chiefly because of the Suez canal. It is not willing to leave its administration solely to Egypt, for while all might be satisfactory in time of peace it fears such might not be the case if there should be war. Likewise Great Britain would under the treaty regain control of the Sudan whose water and agricultural resources Egypt does not want to give up.

The Egyptian problem has always been a complicated one. That it is any nearer a solution is not indicated by the developments which have taken place in regard to the treaty. Neither side is ready to yield completely or even partially to the extent that would be agreeable to the other.

A MATTER OF TIME

Witness the romance of Wallace Gray, an impeccable young business man with a New England conscience, who one day found himself pitchforked into the position of office manager of the Nonpareil Bolt and Nut company. It proves—well, does it matter?

As he sat waiting for Miss Jennison to make her appearance, for the nth time Gray lamented within himself that circumstances entirely beyond his control had placed him in the position he held. The longer he held the job the less, so to speak, it grew on him.

From the very beginning, every time he had been forced to watch her leisurely entrance in the morning, at any hour between a quarter after 9 and 10 o'clock, her equally leisurely entrance after a protracted luncheon period, and her prompt departure, daintily rouged and properly powdered—well groomed at the expense of another fifteen minutes of the company's time—he had groaned.

Just before the door opened to admit Miss Jennison it came over him with a wave of utter helplessness that she was the main, certainly the most poignant, reason for his distinct loathing of the position. His predecessor, Hawkins, had seemed to be able to bear with equanimity the thinly veiled looks of scorn of the other women in the office.

But not so Gray. Gray had a sense of justice which writhed at being outraged in this flagrant manner. He was constitutionally unable to accept the situation as Hawkins had done.

The dreaded interview was over. With eyes cast down, and in silence, Miss Jennison had listened to his few well-chosen remarks. She looked up only when he ceased to speak. In response to his nod of dismissal, looking very small, very demure, she turned and walked to the door. There she paused, her hand on the knob.

"Honestly, I don't mean to be late all the time," she said, one bright eye twinkling through a shaggy lock of her "wind-blown bob." "I'll try to do better. But I just have got to say this much before I go—it certainly does seem like a lot of fuss for just a silly little old twety minutes every now and then—and I never would have expected such a good-looking young fellow as you are to be such a fuss budget."

The door closed softly behind her naughty back. For some moments Gray didn't move. Then he absentmindedly picked up a letter and began to scan it. It was only after he had reached the bottom of the page and realized that he had not really grasped one word that it came to him that what he was really thinking about was the pretty shape of her bobbed head and the delicate curve of her white neck.

For the next three weeks Gray was so painfully conscious of every move Miss Jennison made that he knew almost to the moment when, after an apparently sincere effort to live up to her promise, she began to lapse from grace. At the end of the three weeks she was going blithely on her way quite as though the subject of office hours had never been mentioned.

Gray's face was pale and there were little beads of perspiration on his upper lip as he met Miss Jennison's smiling glance across his flat-top desk.

"Miss Jennison," he said, "you may guess partly why I asked you to come in here——"

"You're going to fire me," she sparkled.

"By no means," he said. "On the contrary, I'm going to—fire myself. You have convinced me that in this particular position I am a failure, and that the only self-respecting thing for me to do is to resign."

There was a tense silence. The smile flickered.

"Do you really mean that, Mr. Gray?"

Gray nodded. The last trace of Miss Jennison's saucy little smile vanished. There was just a suspicion of tears in her voice when she spoke again.

"If you do," she said impulsively, "I'll never forgive myself; and if you'll promise no to, I'll promise on my word of honor that I'll never be late again."

And she wasn't—up to the very day of her departure three months later. Whether breakfast was always ready on time after she became Mrs. Wallace Gray the records do not show. But that really has nothing at all to do with this story, anyway.—Chicago News.

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

By Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D. D., Federal Council of Churches in America — Copyright 1928.

"Happiness Through Helpfulness."

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35).

Read: Acts 20:32-35.

MEDITATION: This is a saying that children and the immature can not understand. One never does comprehend the truth of it until he begins to invest himself in the welfare of others. When Jesus taught that happiness comes through helpfulness he was simply interpreting this universe and stating a law of life. Happiness is always a by-product. The man who sets out to seek it directly never finds it. We find it when we are looking for something else. Those who look for joy through a change of environment are on the wrong road. It comes from within, not from without. It does not lie in receiving, but in giving.

PRAYER: Deliver us, O God, from the self-centered life. Lead us forth from uneasy thoughts of self to the sunlit fields of service. Thou, O Christ, art the way: help us to walk in it. Amen.

NEW BOOKS

Deluge. By S. Fowler Wright. Cloth, 395 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation. Price $2.50.

This book which appeared recently in England made its author a celebrity over night. It opens with a picture of a typical, moderately well-to-do British household and shortly introduces the awe inspiring news that southern Europe is being inundated by a flood. Further bulletins reveal the approach of a catastrophe such as has often occurred in geological times. Civilization is destroyed. Europe sinks under the sea. Only a few islands remain above it on which the terrified, disorganized refugees from every stratum of society collect. The members of the family introduced in the first chapter are separated. The husband finds himself thrown together with another woman. How he, his wife and the other woman work out their destiny together in the face of such conditions and how they join the forces of the most able members of their isolated community, furnish the powerful interests of the rest of the tale.

It is Mr. Wright's peculiarly vivid imagination and his style that make the volume so remarkable.

Anne Belinda. By Patricia Wentworth. Cloth, 304 pages. Published by The J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia. Price $2.00.

Anne Belinda had disappeared—and every time John Waveney mentioned her name there was an ominous silence. Lady Jenifer Marr, Anne's twin sister, said she was in Spain. That was odd, for John was sure he had caught a glimpse of her that very day in Jenny's garden. Why was Jenny misleading him—what was the secret that had made her turn Anne's picture to the wall—that had made old Sir Anthony, on his deathbed, disinherit Anne and leave the estate to him, a distant cousin? John was determined to break through that grim wall of silence, but he soon learned the worst part of the whole affair—Anne didn't want to be found. But he was a man who always got what he wanted—and this time the prize was well worth the struggle.

Miss Wentworth, author of The Amazing Chance and Hue and Cry, is at her very best in this latest of her books. She writes a romance with an unusual appeal and handles the situation in this story of mystery most cleverly.

The Murder at Fleet. By Eric Brett Young. Cloth, 304 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company Philadelphia. Price $2.

It looked like any other scare-crow—but when Magistrate Warden and Ethelred Betts, reporter, came closer—the face was the face of Professor Page—the body his body. The professor had gone to London the night before to speak on psychoanalysis. Mr. Warden was sure of this—he had driven him to the station. No one had seen the professor since—until the mawkin revealed its grisly secret—the professor stabbed and crucified! Who had done this dastardly thing? The professor had not an enemy—he was kindness itself to his friends—to his wife—to her brother, Bobby. Every clue led to a blank wall until Detective Faucet spied the blood on the living room carpet and the charred, stained arrow that had once hung over the fireplace. Here is a problem that would have delighted the psychoanalytic mind of the professor himself—a probing of deep motives and deeper vengeance. It is mystery par excellence that is sure to place Mr. Young in the first rank of detective story writers.

Evolution Disproved. By Rev. William A. Williams, D. D., Cloth, 125 pages. Published by the author. Camden, N. J., Price $1.00.

This volume is intended by the author as an up to date text book and a companion to all other text books on evolution, as an antidote to books in libraries teaching evolution, infidelity and atheism and as an aid to all students, parents, teachers, ministers, lawyers, doctors and all lovers of truth.

The author is ex-president of Franklin college, Ohio and he presents his side of the subject in the form of 50 arguments. He maintains that every proved theory of science is to be accepted, but if a theory is evidently or probably untrue, or pernicious, or at all harmful, it is to be rejected or condemned. He maintains that as evolution cannot stand the acid test of mathematics, it will be repudiated by all. He appeals to the facts and declares that evolution is not to be accepted until proved. Furthermore he insists that it is not yet proved and never will be.

YOUR HEALTH

The Adult Tonsils

By Hamilton Stillson, M. D., Seattle, Wash., Member Gorgas Memorial.

There are a few things that adult persons who have diseased tonsils should understand. First of all, if the tonsils have not been diseased in their youth they have undergone a sort of natural shrinking and are harder and smaller and not so prominent. Tonsils that have never been diseased practically disappear in adult life.

Second: The adult may have quinsy from diseased tonsils that hardly show.

Third: there may be a focus of infection in an adult tonsil that cannot be detected without considerable care in the examination. It is sometimes necessary to squeeze the tonsil or suck it with a pump before the pus and offending cheesy matter can be brought up from the depths of the crypts.

Fourth: if a focus of infection is found in an adult tonsil it should be removed. It is more necessary to remove infection in the adult than in the youthful tonsil. In the latter the gland structures are capable of combating slight infection. The adult tonsil is less capable of performing this function.

Fifth: if the patient is at all in condition to undergo surgical removal of the offending tonsil, he should take the operation in preference to any other method. Many methods have been devised to avoid surgical operation. But in the majority of cases the temporary relief thus gained masks a real danger in that the infection is not after all removed. Meanwhile the patient wonders why his rheumatism does not get well, since they said his rheumatism was from his tonsils, and they are cured.

Sixth: If the surgical operation is done it should be done thoroughly and with the greatest skill and care. In the adult the infection is sometimes deep and sometimes covered over with thick fibrous tissue that makes the operation exceedingly difficult. Previous preparation of the patient should be made, hospital care is always advisable, and only a surgeon who has experience and skill should be permitted to operate.

Seventh: This is most important to remember. In the adult the throat may continue to feel as bad after the surgical removal of the tonsils as it did before. The rheumatism may be relieved, the general health may pick up, the pasty countenance may take on the ruddy hue of health, but the throat may continue to give as much discomfort locally as it did before the operation. The reason for this is that in the adult there is often unavoidable resulting scar tissue at the site of the operation. The tonsils in the adult are often so deeply diseased, so adherent to the surrounding throat tissues from old quinsy, etc., that the surgeon cannot dissect the disease tissue without leaving scars. These scars give the discomfort after the operation.

Stories That Recall Others

Unusually Golf

At the Sunday school in the cradle roll department the teacher was telling her little folk about the Sabbath. She led up to it by asking what father did all the week and then asked what father did on Sunday. One three year old maiden spoke up: "Why, he usually plays golf."

Naughty Girl

Two year old Elizabeth had formed the habit of keeping her finger in her mouth. Her parents frequently say to her: "Take your finger out of your mouth; naughty girl."

In a recent radio programme this little miss was standing in front of the loud speaker listening intently, when the song was announced: "Take Your Finger Out of Your Mouth—I Want to Kiss You." She yelled back, "Naughty Girl."

Former Norwich Leaders

Albert P. Sturtevant.

(From Norwich Bulletin, March 15, 1893.)

Mr. A. P. Sturtevant died at his home on Washington street, between 10 and 11 o'clock Tuesday night, after a sickness of several months at the age of 72.

His life from a business standpoint has been a remarkable one. He has shown good judgment and has been bold in his investments, and almost always his ventures have been profitable. He began life as a carpenter and with his brother, carried on the jobbing and repairing business in New York city.

Before the business went up town, when the present site of the Sturtevant house was in the suburbs and was offered for sale for $42,000, he, with his brother, bought it, investing all their savings and giving a mortgage on the property. Careful investors at the time thought the investment hazardous and did not think the venture could prove profitable. The deeds had hardly been made out, when property in that vicinity took a new boom and for three months the land increased in value at the rate of $1,000 a day.

He built two buildings on the property and the following spring offered them to rent for $1,200 a year each, and he could not find a tenant at that price. After the houses had remained empty for five months he rented them at $5,000 a year each, and since then they have been leased for $10,000 on long leases, with an agreement that $5,000 should be laid out on repairs.

The Sturtevant house, which has nearly as many rooms as there are days in the year, is also built on the same land, and for that property alone A. P. Sturtevant and his brother had a standing offer of $1,000,000.

He came to this city at about the opening of the war of the rebellion, organized a company and bought the Sturtevant mills at Bean Hill for $60,000, and hired $40,000 to carry on the business. Although unfamiliar with the manufacturing business himself, he selected competent assistants and in two years made a surplus of $200,000 which was divided among the stockholders. Since then he has owned and operated woolen mills in three states of New England, and he has amassed a large fortune.

About six years ago he bought the Edgecomb house at Eastern Point and developed there the valuable hotel property known as the Hotel Griswold house and the adjacent cottages.

Two years ago he opened his large estate on Washington street, established Maple avenue, Harrison avenue and Sturtevant avenue, which he gave to the city after he had graded and finished them.

He was a republican in politics, and at one time the largest stockholder of The Bulletin company.

The Niantic woolen mills, the Clinton and Norwich woolen mills and the Glen woolen mills belong to his estate, and he was a stockholder in business concerns.

He leaves a wife, and a son and daughter, the Hon. Charles P. Sturtevant of Washington street, and Mrs. J. C. Matthews of New York, to mourn his loss.

A second portion, totalling $15,570, of the loot obtained in the robbery of a Grand Trunk mail train at Evergreen Park, Ill., a week ago, was recovered by police in Chicago.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drug store has them.

AMERICANS IN PLANE ACCIDENT IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—Three American passengers on an airplane flying from Paris to London had a remarkable escape today when the machine crashed in a field near the Lympne airdrome, Kent, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Folkestone.

Eight passengers were aboard including Baroness Van Till Canch Kavanaugh, of The Hague, who was cut in the face. The others were not hurt.

The Americans were Miss Dorothy Palmer of Seattle, Miss Margaret Duncan, giving the address "Are the American Express, Paris," and E. Ahiloff, New York city. The other passengers were two French women and two Englishmen. The machine was a giant twin-engined French liner.

As all emerged white faced from the wreckage their first thought was praise for Pilot Roger Maury, who maneuvered the big machine across the channel safely to England, although one engine was disabled.

J. W. Wilesmith, an English passenger, said that when the machine was nearing the French coast the left wing dipped suddenly; whereupon the pilot turned, as if heading inland. But the machine seemed to right itself, and he struck out seaward again.

Traveling slowly, with a list to the left, it reached the English coast. Then the left wing again dipped and the plane spiraled rapidly homeward.

"There was a crash," Wilesmith said, "and the machine bounced several times after the wing had struck the ground, and slithered sideways about 100 yards. The passengers were jolted all over the place and the baggage tumbled about us.

Pilot Maury explained that a valve spring in one of the engines had apparently broken.

The passengers entrained at Folkestone for London.

SHARKEY CAN EXPECT TOUGH TIME WITH RISKO

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey has been made a decided favorite over Johnny Risko for the second semi-final of the heavyweight elimination tournament but it isn't quite clear just how so-called "wise money" gets that way.

With the exception of "Honest Tom" Heeney all of the big fellows in the tournament have been in-and-outers. Tom has plugged along consistently, in Tom has plugged along consistently, in a flash of the something or other that has made Jack Dempsey stand out would boost Heeney to the top of the heap.

Sharkey and Risko are more spectacular than Heeney but more difficult to figure in advance. Unless the railbirds base their contentions on the ground that Sharkey, after two unsatisfactory bouts against Dempsey and Heeney, is due for a return to form it is difficult to see how the Boston sailor can be made a top-heavy favorite.

Risko is apt to connect with one of his terrific left hooks any time. The Cleveland rubber-man has endurance and aggressiveness of the Heeney sort. He isn't the boxer or sharpshooter that Sharkey is but he is a difficult target for any marksman to bring down.

ARTICLES FIND READY SALE AT LEIPSIC FAIR

All the selling, however, is not by the European exhibitors. The American firms represented at the fair report that toilet preparations and certain classes of textile goods made in the United States are finding ready sale. So too are American structural toys, their superior finish enabling them to hold their own in the face of strong European competition.

Buyers from both North America and South America have been doing a brisk business. Important orders have been placed for paper, office supplies and fancy goods as well as toys.

LENTEN SERIES PREACHER SAYS GOD'S GREAT AIM IS CHARACTER BUILDING

Don't confound the crisis of conversion with the process of salvation, admonished Rev. Dr. Henry Howard, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York city, in the second of a series of sermons which he is delivering this week at the United Congregational church, under the auspices of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. The services, in which the churches of Norwich are participating, have had large sized attendances since they were opened Sunday night and there was another capacity congregation Tuesday evening. The opening exercises were conducted by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church. General Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. also participated in the service.

Dr. Howard took as his text, Philippians 2; 12-13; So then my beloved, even as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now, much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

Speaking of the text Dr. Howard said: "This is a classic and before I begin to unfold it, I want to tell you of a new discovery I have made—That this is the greatest missionary text in the New Testament. The fifth verse says; Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus. Which mind? The missionary mind, the sacrificial mind. If you want to work out your salvation, then you've got to forget yourself; you've got to lay aside your pride; you've got to reach out and lend a helping hand to the fallen.

In looking for truth one of the prime conditions of success is sincerity of purpose and a resolve to frankly face bare facts. The search of the truth seeker involves sacrifice; and sacrifice he must be prepared to make. The text teaches us three things about salvation. First, it is personal; it is your own; second, it is progressive; it has to be worked out; third, it is a two-fold process.

This word salvation is a much deeper, richer term than even many Christians have imagined. If I were asked for a working definition of salvation I would say that it is the issue and result in character and service of humanly working out what has been worked in. Salvation covers the Genesis and evolution of Christian life.

The great aim of God is character building. God's idea was not to get the children of Israel to the Promised Land. It took 40 years for them to get to the Promised Land. He could have gotten them there in 40 days. His idea was to get them from here to there in morality. He had to work a backbone in those people, because, for 400 years they had been slaves. Don't confound the crisis of conversion with the process of salvation. That is a mistake a great many people make. If you were converted 10 or 20 years ago, you passed a crisis, but don't confound the beginning with the end.

Salvation is a much easier thing for some people than for others. Take, for example, a burned out man; a man who has lived in sin. Salvation is a much more difficult thing for him than for an innocent child. Habits have been formed in that man and habits are hard to break. The great question to ask ourselves is—are we in the process of salvation? God will see us through. He has sunk too much capital in salvation to pull out. Christ came so that not only that we might have life but that we might have it abundantly.

The service was brought to a close about 9 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Howard will speak again this (Wednesday) evening and will bring the sermon series to a close Thursday evening.

CHILD WELFARE LUNCHEON HAS INTERESTING SPEAKERS

Talks upon the juvenile courts, the visiting teacher in the schools, and the financial aspect of state welfare work were interesting features of the luncheon given at noon Tuesday at the Wauregan hotel by the child welfare committee under the auspices of the Norwich League of Women Voters. There was an attendance of over 200, and the hostesses were Miss Elizabeth A. Huntington, Miss Annie L. Ruggles, Miss Louise C. Howe, Mrs. Allyn Brand, Mrs. William B. Burge, Mrs. William A. The concluding speaker was Senator Edward F. Hall, state commissioner of control and finance, who spoke upon the financial aspects of state welfare work.

The ushers at the meeting were Miss Louise Norton, chairman; Miss Marion Briggs, Miss Margaret Sayles, Miss Constance Learned, Mrs. Alfred P. Allen and Mrs. Warren L. Chaffin.

DR. GOOD IS TO HAVE WATERBURY PRIVATE HOSPITAL

Dr. William Murray Good, the eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, will remove his office from the Steele building, 51 West Main street, to 63 Center street, Thursday, March 1.

In his new location he will occupy one whole floor which will be one of the city's first hospitals on the plan which finds much favor with specialists. His new quarters, which will be divided to meet the requirements of his practice, will have a splendidly appointed operating room.

Dr. Good has been practicing in Waterbury for 17 years. His practice has outgrown his present quarters and he is obliged to have larger space.

Mrs. McHatton is the younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hubbard, whose residence was on Sachem street. Her husband, the late Dr. Henry McHatton, was an Academy student and, following their marriage, their home was in Macon, Georgia. Mrs. McHatton now divides her time between New York and Athens, Ga., where her only child, Hubbard McHatton, is a professor in the university. With her granddaughter, she returned recently from a visit with Dr. McHatton's relatives in France. A number of her Norwich friends have been invited to meet her at Saturday's reception.

The study period was on Victor Hugo and George Sand. Mrs. Greene gave a most interesting talk on the life of Hugo, after which Mrs. Alfred N. H. Vaughn outlined his "Les Miserables," and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne read selections from Hugo's "Notre Dame." Mrs. Edward D. Fuller completed the afternoon's program by giving an informing talk on the life and works of George Sand.

A sheriff's jury upheld the sanity of Mrs. Marion Hilsmith Watson, daughter of the late Frank N. Hilsmith, artist, of Boston and New York.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING SET FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Wednesday evening, March 14, has been named as the date for the special town meeting called by the selectmen in response to a petition for the purpose of acting on a revaluation program for the town of Norwich. The call specifies that the meeting is "for the purpose of determining what action the taxpayers will take in relation to the employment of outside expert help to assist the board of assessors of the town in making a revaluation of taxable property of the town in accordance with modern methods and in compliance with the statute laws of this state."

The call also asks action on a proposition to empower the selectmen to enter into a contract on behalf of the town, providing for the employment of such expert help and in relation to the making of an appropriation to meet the expenses of such work relative to the revaluation program here.

The special meeting has been called by the selectmen after receiving a petition from the required number of citizens.

Reasons for Tax Equalization

The chamber of commerce has summarized the reasons for revaluation in order that there may be tax equalization as follows:

1. The burden of taxation is not being distributed equally. Houses and lots are valued at a lump sum with ranges of assessment varying from 25 to 60 per cent. Assessments of business property is taxed on every disproportionate basis, some for 25 per cent. and others 30, 40 and even 50 per cent. Many automobile owners are actually paying more taxes than the owners of houses and lots. The same inequality exists between industrial plants. The tax commissioner says: "Taxes paid by industrial and manufacturing houses are chaotic, as no uniformity exists."

2. The laws of the state of Connecticut are not being complied with. Statutes which are not being conformed to include the following: Section 1153. Which requires a revaluation of all taxable property every ten years. Section 1151. Which requires the assessors to swear to annual abstracts that they have completed their duties according to the law. And Section 2201. Which specifies the oath.

3. The present plan under which assessments are being made is entirely inadequate. The last re-assessment of Norwich took place in 1860 and these figures form the basis for taxes at the present day. The present plan under which assessments are made is more or less a matter of guess work.

4. The assessors are unable to do the work. This is a physical impossibility for three men and one girl to accomplish in any reasonable time, work which normally takes a force of 20 men under experts six or eight months to do.

5. Norwich now has the highest tax rate in the state of Connecticut. Norwich has the highest tax rate in the state. The tax commissioner verifies this in a letter addressed to the chamber. In a printed document, which the chamber has on file, listing the tax rates of about 125 cities in Massachusetts, there is only one city that has a tax rate any where near approaching this figure.

6. Building operations are restricted and the new home owner is heavily penalized. His place is taxed at 45 and 50 per cent. while a similar or better house adjoining, which may have been built ten years ago, is assessed at what the assessors claim is an average value of 30 or 35 per cent.

7. Norwich has reached the limit of its bonding capacity. The city budget will continue to grow regardless of whether half of its citizens move out of the city limits or not. Within the next three to five years more school construction is facing the town and the tax rate in the city is likely to be nearer 60 mills than 50. This point is made because the popular claim is is made because the popular claim is rates lower, an increase in taxes would immediately follow.

8. The value of the tax maps will be lost unless action is taken immediately. Experts will complete the work in nine months to a year, if the work should delay any longer than this the value of the $20,000 investment in tax maps would be somewhat in doubt unless definite appropriations are made to keep them up to date.

9. Inaction may bring undesirable publicity. Action by the state is not improbable. The state of Connecticut has the right and may compel action which would bring anything but desirable publicity to Norwich and it would cost considerable more than if we undertake the work ourselves. However, the state would much prefer the initiative in this movement to come from within the town of Norwich rather than from without.

Conclusion—Experts are required. The present situation is chaotic. Specialists in the matters augmented by a competent staff will be necessary to complete a satisfactory job in a reasonable length of time.

Dr. Max G. Schlapp, widely-known neurologist and criminologist, died Monday night of pnuemonia at the Post-graduate hospital in New York. He was 58 years old.

EXPRESSES CRITICISM OF CONN. COLLEGE TRUSTEES

HARTFORD, March 6—(AP)—A letter criticizing the attitude of the board of trustees of the Connecticut College for Women at New London and the board secretary Colin S. Buell, for failure to take into their confidence the alumnae and friends of the college in regard to the differences over the teaching of English between President Benjamin T. Marshall and Professor John Edwin Wells that led to the president submitting his resignation, has been sent to the Courant by Edward H. Tracy, Cleveland, Ohio, lawyer, who two daughters are graduates of the college.

The reported opinion of the trustees and their secretary "that this unfortunate business is solely their own affair," should be not allowed to prevail, wrote Mr. Tracy. "It is difficult to believe that the trustees of this institution," he added, "can fail to recognize the full scope of their responsibility and those to whom they owe the faithful and wise discharge of their duties." Pointing out that this is the second time within 12 years of the institution's existence that such a situation has arisen, he wrote, "I can conceive of no situation more perilous to the future of a young college."

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS NUMBER 202,098 IN NATION

It is noted from Washington that Rhode Island membership in the Church of Christ Scientist more than doubled in the 20 years from 1906 to 1926, as revealed by a report just made public by the census bureau of the department of commerce, which is conducting surveys of all religious bodies in the country.

The membership in Rhode Island in the Church of Christ Scientist in 1926 was 580, while in 1906 it numbered only 234. In the same period the number of churches of the sect in the state increased from three to five.

These five churches report that their expenditures for church work in 1926 amounted to $40,791.

In New England the increase in membership is general. The Massachusetts membership in the church rose from 2,238 to 8,535 in the 20 years, and in Connecticut the membership almost tripled, rising from 521 to 1,517. Vermont's membership doubled from 144 to 310, and Maine's rose from 384 to 911.

The national membership is given as 202,098 an increase from 85,717. Of that number, 131,657 members of the church are in urban areas and about one-fourth of the churches are located in rural districts.

DRIVE AGAINST MOSQUITOES OVER 1,800 MARSH ACRES

Work in ditching approximately 1,800 acres of salt marsh in New Haven, East Haven, Hamden, North Haven and Branford, which will cost approximately $25,000, will be undertaken by the state about April 1 in the effort to eliminate mosquito breeding places, according to Robert C. Botsford, mosquito elimination deputy of the state. Orders to the towns, calling for the work, were issued by Dr. William L. Slate, director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station at New Haven, and owners of land which is to be ditched, are to be notified this week.

The entire project represents one of the greatest co-operative efforts between towns in this state for mosquito elimination, and was initiated by the New Haven Chamber of Commerce last year, following a report from the state that most of the mosquitoes came into that city from other towns.

WATERFORD TOWN TAX LAID AT 24 MILLS

The question as to whether the money received from the state for highway purposes be used for constructing a mile of macadam road or the rebuilding of about seven or eight miles of dirt roads was voted in favor of the dirt roads.

A number of petitions for electric lights in various sections of the town was voted favorably and they will be erected during the next few months.

CRESCENTS WIN THIRD GAME AND THE SERIES FROM ST. JOSEPH'S Y. M. A.

In a fast, thrilling, and furious game last night at Parish hall in Taftville the Crescents repeated a win over the fast travelling St. Joseph Y. M. A. of Webster to the tune of 31 to 26 to take the series and the honors due them for winning twice over a quintet that has trimmed such teams as the Boston Whirlwinds, Millville and other famous New England clubs.

Although the crowd was not quite as large or as rabid as at the last game, nevertheless the contest was a mighty fine one to watch, both teams playing with every ounce of their energy, and it was not until the final minutes of play that Taftville was sure that it was their game. From the blow of the first whistle until the very end neither side had a decided advantage, each team taking turns at leading. Both teams made some brilliant shots, the floor work of each being fast. Although no member of the Crescents materially increased his number of points per game, he played his man at every point of the game and the only man on the Webster team to get away with high points was Ivarzan who outshined the rest of the team with a grand total of 16.

As was to be expected the game was replete with fouls, so bitter was the battle, and like the last game Taftville was less guilty than the St. Joseph boys, the Crescents having eighteen chances to shoot fouls against the Saints' eleven.

As is his custom Normandin took the lead for Taftville and Murphy came through with a beautiful shot from the center of the floor. Krajewski made a field goal by a pretty shot, and Bieziak shot a field and then a foul. Normandin came through with a field to tie the score which the Taftville boys held by a scant margin for the remainder of the first half. During the rest of the half for St. Joseph, Ivarzan did all the work. He shot three field goals and a foul, but had to be content to have his team take the short end of a 15 to 14 score at the end of the half.

Both teams speeded up in the second and Ivarzan again took the honors. He made two fields and a foul, but his opponent Murphy, not to be outdone, came through with a field and a foul goal. Normandin shot a foul and added two points by one of his famous overhand shots. Ivarzan shot another pretty basket to take the lead again. Eccleston made one more spectacular basket and Normandin ended the scoring for the Crescents with a field goal. Ivarzan to end a perfect evening dropped one more in which terminated scoring for both sides.

By winning over the fast Webster team the Crescents go into their fray against Danielson Friday night with unbounded confidence. Manager Burrell says that if their playing last night is any criterion Danielson had better prepare for a beautiful trouncing.

The Taftville Whirlwinds chalked up another victory by a win over the fast Noank Stars by the score of 23 to 19, in an exciting preliminary game. The summary follows:
